To complete the deal by which they acquired Grimes and Outfielder Harper from the Phillies, the Giants paid $20,000 to Buffalo for Outfielder Thompson, who figured in the trade. Bevo Lebourveau, Toledo outfielder, cost them $22,000, and Catcher Devormer of Louisville a similar sum.

Possibilities of the Yankees exceeding the payroll of the Giants was seen, however, if Ruth and Herb Penock both succeed in extracting generous salary increases.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE — By Ahern

ACROSS many a chess-board, old friendships have been strengthened — new friendships formed—with the aid of mellow OLD CHUM.

There is no contentment more soothing than the contentment of a good pipe; and smokers know that the words OLD CHUM mean just that. They know that OLD CHUM is a classic in tobacco—a satisfying, understanding and sympathetic companion.

After smoking OLD CHUM for years and years, many men there are who say that Canada's most popular pipe tobacco still holds all records for smiles to the mile.

And the thousands of OLD CHUM admirers save the "Poker Hands" now packed in every package and tin and exchange them for valuable presents.

If you smoke OLD CHUM, you know all this. If you do not smoke OLD CHUM, you have yet to know the joys of genuine smoking contentment.

CORNS

Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

A Blessing to People of Advanced Years

"I wonder if you really know what a blessing Gin Pills are to people of advanced years.

"I am 72 years of age, and suffered for a considerable time with kidney and bladder trouble. My rest was broken through having to get up in the night three and four times. Later I suffered with pains in the bladder, and my son, who had used Gin Pills for pains in the back and lumbago, bought me a box. Before I had finished it I was relieved of the pains in my bladder and had to get up less frequently. At my age I can scarcely expect to be permanently free from troubles of this kind, but if Gin Pills will give others the relief they have given me, they will be a blessing indeed."

Prompt and lasting relief has been found in Gin Pills by thousands of people of advanced years who have had kidney or bladder trouble. If even slightly troubled in this way, get a box today at your druggist's — 50c. National Drug & Chemical Company of Canada, Limited, Toronto, Canada. 126

ROVERS WIN.

In the Midget League game the Rovers defeated the Regular Fellows on the Sacred Heart Rink last night by the score of 3 to 0. The ice being in splendid condition, both teams played very good hockey. M. Murray refereed.

The next games played will be: Regular Fellows vs. Canucks, at the Sacred Heart Rink, Feb. 21, at 6.30 p.m.

Canucks vs. Rovers, replay at the Sacred Heart Rink, Wednesday, Feb. 24, at 6.30 p.m.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont

P. McGuire, Rev. J. Finn and Rev. C. Moloney. Rev. P. Costello paid an eloquent tribute to the character of the deceased. Service at the grave were conducted by Rev. J. McAuley.

Pall-bearers were two brothers, Messrs. Thomas and William Moran of New York City, Mr. F. Young of Young's Point, Dr. J. M. O'Brien, Mr. James Cowan of Lindsay and Dr. R. Sheehy.

IN MEMORIAM.

CROSS: In loving memory of our dear brother John Cross, who died Feb. 20th, 1924:

Always so good, unselfish and kind
Few on this earth his equal we find,
One of the best that God could send,
A loving brother right to the end;
He had a nature you couldn't help loving,
A heart that was purer than gold,
And to those who knew him and loved him
His memory will never grow cold.

—Inserted by Brother and Sister Alice and Will.

IN MEMORIAM.

CROSS: In loving memory of our dear Husband and Father, John Cross, who died Feb. 20th, 1924:

No one heard the footsteps of the angels drawing near,
Who took from earth to heaven the one we loved so dear;
The pearly gates stood open and a gentle voice said 'Come,'
And with farewell words unspoken,
He calmly entered home.

—Inserted by his wife and family.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED

An Employment Bureau has been established at the Canadian General Electric Company. Mr. H. A. Cranfield, who is also secretary of the Suggestion Committee at the works, will supervise this bureau.

The hiring of help at the gate will be discontinued and in future any person wishing to make application for employment with this company will write or apply in person to the Employment Bureau, which is located on the ground floor of the main office. There application forms will obtained and these will be completed giving full information as to the applicant's experience or ability, and they will be notified by mail or phone as a position becomes vacant which they are capable of doing.

This is a long felt want and will do away with men appearing at the gate at certain periods of the day and it will also give a better opportunity for the applicant to intelligently state his qualifications for the different occupations in the works.

In future it will be absolutely useless for applicants visiting officials' houses or calling them up on the phone or appealing to foremen or officials of the works to use their influence to obtain positions. This practice, if carried out, will be a detriment to a means of employment instead of a help. It is recognized in modern business that the employment and proper placing of men is a very important factor both for the company and for the applicant.

Your Liver
Is the largest gland in your body. It aids in the digestion of food by secreting bile. It also serves to separate waste materials from the blood stream so that these wastes can be eliminated from the body. The energy which enables the liver to function emanates from the brain and is carried to the liver through the spinal cord and nerves.
If certain spinal nerves are constricted as they leave the spinal canal the liver will not receive sufficient energy to enable it to function normally. ABNORMAL ACTIVITY OF THIS IMPORTANT GLAND MAY RESULT IN JAUNDICE, INDIGESTION, CONSTIPATION, BILIOUSNESS, HEADACHES AND VARIOUS OTHER COMMON BUT DISTRESSING AILMENTS.
If you have reason to suspect that your liver is not working properly, lose no time in getting a spinal examination. If the liver nerves are found to be constricted, get Chiropractic Spinal Adjustments, because your liver cannot function rightly unless it receives a normal supply of nerve force.

18 DEATHS FROM ATLANTIC STORM OVER WEEK END

EXPOSURE FATAL.

Wharves and Cottages Destroyed and Shipping Held Up.

NEW YORK Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Eighteen deaths and millions of dollars in property damage were caused by the furious snow sleet and windstorm that has abated today after raging on land and sea in the Atlantic Coast States for the last forty-eight hours.

From Maine to Delaware mountainous seas tossed ships about like match boxes shattered dwellings and swept away piers and boardwalks. High tides which carried raging waters hundreds of feet inshore added to the havoc in coastal towns. The storm took the heaviest toll off Provincetown, Mass., where eight coastguard men lost their lives when patrol boat 238 was tossed ashore. Other deaths attributed to the storm included four in Pittsburgh and one each from exposure in Boston, Quincy, Malden, and Leominster, Mass., one at South Amboy, N.J., and the second officer of a barge off Ambrose lightship.

Beach Resorts Damaged

New Jersey beach resorts suffered heavily, high tides and waves causing extensive damage to boats, board walks, shops, cottages, and other structures. A hundred-foot section of the famous Atlantic City boardwalk was deposited on top of a frame structure along the promenade by a huge wave.

A five-masted schooner was driven ashore near Nantasket, Mass., while the crew was rescued by volunteers in dories.

Shipping along the entire coast practically was suspended, vessels being greatly delayed.

The tide in New York harbor was said to be the highest in twenty years and damage estimated at hundreds of thousands was done to piers and stores.

Aviators Lost

The storm destroyed the last hope for the rescue of Lieutenants Willard J. Harris and William Gray, army aviators, who were lost Thurs-

Snow Storm Is Appreciated By Unemployed and Farmers

TORONTO, Feb. 12 (Canadian Press).—Welcomed by the unemployed in the cities and the fall wheat farmer in the country the snowfall which commenced generally over this district yesterday continued this morning. The premature Spring-like weather of the past few weeks had bared the wheat fields, and the new blanket was most acceptable to the agriculturist. Milder weather is promised for tomorrow.

BRITAIN MAKES A NEW ATTEMPT TO WIN TRADE

Industrial Fair Opens To-day at London and Birmingham.

1,800 EXHIBITORS.

Many Buyers Promise Success To Exposition—Canada Has Most.

(By C. P. Williamson, United Press Correspondent.)

LONDON, Feb. 21. — Britain's biggest bid for trade since the exposition closed was made to-day when the British Industries Fair was opened here and in Birmingham in an effort to attract monied buyers from all parts of the world. It was hoped that the stimulus of the fair would help to compensate for some of the $2,327,030,000 adverse trade balance recorded here in 1926.

London's fair was principally devoted to small articles and that at Birmingham to machinery and other heavy manufacturers. More than 200,000 invitations were sent through out the world. Judging from the replies which had been received up to noon to-day, the United States will have the largest representation, with Holland, France, Belgium and Switzerland next in order.

To Last Two Weeks.

South America and the Dominions will be well represented. Canada, probably will have the largest number of buyers to examine the offerings of 1800 exhibitors. There were only 1200 exhibitors last year. The fair will continue for a fortnight.

Although some American buyers were present this year it was understood that Americans have experienced considerable difficulty in recent years in finding goods they desired in British markets.

A representative of an American firm recently spent six weeks in travel among several large English cities in an effort to place a large order for woollen goods. British economists contrasted that with sales methods in the United States where salesmen would have been waiting at the docks for the prospective buyer.

THE WEATHER

The heaviest snowfall of the season began early Sunday morning and continued all day, and, to a lessend degree, into the night. About 13 inches fell. Those who had long pathways to shovel out will say the depth is under-estimated. Our heavy snow falls generally come during the first ten days of March. Lowest temperature Saturday night, just zero. This morning, 6 degrees above.

High School Girl, 15 Throws Self On Track

DAVENPORT, Iowa, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press). — Another student suicide was added to the rapidly mounting total reported from various parts of the country since Christmas, when Blanche Gabathuler, 15-year-old student, threw herself in front of a train Saturday. She had been reprimanded by her grandparents.

LOOKIT THE GANG PLAYIN' HOOKY

SUNDAY STORM HALTS TRAFFIC

Peterborough Streets Blocked and Country Roads Practically Impassable.

WORST OF SEASON.

Peterborough and Eastern Ontario got the tail-end of the blizzard which swept the Atlantic coast and the Maritime Provinces.

This city and district were yesterday enveloped in the worst storm of the season. Riding on a gale of wind, about thirteen inches of snow fell, and this morning found all traffic considerably handicapped.

The storm continued unabated until ten o'clock last night, and huge drifts of snow, four and five feet deep, were piled up on the main streets of the city.

George Street sidewalks this morning were massed high with snow, and it was well nigh noon before they were partially cleared. Street Commissioner Harry Evans had six teams and twenty-five men busily engaged clearing away the snow.

The north and south roads in the country are badly blocked. Milkmen who had to go to the country for their milk this morning had a very difficult time getting through, and more than one got his horse down, and had to tramp a way out for the animal.

Street car traffic was continued throughout yesterday with the help of the sweeper, but motor traffic was difficult, with many cars getting stuck in the drifts in the downtown section last night.

Trains this morning were just a few minutes late, but the storm was not blamed for this.

PRISON GUARDS KILLED IN AUTO

THREE OTHERS HURT.

JACKSON, Mich., Feb. 21 Canadian Press) — Three guards employed at Michigan State prison here were instantly killed and three others seriously injured and a convict chauffeur hurt slightly when their automobile crashed into another machine enroute to the new prison annex yesterday.

WELL! HERE'S PUSS!

LONDON, Feb. 21.—When Sir Claude Alexander's cat disappeared recently from the cat show at the Crystal Palace, there was considerable stir in many quarters. Police were set on the trail, households mourned and there was tumult and shouting on all sides. Then, lo! after many days, during an organ recital, Pussy crawled out from among the pipes of the palace's big organ.

Icicle Missed His Head But Knocked Feet Flying

A large icicle falling from the roof of a Charlotte Street building was almost the cause of a tragedy this morning.

A young chap was was passing at the time escaped serious injury by inches, the icicle missing his head and striking his leg with sufficent force to knock his feet from under him.

The owner of the building was notified and immediately got to work and removed several others, thus obviating any further danger from that source.

COMMISSION TO NAME LOCATIONS

NEW LIQUOR POLICY.

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—The appointments of supervisors and employees in the dispensaries that will be made necessary when the new liquor policy becomes effective will be handled entirely by the Ontario Liquor Commission, according to information from a reliable source. The Commission will also name the locations of these new dispensaries.

The fact that these important matters have been placed in the hands of the Commission precludes the possibility of securing jobs and advantages through political influence and patronage. The Liquor Commission handled the appointments and the locations of the dispensaries under the laws that are now in effect, and if they keep on making the new appointments, there will be really no change. It was felt in some quarters that if these important posts were given into other hands to dispose of, favor might be shown.

Hamilton will probably have dispensaries in other parts of the city, and the locations of these might have some effect on the districts they were in and on the business life in the immediate surroundings.

Two-Dollar Bill Becomes $20,000 At Cannes Table

TORONTO, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Gregory Merritt, of Toronto, has entered into prominence, it was learned here, by running a two-dollar bill into $20,000 at the Casino at Cannes, France.

Merritt served in the flying corps during the war; is a graduate of University of Toronto, and is an ardent motorist and tennis player. In letters he has addressed to his mother, Merritt states that he would sooner win the Cannes tennis championship than break the bank in the Casino.

POLICE FIRE TWICE.

BOMBAY, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Communal rioting between Sikhs and Mahommedans outside a mosque today resulted in the deaths of a Hindu, a Sikh, and a Mohammedan and injuries to twenty-three others, among them six constables. The crowd was so unruly and the situation became so threatening that the police had to fire twice before order was restored.

Think Income Tax Cut Will Bring Out Scots

LONDON, Feb. 21 — The news of the reduction in the Canadian income tax has inspired the cartoonist of The Daily Express to depict an ocean liner named Annie Laurie rushing toward Canada, filled with kilted Scots and bagpipes.

'IL DUCE' SENDS COOLIDGE REPLY

Hands Letter on Naval Disarmament To Ambassador Himself.

BELIEVED REFUSAL.

ROME, Feb. 21 (United Press).—Premier Mussolini to-day replied to President Coolidge's invitation to participate in a conference for the discussion of further naval disarmament. Mussolini personally handed his reply to United States Ambassador Henry P. Fletcher.

It was semi-officially stated here last week that "Il Duce" would refuse Mr. Coolidge's invitation and subsequent unofficial revelations purported to explain the main structure of Mussolini's argument. The unofficial forecasters said Mussolini would reject further disarmament because Italy's navy now was no larger than was necessitated by her colonial responsibilities and her duty to maintain trade routes for the importation of coal, iron and petroleum —none of which Italy produces in large quantities herself.

BUSY CROSSING OCEAN.

BOSTON, Feb. 21.—When Philip J. Peabody, who leaves soon to visit friends in Rome, he will be starting his 105th trip across the Atlantic ocean. He is a retired lawyer and will be 70 on Feb. 22. He hopes to live to make his 150th crossing.

Storm Sends Whisky To Dwellers On Coast

BAYVILLE, N.Y., Feb. 21.—(United Press).—A freak of the storm along the Long Island coast was welcomed by several residents of Bayville. The two-masted schooner W. T. Bell was blown ashore and members of the local fire department rescued the crew of six. Then, with fellow-citizens, they proceeded to salvage the cargo.

It consisted of hundreds of 35-gallon kegs stamped "Blended whiskey, Newfoundland." The vessel pounded to pieces during the night but the ship was cargoless by then and nobody except Charles R. Shamon, its listed owner, cared.

MINISTER GIVES FIRST INTERVIEW TO U.S. PAPERS

RECEIVES WISHES.

Refuses To Answer Any Questions Regarding Foreign Policies.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Following his recognition by President Coolidge as Canadian Minister to the United States, Hon. Vincent Massey's first official conference took place Saturday. He met correspondents representing newspapers in every part of the world. Mr. Massey intimated at the opening that he could discuss only matters pertaining to relations between the United States and Canada, or inter-imperial relations. Consequently correspondents who sought his opinion on conditions in Nicaragua or China, Mexico or Turkey got little response. Others wanted to know the effect on Canadian minds of the farm relief bill, which has passed both Houses of Congress and is before the President, or of the milk bill, which shortly becomes law.

Domestic Affairs.

Mr. Massey suggested it would be better not to discuss domestic legislation of the United States until it had been brought to his notice, or until some definite objection had been registered in Canada.

The new Canadian Minister received the cordial wishes of the newspaper correspondents, which showed friendly interest in his work. The Canadian Legation has been already added to the newspapermen's regular sources of news and cordial relations established with the staff.

U. S. PROTESTS MOB ATTACK

BADLY BEATEN.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—An attack made on Lieut. John F. Luten of the United States navy by a mob of Chinese coolies at Chungking on Thursday has been formally protested to the Cantonese Government by the United States Consul General and the Commissioner of Foreign Affairs at Chung King.

A report reaching the navy department from the commander of the Yanktze said Luten, mistaken for a British officer, had been struck a number of times on the head and knocked down, and his clothing torn before he could be rescued.

TWO PILGRIMS KILLED AT COMO

Several Missing Following Sinking of Steamer With 700 Aboard.

MIRACLE CLAIMED.

COMO, Italy, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Two persons were killed and a few are missing through the sinking of a pilgrim steamer on Lake Como with seven hundred passengers aboard, within a few feet of the landing stage here. The pilgrims attribute their escape to a miracle owing to the presence on the steamer of the Head of St. Aloysius Gonzaga.

Cantonese Minister Signs Peace Treaty Terms Not Divulged

Oficial Publication Made, That Following Many Days of Negotiations, Agreement Was Reached on Saturday Night.

ANNOUNCEMENT MADE WILL ALSO TRY FOR SIMILAR CONCORD WITH NORTH

Agreement Signed is Probably in Nature of New Modus Vivendi To Take Place of Treaties Now in Effect Between Two Countries.

HANKOW, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press). — An agreement of far-reaching effect and importance has been reached by the British and Cantonese.

Official announcement was made that Great Britain will begin conversations today with leaders in Northern China looking to a similar concord with the Northern administration.

Messages from Peking say that Dr. W. K. Wellington Koo, Foreign Minister for the Peking Government, and Miles W. Lampson, British Minister to China, will begin conversations there today for the purpose of reaching an agreement in the North.

The agreement signed by O'Malley and Chen is probably in the nature of a new modus vivendi to take the place of the treaties now in effect between China and Great Britain.

Negotiations were begun early in January and it was then stated they were designed virtually to do away with foreign concessions, excepting Shanghai, which is an international settlement, extra-territoriality and existing customs treaties to which both the Cantonese and Peking governments strenuously objected.

Terms Most Liberal

The terms upon which Great Britain approached the Cantonese were not made public but they were said to be most liberal.

It was understood that Great Britain asked only such minor conditions as would ensure efficient administration of the surrendered concessions.

The negotiations have several times been suspended because of objections from Chen. The most serious impasse was that encountered early in February when Chen announced that "until the British ceased their heavy concentration of troops at Shanghai the Nationalists of China would not enter into negotiations for a new treaty."

How that objection was overcome is not now apparent, as the British for a time continued to send forces already en route into Shanghai.

The British proposals to the Cantonese were also presented to the Peking Government and for a time negotiations were in progress between Miles Lampson, the British Minister, and the Peking officials. No progress has recently been reported as to these negotiations, as the Peking Government ten days ago made objections similar to those of the Cantonese regarding the sending of British troops to Shanghai.

WILL FORM CORNER STONE.

LONDON, Feb. 21.— (Canadian Press.)— Signature of the agreement between the Cantonese foreign minister, Eugene Chen, and the British Charge, Owen O'Malley, is gratifying to British officials, as it smooths out the problems arising from the forcible seizure of the Hankow concession. It is thought that this agreement will form the corner stone for new relations between China and Great Britain.

The Foreign Office last night was still awaiting details as to whether the agreement entered into concerns Hankow alone, or also embraces Kiukiang. It is probable that certain details will have to be worked out.

News of the signing of the agreement was communicated to all the members of the cabinet who remained in London for the week end in order to keep in touch with the latest developments in China. Foreign Secretary Sir Austen Chamberlain received the news at his home at Mayfield, Sussex, and is expected to make a statement today in the House of Commons outlining the important points of the agreement.

Came As a Surprise.

Although Sir Austen had told Premier Baldwin and his other colleagues that he hoped the Cantonese foreign minister would sign the agreement this week end, the news of the accomplished fact came as an agreeable surprise owing to the previous disappointments on the eve of the expected signature. It is understood the leading principal of the accord is withdrawal of the Hankow concession from exclusive British control and placing it under a joint commission for administration, similar to that of the former

DRASTIC ACTION TO STOP STRIKE

STRIKERS FLEE.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Beheadings started yesterday by the Chinese authorities to stop the spread of the general strike called on Saturday continued today. Reliable Chinese sources estimated the number of executions at twenty-eight, while Nationalist supporters claim there had been ninety.

Executioners with large swords patrolled the streets and summarily, without semblance of a trial, decapitated on the spot men found making seditious speeches or distributing strike literature. The effect of the reign of terror, though unnoticeable yesterday, was pronounced today. Strike activities lessened, even in the foreign settlement beyond the jurisdiction of the Chinese authorities and natives started an exodus from the Chinese section to the protection of the foreign area.

Authorities in Quandary

SHANGHAI, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Authorities of the international settlement today are confronted with an awkward situation growing out of the strike agitation trouble of Saturday and yesterday, which caused the beheading of many labor agitators.

The authorities of Marshal Sun Chuang Fang, Provincial ruler and defender of Shanghai, applied for the surrender on military warrants of approximately fifty persons arrested by the police of the international settlement during the strike trouble. Several of these were brought up in provisional court today, charged with assault, obstruction of traffic, and other lesser offences.

Beheadings in the Chinese section which were carried out summarily by Marshal Sun's officials wherever they caught agitators at work, are believed to indicate clearly the fate of those arrested in the international settlement if they are handed over to the Chinese authorities beyond the international boundary.

As the result of this situation, the Chinese judge of the provisional court was in a quandary. He temporarily disposed of the difficulty by remanding all prisoners to custody of the international police.

Terms of Accord

HANKOW, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—With the rest of China on edge over the growing seriousness of the civil war and the resulting international complications, Great Britain and the Cantonese government entered an era of accord in one respect by an agreement disposing of the jurisdiction over the British concession here.

The terms of the agreement provide that the British authorities will summon an annual general meeting of ratepaers (taxpayers) on March 15. The British municipality will thereupon be dissolved and the administration of the concession will be handed over formally to a new Chinese municipality.

The Cantonese government, upon dissolution of the British municipal council, will forthwith establish a special Chinese municipality modelled on that of the special administration district.

STRIKE ADDS TO SHANGHAI SEIGE TERROR

Business Suspended When Workers Quit To Celebrate Cantonese Victories.

REFUGEES FLEEING.

Sun's Forces Throwing Up Defence Works Outside of City.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 21 — Events moved swiftly Saturday toward what appeared to be the final chapter in the Cantonese drive for the possession of Shanghai. Active fighting in the immediate vicinity of the city appeared imminent today.

General Sun Chuan Fang was reported isolated with a force of 40,000 men at Chapu, about sixty miles from Shanghai, fighting desperately to stay the advance of the on driving southerners.

The Sun Chang-Fang division stationed at Shanghai began throwing up defence works immediately outside the city. This is on a broad, open plain dotted with hundreds of huge earth mounds which mark Chinese graves.

Strike Called

Meantime, trouble promised within the city itself over the week-end. A general three-day strike, celebrating the Nationalist victories, was partially inaugurated this morning. Street cars, omnibuses, postoffice, cotton mills, department stores and numerous other industries were affected. It is estimated 80,000 workers are idle, and the authorities believe approximately 250,000 will participate in the strike over Sunday and Monday.

The striking tramwaymen this morning attacked and smashed a few trams in the international settlement when fellow workers failed to join the walkout.

All possible police precautions against disorders have been taken. The authorities were assisted by a steady downpour of rain which kept the concession quiet.

Refugees Arrive

Refugees continue to arrive here from Yangtze ports, including 300 Americans and 400 British.

Two hundred more refugees, mainly Americans, Canadians, and British, are expected today.

LOVER'S LEAP IS SOLD FOR SEVEN DOLLARS

PALMYRA, Mo., Feb. 21.—The historic bluff in Hannibal, Mo., known as "Lover's Leap" was sold last week by the sheriff for back taxes. The land brough $7. The bluff was named for an Indian maiden who, saddened by her unrequited love for a young warrior, cast herself from the bluff to her death.

OLD MASTERS

Darest thou now, Oh soul,
Walk out with me toward that unknown region,
Where neither ground is for the feet nor any path to follow?

No map there, nor guide,
Nor face with blooming flesh, nor lips, nor eyes are in that land.

I know it not, Oh soul,
Nor dost thou, all is a blank before us—
All waits undreamed of in that region, that inaccessible land.

Till when the ties loosen,
All but the ties eternal, Time and Space,
Nor darkness, gravitation, sense, nor any bounds abounding us.

Then we burst forth, we float,
In Time and Space; Oh soul! prepared for them,
Equal, equipped at last (oh joy! Oh fruit of all!) them to fulfill, Oh soul!

—Walt Whitman: From "Leaves of Grass."

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

YOUR LEGACY

Wealth isn't all we ever hand
From father down to son,
For more important than the land
A dad bequeathes to one
Is something more we leave behind—
Our record and our name,
A legacy the lad will find
A thing of joy or shame.

I hope in easy circumstance
Your wealth will leave the lad,
I hope he gets a better chance
Than you have ever had.
And yet he will not thank you for
Your gold, however great,
If there is mud upon your door,
A stain on your estate.

Make no mistake about the things
You mean to leave the boy,
For money isn't all that brings
Our sorrow or our joy.
Oh, leave a little of your love
To help him through the crowd,
Leave this: the endless memory of
A dad of whom he's proud.

Worst Noise Is Caused By Changing Of Gears

LONDON, Feb. 21. — The worst noise in London traffic is caused by changing gears on omnibuses. This was shown when sound vibrations were taken on a wax record for the benefit of the Traffic Advisory Committee. The work was carried out from a motor car in which was the recording instrument. The motor car visited a number of the busiest traffic centres.

JUVENILE LODGES JOIN IN BANQUET

Members of A.O.F. Branches Have Enjoyable Social Evening.

The boys of Court "White Lily" and girls of "Sunbeam Circle" held a joint banquet and social on Thursday, February 17, in the S.O.E. hall. There was a large attendance of the members present to partake of the excellent supper, prepared by a hard-working committee, who were untiring in their efforts in looking after the children's wants (after all had done all possible in helping to clear the tables).

The following programme was carried through under the able chairmanship of Bro. S. Mason, Honorary Chief Ranger of "White Lily": Selection, L. O. L. 50 band; chorus, "God Preserve Thee Canada"; recitation, Comp. Livingstone; piano solo, Rosie Hayter; band selection; dialogue, "The Sick Doll," by four Sunbeams; song, Alice Shurety; piano solo, Lucy Fisher; recitation, Mary Terrace; quartette, four Sunbeams; recitation, Olive Shurety; band selection; dialogue, "The School," by juveniles; piano duet, Lucy Fisher and Rosie Hayter; recitation, Francis Livingstone; piano solo, Hilda Freeman; recitation, Vera Barnes; vocal chorus, the Fisher girls; band selection.

Each was received with great applause by the audience. The L. O. L. band selections were excellent. The dialogues showed that great attention had been given. During the programme, Bro. A. Day, H. C. J. B., addressed the juveniles on the "Membership of the Courts."

Bro. F. Ward, C. R., moved a hearty vote of thanks to all who in any way helped to make the evening such a success. Bro. Ray, C. R. of "Court Stanley," gave a few remarks congratulating the officers and members on their work and wishing them success.

FAMOUS CHARACTER DIES IN FAR NORTH

FOR SMITH, N. W. T., Feb. 19. —(Canadian Press).—One of the first white men to stake a claim in the famous Fort Norman oil rush of 1921, Joe Seabert, dropped dead here recently. With the passing of Mr. Seabert, the Far North lost one of its most interesting characters.

Always in the van of civilization, Seabert opened the first restaurant in Fort Smith, catering to the flood of prospectors and others who he knew would pass through the "Gateway to the Mackenzie" in ever-growing numbers.

Then in 1921 came the great Fort Norman oil rush. Word passed from mouth to mouth that Fort Norman bore beneath its frozen surface liquid gold worth millions.

In the middle of winter the dog teams raced to be the first on the scene. Wada, the Jap prospector, made his spectacular run, filing claims for himself and for many Edmonton and Vancouver speculators. Joe Seabert was among the first of the white men to stake his claim.

The fever increased in intensity and Seabert grasped the opportunity to sell out his claim for $5,000 in cash.

He was one of the few that came out with a profit from the oil fields. With Seabert money was of little interest, except as it brought him comfort and pleasure. Inside of three months the money was all gone and the old prospector was compelled to return to his occupation of catering.

CHILDREN FIND DYNAMITE BOMB

TO DEFEND 'BROTHER.'

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Children of Nicholas Bernardo, Italian proprietor of a shoe repair shop, yesterday found on a window sill of their home a stick of dynamite encased in cement which, it is declared, was left there between midnight and daylight yesterday morning. Bernardo reported the affair to the police and told them of receiving a year ago a letter in Italian, dated Hamilton, demanding from him $300 as his share of a fund for the defence of a "Brother" who had been arrested. The letter said he knew who to pay the money to. Bernardo says he did not know, and that he never belonged to any secret society. The dynamite stick was of sufficient size to have destroyed not only Bernardo's home but several others in the district, had it exploded.

WOMEN RIDICULE MINISTER'S CHARGES

Declare Smoking is Not a New Thing Among Women.

WINNIPEG, Man, Feb. 21.—(Canadian Press).—A number of local women have come out in defence of their sex and ridiculed charges made here recently by Rev. H. C. Lee, of Grace United Church, that cigarette-smoking mothers were contributing to the moral delinquency of the homes.

"Our grandmothers and great-grandmothers smoked and they did not upset the well-known good times," one woman declared when interviewed on the subject.

She believed that smoking was not a new thing for women. It was merely a passing phase of social life and not deeply related to any moral issue or to the national advance or retrogression of the country. An average woman was not an addict to tobacco. She smoked often to keep her husband company and took an occasional puff in company "just to be sociable."

In his denunciation of the cigarette-smoking mother, Mr. Lee said that the offspring of such mothers were "half damned at birth."

WAR LORD EVENS SCORE WITH RIVAL

General Wu's Troops Defeat Northern Forces in Honan Province.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 21.— (Canadian Press.)—General Wu Pei Fu evened his recent military score with his traditional rival, Marshal Chang Tso Lin, the Manchurian dictator, yesterday, when troops of the northern leaders had a brush in Honan province, the Manchurian's troops being disarmed by those of Gen Wu. This was reported in a Japanese dispatch received here from Peking. General Wu's troops also seized an ammunition train belonging to General Chang.

In his action yesterday General Wu reversed the situation in Honan province recently, when General Chang's troops disarmed a number of Wu's soldiers.

He Couldn't See To Walk So He Drove Automobile

YPSILANTI, Mich., Feb. 21. —Because John Etchison, 60 years old, could not see well to walk from his home to his work, which begins at midnight, he has been in the habit of driving the family automobile to and from his place of employment, according to the story he told Judge D. Z. Curtiss in Municipal Court here Saturday. He was charged with reckless driving after running into and demolishing a boulevard light post here. Six months ago Police Chief John F. Connors refused to approve a driver's license for Etchison because of his defective eyesight.

He was placed on probation on condition that he do no more driving.

FIND NO TRACE OF "ELKERTON"

Shipping Officials Certain She Foundered in Mid-Pacific.

37 MEN LOST.

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 21 (United Press).—Although search continued yesterday for the American freighter Elkton, caught in a mid-Pacific storm, shipping officials expressed belief that the craft had foundered.

Officials aboard the steamer Liberator, which answered the distress signal of the Elkton, found nothing but an expanse of oily water at the spot where the disabled craft had given her position.

The Elkton carried a crew of 37 men and had a $1,000,000 cargo of sugar consigned to Honolulu and New York.

There was a feeling in insurance circles, however, that the Elkton may have put in for shelter and, because of crippled wireless, could not make its safety known.

LOCAL RESIDENT DESIGNED PUMPS

W. H. Pretty Responsible For Calculations on Bermuda Dock.

On the front page of The Examiner for Tuesday last, the 15th inst., we gave an account of the proposed formation of a naval base in the West Indies, and also made reference to the new Bermuda floating dock.

It may be of interest to the citizens of Peterborough to know that W. H. Pretty of this city, was responsible for the hydraulic calculations and capacity and design of the pumping machinery for this great floating dock.

Mr. Pretty was in charge of the pumping operations at the preliminary trials and superintended the operations at the official trials of the British Government, when the dock was used for raising H.M.S. Sans-Pareil, with her full complement of officers and men, off Sheerness, in the early party of June in 1902.

TWO DAYS' TRIP PARIS TO NEW YORK

Automobile Manufacturer Plans To Make This Record in Near Future.

STRASSBOURG, Feb. 21, United Press. — Paris to New York in 48 hours! It's easy, declared Ettore Ettore Buggatti, the famous automobile manufacturer, who plans to do just that in the near future.

With his staff of engineers aiding him, Buggatti is now building what he calls the fastest speed boat afloat —a craft capable of developing a speed of 125 miles an hour—for a trip to New York.

"Why, it won't be long," he added, "before we'll be able to step in a speed boat at Concorde Bridge near Place de Laconcorde one sunny morning, stop off at Havre to say 'Hello' to friends and then whizz past the Statue of Liberty two days later."

Buggalis' speed boat with which he hopes to makes the trans-Atlantic trip, is 110 feet in length. It is equipped with eight motors, propelling eight turbines, and will carry ten passengers.

The first boat is under construction at Molsheim. When completed it will be taken to the Rhine for tests. If they are successful the craft will be brought to Paris via the canals.

Dog Summons Master To Rescue Of Little One

NORHAM, Feb. 21.—While taking out his team of horses to haul some wood, one day recently, Ivan Denike noticed his dog running up to him and then away again in the direction of the creek which was not farback of the barn. The dog continued to do this and bark until Mr. Denike suspected there was a cause and followed the dog and to his surprise found his little son Harold, who had unknowingly wandered away from the house and who is less than three years of age, standing waist deep in the cold water.

While engaged in cutting wood David Merrills captured two fine coons one day recently. Mr. Merrills states that the skins are worth eight dollars each.

COOLIES ATTACK BRITISH OFFICER

DOCTOR MALTREATED.

HANKOW, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press). — One British and one United States naval officer were beaten Saturday in a fracas with a gang of dock coolies at the port of Ichang.

The trouble started when the British steamer Kingwo docked at Ichang, and coolies, who gathered there, refused to allow the cargo to be handled. Sailors from the British gunboat Cockchafer landed and the trouble ensued. The British officer commanding the party was beaten about the face.

The coolies then congregated along the shore opposite the British ship and began a hostile demonstration. While this was in progress, Lieut. John F. Luten, a physician, came ashore from the United States gunboat El Cano, responding to a hospital call. The coolies beat the doctor.

OBITUARY.

MRS. DAVID GLOVER.

NORHAM, Feb. 21.—Mrs. David Glover, one of the best known and a very highly respected resident of this district passed away at her home in Morganston, on Thursday, after a brief illness. Deceased was 94 years and eleven months of age, and was born in Thurlow township, Hastings County. Her father, James Sills, was of United Empire Loyalist stock. The late Mrs. Glover was married at eighteen, to David Glover of Prince Edward County, and in the year 1856 with her husband settled on the farm where she lived until her death. Mr. Glover predeceased her 36 years ago. Of their six children only one, Walter, on the homestead, survives her. The funeral was held in Morganston United church on Friday and was in charge of Rev. Mr. Edwards, Baptist minister of Brighton.

FREDERICK EDWARD GILMOUR.

Frederick Edward Gilmour, a well-known and highly esteemed resident of this city, died this morning at the General Hospital, Welland, Ont. Deceased was born in Hamilton and had been with the Oak Hall, Limited. He was a member of St. Giles United church. He is survived by his mother, Mrs. Henrietta Gilmour, city; his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Donald Shulkey, Detroit, and a son, F. Stafford Gilmour, this city, also two brothers, William Gilmour, New York, and Robert Gilmour, Hamilton, and two sisters, Mrs. W. H. Gayfer, and Mrs. Delos Wylie, both or this city. The funeral will take place from his residence, 145 Fairleigh avenue south, Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock to Woodland cemetery.—Welland Tribune.

The late Mr. Gilmour will be remembered by many Peterborough people, who will regret to learn of his death. He managed the Oak Hall store for some months and closed up the business.

MRS. JOHN THICKSON.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 21. — The following obituary of Mrs. John Thickson of Bowmanville, will be of interest to readers in this district.

An old resident of Bowmanville passed away on January 29, 1927, in the person of Sarah Jane Johnson, relict of the late John Thickson. She was in her 80th year, being born on July 12, 1847, near Harwood, Rice Lake. Her parents were United Empire Loyalists, and amongst the first settlers in that district. Her early years were spent in that vicinity. Sixty years ago she married the late John Thickson, and resided near Harwood for a number of years, afterwards moving to Hope township.

About 45 years ago they moved to Bowmanville where they were highly respected by a large number of friends.

The deceased was a Presbyterian in religion and had many good qualities. She was the fourth of a family of nine, all of whom predeceased her except her youngest brother, Mr. Ben Johnson of Peterboro, who was present at the funeral, and her youngest sister, Mrs. Samuel Wilson of Havelock, who was unable to be present on account of ill-health. Her husband died 14 years ago but her family of three daughters and four sons are all living: Mrs. T. B. Veale and Mrs. W. P. Loughman, of Bowmanville; Mrs. F. G. Greenfield, of Colborne; W. H. Thickson, Deputy-Reeve of Bowmanville; John Thickson, Bowmanville, J. B. Thickson, Toronto, and J. Norman Thickson of Thickson Motor Sales, Oshawa. All were present at the funeral.

Mayor T. S. Holgate and members of the Town Council and representatives from the factory council of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber Co., and numerous old friends from Bowmanville, and from out of town were present, including Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Johnson, of Colbourg; Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Johnson, Fraserville and Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Buck, Norwood.

The services were conducted by Rev. J. N. Robin of Trinity United Church. Interment took place in Bowmanville cemetery.

DOZEN PERISH DURING STORM ATLANTIC COAST

Property Damaged, Result of Gale Along New England Seaboard.

SHIPS WRECKED.

Many Daring Rescues Reported Made From Disabled Ships.

NEW YORK, Feb. 21. Canadian Press. — A dozen dead men, wrecked boats and barges, damaged homes and disrupted communications lay last night scattered along the Atlantic seacoast under a blizzard diminishing in violence.

Eight coastguardsmen perished when their boat, the 238, smashed to fragments off Provincetown, Cape Cod. The five masted schooner, Nancy, was piled up on the sands near Nantasket, and the Lake Gorin was reported as having narrowly escaped a similar fate.

Believed to have her rudder disabled the barge Calvert was in distress 18 miles off Ambrose light, the Str. Suevier standing by to rescue the crew were halted when a small boat was smashed against the side as it put off. The Suevier reported by radio: "Lost second officer and several men hurt," the remainder of the communication being cut off by the storm's hullabaloo.

At Perth Amboy, N.J., the bodies of two unidentified men were washed ashore.

Boston reported the death by exposure of Charles S. Gandy of Montreal, whose body was found in a doorway. In Leominster exposure took the life of Philomen Ruisse.

Gale Continues.

The worst gale of the season was still whistling over Martha's Vineyard last night with shipping hugging the port. The coast guard patrol boat 281 of the Woods Hole Base, was torn from the wharf where she lay early yesterday morning and thrown high on the beach. None of the crew was injured.

Three schooners which put in when the gale began were riding safely at anchor, They were the Elizabeth Freeman, Brunswick for Boston; the Dorothy, Halifax for New York; and the Mina Nadeau, Liverpool, N. S., for New York.

Coast guard headquarters of Asbury Park, N. J., reported the rescue of three men from the barge West Point, which was grounded at Little Egg station, 60 miles south and that the combined forces of three stations were attempting to launch boats to take off the crew of the barge Jas. Howard, aground a few miles north.

The summer resorts along the Long Island, Staten Island and New Jersey shores suffered heavily.

Between 400 and 500 persons were marooned along the South shore of Staten Island from South Beach to Great Kills. Washing away docks, bungalows and movable property. Police, firemen and coast guardsmen set out in boats to rescue those marooned. Two policemen were the only persons injured and they not seriously. The damage to the amusement parks was considerable.

Disrupt Schedules.

Far out at sea the storm swept, disrupting shipping schedules. Vessels were delayed from 12 to 24 hours. The Adriatic of the White Star Line, returning from a Mediterranean cruise, after fighting a stiff gale, docked late on Sunday. The Pastores of the United Fruit Company line due at 10 o'clock this morning, according to the latest information will not arrive until Monday. The Colombo from Naples and the Siboney from Havana, and the Avon from Bermuda, were also delayed.

The tide in New York Harbor was the highest seen in twenty years by many of those stationed at the barge offices. Hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of damage was done to piers and stores. Pier cargoes were shifted to places of safety. Telegraphic communication with Sandy Hook and Quarantine was broken off when the wires snapped under the pressure of ice.

German and Russian concessions. The Chinese will actively participate in municipal affairs with increasing rights and responsibilities.

It is reported that final signature was brought about Sir Austen's agreeing to divorce the Hankow problem entirely from the larger question of British concessions in China generally, and naturally the agreement has nothing to do whatsoever with the Shanghai problem.

Strike Spreading.

Official news has been received from Shanghai that the general strike is spreading, but that there has been little disorder. General Sun's forces intend to make a stand against the onmarching Cantonese at Sunkiang, about 30 miles south of Shanghai. It appears that the strike in Shanghai was timed to synchronize with the Cantonese victory in Chekiang province.

According to press dispatches from Pekin discussion on the new British proposals will be resumed to-day between Minister Miles Lamson and Wellington Koo, the Peking Foreign Minister.

The Value of Human Life at all Ages

"Broke"— but worth $79,100

Dad earns $50 a week. He has just paid the rent, the grocery bill and milk bill. He says he is "broke, but happy"... In reality, he and his family are worth a small fortune.... This Canadian family represents $79,100 of the nation's wealth.

ALMOST any man will agree that his life is more valuable to himself than the things he owns. Now he can have the comfort of knowing how valuable his life is to others — from a dollar-and-cents standpoint.

Today it is known that the lives of our men, women and children are the nation's greatest asset. The economic value of these lives completely overshadows the value of all of our material wealth.

Recent computations made by statisticians of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company show the real economic value of the lives of our people from babyhood to old age. These figures are based on the average family — with an average income — and take into consideration the average length of life of each member of the family, together with the cost of bringing children into the world, feeding them, clothing them, educating them and bringing them up to a self-supporting basis.

Long lives and short lives — small incomes and big incomes — are reckoned in these calculations. At 40, a man earning $100 a week is rated as having an economic value of $45,670. At 30, the $50-a-week man represents a value of $31,000. He had a value of $9,333 the day he was born.*

—And then come the figures showing the total economic value of all the men, women and children of North America — the astounding total of 1,500 billion dollars ($1,500,000,000,000).

* If you wish to find out how much each member of your family is worth, economically, send for a booklet recently prepared by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company—It tells how a person of any age may measure the economic value of his or her life. It will be mailed free.

Perhaps the easiest way to realize this stupendous figure is to compare it with the total value of the entire material wealth of Canada and the United States.

The latest available government reports show that everything we own — land, buildings, railroads, mines, raw materials, manufactured products, crops, live stock — everything included — was close to 400 billions... Our lives are worth nearly five times as much as our property.

North America can well be proud of the additional insurance placed on the valuable lives of her people in 1926. More than 16 billion dollars ($16,000,000,000) was written and revived during the year by about 300 life insurance companies — making the total amount of life insurance in force approximately 80 billion dollars ($80,000,000,000). About one sixth of the grand total is carried by the Metropolitan.

But while the people carry 80 billion dollars of life insurance — or only one twentieth of the economic value of their lives — they carry more than 160 billions of insurance on property — more than one-half of its value.

You would not insure a $5,000 house for $250 — one twentieth of its value. You insure it adequately. But have you insured yourself adequately? Send for the booklet which tells you what you are worth. Study it. Then decide whether or not you carry enough insurance to protect your family.

We are rapidly gaining a better knowledge of the value of our greatest wealth — human lives.

The people of the future will better safeguard their wealth and happiness.

. . . BEARER OF INTELLIGENCE . . . DISPELLER OF IGNORANCE AND PREJUDICE . . . A LIGHT SHINING INTO ALL DARK PLACES.

GEORGE YOUNG.

George Young, hero of the Catalina swim, was welcomed home on Saturday by the largest crowd in the history of Toronto.

No other celebrity ever was given such a reception; he should have been the happiest boy in Canada, but there is reason to think that some of the joy of the occasion was killed by the controversy that has been carried on almost continuously since Young's feet touched bottom on the Californian mainland a few weeks ago.

The refusal of the swimmer and his party to attend the civic luncheon in his honour because his former friend, Bill Hastings, was to have been a guest was ungracious.

Perhaps Mayor Foster made a mistake in trying to bring the two together, but on an occasion of this kind it might have been overlooked.

The efforts of rival promoters to get control of the situation have caused all the trouble; the two gallant lads who started out with a few dollars and a battered old motorcycle to seek fame and fortune in California should be friends still, and would be had it not been for outside interference.

THIS SHOULD BE BETTER.

Canadian radio enthusiasts heard with satisfaction on Saturday that the radio control bill had passed the United States Senate and now goes to the President for his signature.

Under this bill a commission of five members, appointed by the President, will have control of the whole radio field, including the allotment of licenses, and the allocation of power, wave-bands and broadcast hours.

The situation as it has been recently has been intolerable.

Some 727 broadcasting stations were in operation, some of them appropriating wave-bands that had been allocated to others, and creating a jumble in the air that most grievously interfered with the chances of listeners-in tuning to a favourite station.

The new commission cannot be expected to clear up the whole situation in less than twelve months, but a steady improvement should be noted as the poorer stations are pruned out and the available 89 wave-lengths are divided so that there will be a minimum of interference.

Few bills passed by the United States Congress have been of so much importance to Canadians as the radio control measure.

THE LOCAL CELEBRATION.

Mayor Holloway has called a public meeting for the purpose of taking preliminary steps toward organizing for the local celebration of Canada's Diamond Jubilee.

It is to be hoped that the attendance will be such as to guarantee a real community effort to make the observance of this most significant anniversary in all respects worthy of the occasion.

From statements made during the discussion of an item of $250,000, covering the cost of the celebration, in the House of Commons the other day, it is apparently the intention of the Government to contribute to some extent toward the cost of the various programmes in each part of Canada, although the details have not, of course, been worked out yet.

Probably the Federal grant will have to be supplemented with municipal assistance, but in any event Mayor Holloway is well advised in getting the local organization under way.

It is expected that the ceremonies will continue over three days.

Dominion Day this year falls upon a Friday, and the following day is also to be declared a public holiday for the purpose of properly celebrating Canada's sixtieth birthday, while it is expected that the ceremonies will terminate with religious services of thanksgiving on Sunday.

The three days' events will be based upon the programme drawn up by the National Committee appointed by the Government.

A HUGE REFORESTATION SCHEME.

Peterborough County should be vitally interested in the comprehensive scheme of reforestation announced by Hon. Wm. Finlayson, Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests, in the Legislature on Friday, a scheme described by one newspaper, not usually friendly to the administration, as one of the most important pieces of legislation ever introduced into the Ontario House.

In that section of the Province known as the Laurentian Shield, extending from Georgian Bay to the Ottawa River and dipping down at one point almost to Lake Ontario, there are sparsely settled districts where people have been trying under most discouraging conditions to obtain a living from a land obviously unfit for agriculture.

In our own county there are such districts where the residents have no reason to expect any improvement in their conditions, where indeed everything leads to a rapid deterioration in morals and character, sections that have compiled an unenviable record of crime.

Throughout a wide belt, extending over the Province, these circumstances prevail, the result of an unwise immigration policy of many years ago that dumped settlers into districts where as farmers there never was a chance for them to succeed.

Mr. Finlayson's plan of reforestation would give settlers in such sections a new opportunity, a fresh outlook on life, by providing them with new lands in selected townships in Northern Ontario, lands in the clay belt rich with pulpwood that would provide them with an immediate income and with soil of a nature that would guarantee successful farming.

The townships out of which they are removed would be taken back by the Crown and given over to the cultivation of timber, the only purpose of which they seem to be suited.

At one stroke, as it were, the Minister of Lands and Forests, proposes to eliminate the problem that has been presented by conditions in the "bad" lands, help to develop new portions of Northern Ontario, and create a vast timber reserve in Ontario's hinterland that will replace the forest wealth ravished from the Province by wasteful lumbering methods.

It is a big scheme, so big in all that it implies that the time may come when the people of this Province will look back to 1927 and wonder that so much attention was paid to the question of how the liquor problem was to be handled and so little to a matter of the utmost importance.

Only a day or two ago a story from Germany showed the possibilities of intelligent reforestation when it was stated that all the taxes paid in a German town for the past three years were to be remitted because the revenues from the municipal forest reserve had been sufficient to pay all the public taxes, including extensive improvements, during that period.

BIG SALARIED MEN UNDER REVIEW.

Parliament was treated the other day by a sniping exhibition by Tommy Church, M.P., against Sir Henry Thornton. Sir Henry travels in a private car, makes a lot of speeches and draws down $75,000 per year, less income tax. We don't know what Mr. Church expects from his tactics, and a reply was promptly given to the effect that if half what he had said were true, there should be a parliamentary investigation. As there is no investigation about to take place, it is surmised that Mr. Church was talking wild. This much may be said, as long as Sir Henry Thornton continues to make the showing which has been made on the Canadian National he will have the confidence of the public and he is cheap at any salary or as many private cars as he desires, if he can continue to eliminate the deficit of millions on the public-owned system which he faced when he took over. His private car is as much needed as that of a private office for any other executive. His work would be impossible otherwise, and if Sir Henry did not travel outside of Montreal, he would make a mighty poor President of the Canadian National Board. As a matter of fact, he travels more in a year than thousands of other men would travel in a lifetime.

It is announced that Vincent Massey will draw a salary of $12,000 as Minister at Washington. The salary may seem high to the ordinary wage-earner, but no one but a rich man with private income could accept the job and perform its duties on the public money as provided. As Minister of Finance, Sir Thomas White was going broke at $14,000 and keeping up with the Jones of his position. He quit politics, and is now where he will probably store up a competence for old age. He is worth it to private business. Sir William Hearst, defeated for the Premiership of Ontario, was forced to take to circuit as a Crown Prosecutor. As a Minister and later as Premier, his public emoluments certainly did not contribute to his financial independence. In the case of Hon. W. F. Nickle, the defeat of that gentleman left him with a law practice which had been abandoned and had to be revived, and without a doubt he was a much poorer man when he was forced to quit than he would have been had he stuck to private life. Major-General MacBrien is another man in high official position whose salary is drawn upon to keep up show and hospitality which should be borne by the state.

We expect our big public men to be as Caesar's wife, absolutely above suspicion and scrupulously honest. Yet a party gift to Laurier had to be made, another to Fielding, and there is no doubt Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen would have been financially independent had he given his talents to private enterprise and a law practice instead of devoting himself to the public service. There are many examples of fairly well-to-do men who have been ruined by their incursion into public affairs in this country. Salaries attached to big positions are no plums. No Premier has a sinecure and no President of the Canadian National Railways, representing hundreds and hundreds of millions, can be hired at a song if he is worth his salt. There are too many alluring opportunities in big private business for the men worth while.—St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The vegetable growers seem to be the only people who are not agreed that Mr. Robb knows his onions.

Yesterday was an intimation that it is just a little early yet to be thinking about having the lawnmower overhauled.

There is a general impression that if George Young and Bill Hastings could divest themselves of their respective managers the feud would soon be over. When promoters come in the door friendship flies out of the window.

At least Jack Delaney's defeat convinced the United States sports writers that he is a Canadian. With a win he would still have been the Bridgeport (Conn.) Flash.

Mr. Robb is being congratulated on his Budget, not only because of what was in it, but because he brought it down early and used the minimum of words in presenting it.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 21 (Canadian Press) — The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market Saturday was extremely dull. The trade in cash grain was also of a very limited character but the undertone was firm.

The volume of business done in spring and winter wheat grades of flour was moderate and prices were steady.

There was a fair demand for all lines of millfeed and prices ruled firm. The market for standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and prices were about steady.

A moderate amount of business was done in all grades of eggs and values were unchanged. The receipts were 1,236 cases.

The demand from outside and local buyers for New Zealand fresh made creamery butter continued good and sales were made at 41c to 41 1-4c per pound. The trade in Canadian butter was also fair and prices were unchanged. The receipts were 138 packages.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press)—Wheat eased down Saturday at the last after showing unusual steadiness. Snow at numerous points in Kansas including some in the Western section were bearish factors near the close. Final quotations on wheat were unsettled at the same as yesterday to 5-8 lower with corn unchanged to 1-8 to 1-4 higher, oats at a shade to 1-8 to 1-4 advance and provisions varying from a shade decline to a rise of 17c.

Provisions were responsive to an upturn in the hog market.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

(By C. N. Lurie.)

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

(By the McClure Syndicate, Inc.)

DON'T LEAVE OUT PART OF YOUR VERB

If you want to speak or write English correctly, you cannot pay too much heed to the warning, that is repeated frequently by writers on the subject of good English, to be careful of your verbs—to omit no part of the verb that is needed to make your meaning clear.

An example of the omission of part of a verb was noted not long ago in an editorial in a newspaper, which said:

Now, the ancient Spartans and the medieval Japanese do not exist any longer, therefore they cannot "have" the right idea. Possibly they "had" it. The sentence therefore should be recast to read:

"The ancient Spartans and the medieval Japanese had, and the modern American reformers have, the right idea."

A Thought For To-day

BE HONEST IN YOUR RESEARCH

Why be sick? is a question that may seem to savor of a patent medicine advertisement. But, nevertheless, it is a logical question to put to the man or woman who is being slowly consumed by hatred, jealousy, anger, envy, fear, grief or worry.

Most folks know that these emotions contaminate both mind and body; that they react against the one who harbors them, yet we continue often to put the miracle of cure up to a physician and condemn him if his pills and powders fail to eliminate the discomfort and distress our self-inflected poisons produce.

Nine times out of ten the cause of illness is the result of wrong thinking.

When you are ill, look for the cause and be honest in your research for the root of the trouble. —The Silent Partner.

DR. FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL.

SYSONBY

By Dr. Frank Crane.

Sysonby is to be placed in a room in the Museum of National History in New York City.

It might be that of a cigar, a confection, a play or a new author.

In fact it is the name of one of the greatest race horses America has produced, and the skeleton will be placed in a new room devoted to horses and their development as an example of a great race horse.

Nothing drops out of sight quicker than a race horse that has quit winning races, unless it is a man who accomplishes something and then stops.

The applause and interest lasts as long as the accomplishments go on.

When they stop, people turn to something else.

Placid old age is usually the least interesting period of life to outsiders. This is because it is a time of reminiscence, of going over and over accomplishments of the past rather than of achieving new victories.

A little over thirty years ago the locomotive Number 999 was familiar to everyone. It was the fastest engine then known and had made a speed of over one hundred miles an hour.

A few years ago, before it was placed on exhibition, it was almost entirely forgotten, used to haul a milk train up and down the rails where it had once been king.

Other bigger and stronger engines had come and its past performance had sunk out of sight.

Napoleon said: "My power would fall did I not support it with new achievements. Conquest has made me what I am and conquest must sustain me."

The less a person thinks about a past achievement the more other people are liable to think about it.

"As a horse when he has run," said Marcus Aurelius, "a dog when he has tracked the game, a bee when it has made the honey, so a man when he has done a good act, does not call out for others to come and see, but goes on to another act, as a vine goes on to produce again the grapes in season."

CANTATA GIVEN AT MILLBROOK

Successful Entertainment Was Under Direction of Mrs. McKee Bingham.

WELL ATTENDED.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 21. — A large and appreciative audience gathered in the town hall on Wednesday evening for the entertainment under the auspices of the Junior W. A. of St. Thomas' church.

The first half of the programme was of a musical character and provided a musical treat for the listeners. The items were:

Piano duet, "Hungarian Rhapsody, No. 2," (Listz), by Mrs. Allen and Miss N. Collins.

Solo, "Sing me to Sleep" (Greene) by Miss Kathleen Lancashire, with violin obligato, by Mr. W. Johnston.

Piano Solo, "Rondo" (Weber), by Mrs. Allen.

Duet, "Life's Dream is O'er" (Ascher), by Miss Lancashire and Mr. W. H. Coombe.

Piano solo, "Invitation to Dance," (Weber), by Miss Mamie Collins.

Duet, "I would that my Love," (Mendelssohn), by Misses Ella Elson and Kathleen Lancashire.

Solo "The Floral Dance" by Mr. W. H. Coombe.

Duet "Midsummer Night's Dream" (Mendelssohn), by Mrs. Allen and Miss Collins.

The Fairy Cantata, "Queen, I Love You's Five O'clock Tea," filled the second half of the evening. It was presented by the members of the Junior W. A. under the personal direction of Mrs. W. McKee Bingham, and was a very attractive and popular number.

Daintiness was the keynote of the stage setting, costumes and graceful dance movements, and when all the characters were in place upon the stage the effect was that of a beautiful picture, aglow with varied coloring.

To the sound of stately music, the Goddess, Minerva (Nellie Miller) appropriately garbed with laced, silver bodice, crown and tripod, long white robe, silver edged, and with crimson strappings from her sandals supplying the one touch of bright colon entered the woodland glade, where the scene of the story is enacted, and announced the coming of the Fairy Queen, "I Love You" (Eloise Lamb.)

Next upon the stage came the flower girls (May Ferrin, Helen Mitchell, Margaret Russell, and Gertie Richards), their sheer frocks in yellow, mauve, pink and blue, giving the impression of a rainbow as, with garlands of pink roses swaying from either wrist, they went through a pretty dance with Pirouette as the central figure. Showers of rose petals scattered from their fingers as they moved hither and thither to the lilting music added much to the attractiveness of this scene. The fairies (Marjorie Vance and Winnifred Lord) were associated with the flower girls in this movement.

Other preparations for the Queen's arrival included the bringing in of the dainty, white throne and placing it upon the dais, the two "Sugar Canes," (Cameron Vance and William Todd), in East Indian costumes, fulfilling this duty. The table for the Five O'clock Tea was carried to its place beside the throne by the Wood Cutter (George Gray), who wore a khaki suit, with hat and scarf of brilliant red; the lace-edged cloth was carefully spread by Woven Flax (Jean Stinson), who had a quaint dress with striped skirt, and crossed kerchief as a fichu for the tight bodice; "Silver Mine" (Charles Mason) brought the silverware and the teaspoons; his costume was of court design, with short, white pants, blue coat, lace jacket, and black hat with ostrich plume; chian tea cups were the care of Dresdina (Mary Nattrass), who was a very dainty figure with long, full skort of dotted muslin, pink, pannered bodice, and soft white wig. "Tea Leaf" (Henry Raper) was a quant, Oriental boy, who brought the fragrant brew for the tea pot, while the fairies supplied the flowers, the Sugar Canes the sweet for the sugar bowl, and the cream was the contribution of the Milk Maids (Evalena Todd, Mary Vance, Dorothy Gilmour, Henrietta Grassett and Gertie Richards); their sun bonnets of pink lined with blue, or vice versa, shades sweet little faces, their aprons were of the same hues, and they carried bright tin pails.

Wheat Ear, the Golden, (Eva Howson) laid the bread upon the table; she wore a frock of pink with lace fichu, hat rose-trimmed, and the sheaf of wheat she carried was intertwined with roses.

A chorus of happy voices singing with the repeated refrain, "She Comes" greeted the Queen, who was daintily garbed in white with glittering trimming, her crown and sceptre being of silver, and her long train of royal purple velvet, ermine lined, being borne by two sweet little pages, (Susanne Grassett and Laureen Handley).

Evidently it was a service of love the "slaves of the tea table" rendered their Queen as, with bows, salaams, or other appropriate salute, they responded to the wave of her wand and related, in song, the story of the share each had in providing the materals for the "Five O'clock Tea."

The stately minuet by Dresdina and Silver Mine, the music having violin obligato; the gay frolic of the Milk Maids, with joined hands and swinging pails; the graceful dance executed by Pirouette and the Flower Girls; and the Spinning Song by Woven Flax, as she kept her wheel revolving rapidly and drew off slowly the filmy web, or long strand of white yarn, were numbers that drew forth special applause; as did also the odd, Oriental movement of Tea Leaf, between the verses of his song, his shining fan being kept moving the while.

As the cantata neared its conclusion Sandman made reference to the words of the Bard of Avan, "parting is such sweet sorrow," following this with her solo, "Sleep On, My Little One" (Brahms), and as the Queen retired from her woodland court the chorus, "So Darlings Dear Farewell" was sung, and the curtain fell.

Misses Ella Elson and Mamie Collins were the accompanists of the evening. Mr. W. Johnston assisting with violin obligato as the requirements of the programme indicated.

HAD SUFFERED FOR YEARS WITH RHEUMATISM

A sufferer from acute rheumatism for many years, a Winchester, N. H., man at last found that he could always get rid of the pain, and relieve the swelling and stiffness by a simple home treatment.

"After trying various remedies," he writes, "Sloan's Liniment was recommended to me, and it stopped the pain."

What is the reason for these remarkable results?

Simply that Sloan's doesn't just deaden the nerves. It stirs up your own forces to get rid of the conditions that are causing the pain.

Apply lightly without rubbing, and at once you'll feel the comforting warmth as fresh, healing blood begins circulating through the affected spot. The stiff, swollen tissues relax, the inflammation goes down, the pain stops, and soon you feel normal again. Get a bottle today and have it on hand. All druggists—35 cents.

HEALS THE DEAF

NEW YORK, Feb. 21.—George Abbott, 19, handed out cards, stating that he was deaf and dumb and asking for alms. But Detective Capt. Torpey was suspicious. Accordingly the detective bought a firecracker and placed it beneath the youth's chair as he was being questioned in police headquarters. George leaped from the chair with a yell. Then he admitted he was a faker.

KEEP YOUR ABDOMEN FLAT

If man walked on all fours, the abdominal organs would hang in their natural position from the sides. Just because he has learned to walk erect, these organs easily sag down, and lay on each other in the lower abdominal cavity. The stomach and intestines lie upon the lower organs of the pelvis pushing them out of position down to the very basin of the pelvis. The consequence is that many faulty positions of these organs are developed.

One of the commonest troubles from prolapsus of the abdominal organs is that caused by kinks in the colon. These may occur in the large colon or in the small intestines, and are either due to a prolapsus of these organs, or to adhesions which pull some part of the intestines out of its normal position. Adhesions are composed of connective tissue, which grow from the irritated covering of one organ to another irritation on an adjacent organ.

Obstipation is so often the cause of constipation and simply means obstruction of the intestines. Without prolapsus or inflammation of these organs, such obstipation could not exist, but the fact that it does exist, shows that prolapsus is very common.

Weakening of the abdominal muscles can be cited as the principal cause of any gastro-enteroptosis. That sounds terrible, doesn't it? But that large word simply means, prolapsus of the stomach and intestines.

Few people keep their abdominal muscles well enough developed so that their abdomen is flat, but allow a bay window to develop with a sagging belly which distorts their whole anatomical structure. This protrusion of the abdomen is unlovely to the sight, but more than that, it is positively dangerous to health, as it indicates an unhealthy condition of all of the organs of the abdomen. As this bay window protrudes and sags down it is an evidence of the gradual weakening of the muscular tone of the entire alimentary canal. Constipation and costiveness must result from this sagging.

There is no way you can restore these organs to their normal tone and bring them back to their proper position, except by taking vigorous exercise for the abdominal muscles. Those exercises taken lying on the back called the "setting up" exercises, are the best for this purpose, and you can develop these muscles equally as well as the prize fighter or wrestler. Do not make the mistake in thinking that athletes are born with any better opportunity for developing their muscles than you have. If you will develop the washboard muscles of the abdomen of the prize fighter, you can rest assured that you will not suffer from any kind of prolapsus. Do not waste your time taking exercise while standing, as these exercises have no appreciable effect upon the abdominal muscles. Take all of your exercises while lying on your back on the floor. Practice the exercises slowly at first and gradually increase until you can do them vigorously for at least fifteen minutes a day.

The flatter your abdomen becomes the greater your degree of strength and health, with a decrease in weight and an added buoyancy to your walk.

SUCCESSFUL EUCHRE.

YOUNG'S POINT, Feb. 21.—On Friday evening there was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. A. Wilson a very successful euchre party, in aid of St. Aiden's Church.

Twelve tables were played, and the prizes were won as follows: Ladies' 1st, Mrs. William Brooks; 2nd, Mrs. D. Darling. Gentlemen's 1st, Mr. May. Wilson; 2nd, Mr. Charles Jones. Ladies' Consolation, Miss O. McNaughton. Gentlemen's Consolation, Mr. L. Wilson.

A bountiful supper was then served by the ladies, after which the tables were removed and dancing was indulged in for a couple of hours.

Among those present were:—Rev. R. T. C. and Mrs. Dwelly, Mrs. William Brooks, Mrs. Elmer Johnston, Mrs. Wilbert McNaughton, Mr. and Mrs. A. Duggan, Misses Mary O'Toole, Clara Young, Ollie McNaughton, Thelma Duggan; Messrs Fred Young, Frank Carrol, Victor Young, Harold Young, Darcy Wilson, D. McNaughton, Stuart McNaughton, Mr. and Mrs. D. Darling, Miss Ethel Wilson, Mr. Percy Stenner from Peterborough, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Chappel, Mrs. C. Stenner, Mrs. William Millage, Mrs. T. Waldon, Mrs. George Pearson, Misses Yvonne, Stuart Evelyn Northey; Messrs. L. Sabatino, F. Wannamaker, E. Earnshaw, H. Hampton, F. Moon, Reg. Murduff from Lakefield, Mr. and Mrs. George Wilson, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones; Misses Alice Wilson and Gladys Brown and Mr. Max. Wilson, from Buckhorn.

Among the local people who attended the Firemen's Valentine Dance in Lakefield were: Mrs. Elmer Johnston, Misses Mary O'Toole and Bessie Wilson and Messrs. Victor Young and Leonard Wilson.

On Tuesday afternoon the teachers of the local school, Miss Charlton and Mr. Frank Carrol, with the scholars, held a Valentine Party in the school. There was a post office where every one received a valentine. After all had been to the post office they held a concert, with games. The bigger girls of the school then passed a very nice lunch to which all did justice.

ODDFELLOWS PAY FRATERNAL VISIT

Brethren From Stirling Confer Degree at Madoc—Carnival Held.

MADOC, Feb. 21.—On Wednesday evening, thirty members of Stirling Lodge No. 239, I. O. O. F., paid a fraternal visit to Madoc Lodge No. 179, and conferred the degree of Friendship upon four members of Madoc Lodge: G. S. White, G. LeBrash, L. R. McConnell and W. H. Deaylin.

As is usual with Stirling degree teams, this work was exemplified in a most efficient manner, reflecting credit upon Degree Captain Bro. George Megginson and his staff.

At the conclusion of the work, several of the visiting brethren spoke, including Bros. F. L. Hulin, N. G.; J. B. Thompson, Rec. Sec.; E. Carlyle, N. G. of degree team; G. Megginson, Degree Captain; H. E. Hulin, P. G. of Stirling Lodge; Bro. Rev. Marshall, and Bro. J. B. Hough, D. D. G. M. of District No. 45.

Bros. Moon, Hawthorne, and Fraser, of Frankford, furnished the music during the fourth degree and the social hour following the close of lodge.

A successful carnival was held on Thursday night under the auspices of the Young Married People's Club. The mild weather made the evening enjoyable for the spectators, but caused the skaters to wish for the sharp nip of King Winter, as the ice was very soft and heavy. A large crowd attended, though not as many were in fancy costume as the management had hoped for.

Best dresed girl under 18, Marion Tufts, as a Mexican. Prize, silk hose

Best couple skating, Miss Hart, as a Scotch Lassie and Mr. White, a Spanish Don. Prize, chocolates.

Some others present were: Mrs. C. Lenahan, as a Soldier Boy; Mrs. T. Nicol, a Snow-Shoe Girl; Misses M. Wilson, English hunter; E. Harris, Made-in-Canada Goods; C. Caldwell, Gypsy; Mrs. F. Nayler, Chinaman; Hazel Carswell, Milkmaid; Alice Armstrong, Danger Signals; Messrs. P. Gunn, G. Maybee and J. Moorecroft made good-looking girls; L. Curtin, a clown; I. Cross and O. Patterson, colored gentlemen; Dr. Wyper, Chef; Ian Harper, Scotch Laddie; R. Bristol, A Mystery Man.

Mrs. G. Wallbridge, Mrs. W. Cross, Mr. Wallbridge and Mr. F. Curry, Reeve of Madoc, acted as judges. The Madoc band furnished music throughout the evening.

A delightful event took place on Thursday night when a group of friends visited the home of Miss L. Adams and, on behalf of the congregation of the United Church, presented her with a gift of linen. Miss Adams, who is to be married on Wednesday next, was led in, to the strains of the wedding march played by Mrs. Ashley, and presented with a dozen serviettes, cleverly done up in the shape of a shower bouquet, presented by Mrs. Dafoe. The cloth to match was presented by Mrs. Dingman and an address read by Mrs. M. Bristol.

Miss Adams has been a devoted worker in the United Church, and the ladies are delighted that she will not be entirely out of reach, though her immediate presence in the town will be very much missed. Miss Adams will reside on a farm about five miles from the village, and her many friends hope to have her in town with them as often as possible.

ST. JOHN'S LEAGUE VISITS PETHERICK'S

Visitors Win Debate From Zion League—Give Good Programme.

PETHERICK'S CORNERS, Feb 21.—A most enjoyable evening was spent at Sentinel Hall on Thursday evening, when the young people of St. John's Church, Campbellford visited the Zion League. Five large sleighs conveyed the visitors to their destination and nearly a hundred took the opportunity of spending an evening with their friends here.

With the local league having an attendance of over a hundred, the hall was filled to the doors and every available seat was used.

The main feature of the evening was the inter-league debate between Campbellford and Zion. The subject was "Resolved that the inventor has done more to promote human happiness than has the legislator." The affirmative was upheld by the visiting team, Messrs. Wilbert Kingston and Cecil Stevens; while the local team, Messrs. Earl Fairman and Lindsay Anderson took the negative.

Rev. Mr. Daniel was chairman for this part of the programme with Mr. W. T. Allan as time-keeper, and Mr. Thomas Wetherill as critic. The judges were Rev. Mr. Elliott and Rev. Mr. Gardiner and Mrs. F. M. Rutherford; and after due deliberation they decided in favor of the affirmative debaters. Mr. Wetherill criticized severely, but in a very fair manner, and gave praise where due. Both the critic and chairman commended the style and material given by Cecil Stephens, second speaker of the affirmative, who will undoubtedly become a great debater in the future.

His points were presented in a clear, concise way with no lost time and were arranged in good order.

The Campbellford winners will probably meet Brighton next and should uphold the honor of the district.

Mr. Phillips, president of the visiting society, took charge of the programme and presented a number of readings, vocal solos and duets, musical numbers, and an address by Rev. Mr. Elliott, all of which were much enjoyed. The St. John's League has an abundance of talent in young people's work, and their visits are always much enjoyed by the members of Zion League.

At the close of the programme the local society served lunch and a pleasant social hour was spent by all. After which the visitors took to the sleighs again for the home trip. Everyone seemed to enjoy the experience, as the evening was fine and warm.

A Spanish Home of Originality

A SPANISH HOME OF ORIGINALITY

By Charles A. Mitchell, Architect

This beautiful Spanish style home contains such a number of original features without being tinged with freakishness that it is worthy of careful study by everyone interested in home-building.

The outstanding feature of the plans is the interesting shapes of the ground floor rooms, which would prove so refreshing to those who, tired of the limited possibilities presented by the omnipresent rectangular rooms, would welcome an opportunity to furnish such beautifully shaped rooms as these.

Imagine the pleasant surprise which one would have on entering the vestibule to have not the usual four flat walls which custom has made him expect, but a charming little oval room with rubber tile floor meet his gaze. Directly opposite the vestibule is the octagonal dining room which with its two wide doorways to sunroom, Italian plaster domed ceiling, oak floors, and Spanish panelling, lends itself to very distinguished interior treatment.

The large living room has a strong Spanish effect which is enhanced by the stone fireplace with a bookcase and circular window on each side, which occupy one end wall.

Careful planning has resulted in a kitchen, pantry, and dining alcove arrangement, replete with cupboards and other favoured fixtures, of more than average convenience. Notice the position of the one pantry between the kitchen, and both the hall and dining room.

On the second floor are two bathrooms, three bedrooms and a maids' room; all roomy, well lighted, and unusually well supplied with clothes closets.

The owner's bedroom is entered through a dressing room, having two large clothes closets, and is a beautiful room with light on three sides, a well designed wood mantel, and a private bathroom "en suite." Two closets suitable for linen open into the hall.

Terra cotta and cream stucco form the walls, while the roof is of red rough asbestos slate, a combination which appears to wonderful advantage amid the green setting of elms and poplars, planted near the house.

With hot water heating by an oil burning furnace, this home cost approximately fourteen thousand dollars.

Readers desiring further information regarding the plans and specifications of this house should communicate with the architect direct. Address: Mr. Charles A. Mitchell, 304 University St., Montreal, Quebec. Copyright, 1927, MacLean Building Reports, Limited.

CALEDONIAN CLUB VALENTINE SOCIAL

Ladies Entertain Gentlemen of Club at Enjoyable Function.

The ladies of the Caledonian Club entertained over 100 members and friends of the club at a social last Friday in the W.O.W. Hall. The hall was prettily decorated for the occasion by the ladies. During the evening several novelty dances were staged, the prize-winners being as follows: Balloon dance, Miss P. Taylor and Mr. H. Mann; cinderella dance, Mrs. A. Millar and Mr. Boyle; number dance, Miss Cross and Mr. Francis; spot dance, Mrs. Ross and Mr. Fornear.

Mrs. Howes and Mr. G. Reid entertained the company with several songs, while Mrs. Goodley supplied music for the dances. Dainty refreshments were served by the ladies, and a very enjoyable evening was brought to a close by the singing of "Auld Lang Syne."

THEATRE

AT THE REGENT

CHANEY'S MOBILE FACE IS MARVEL OF THE SCREEN WORLD.

Flicker of Eyelash, Curl of Lip, Carries His Message Better Than Words.

Lon Chaney, who first leaped into fame via the medium of "The Miracle Man," and whose recent remarkable success in "The Phantom of the Opera" was the peak in a structure of consistent triumph, has come to be recognized as having one of the most mobile and expressive faces on the screen, in addition to being one of the leading actors of the day.

Chaney's features are scarcely, if ever, in repose in this film, yet so well does he play the part that one is hardly conscious that his face is a mask of grease paint. As a matter of fact, Chaney ordinarily can say a great deal more with the flicker of an eyelash, or the curving of a lip, than the most subtle title writer can express in a hundred feet of film.

It is not only for Chaney's excellent acting, however, that "The Trap" is worth seeing. The story is an unusual one, and has been staged with so clear cut a pictorial beauty, and such an excellent supporting cast, that any moving picture patron will regret missing it. Robert Thornby directed.

The story is that of "Gaspard the Good," a trapper in the Canadian north-west, who is robbed of his mine and his sweetheart by an American promoter. Gaspard then devotes his life to obtaining a slow and torturesome revenge. His vengeance results in the sending of the prospector to prison on a murder charge, drives the girl to her death, and leaves their baby son in Gaspard's charge.

He plans to take final vengeance upon the waif, but succumbs to the grip of childish fingers and finally risks his life to save the youngster in a terrific battle with a half-starved wolf. Alan Hale plays the role of the promoter in the finished manner that one has come to expect from him, while Dagmar Godowsky, daughter of the famous Russian pianist, does excellent work as the sweetheart. Stanley Goethals plays the part of the child in an appealing manner.

Cash Value of Human Life is Now Tabulated

Statisticians of Metropolitan Life Insurance Company Present Figures

A subject which always has been an interesting speculation — how much is a man worth—is given a new turn in figures just issued by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in conjunction with details of their business in 1926.

Each individual is worth a certain definite stated sum to himself, his family and his community, a sum which runs into thousands of dollars, even though one may not have a cent to one's name at the moment.

For many years it has been known in a vague way that human capital—that is, the lives of men, women and children—was the nation's greatest asset. But how great an asset it really was and how much it outranked the material wealth of the country—real property, live stock,

Mr. A. F. C. FISKE

Now it appears that a child at birth is worth $9,333, considered in terms of dollars and cents. A man aged 30, earning $50 a week, represents an economic value of $31,000, while at age 40, earning $100 a week, his economic worth is $45,670. Statistics have been gathered in relation to men workers. It is conservatively estimated that future earning capacity of women would be half that of men.

To rear a child from birth to age 18 costs $7,200, whether a boy or a girl. These are average figures, based on expenses in a family of five, father, mother and three children, with an income of $2,500. Being born costs $250. Food is put down at $2,500, clothing and shelter, $3,400, education $50, health, $284, recreation, $130, insurance, $54, and sundries $570. The item of education does not appear to be adequately covered, but, as a matter of fact it is, because "shelter" includes taxes, which cover the parents' share of the community cost of education.

Figures on Canadian business of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company during 1926 show that the company issues more insurance, has more policyholders and more insurance in force in Canada than any other company. Business written in Canada in 1926 was $167,862,022, while there were 2,349,904 policyholders. Insurance in force totalled $704,911,355 in Canada. Payments to Canadian policyholders in 1926 amounted to $10,079,007.

It is interesting to note that the Metropolitan Life has a total investment in Canada of $137,770,136, of which Dominion Government Bonds comprise $48,297,078, Provincial and Municipal Bonds $40,956,960, and all other investments $48,516,089.

MEDICINAL CANCER CURE SOUGHT TIME LIMIT FOR PRIZE EXPIRES

Lord Atholstan's $20,000 Not Claimed in Five Years.

PROGRESS EXPECTED

Next Five Years Will Be More Fruitful, It is Hoped.

LONDON, Feb. 21.—(Canadian Press).—Will the next five years be more fruitful than the last five in the search for a cure of cancer? This question is a leading topic today, for it is just five years since Lord Atholstan, millionaire proprietor of The Montreal Star, offered a prize of £20,000 to the "graduate or student of any university who within five years after this date is the first to discover a medicinal treatment for the effective cure of cancer, the decision to be left to the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons in London, England."

The prize has not been won, although research workers throughout the world have been continuously struggling with the problem. Now there is a prospect of increasing sums of money being devoted to research, and Sir Berkeley Moynihan, one of the world's greatest cancer experts, has issued a call for what he describes as a "national uprising against the scourge." Sir Berkeley is President of the Royal College of Surgeons, and in a meeting unique in British medical history he told his audience of 700 persons that 100 of them would die of cancer.

What Progress?

Two separate questions remain to be answered: (1) What causes cancer? (2) What cures cancer? There is no necessary connection between the answers to these questions. It would be quite possible to find a cure—apart from the knife—without having discovered the cause; and on the other hand, the discovery of the cause would not make the discovery of a cure certain, although it would probably bring it nearer.

In neither direction can the progress recently made be properly appreciated by anyone who is not an expert. For example, the famous work of Mr. Barnard and Dr. Gye in isolating and examing certain ultra-microscopic organisms said to be associated with cancer is far too technical and ambiguous for the lay mind, which demands clear-cut conclusions. Yet these have been the most striking performances during the past five years in an attempt to answer the question, "What causes cancer?"

Is local irritation the sole cause? Is there a cancer parasite? Has cancer anything to do with the blood stream, and if so, can it be controlled by diet? These are some of the questions to a study of which research workers are devoting their lives.

While Sir Berkeley Moynihan's prescription of the knife represents what may be called the official faith of the medical profession, it is by no means allowed to go unchallenged among the specialists. One of the strongholds of opposition is the Battersea General Hospital, where non-operative methods appear to have met with considerable success.

Orthodox Remedies.

At present there are only three thoroughly orthodox remedies for cancer: (1) Surgery; (2) Radium; (3) X-rays. There is also the lead treatment invented by Dr. Blair Bell, of Liverpool, which has succeeded in prolonging life in apparently incurable cases, but which is technically still in its infancy.

The land to which Daisy re... the valley of the Arkansas ...er, where there's enough ... pay the national debt, he says.

...sy says it is well-known that through the centuries the Rockies have worn away several hundred feet. Gold and silver formations were dissi...ated and washed down streams, the same as other matter.

Gold in the Arkansas valley has been badly scattered, however. The sand and overflow have allowed the gold by this time to seep through to bedrock. Until some instrument is invented to locate the gold, Daisy says, the riches of the Arkansas will be locked up as securely as if they were in a vault.

Dr. Shaw-Mackenzie claims to be able to demonstrate the presence or otherwise of cancer by tests of the blood. As the fashion at the moment, however, is to regard cancer as a local condition which does not affect the blood, Dr. Shaw-Mackenzie's researches have been coldly received by the profession.

It is at any rate a point gained that the stimulating example of the New Health Society should have spurred the British Medical Association into adopting methods of publicity which would have been thought shocking only a few years ago.

FRANCES NICKAWA MARRIED RECENTLY

Famous Indian Entertainer Marries Vancouver Man.

VICTORIA, B. C., Feb. 21. — (Canadian Press).—A wedding of widespread interest took place in this city recently, at the residence of the officiating minister, Rev. W. J. Sipprell, D.D., when Miss Frances Nickawa, who has won fame as a Cree entertainer, became the bride of Mr. Arthur Russell Mark, of Vancouver. The bride was attended by Miss Hannah Riley, with whom she has made her home since her early childhood, and Miss Margaret Bell, of Victoria. This remarkable young woman, of pure Indian blood, who has travelled part of three continents in her dramatic work, was born at Norway House, on Hudson Bay. She was brought to the Methodist mission, an ailing child of but five years of age, and taken charge of by a devoted English lady, Miss Hannah Riley, who has been her Christian mother, and has lived and travelled with her in Canada, England, Australia and New Zealand. Some years ago Miss Nickawa went to live with Miss Riley in Vancouver. Miss Nickawa entered classes in dramatic art under the direction of Harold Nelson Shaw, and the result of her training has been the production of the best interpreter of Indian legend and folklore to be found on the continent. She has distinction of having appeared in recital before Queen Mary.

Women's Danger

Of offending under the oldest hygienic handicap now ended. New way provides true protection—discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

WITH the old-time "sanitary pad" women realize their constant danger of offense, plus the embarrassment of disposal. And thus spend unhappy days.

"KOTEX," a new and remarkable way, is now used by 8 in 10 better-class women.

You dine, dance, motor for hours in sheerest frocks without a second's doubt or fear.

It deodorizes, too. And thus stops all danger of offending.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX."

Do as millions are doing. End old, insecure ways. Enjoy life every day. Be sure you get the genuine, for only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

LOCAL CITIZEN HAS CENTURY OLD PAPER

London Times Announcing Battle of Trafalgar Owned by Peterborough Lady.

Mrs. W. E. Hutchinson, Charlotte street west, possesses an old newspaper, a copy of "The Times", of London, England, that has been sent her by relatives, who held it in the family for more than a century. The date of the yellowed copy of this old paper is Thursday, November 7th, 1805, and the price for the two double sheets of a paper whose size approximates that of the "Ladies' Home Journal" in width and length, was sixpence.

This was the issue of "The Times" that announced the victory of Trafalgar and the death of Lord Nelson, the commander of the victorious fleet. The information of the demise of the illustrious gentleman is contained on the third and inside page, while the first page is devoted to advertisements of various types, including advertisements for lost dogs, for "Superior Wines", for Irish linens and cambrics and for fiddle strings. Apparently people of that age suffered much from chilbains, as no less than two remedies, one named "Opodeldoc", are offered for this affliction. Also "a gentleman pledges himself to secure money so expeditiously, secretly, and delicately, as to evince that the obloquy generally ascribed to money dealers is not applicable to everyone."

One of the peculiar advertisements that are usually met with only in jokesmiths' columns actually appears in this paper, where it advertises: "A fine mare, to be sold, the property of a gentleman warranted sound; walks, trots, leaps and gallops remarkably well. To prevent trouble, the price is 40 guineas."

On the back page, appears the Law Report of the Court of the King's Bench, in which an action is being tried by a man who wishes to fight a duel with a certain Thomas Dickens, a barrister, who committed the offence of unfastening a gate to private property and making his way through the passage, thinking it a public enclosure. The offended owner wished to fight a duel and thus satisfy his threatened honor.

"A commodious substantial brick dwelling house" is here offered for rental at £80 per annum, while sales by auction advertise "modern mahogany chairs covered in red leather and black satin hair, and lofty four-post bedsteads, with japanned cornices and rich chintz cotton furniture."

Under the caption "Lord Nelson's Last Moments," there is a three inch article telling of the manner in which the admiral met death and there is also a two-column editorial commenting on the victory and on his passing. Incidents which aroused the animation of the proprietors sufficiently to put them into print were those of two casualties of the last conflict, one in which "a man was so completely cut in two by a double-headed shot, that the whole of his body, with the exception of his legs up to his knees was blown some yards into the water; but, strange to tell, his legs were standing on the deck with all the firmness and animation of life!"

The second incident was as follows: "A midshipman, of the name of Price, was brought into the cockpit, with his leg cut off up to the calf; he was an heroic youth of 17. The surgeons could not attend to him at the moment. He drew out a knife, and cut off a piece of the flesh and the splinter of the bone with great composure. "I can stay," said he; "let me doctor myself." When the surgeon attended him, it was found necessary to amputate above the knee. He submitted to the operation without a groan. "It is nothing at all," he said; "I thought it had been ten times worse."

It is related here of Lord Nelson that, on seeing the body of his secretary and friend thrown overboard, after having been cut asunder by a chain shot, he said, on receiving his own mortal wound: "Don't let me be thrown overboard tell Hardy to carry me home."

Of the action, comment is made: "The action appears to have been gallantly contested by the French and Spaniards. Their object in risking an encounter with such a fleet, commanded by such a man, must have been one of imperious necessity at this moment; no less, we suspect, than an effort to acquire complete ascendancy in the Mediterranean."

Over the signature of the second in command, Admiral Collingwood, appears a "General Order," commencing with "The Almighty God, whose arm is strength, having of His great mercy been pleased to crown the exertion of His Majesty's fleet with success in giving them a complete victory over their enemies on the 21st of the month; and that all praise and thanksgiving may be offered up to the throne of God for the great benefits to our country and to mankind," ordains that a general day be appointed for giving thanks to God by the fleet.

In what would be called, probably, the Society Notes of the day, the paper deplores the fact that "His Majesty has to wear a green shade over his eyes, after candlelight", and the theatrical notes, set up in the same dignified fashion as the rest of the publication, record the presentation at the Theatre Royal Covent Garden, of "Venice Preserved" with Kemble and Mrs. Siddon in the cast.

HAVELOCK DANCE WAS SUCCESSFUL

Many Visitors Attend Enjoyable Function Held in Town Hall.

HAVELOCK, Feb. 19.—The Valentine Dance held in the Town Hall on Monday evening, under the auspices of Our Lady of Mount Carmel Parish, was a very successful and enjoyable event, attracting about three hundred spectators and dancers. Visitors were present from Toronto, Peterborough, Indian River, Norwood, Campbellford, Hastings and Marmora.

Red streamers, red hearts of varying sizes and arrows, red shades on the lights, flowers in use on the stage made an attractive and appropriate decorative scheme for a Saint Valentine evening.

Special numbers on the programme, which consisted of round and square dances, were: the tag doll dance, the prize a dressed doll, was won by Miss Evelyn Hooper; streamer and confetti dances. The music was supplied by the Musical Aces, of Perth.

During the evening Reeve W. T. Curtis conducted a drawing for a red cedar chest and its contents, which was won by Rev. J. J. O'Reilly of Marmora.

"CANADA'S CANDY"

CANADA'S POWER CONSUMPTION MUST BALANCE HER PRODUCTION

Seven Hundred Million Already Invested in Industry.

ONLY TOUCHED

Royal Bank Estimates Only One-Tenth Yet in Use.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 21. — (Canadian Press).—"The electric light and power industry now ranks first among Canadian manufacturing industries in terms of capitalization, with an aggregate amounting to more than $700,000,000, and sixth among the industries in terms of annual gross income, this latter item amounting to well over $100,000,000 a year," says the monthly letter of the Royal Bank of Canada.

"As the present installation represents the development of only 10 per cent. of the recorded water power resources, and since the rate of construction of new turbines has been increasing in the past few years, there is every indication that in the immediate future the industry will witness an expansion well in line with the present trend. The Dominion Water Power and Reclamation Service has estimated that during the next twenty years the expenditure for new installations will exceed one billion dollars. The facts that the total capacity of the turbines now installed is double the capacity of 1915, and that the recent rate of construction is much more rapid than the rate at the beginning of the period, both indicate that this is a conservative estimate. In the first eleven months of 1926, the average daily production of electric energy for Canadian consumption exceeded the production during the same period in the previous year by 23.8 per cent.

"Power development to date has been so uniformly successful that there is some tendency to believe that an unlimited number of consumers will appear as soon as new installations are completed. At the moment, facilities are well ahead of consumptibn, and, while there is no real danger of over-production, it is important that heavy investments shall be made in power-consuming industries before planning any large units in addition to those now projected. In this industry, as in all others, the stability of the industry requires that a nicely adjusted balance be maintained between production and consumption."

"It Seemed That Everest Had Some Power; That It Resented Us."

"Case Iron" was the nickname for Captain John B. Noel, the official photographer for the Mt. Everest Expedition who is bringing his wonderful motion pictures and amazing story of the expedition here on the evening of February 25 at St. Paul's Church under arrangements being made by the Kiwanis Club.

His companions on the perilous and tragic journey found this name particularly appropriate because of his strength and courage in meeting every difficulty with a smile. But let the London Daily Mail tell about Captain Noel in the following clipping:

"The ever-present Noel, that is what his companions called CAPTAIN JOHN BAPTIST L. NOEL, the man who took the wonderful film pictures, "The Epic of Everest" now being shown at the Scala Theatre, London. "Case Iron" is another name they sometimes give to this shy man who took his camera to a height of 23,000 ft. above sea level, at which point, physically incapable of going a step higher, he put a telescopic lens with a two-mile range into action and went on making pictures of Irvine and Mallory fighting their way to the summit of a mysterious ice-clad mountain that may have been conquered but which refused to capitulate.

"Captain Noel was one of the few who saw Irvine and Mallory disappear in their attempt to climb the last 800 ft. of Everest,—what then befell them is the mountain's secret. A fair, sparely built man, with those very blue eyes that so often find in those to whom the wandering world represents life, John Baptist Noel is thirty-six. An English public-schoolman, a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, he became a kinematographer with the set purpose of going with the expeditions here, there and anywhere, and—if the Fates so willed—bringing pictures of what happened.

"He is one of those men who take a tremendous lot of knowing. He is retiring, he is modest, he is difficult to draw out. It is almost impossible to get him to talk about himself, it is not easy to get him to talk at all. Yet he is quite a ready speaker in public. The other day I heard him suddenly prompted, plunge into a discourse on Mount Everest:

"The Tibetans believe that it is alive, a living Deity. Some of us came to wonder about the idea. It seemed that the mountains had some power, that it resented us, and would sometimes call upon the elements to fight against us."

"You could see as he spoke in that quiet, thoughtful way of his, that he was inclined to believe it and you could also see that sooner or later he would pack up his camera, a wonderful bit of mechanism that took three years to experiment to perfect, and be off to some other strange parts of this wonderful world. He cannot help himself. Wanderlust is in his blood."

People no longer keep Address Books. At one time almost everyone did. Now, at almost every desk — in all the alert homes — you find them using the Telephone Directory instead. Organized effort has supplanted the work of the individual.

Changes in names and addresses are going on constantly. About 40,000 new names are added in Ontario and Quebec every six months. Our records are revised from day to day. Infinite pains are taken to guard against error.

Over 1,300,000 Bell Telephone directories are published every year. No other publication gives you such complete and so-often-revised information.

Acute Bright's Disease and Bladder Trouble

Mrs. Logan Now Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

"I doctored for about three months what the doctor called acute Bright's disease," writes Mrs. M. Logan, a well-known resident of Glen Sutton, P.Q. "I had used all the doctor's medicine and my husband was too busy to drive nine miles to get some more. I told him I would try Dodd's Kidney Pills. Within a week they began to help me. So now I am never without them. If I feel any symptoms I take a few doses and am all right again. I have advised many to use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

EIGHT MEN DIE IN PATROL BOAT

PREVENT RESCUE.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Eight coastguardsmen, the crew of the 75-foot patrol boat 238, went to their deaths in the surf which hammered the beach at High Head, near here, yesterday. For twelve hours the men pitted their strength and resourcefulness against the brutality of the seventy-mile gale and cutting snow and then lost when another hour might have meant rescue. The staunch boat, unsinkable by the proud boast of the service, smashed to fragments when the angry sea which had torn her from her anchorage, hurled her on to the sands and trampled her bruised hulk under its pounding surf. The gale held off with one hand the destroyers which fought doggedly through a fifty-mile run to reach their beleaguered comrades, while it rendered impotent the land forces gathered along the strand.

AVALANCHE KILLS MOUNTAIN CLIMBER

Man Believed Lost in Snowslide Near Vancouver Harbor.

VANCOUVER, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Engulfed in an avalanche of snow at an altitude of approximately 4,000 feet on Grouse Mountain, one of the peaks overlooking Vancouver Harbor, E. A. Auguer, 29, is believed to have lost his life, while his companion, R. C. Johnston, suffered only slight injuries and shock and succeeded in continuing to the top of the mountain, a mile and a half distant.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED

An Employment Bureau has been established at the Canadian General Electric Company. Mr. H. A. Cranfield, who is also secretary of the Suggestion Committee at the works, will supervise this bureau.

The hiring of help at the gate will be discontinued and in future any person wishing to make application for employment with this company will write or apply in person to the Employment Bureau, which is located on the ground floor of the main office. There application forms will obtained and these will be completed giving full information as to the applicant's experience or ability, and they will be notified by mail or phone as a position becomes vacant which they are capable of doing.

This is a long felt want and will do away with men appearing at the gate at certain periods of the day and it will also give a better opportunity for the applicant to intelligently state his qualifications for the different occupations in the works.

In future it will be absolutely useless for applicants visiting officials' houses or calling them up on the phone or appealing to foremen or officials of the works to use their influence to obtain positions. This practice, if carried out, will be a detriment to a means of employment instead of a help. It is recognized in modern business that the employment and proper placing of men is a very important factor both for the company and for the applicant.

YOUNG INVITES MAYOR TO LUNCH

Indicates Refusal To Attend on Saturday Was Because of Hastings.

ASKS 50 GUESTS.

TORONTO, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—George Young has invited the Mayor and City Council to be his guests at a luncheon, following his refusal to attend the civic luncheon in his honor on Saturday, since Bill Hastings was to be a guest. He sent an invitation to Mayor Foster yesterday to luncheon to be held on Tuesday.

Evidently he wishes to indicate clearly to the city that the presence of his erstwhile friend Hastings was the only circumstance which deterred him from attending on Saturday, and in his letter to the Mayor he has asked him to choose fifty guests, including members of Council. There is no stipulation in the letter that Bill Hastings is not to be invited. George evidently leaves that to the Mayor's discretion.

MONTREAL MAN SHOOTS HIS WIFE AND THEN HIMSELF DURING VISIT WHEN SHE SEEKS RECONCILIATION

Stephen Nawrocki's Wife Had Been Living at Bridgeport, Conn.

MET IN TORONTO.

The Second Murder-Suicide Tragedy in City Within Week.

TORONTO, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Stephen Nawrocki, aged 27, a Galician of Montreal, shot and fatally wounded his wife, Julia, aged 26, of Bridgeport, Conn., here yesteday evening and turning the gun on himself, blew his grains out. Two bullets entered the woman's head and she died in a local hospital a short while after the shooting. Police were informed the woman came to visit Nawrocki at his rooming house here yesterday to effect a reconciliation of their marital difficulties and an argument ensued.

Yesterday's slaying was the second love tragedy to occur in the city within a week. On Tuesday last Joseph Piccadati, aged 19, shot and killed 17-year-old Kathleen Laingo on City Street, and then shot himself, causing wounds which resulted in his death in hospital yesterday morning.

CANADIAN ZOUAVE DIES AT OTTAWA

Emile Capbert Believed Last Survivor of Rome Defence Contingent.

OTTAWA, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press)—Emile Capbert, believed to have been the last surviving member in Canada of the original Papal Zouaves died yesterday in Ottawa at the age of nearly 90 years. He was the descendant of a distinguished family in France, the son of Jean Capbert, chevalier of the Legion of Honor. He went to Italy in 1870 and joined the Canadian contingent of Zouaves, serving with them through the trouble at Rome.

Another Widow—Looking for a Job

GEORGE MACDOUGALL'S first thought was always for his family's comfort and happiness. Nothing that he could provide was too good for them. No sacrifice that he might make was too great. He was a model of devotion.

Yet — unintentionally — George MacDougall failed in his imperative duty! He failed to provide completely for his family's support.

For when he died—suddenly and unexpectedly—his widow was faced with the task of "carrying on" without sufficient funds. He left her just $3,000.

She soon realized that the $3,000 wouldn't go very far. It was up to her to eke out a living for herself and the children.

The pathetic part of it is that things might have been so vastly different. It would have been so easy for George MacDougall to go on supporting them for years—in spite of his death.

For $15 a month he could have had $10,000 of insurance under the Life plan. This would have brought his estate to $13,000, which would have provided an income of $100 a month for 15 years for his widow and children. At the end of 15 years the children would have been old enough to take care of their mother.

You may feel that you can not afford further insurance. The real question is —can you afford not to have sufficient protection for your family? Under the Life Plan of the North American Life, insurance is easy to arrange—easy to afford. Send the attached coupon today.

Please send me information and literature about the Life Plan.

WOMEN'S PAGE

SOCIETY

The Ladies' Curling Club of the city will be represented at the O. C.A. Ladies' Tankard games, which are to be played tomorrow in the Victoria Club Rink, Toronto, by two rinks, with the following personnel: Mrs. R. H. Turner, Miss H. Fanning, Mrs. A. W. Turner, Miss F. Gladman, skip; and Mrs. R. Grant, Miss H. Munroe, Mrs. G. Wood and Mrs. W. J. Oke, skip.

Miss Laura Davidson is visiting friends in Montreal.

Mrs. W. R. Widdess, Stewart street, entertained at bridge last week.

Mrs. Wesley Bell of Smith Township entertained a few friends on Thursday evening in honor of her guest, Miss Myrtle Baldry, of Peterborough, who is visiting her.

Rev. R. C. Blagrave, D.D., has been appointed Grand Representative of the Grand Lodge of Delaware, U.S.A., in the Grand Lodge of Canada A.F. and A.M. in Ontario. The appointment was made by the Grand Master of Delaware, on recommendation of the Grand Master of Canada, in Ontario.

Mr. Charles Collins and little daughter Joy, of Sault Ste. Marie, Ontario, are in the city, spending a few weeks at the home of Mrs. Collins' parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Griffin, 424 London street.

Sir Frederick Haultain, Chief Justice of Saskatchewan, and a former resident of Peterborough, was in the city on Friday attending the funeral of the late Mrs. Katharine A. Dennistoun, and was the guest of Mr. G. W. Hatton.

A very pleasant Neighborhood Bridge Party was held on Saturday afternoon, under the auspices of the Peter Robinson Chapter I.O.D.E., when thirty-six tables of bridge were played at the homes of the following hostesses: Mrs. J. A. MacNab, Mrs. F. Hooper, Mrs. F. C. Webber, Mrs. D. Loucks, Mrs. W. Belleghem, Mrs. C. S. Browne, Mrs. R. Graham, Mrs. J.K. Hughes, Mrs. B. Moore, and Miss Mayme Montgomery. After the card games, the players, numbering nearly one hundred and fifty ladies, adjourned to the Young Women's Christian Association, where tea was served in the green room and the library, and where they were received by the regent of the Peter Robinson Chapter, Mrs. J. MacNab. The two tea-tables, charmingly arranged with draperies of Cluny lace and Florentine cut work, and centred by silver baskets of rose tulips, daffodils and paper white narcissus, tied with large bows of green and orchid tulle, with yellow candles in silver holders, were presided over by the regent of the 57th Regimental Chapter I.O.D.E., Mrs. C. S. Stapleton, and Mrs. E. B. Clegg and the regent of Otonabee Chapter, Miss S. A. Tomkins. Mrs. F. Hooper and Mrs. W. Belleghem were in charge of the tea room, and assistants were Mrs. L. Conway, and the Misses Eleanor Eastwood, Janet Stapleton, Margaret Widdess, Mildred Morphet, Edith Killaly, Edna Borbridge, Florence Adams, Gwen Hall, Agnes Sowden, Maida Conner and Helen Lamb. During the tea hour, vocal solos were rendered by Miss Daisy Davidson, with accompaniment by Miss Gwen Donley, and piano solos by Mrs. H. Carey and Miss Muriel Bridge. Prizes for bridge, which were awarded to the three highest scores at the thirty-six tables, were won by Miss Helen Hurley of Belleville, Miss Ethel Rae and Mrs. E. Howson. Mrs. J. R. Heron won the "lucky draw" prize, and Miss Muriel Bridge a special prize for a "middle score," in a box of chocolates presented by Mr. F. C. Webber for the ladies playing at Mrs. Webber's house.

Miss Gorman of Belleville is the guest of Mrs. Clare McDonald.

Mrs. R. R. Hall, Reid street, entertained at bridge on Saturday evening.

Mrs. Fred Whatley, 319 Boswell avenue, has returned home, after spending two weeks with friends in Toronto, Windsor and Detroit.

Miss Leta Brownscombe spent the week end with friends in Campbellford.

The condition of Mr. J. W. Fraser, manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, who is ill with pneumonia in Nicholls Hospital, is reported as being more favorable this morning. The crisis of the disease has been passed.

On Thursday evening, Dr. and Mrs. C. W. Rose entertained the choir of Murray street church for the last time at their home, the happiness of the guests being dimmed by the thought that this was the last occasion on which they would enjoy the kind hospitality of their beloved pastor and his wife. Mr. Joseph Wearing acted as song leader for community choruses, and a number of games and contests were played, winners receiving prizes in each instance. Mrs. Stanley Gillespie won the prizes in the slogan contest, Mrs. L. Ingram in the memory contest and Mr. Chas. Westbrook for the most original Valentine verse. After dainty refreshments were served, Dr. S. J. Graham voiced the appreciation of the guests, and the evening concluded with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." Many expressions of regret were heard at the gathering at the parting soon to take place, when Dr. Rose leaves the city. His unfailing courtesy, his tact, his oft-repeated appreciation of any service the choir was able to render and his wide scholarship, have won him a large share of the admiration and respect of the members.

Mrs. W. T. Holloway entertained at bridge on Friday evening.

Rev. Dr. R. C. Blagrave is in Toronto to-day, where he will give an address this evening to the Sunday School Teachers' Association, at the Church of St. Mary the Virgin.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hill, Park street, old residents of the city, are leaving Peterborough shortly to spend some time with their daughter, Mrs. Reynolds, in Orillia, and with their daughter on the Pacific Coast.

Mr. Fred Allen and Mr. Joseph Ellis, of Queen's University, Kingston, spent the week end with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. John I. Allen, Weller street.

Mrs. Holland, of Toronto, is the guest of Mrs. J. D. Fletcher.

Mr. James Dennistoun, of Montreal, who attended the funeral of the late Mrs. K. A. Dennistoun on Friday, was the guest of his aunt, Mrs. A. Stevenson, Aylmer street.

Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Graham entertained sixteen guests at a dinner party in the Empress Hotel on Friday evening, before the Bankers' dance in the hall of the Canadian Legion.

Mr. Harry Grubbe and Mr. A. N. N. Kirkpatrick, of Toronto, were in the city on Friday, for the funeral of the late Mrs. K. A. Dennistoun.

Dr. J. Malcolm McCullough, of the Clinic staff, has gone to Cleveland, Ohio, to spend a week in attendance at the annual meeting of the American College of Physicians. He was accompanied by Mrs. McCullough.

Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Skinner, Park street, entertained the Valencia card club at their home on Saturday evening.

Dr. A. Moir, of the staff of the Peterborough Medical and Surgical Clinic, was in Toronto last week addressing the Surgical Section of the Academy of Medicine.

Dr. Fitzpatrick, of Brockville, was in the city to-day attending the O'Ray-Hartman wedding.

Mr. W. W. Cole, representing the Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company of Port Arthur, Ontario, has just returned from a selling trip to New York, Philadelphia and Montreal, where he has secured some large contracts for paper manufacturing machinery for both Canadian and United States' mills. Mr. Cole states the shops at Port Arthur are quite busy in the pulp and paper machinery department, and also that the shipyard is busily engaged on ship repairs, a considerable portion of the shop running a double shift.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

"Well, sir, I couldn't exactly say," Mary Kearney answered, then began a maddening process of trying to count up the distance on her fingers.

"All right, Mary, that will do," the coroner interrupted impatiently. "I gather that with the kitchen at the extreme end of the long hall that goes the length of the house, and the front stairs almost at the beginning of the hall, you couldn't hear anyone leaving by the front door, unless the door was slammed. Is that correct?"

"Yes, sir," Mary answered eagerly. "The kitchen door was closed anyway, and I was busy making sandwiches and cutting cake."

"Sandwiches? Cake? With the servants off for the evening and Mr. Cluny not expected back after the ceremony?"

"Well, sir you see, sir, I was expecting my—my gentleman friend," and again Mary cast a furtive, blushing glance at the doorway, where a red-faced officer was shifting from one foot to another. "And I was fixing up a little snack, as you might call it. I didn't have the evening off like the others," she explained resentfully.

"Mary," the coroner thundered suddenly, "just how angry were you at Mr. Cluny for letting the others go and making you stay on duty? Mad at him, were you?"

Mary Kearney turned wide, entirely unsuspecting eyes upon the coroner. "Yes, sir, I was pretty sore. You see, sir, all of us had looked forward to going to the wedding, and while I knowed somebody had to stay at the house, I didn't like it much because it was me."

"And, Mary Kearney," the coroner leaned forward and pointed a finger in Mary Kearney's honest, sullen face, "you were madder than ever when he scolded you for listening at the door and sent you packing off to the kitchen in disgrace, weren't you now?"

Something warned Mary Kearney then. Her broad face turned red and she half rose from her chair. "Now, looka here, sir, don't you go trying to lay the blame on me! I didn't do nothing to Mr. Cluny. We was all crazy about him, even if he was a little—a little strict on us sometimes. The poor dear man had enough on his hands, with his bride cutting up tantrums, without me getting sore and acting ugly to him. Now that's the truth, and everything else I been telling you this morning is the truth, and you've got to believe it."

"I'm not accusing you of anything, Mary," Coroner Murchison smiled and leaned over to pat the red hand of the parlor maid. "Now, go right on with your story. What happened next—to your knowledge?"

"Well, sir, it was just a quarter to nine by the kitchen clock when the doorbell rang. I went to answer it and it was Mr. Bob Hathaway, like Mr. Cluny had said it would be. I done like he told me—I told Mr. Hathaway to go right on upstairs, and I went back to the kitchen. I'd hardly got back to the kitchen when I heard Mr. Hathaway yelling at the top of his voice for me, and I come a-running. Mr. Hathaway was standing at the head of the stairs, looking wild and scared to death.

"I run upstairs and he said, 'Mr. Cluny is dead, Mary. What in God's name has been happening here?' I told him I didn't know, that Miss Cherry had been here. He yelled out, 'Cherry! Oh, my God!' Then I heard him mutter in a low voice, 'This will kill Faith!' He looked at his uncle again, and I went in too, and saw him lying there on the floor, with his head all bloody—lying on his face he was—"

Mary Kearney began to sob.

The coroner was a good stage manager "That will be all for the present, Mary. Mr. Robert Hathaway will please take the stand."

The examination of Bob Hathaway by the coroner was mercifully brief and to the point. Dr. Murchison allowed him to tell, in his own words, of his arrival at the Cluny house at approximately a quarter to nine, of his finding his uncle's body a few feet from the partly opened window. He identified the broken Chinese vase, indicated by Dr. Enos Paxton as the instrument used in committing the murder, as the property of his uncle.

"Mr. Hathaway, do you remember where this vase was accustomed to stand?" the coroner asked.

"It had its permanent place on the low book case to the right of the window which was open," Bob answered. "May I add that in examining the room yesterday in your company I pointed out to you a faint ring of dust on the book shelf, marking the place where the vase stands?"

"Now, Mr. Hathaway, what impression did you receive when you opened the door into your uncle's room—that is, if you did open the door?"

"The door was closed. I knocked and received no answer. I thought my uncle might be in the bathroom and opened the door and entered. He was lying sprawled on the carpet, his right cheek bone against the carpet. I saw at once that he had been struck on the head, and noticed that a broken vase lay on the floor, between the—body and the window, indicating that the person who had struck him down had stood behind him, and that his back had been turned."

The coroner rapped rather sharply. "We must not draw conclusions, please, Mr. Hathaway. That will be all."

When he had taken his seat, Faith whispered in great agitation. "But, Bob, he didn't let you tell about the footprints! They're not giving her a chance, Bob!"

"Morehouse will undoubtedly bring all that out when he is called."

As the morning wore away with pointless questioning of servants who knew nothing, Faith felt that her nerves were being rasped raw. At last, her own turn came.

She had nothing new to tell—could only reiterate the story she had told to Chief of Police Morehouse the night before. She told again how she had discovered that Cherry had fled the house, of her finding Cherry's farewell note, which she identified with quivering lips, when it was handed to her by the coroner, and of her frantic trip to the church to acquaint the bridal party and the rector with the news of the bride's disappearance.

"Now, Miss Faith, what was your sister's attitude toward Mr. Cluny, as expressed to you, her sister?" the coroner inquired.

"She—she was very fond of him," Faith tried in vain to still the quiver of her lips. "She admired him, appreciated his generosity as—as a fiance."

"Did she ever tell you that she regretted she had promised to marry him?"

"Yes, sir. But she couldn't bear to hurt his feelings. We all wanted her to break it off, but she said she respected him too much to make him a laughing stock before his friends. She insisted on going on with plans for the wedding."

"That will do, Miss Faith, thank you. Call Cherry Lane Wiley," the coroner threw his bombshell, with a triumphant look at reporters and audience.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 22, 1927.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

Although there is one benefic aspect strong today it is a time to be cautious, according to astrology.

There should be good luck for merchants and manufacturers who will profit greatly through foreign markets.

Much money will be made by means of new corporations which float big enterprises in the new year, it is indicated.

Labor benefits at this time, especially in England, which will have an influence over industrial conditions in distant lands.

New mines are to be discovered and old ones are to be worked with good results, for there will be unprecedented demands for metals of various sorts.

This is read as an exceptionally fortunate day for all who are accustomed to be before the public.

Politicians should feel the stimulating effects of the rule which make for acquisition of power and fulfillment of ambitions.

Again religious differences will be widely discussed in the United States and old prejudices revived, the seers declare and they warn against the tendency to let church affiliations affect public affairs.

This is read as an unfavorable direction of the stars for marriages, for there is a sign indicating too much desire to rule on the part of women.

Theatres may feel the ill effects of this planetary rule which makes for remarkable changes in management.

New stars of the stage are to be acclaimed in the coming year, and one young woman will gain great popularity, it is prophesied.

History and narrative are subject to influences of the stars, which tend toward exaggeration, it is forecast.

Persons whose birthdate it is probably will have a prosperous year. Employees are likely to be promoted.

Children born on this day probably will be versatile and able to win many friends. Statesmen and diplomats are born under this sign of Pisces.

TABLET FOR NUN.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 21.—A bronze table was unveiled recently in the village of San Miguel de Napantla in honor of Sister Ines de la Cruz. The sister was known as "the tenth Muse" because of her poetic writings in both Latin and Spanish. Among her works was "La Inconseculncia des los hombres" (The Inconsequence of Men), which critics have called one of the greatest poems ever written by a woman.

A Man of Rare Professional Attainment

The originator of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was the late Ray V. Pierce, M.D. At first he practised medicine in Western Pennsylvania and his unusual ability and success were soon recognized there, then he moved to Buffalo, N. Y., and established the World's Dispensary where his famous home remedies have ever since been made.

Each succeeding year the sale of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been greatly increased. Evidently people appreciate the fact that it increases the appetite, stimulates the digestion, helps to enrich the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes, and makes both men and women feel as they did when they were young. It contains no harmful ingredient.

Ask your nearest druggist for Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, in tablet or liquid form, or send 10 cents for a trial package of tablets to Dr. Pierce's branch Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

This evening frock consists of a short little skirt of black satin, a bodice of black, mauve and gold brocade and a little train of the black satin that hangs at the left side at the back.

Little girls once liked to put on their mothers' long dresses, tuck them up at the front and then go strutting around, with trains sweeping the floor behind them. Then they could imagine they were really grown up. The little girl of today need not go to such trouble. She need only fasten a trailing length of ribbon or wisp of material at the back or side of her own very short frock and she has a perfect counterpart of the up-to-date frock with a train. For these trained frocks usually have very short skirts. And until you become accustomed to them there is something rather amusing about the wispy train that looks as if it were an afterthought.

Queens of old were presumably very fond of trains. At least we always used to think of them as wearing trains longer than those of ordinary mortals. The weight of these long trains seemed to impart queenly dignity to their bearing. And we have recently heard that the Prince of Wales in England likes trains. Not the picturesque old-fashioned trains that his queenly ancestors used to wear, but the amusing little trains that the French dressmakers are adding to some of their dance frocks—foolish little trains that make it possible for the young woman of today to have her cake and eat it too. She has all the satisfaction of wearing a train and of going in the shortest of skirts. The trailing length of material at the side or back only seems to accentuate their shortness.

The sketch shows a little dance frock with a black satin skirt and train and bodice made of black, mauve and gold brocade. The train is in fact as well as in effect a mere appendage. And this is something of an advantage. It may very easily be ripped off and discarded entirely. Some of the new frocks have a train that may be fastened securely with snappers or other fasteners. You may wear it part of the evening and then take it off and leave it in the dressing-room or carry it about your shoulders as a scarf.

SHORT STORY

Reginald Forester sat on a bench in Central Park and thought things over. His last cent was gone, he needed a shave badly, and his linen cried aloud for the laundress. The famous Fifth Avenue tailor who had been the author of the suit he wore would have wept aloud had he seen his creation in its present state of shabbiness. As to his hat and shoes, suffice it that "they had been glorious in another day." He did not look like a hobo exactly; but that he was a down-and-outer was evident to the most casual observer. In fact Reginald had reached the foot of the ladder and he was keeping an anniversary—the anniversary of the day he began his descent one year before.

He had started out with a capital of ten thousand dollars and, looking back over the year past and considering the amount of riotous living he had managed to purchase therewith, he did not consider that he had done so badly.

"Hang it all!" said he to himself, "If I had another ten thousand I'd blow it in the same way." In short Reginald was broke and unrepentant—which is a dangerous state for a young man to be in. He would have borrowed if he could—borrowed openly and brazenly—but he couldn't: for, as he had fox-trotted down the primrose path, he had scattered, along with his money, a snow-like shower of I.O.U.'s among his friends and companions, who still held them as souvenirs.

"Something has got to happen—and happen right off," muttered Reginald, "or it's one of the encircling rivers of this happy island for me. Think of it! I haven't even got a penny to toss up to see whether it shall be the East River or the North River." He waxed quite indignant over the matter; in fact, he was getting a little light-headed for want of food. "Something has got to happen," he cried hysterically. And then it happened.

An elderly lady was coming along the path accompanied by a young lady—and the young lady was fair to look upon. Reginald's gaze fell upon her and rested there. As the two women passed the bench where the outcast sat the elderly one dropped a book which she had been carrying under her arm. Instinctively Reginald sprang forward, picked up the book and handed it to its owner with a well-bred lifting of his shabby hat. The keen-eyed old lady recognized the evident impeccuniousness of the man before her. "Reward the person," said she to her young companion in something of the manner of the Red Queen in "Alice in Wonderland" saying "Off with his head."

The young lady searched in her pocketbook for a quarter; but finding none handed the book-restorer a silver half dollar. Reginald hesitated, actually blushed—but took it. Then the two ladies passed on and Reginald sank back upon his bench again. The young lady had looked straight into his eyes as she handed him the coin, and he had looked straight into hers. And Reginald in that look had seen a new world. His thoughts were rather jumbled at first: then things began to straighten themselves out. The mists cleared away and again he went back over the year just ended and it looked very different to him from what it had when he had reviewed it before. The scene had changed from a land of sparkling streams and flower-scented groves where light-footed maidens danced upon the emerald turf to a barren waste inhabited by chimeras and the ghosts of gibbering crimes.

Then "Hang it all! I'll do it," he thought. "Uncle said I'd be glad to come crawling back to him and, by George, I will crawl: if I can crawl back into a life that would let me look into those eyes again—and look without shame. Let's see, I'll get a shave first, and coffee and beans—and there will be plenty left for carfare. I was leading: and, of course, he couldn't keep paying my debts forever. What an unspeakable ass I have been!"

Reginald's interview with his Uncle Amos was a rather painful operation to him. But the old man was really fond of his scapegrace nephew and his satisfaction at being able to say "I told you so" was immense. No fatted calf was killed; but he gave Reginald a place in his office and told him to go to work. He wanted to see how complete the young man's reformation was.

A six-months' test being satisfactorily accomplished, Reginald began to go about in society again. People thought he had been traveling abroad and asked him about his trip—which embarrassed him. But he answered: "The old world has no attractions for me any more; I am living in a new world now." Which was cryptic but true.

And then he met the girl and was introduced to her. Evangeline Graydon—that was the adorable name.

"It is strange, but I can't help thinking I have met you before, Mr. Forester," said Evangeline as they sat out a dance.

"You did," replied Reginald; "you met me in Central Park and you gave me a half dollar."

"Oh, you were the man who picked up aunty's book!"

And then he told her the whole story—and looked into her eyes—and looked without shame. Is it necessary to be prosaic and say that they were married the following June? Well, they were.

IN THE CHURCHES

BETHANY TABERNACLE.

(Contributed).

Such a marked contrast. Many Peterboro people had the privilege and great comfort of forgetting ice and snow and slippery sidewalks, and through the eye and ear gate entered into the verdure and heat of the tropics of the Amazon valley.

Yesterday was the closing day of a most successful missionary convention in Bethany Tabernacle. A recurrence of Gideon's band of three hundred was made. On account of the bad weather the crowds were small, but God undertook and gave the best missionary offering ($1,208) in years. This money in pledge and cash is given so that precious souls for whom Christ died might hear of His wonderful love. This is the God-given task of the Christian and Missionary Alliance. This society has a parish of 60 million souls in 27 different countries, and now has a complement of 500 missionaries and over 1,200 native workers. The Alliance missionary work requires annually over $700,000.

Mr. Ray Clark, who has spent many years in the Amazon, brought messages on the needs of the Indians. Dr. Ralph Hooper gave two splendid messages on Sunday. Dr. Hooper was for twenty years instructor in medicine in Toronto University, and is now dean of the Canadian Bible Institute, where over 100 young lives are being trained for foreign service. Rev. D. N. Cameron, who is also an instructor in the Toronto Training School, gave inspiring messages from the Word.

The pastor, Rev. R. K. Mills, and his people are very much delighted with the results of the convention.

On Wednesday evening at 8.00 an evangelistic campaign of ten days begin with Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Fitch of Ottawa.

Girls Play Rough Game For Basketball Title

CHICAGO, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Hades hath no fury like a woman losing a basketball game, especially for the world's championship. Hence the rather rough party in which the Cleveland girls successfully defended their claim to the title Saturday night when they defeated the Chicago Taylor Trunks, 17 to 13.

After Katherine McAleer of the Cleveland team went off the floor for personal fouls, the girls decided to play professional rules, which they did. At least they played professional. No one was seriously injured.

Likelihood That Wheat May Sell Below $1 a Bushel

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—(Canadian Press.)—Coincident with the bearish statement from a leading trader wheat averaged lower to-day. The statement suggested likelihood of wheat selling again below $1 a bushel, opening at 1-4 cent off to 3-8 cent up, wheat underwent a moderate general setback. Corn, oats and provisions were also easier, corn opening unchanged to 3-8 cent down and later holding near to initial figures.

Opening Prices.

Massey Harris Stock Tops Numerous Active Advances

TORONTO, Feb. 21.—(Canadian Press.)— Numerous moderate advances, topped by the sharp rise in the newly active Massey Harris stock, were shown on the Toronto Stock Exchange in this morning's active session. Massey Harris reached 96 and at noon was at 95, 3 7-8 higher than Saturday. Canadian Pacific Railway also gained considerably, selling up 3 1-8 at 189. Seagram firmed 3-8 at 23 1-4. Gooderham and Worts improved more than a point at 49 7-8, Industrial Alcohol firmed an eighth at 24 1-4. International Nickel shared leadership with Massey Harris and firmed a quarter at 44. Brazilian was also slightly higher at 117 3-4.

Mining Stocks Lose Ground In To-day's Heavy Trading

TORONTO, Feb. 21. Canadian Press. — Mining stocks nearly all lost ground in heavy trading on the Standard mining exchange this morning. Losses were numerous rather than large and very few firm spots appeared in the list. Laval Quebec, touching 41 and closing at noon at 39, unchanged, was the brightest of the Quebec stocks. Duprat lost 3½ at 15 and Amulet eased 4 at 136, Area dropping 7 points at 45. Argonaut lost 2 at 39, and Nipissing at 9.65, was 15c lower. Corona strengthened 1 3-4 at 15.

Speculation For Advance Slows Up Considerably

NEW YORK, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—With many traders away for an extended week-end holiday, speculation for the advance slowed up considerably today. Baldwin approached within a few points of the 200 mark predicted for the stock when the current advance started a few weeks ago. Union Carbide, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Skelly Oil and Murray Body were among the score or so issues to sell at their best prices since 1925 or longer. C.P.R. crossed 190 to the highest price in over a decade.

Motors failed to make much progress, but some of the accessory shares recorded good gains. With few exceptions, rails were quiet during the first half of the session, but they gathered strength in the early afternoon when a buying movement developed for shares of the so-called Hill roads.

CHINESE SITUATION AT A GLANCE

The "Reign of Terror" in Shanghai streets which results in summary beheading of political and labor agitators by the Chinese authorities produces a swift decrease in the strike activities.

Marshal Chang Tso Lin, Manchurian leader, who is driving through Honan Province on the Cantonese, is temporarily held up, when General Wu Pei Fu, nominal master of the Province, disarms part of Chang's forces and seizes ammunition train.

Foreign Secretary Chamberlain at London tells House of Commons he instructed British negotiators at Hankow to inform the Cantonese, Great Britain must reserve full right to dispose of her troops as may be necessary for protection of British life.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R, Garis

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND BUNNY'S TOOTHACHE

One afternoon Baby Bunty, the cute little rabbit girl, climbed up the front steps of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow and tapped on the door. The rabbit gentleman opened it.

"I have come to pay you a little visit and stay all night," said Baby Bunty with a cute little bow.

"Oh, have you?" asked Uncle Wiggily, not that he doubted, but just to have something to say.

"Yes," went on Bunty, "I have come to stay all night and here is what I am going to sleep in," and she held up a little bundle wrapped in red paper.

"Oh, you are going to sleep in that, are you?" asked the rabbit gentleman, scratching his left ear with his right hind paw. "Well, all right, if you want to, but I should think you would rather sleep in a bed. Bunty, instead of in a little parcel like that. You'll be very much cramped."

"Toothache is enough to make anyone cry," said Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, how funny you are!" laughed Bunty. "Of course I'm not going to use this bundle instead of a bed. This package has my night gown in it!"

"Ha! That's different!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily with a laugh. "In that case come in!" He opened the door wider and soon Baby Bunty was playing with the other forty leven little rabbit children of Mr. Longears'. Jolly good times the little rabbits had, playing tag, the piano and hide the dining room table and all games like that.

Pretty soon it was time to go to bed and Bunty took her little night gown out of her little bundle and went up stairs.

All of a sudden, in the middle of the night, Uncle Wiggily heard a crying sound coming from the room where visiting Baby Bunty was sleeping with Jingle and Jangle, two of his own little rabbit girls.

"Come now, my dears! No more playing! You have had fun enough," said the rabbit gentleman gently. "Go to sleep. Don't play any more in bed."

"I—I'm not playing!" came the sobbing voice of Baby Bunty. "I'm—now I'm crying!"

"What are you crying for?" asked Uncle Wiggily.

"I'm crying 'cause I—now—got the toothache!" answered the little rabbit child. "Oh, dear!"

"Well, tooth ache is enough to make anybody cry," said Uncle Wiggily getting up to put on his dressing gown and slippers. "But perhaps I can stop the pain for you." He remembered how once he had stopped the ache in the tooth of Billie Wagtail, the goat boy, by getting Tommie Kat to pull out the tooth. "Though I can't do that now," said the rabbit gentleman to himself. "I'll get some cotton and put some medicine on that and stuff it in the hole in Bunty's aching tooth. Tomorrow I'll pull it."

But when Uncle Wiggily looked for some cotton he couldn't find a bit in the bungalow. However, he knew where, just outside the door, grew a horse chestnut tree. And though it was pow winter, the tree had big blossom buds on. Inside the outer covering of each bud was a warm wrapping of cotton.

"I'll get cotton for Bunty's tooth from the horse chestnut tree," said the rabbit gentleman. He had done that before when some of his own bunnies had a pain.

Out into the dark night hopped the bunny gentleman. He reached up to a low branch of the tree and picked off some buds. Opening these buds, which were covered with sticky wax to keep out the rain, Uncle Wiggily soon had all the cotton he needed. He was just hopping back with it into the bungalow to stop Bunty's pain when, all of a sudden, the Bob Cat popped round the tree, howling:

"Now I have you, Uncle Wiggily!"

But the rabbit gentleman stuck some of the sticky tree cotton on the end of the Bob Cat's nose, making him look so funny and tickling the bad chap so much that the Bob Cat turned a somersault and flopped away in the darkness, not nibbling any ears at all.

Then Uncle Wiggily put some medicine on the rest of the cotton and stuffed it into Bunty's aching tooth. The pain did not stop right away, but when Mr. Longears told how he had stuck cotton on the end of the Bob Cat's nose, and how funny he looked, Bunty laughed so much she forgot about her ache, and then she went to sleep and in the morning she was better.

So this teaches us that Bob Cats are good to stop teeth from aching, and if the hands of the clock will knit some stockings for the legs of the doll's bed, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's snow tunnel.

3RD PETERBOROUGH TROOP "VIMY"

Whew! that was some hockey game. What game! Why when the 3rd and 4th played off their tie game at Mark Street Rink last Tuesday night. The ice being in good shape, the game was very fast, and although the 4th were short a man or two, it was a battle right up to the last minute. The 4th had only one sub, and were without one of their regulars, Charlie Butcher being sick. The 3rd struck a good night, and shot the puck in from all angles, running up a total of 11 goals before time was called. Percy Ellison was the sharpshooter of the evening, slipping the puck past Charlie Routley four times. Jack Gray and Bobbie Ross each scored three times and each had two assists, and Archie Cocks notched two goals and had two assists for his evening's work. Ches. Jones was the only successful marksman of the 4th, shooting one past Jack Clayton. Play was mostly in the 4th's end of the rink, and Charley Routley had a pretty busy evening, saving time and again. Though only four of the 3rd were able to break into the scoring column, every man on the team worked his head off while on the ice and yelled encouragement when resting up. The game was clean throughout, not even the semblance of dirty playing. Immediately after the game the 4th called for three cheers and a Tiger for the 3rd, and they were given in a manner which showed that though beaten, the 4th still had plenty of life and pep. The 3rd responded in as hearty a manner.

The 4th, by virtue of their loss, are supplying a supper next Friday night. The oranges and bananas donated by Mr. William Taylor will also be taken care of on Friday. Announcement of the time and place of the feed will be made later.

So much for the game. Now, for the meeting. Last Friday night made some great changes in the standing in the patrol competition. The Hounds were running in third place, but by winning 26½ points they passed the Wolves and are now in second place, about 20 points behind the Chickadees. The Wolves were not at the meeting, having permission to take a hike, so did not make any points. The Hawks made a good gain and went into third place. The Chickadees won 22½ points and are still well in the lead. The final standing was Chickadees 206, Hounds 189¾, Hawks 183¾, Wolves 175¾.

No word has as yet been received about the shield. A letter was written some time ago asking the firm for a price, but no reply has been received. As soon as we know the cost of the shield, the money will be collected and the order sent away. We want it here before the end of March. The competition for the shield ends at Easter. There is plenty of time for the standing to be completely upset.

A verbal message was read out at the beginning of the meeting. It was a simple message such as any Scout might receive at any time. A few Scouts remembered it through the meeting, but most lost the sense of it. The message read: "Meet the noon train from Toronto, Saturday. An elderly gentleman dressed in a Scout uniform will get off. Escort him to the troop room and notify the District Commissioner Mr.—— of his arrival." The Scots were to fill in the name of the D.C. The Hounds made a bad showing in this, none of the three remembering even the essential points in the message. One Hound wrote down "Meet the 5 o'clock train. The Attorney General will get off. Take him to District Commissioner Dr. Fraser."

The evening was spent in signalling and memory training games. Two of the Hounds tried their 1st class receiving in semaphore and made a good attempt. They will try again next week.

Scouts in Peterborough will be sorry to hear that P.L. Crawford Hall is ill in the hospital. It will be a week or so before he can be around again.

PUBLIC SCHOOL HOCKEY.

The Prince of Wales and Queen Mary public school hockey teams played their semi-finals at the Cognawaga rink on Saturday. As neither team had lost a game quite a number of spectators was attracted. The Queen Mary school were victors by three goals to two.

At the opening of the game Queen Mary scored two goals in two minutes and later in the period the third Queen Mary goal was scored. The second period was scoreless and in the third period the Prince of Wales boys scored two goals.

The final game will, the ice permitting, be played at Brock St. rink on Saturday morning next at eleven o'clock.

The boys who figured in the scoring were: Queen Mary, 1st goal by Thirnbeck, 2nd goal by Bath assisted by Thirnbeck, 3rd goal by Bath; Prince of Wales, 1st goal by Epps, 2nd goal by Robinson.

The teams were:

Prince of Wales—Goal, Sanderson; defence, Bailey and Hatley; forwards, Robinson, Epps and Seabrook; subs, H. Murphy.

RETIRES AFTER LONG SERVICE

J. A. Feir Completes Seventeen Years With Local Milling Concern.

SUPERINTENDENT.

J. A. Feir, of 88 Aylmer street, superintendent of the Campbell Flour Mills Company in Peterborough, is retiring from the service of this company after seventeen years of service with them.

Twenty-two years ago, Mr. Feir came to the city on the invitation of W. H. Meldrum, manager of the Peterborough Cereal Company, and it was under his supervision that the first "Ready to Serve" breakfast food, known as Canada Wheat Flakes, and Corn Flakes, were made, and enjoyed the patronage of the public until the plant was destroyed by fire.

Then Mr. Feir spent a summer with the Quaker Oats Company, taking the position of superintendent of the Maple Leaf Milling Company in January of 1910.

He is desirous of taking this opportunity of publicly thanking the officers of the company for the unbounded trust and confidence placed in him during seventeen unbroken years of service, and would ask the same support for Arthur Campbell and the boys who carry on.

For the present Mr. Feir is taking a short holiday before entering into any other business activity.

DANCE AT WARSAW.

A ball was held in the Warsaw Hall on Friday night under the auspices of the U.F.O. A very enjoyable time was spent, about forty couples participating from Douro and Dummer. Excellent music was furnished by the Warsaw orchestra. Supper was served by the ladies of the U.F.O.

HOW CHILDREN QUICKLY GAIN ROBUST HEALTH

Go ahead, Mother, and make the sickly little one strong and well—make the puny one sturdy and full of pep—make the skinny one take on pounds of solid flesh—Get McCoys Cold Liver Extract Tablets.

Cod liver liquids are nasty and repulsive and evil smelling and nearly always upset children's stomachs—so now up-to-date pharmacists advise McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets with their wealth of vitamines.

Children love them as they do candy, because they are sugar coated and easy to take. One boy gained 11 1-2 lbs. in seven weeks, and is now healthy and happy—thousands of other children have grown strong and robust.

Sixty tablets for 60 cents at McDermid and Jury's, Bond's Drug Store, McDermid Drug Co., and druggists everywhere. Try them for 30 days and if you are not happily satisfied with the test get your foney back. But demand McCoy's—it pays to get the genuine.

CAVAN NEWS

Mr. Orral Swain of Carman, Manitoba, who has been visiting in this locality, left on Saturday for Lindsay, where he will visit friends for a short time, before returning to his home in the West.

There is considerable activity around the locality this spring in real estate transfers and exchanges of properties. Mr. George Gow has disposed of his grist mill, and is going to take up farming near Chemong, and Mr. Herb. Scott of Chemong has taken charge of the grist mill.

On Monday of this week, Messrs. Lang and Tinney shipped a heavy run of hogs on the C.P.R. to Peterborough. The load consisted of 90 fat hogs for which they paid 11¾ cents per pound.

The Cavan Dramatic Club are now hard at work on the preparation of their play, which they intend to present in the near future in the interests of the Community Hall.

The mummy of a horse, estimated to be 3,000 years old, was found recently in Egypt.

SINGER AT TRINITY.

Norman Cherrie, Baritone, Delighted Congregations Yesterday.

Congregations at Trinity United Church yesterday were delighted with the singing of Norman Cherrie, baritone soloist at Eaton Memorial Church, Toronto, who was in the city for the week end, at Trinity church. Mr. Cherrie possesses an exceptionally attractive voice, clear, resonant and powerful. In the morning, his selections were "O God, Be Merciful," from Mendelszohn's "St. Paul" and Carey's arangement of "Nearer My God To Thee." In the evening, he gave the recitative and aria from Handel's "Behold, the darkness which covereth the earth" and "The people that walk in darkness," also "Prayer" by the Russian composer, Kalinnekov.

MARMORA NEWS.

MARMORA, Feb. 21.—Acting for the owner, Mrs. H. M. Jones, of Toronto, Constable H. Gillen has disposed of the twelve lots on her property in the southern part of Marmora village. Two of the purchasers are planning the erection of homes as soon as the spring opens up.

Mr. William Henderson of Glanmire, visited relatives in town on Wednesday.

Mr. Norman Kilpatrick was called to Cookstown on Thursday owing to the severe illness of his uncle.

Mr. Albert Reddick of Belleville, visited Mr. Charles Phillips on Tuesday, the two having not met for over forty years.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene O'Neill of Bancroft, are visiting the former's sister, Mrs. W. Hughes.

ELIMINATION OF NORTH FEATURES IN ENGLISH CUP

FIFTH ROUND

LONDON, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press Cable).—The complete elimination of North of England teams in the fifth round of the English Cup was the chief feature of the results Saturday. From now on the contest is exclusively the property of the Southern Counties a circumstance that has not happened for many years. Three London teams continue in the running, Arsenal, Chelsea, and Millwall; Cardiff City represents Wales, while there is a strong prospect of the Principality having additional representation in Swansea Town, and Southampton and Reading give the South their great predominance. Wolverhampton Wanderers are the only Midland combination to find their way into the sixth round.

The defeat of Bolton Wanderers, the Cup holders, on their own ground by Cardiff City was a bitter pill for Lancashire to swallow. The Wanderers were the only team to be whipped by a visiting aggregation. In every other case, with the exception of the indecisive game at South Shields, the home team won. The margins were small, only one goal deciding the issue in five of the games. At Highbury and Bolton the game was decided by a couple of goals, while at South Shields two goals each represented the count.

The leaders of the First and Second Divisions of the League went down to defeat, Newcastle United at Southampton and Middlesborough at Millwall. In each case the victory went to a team in a lower grade in the League, Southampton being a member of the Second Division and Millwall of the Third.

Out of the eight teams that survive, or will eventually survive when the South Shields-Swansea Town contest is disposed of, only two belong to the First Division, Arsenal and Cardiff City; five are members of the second string, Wolverhampton, Chelsea, Southampton, Reading and both Swansea and Shields, while Millwall alone represents the Southern Section of the Third. This distribution has made the competition much more interesting than formerly, particularly since the old favorites who were expected to have a large say in the division of the honors have all been eliminated.

Hugh attendances were attracted to all of the games; the one at Stamford Bridge contributing nearly $20,000 to the revenue of Chelsea, derived from the 66,238 fans who witnessed the encounter. A crowd in the neighborhood of 50,000 saw Bolton succumb to Cardiff and paid $18,000 to do so. About the same number at Wolverhampton paid just a trifle less to see the Wanderers beat Hull City. Forty-three thousand people were present at Highbury, bringing slightly over $14,500 to Arsenal's already well-stocked treasury, while at Southampton the numbers were 21,406, representing $10,000 in cash; at Millwall 44,250 $16,100); at Reading 33,042 ($12,650) and at South Shields the game record of 24,348, represented at the box-office by $9,500.

CORNED BEEF AND CABBAGE DID IT

BY JIMMY POWERS

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Corned beef and cabbage made him what he is today—I hope you're satisfied.

Ever since Michael Francis McTigue started his sensational spurt of spectacular knockouts every fight fan in the country has been chirping, "Well, I'll be blowed, the old son-of-a-gun has been hiding behind a pair of boxing gloves for 14 years—how come?"

And down the line wherever flat noses and thick ears are the mode you hear an echoing chorus of mystifying "how-comes."

"Corr-r-rnned beef and cabbage, me bi,' comes the ready answer of this grinning, rejunevated Celt who will be 40 years old next fall and who is out there at night slashing, tearing, ripping vicious rights and lefts to surprised youngsters' chins—a complete metamorphosis from the sly, cautious roller-skating fox we all knew so well.

Dr. Jekyll used to sniff a mysterious powder that changed him into Mr. Hyde.

Michael Francis pulls his chair up to a steaming dish of "red mike and violets," as that famous dish is known in the quaint patois of the Bronx.

"I'll tell ye, me lad," he says in answer to my question for the lowdown on his change, "I used to rade all this scientific balderbosh running in the papers about diet—carbohydrr-rates, calorie values and nitrogenous foods.

"Beggorra, all my life I used to nibble away at lettuce and such like a faint-hearted rabbit.

"After Delaney bate me up I sispinded trainin' fer awhile and ate meats and built up energy and a fightin' spirit. Now I feel like a lion and there's not a bit o' blarney in that, so help me Hannah!"

Mike is now matched with Jack Sharkey. A championship bout with Jack Delaney is brewing. The red-faced, freckled old Mick who once held the light-heavy crown has battled them all for years with but one lone knockout against him.

What an interesting career he has had, polishing it up to date with a dramatic and savage knockout of Paul Berlenbach in four rounds. No one sat down once in the Garder that night.

He was born in Kilmonaugh parish, County Clare, Ireland. His REAL age is 39. He met Jack Britton when he came to America and he followed him everywhere. He spent long hours in a gym emulating Britton's lightning left that could stab a hole in the eye of a needle.

Watch Mike closely in action and you will see the resemblance to the old master. Remember what a treat it was to see Jack turn sideways and lash out with a rapier-like left? Mike has the same trick down pat.

"I used to pride meself on bein' called a boxer," say Michael, "now all I want to do is fight. All Irishmen can fight. But it took me 40 years to find it out!"

CHAMPS RETAIN THEIR TITLE AT SKATING MEET

HAS 150 POINTS

Miss Lelia Brooks, of Toronto, Leads Women With 90.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Feb. 21 (Canadian Press) — The champions—Charles Gorman, of Saint John, N.B., and Miss Lelia Brooks of Toronto—who came here to compete with a half a hudnred other skaters in the International Indoor speed skating tournament, yesterday departed with their titles intact.

Gorman, who led the field with 150 points, placed first in every major event on the men's programme of the two day meet with the exception of the three mile race which he did not enter. Percy Johnson of Toronto, was the runner-up with sixty and Lloyd Guenther, of Detroit, was third with forty.

Miss Brooks, in addition to breaking several records, led the women with ninety points. Margaret McBride, also of Toronto, placed second with seventy points, and three girls with 20 points each, tied for third position. Virginia Young of Pittsburgh, Lois Littlejohn of Chicago, and Jenny Mackie of Toronto, were those in the deadlock.

A new record was made Saturday night in the 440 yard race for women when McBride and Brooks won the first and second heats respectively in 43 4-5 seconds. The old mark of 45 3-5 seconds was made by Elsie Muller here in 1926. The pair also shattered the record for 220 yards Friday night when they covered the distance in 22 seconds 3-5 of a second short of the former time. McBride won the first heat and Brooks the final.

Brooks also lowered the time for the mile the first night, crossing the line in 3:10 4-5. The former record, made Elsie Muller in 1925, was 3:19 3-5. Summary of Saturday's events:

880 yard championship for women, won by Lelia Brooks, Toronto; second, Margaret McBride, Toronto; third, Isabel McCullough, Toronto. Time 1:28.

220 yard championship for men: won by Charles Gorman, Saint Johns; second, Lloyd Guenther, Detroit; third, M. Johnson, Minneapolis. Time 19 3-5.

220 yard novice race for men: won by Zigmont Karpinski, Pittsburgh; second, H. L. Caldwell, Pittsburgh; third, Ferrson, Pittsburg. Time, 24 1-5.

880 yard championship for men: won by Gorman; second, Percy Johnson, Toronto; third, Guenther. Time 1:26 3-5.

440 yard championship for women—won by McBride; second, Jenny Mackie, Toronto; third, Lois Littlejohn, Chicago. Time, 44 seconds.

Three mile championship for men: won by Percy Johnson, Toronto; second, O'Neil Farrell, Chicago; third, Andrew Roesch, New York. Time 8:58 -5, new record. (Old record by Charles Fisher, 9:13 3-5.)

RINK RATS WIN MIDGET GAME

Defeat Young Canucks Five To Two in League Encounter.

ELLIS STARS.

The Rink Rats met the Young Canucks in a Midget League game on Mark Street Rink on Friday evening. Great interest was taken in the meeting of these teams and a good crowd of spectators was present to cheer their favorites. The Rink Rats had the best of the exchanges, and came out winners by 5 goals to 2. Captain Ellis of the Rink Rats was in great form and scored three beautiful goals, while Creighton, in goal for the Canucks, was a host in himself and saved his team time and again.

The teams:

Young Canucks—Goal, Creighton; defence, McGraw and Campanau; forwards, Meagher, Roach and Burke; subs., Jones and Blodgett.

Rink Rats—Goal, N. Calladine; defence, Playford and Starr; forwards, Cuthbertson, Ellis and McCullough; subs., F. Merritt and McMann.

Referee—Mr. Ewart.

WINS THREE UP

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 21 (Canadian Press)—Walter Hagen, national professional golf champion, won three up in the thirty-six holes of the 72 hole match with Gene Sarazen in the first half of their match played here yesterday.

The second 36 holes will be played next Sunday over Hagen's home course at Pasadena.

GRADS EXPECT TOUGH BATTLE IN THE SERIES

Believe the Petes Have Reserved Punch for Finals.

ABOUT THE TEAM

"Varsity" Sporting Editor Discusses Some of Grads' Stars.

By JAMES W. ROBSON
Sporting Editor "The Varsity"

Varsity's valiant Alumni hockey team will be prepared for action at the Arena Gardens on Monday night when the Blue will embark upon the third serious venture that the squad has made during the past three years in quest of the Allan Cup, emblematic of Canadian hockey superiority.

Sweeping all group opposition before them, running up a scoring record that has seldom if ever been equaled in the annals of hockey in this Dominion, the Blue and White clad warriors stand out as one of the strongest teams the east has ever produced, and the Smythe coached players will be heavy favorites to beat the second place Peterboro team and thus earn the right to meet either Kitchener or Preston in the senior O.H.A. finals.

Look For Trouble.

After beating Peterboro by one sided scores in the three games that these teams have staged this winter the Blue would appear to be headed for a soft play-off series. Certainly that is the general opinion, but it is not one altogether endorsed by the "Grads" themselves. Hockey is a queer old business, and, while the Blue feel confident of taking the first round of the elimination series they are not in the least underating their prospective opponents. In fact, it is the general opinion that the Petes can display much better hockey than they have as yet shown against last year's Allan Cup finalists; certainly better than that which characterized their attempt of Wednesday night, and that the Lift Lock team has reserved its punch for the final and telling games of the group play-off.

On the other hand, Varsity has as yet merely indicated the team's actual ability, and University undergraduates agree thoroughly imbibed with the idea that this year's team will be able to rise to undreamed of heights in the Allan Cup playdowns. Certainly the games played so far would serve to indicate this, for, as a perusal of the scoring sheet would indicate, Varsity's scoring has generally been confined to the odd few minutes when the team would uncork its real speed and actual scoring punch. Not yet this season has the squad been extended to win, nor have the players yet had any real incentive to pile up more goals, but it may readily be believed that in a crucial series, the team will show all that speed, teamwork and efficiency which some of the best hockey brains in the country have served to produce.

Fear Kitchener.

In the Blue camp Kitchener is generally expected to win out over Preston in the O.H.A. play-offs of Group No. 1, and it is Kitchener that the Blue are preparing to meet should they be so fortunate as to down the Petes. Kitchener is rated as a tough assignment not only because of the strong showing that the Green Shirts have made in their group this year but also because of the experience of many of the Karges-Hillier players. However, in this connection, it must be remembered that all of the Alumni players have the experience gained in one, two and some three and four previous Allan Cup finals and that in this, their third year together, the players have brought team play to a scientific, machine like actuality.

Few players can boast of more hockey experience than Dr. Joe Sullivan, Dr. Louis Hudson or Frank Sullivan, all of whom have seen service in at least four Dominion hockey finals. These veterans have long been rated as three of the most consistent performers in hockey, and, still young men for all their experience, today lend a controlling and steadying influence to their team that few other players could instill.

Versatile Youngsters.

Dave Trottier, the youngster who was last year heralded as one of the greatest juniors to ever make the jump into senior ranks has, with a year's gruelling tuition behind him, developed into one of the most versatile performers in hockey today. Hugh Plaxton, generally credited with having developed in the Allan Cup finals in Winnipeg two years ago, forms almost the perfect centre man,—big, tricky, fast, who, with one of the best shots in hockey, is at all times willing to pass or to make the play himself—and, along with Trottier and Hudson, forms one of the smoothest and perhaps greatest front lines that Varsity at least has ever had.

Offensively and defensively the Varsity rearguard combination of Porter and Taylor has had but few equals, but their greatest strength to their team must be considered to lie in their ability as goal-getters for either of them can be counted upon to lend his hand when goals are needed most.

Dr. Joe Sullivan requires no introduction to Ontario fans. To say that the little net guardian is going better than ever is superfluous—the small scores registered by the opposing teams this season would easily prove the point, but in this connection the work of young Mueller, Sullivan's relief, must also be taken into consideration. Playing senior hockey for the first time the youngster received what is perhaps the most gruelling test ever handed to a junior when he relieved the injured Sullivan against Port Arthur in Montreal last year. Mueller shut out the Portsmen and by so doing achieved lasting fame around the University and as well earned for himself a place in the front ranks of amateur goal-tenders.

HUGE CROWD TO SEE GAME

Reserved seat tickets for Wednesday's play off game with Varsity Grads are in great demand and a capacity crowd will see the second fixture of the series for the group title, no matter what may be the result of the first game, which is to be played at the Arena Gardens tonight. The Petes are not dismayed by last Wednesday's defeat but are confident of giving Connie Smythe's machine a tough argument for the dicision to-night as well as in Wednesday's game here. The team is in good shape and the whole crew is determined to battle the Grads all along the line.

Wednesday's game here will be the biggest feature of the hockey season and every hole and corner will be filled when Referee Harry Batstone sends the teams away at 8.30 o'clock.

TEAMS DRAWN FOR DOG DERBY

Fifteen Have Entered Numbers in Quebec International Racing Classic.

STARTS TODAY

Quebec Feb. 21. Canadian Press.—Fifteen sturdy dog drivers have drawn their numbers and positions for the start of the big three day 120 mile International Dog Derby Classic, which starts at 9 a. today.

They start the first day as follows, each team comprising seven dogs:

No. 1: Frank Dupuis, Quebec; No. 2, J. Villeneuve, Quebec; No. 3, W. Channing, Boston; No. 4, V. Lavigne, Quebec; No. 5, Leonhard Seppala, Nome, Alaska; No. 6, P. Blouin, Quebec; No. 7, B. Beaulieu, Quebec; No. 8, Emil St. Goddard The Pas, Manitoba; No. 9. R. Pouliot, Quebec; No. 10, A. LaPointe, Quebec; No. 11, Paddy Nolan, Quebec; No. 12, J. Roberts, Quebec; No. 13, Joe Dupuis, Quebec; No. 14, George Chevrette, Quebec; No. 15, George Tanguay, Quebec.

For equal chances in starting the fifteen entries are divided into three groups of five each and as each day's race proceeds the lowest number of the driver in each section will automatically move forward to start first and down through the string of drivers. Drivers in the first day's race will start in the original numerical order as shown above.

Leonhard Seppala has arrived with his picked "malamutes," the finest from his Alaska kennels, and is prepared to wage a stiff battle for victory. Paddy Nolan, the little freckled faced, blue-eyed, 15 year old Irish Canadian is again in the lineup. He declares his well trained lead dog "Rover" will surely pilot him to victory this year. Leonhard Seppala stated last night night that both he and his dogs were in the pink of condition on the long grind of today. While it was his first visit to Quebec and the first Canadian race he had ever run in he felt confident of victory. "I have never been over the course but it will have to be worse than the trails in Alaska to lose me," said Seppala. "I figure I am racing against some of the fastest drivers in the world but they will know before the race is over that they will certainly have to travel some to lick me," he declared

The raging wind and snowstorm which broke here on Sunday will drift the course full of deep snow, and make the going heavy and a great endurance test of man and beast will be the result.

Betting last night suddenly changed to favor the teams made up of the more slow and sturdy huskies.

The odds on last year's winner, Frank Dupuis, dropped yesterday to 2 to 1 against the field, while Emil St. Goddard and Leonhard Seppala are drawing 3 to 1.

SAVES GAME.

Hay, Chicago Wing Man, Scores Three Goals in Third.

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 21 (Canadian Press)—Hay, wing man for Chicago Black Hawks, won a National League hockey game Saturday night. His three goals in the third period gave the Hawks a 4 to 1 victory over the Detroit Cougars, and it was his pass which enabled Frazer to score in the first period. Keats made the Cougar goal. Trapp, of Chicago, was given a major penalty for rough tripping.

AMERICANS ARE BLANKETED 3 - 0 BY CANADIENS

New York Goalkeeper's Work Saves From Larger Score.

SPEEDY ATTACKS

Were Almost Helpless by Playing of Canadiens in Second.

MONTREAL, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press).—Canadiens romped through a staggering New York American defensive system before a wildly-cheering crowd of 11,000 pro. hockey fans at the Forum Saturday night and blanked the Gotham combination, 3 to 0. It would have been a more decisive score had not Vernon Forbes displayed courageous goal-tending in the New Yorkers' net in the second period when his teammates were dazzled by the lightning-like darts of the local players and were almost helpless to stem the thrusts. Forbes alone stood up under the raking fire and allowed but one goal through him during the vicious bombardment in which he was forced to handle drives from all quarters, frequently rushing from his goal to smother the puck as the fast-travelling Canadiens circled the Americans' defence and rushed for the net.

Seldom has such speedy and determined attacking been witnessed in pro. hockey as that launched by the local team in the second session, as they went busily about the task of clinching the game. The Americans had made a fair attempt at holding the Canadiens in the first period, but saw the lead go to their opponents when Pete Lepine tallied after Herb Gardiner had sent him around the New York guard with a perfect pass. The one-goal margin was not safe enough for Canadiens, especially with much at stake in the result of the battle, and in the middle period they went after the tallies that would put the issue beyond doubt. The New York defence was helpless under the charges, but Forbes stood up and Art Gagne was the only player to beat him in that wooly session, a sizzling drive from right wing by this smart, crafty forward crossing Forbes and nesting in the far corner of the net.

In the final period Joliat cleared the rebound of Himes' shot and tore for the other end. He slowed at the defence, slipped the puck through Connacher and Joe Simpson, regained it and twisted his wrist for the tally which tucked the game away.

As the Montreal Maroons were taking an overtime victory from the Toronto Maple Leafs, the defeat of the New York Americans sent the Lalonde combination deeper into fourth place in the sectional battle and further away from the coveted first three positions and a place in the eliminations which will follow the conclusion of the scheduled campaign. It was the third straight loss for the Americans in the week of important tussles and considerably lowered their stock as possible contenders in the play-downs.

The line up:

Canadiens.— Goal, Hainsworth; defence, Gardiner and Mantha; centre, Morenz; wings, Gagne and Joliat. Subs., Leduce, Lepine, Hart, Larochelle, Gauthier.

Americans.—Goal, Forbes; defence Connacher and Reise; centre, Burch; wings S. Green and R. Green; subs. Simpson, Himes, Roach, McKinnon, Scott and Bouchard.

Referees—Bill O'Hara, Ottawa; Bill Hughes, Kingston.

First Period:

1—Canadiens, Lepine 12.47

Second Period:

2—Canadiens, Gagne 5:05

Third Period:

3—Canadiens, Joliat 14.32

Penalties—First period, none; second period, Mantha; third period, none.

Saves by goalkeepers.—By Forbes, 35; by Hainsworth, 24.

CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE PLAY-OFF

Juveniles and Juniors Meet in Two Important Clashes To-morrow Night.

To-morrow night at Brock street rink the play-offs will take place in the Juvenile and Junior groups of the Church Hockey League. The youngsters have been playing a fine brand of hockey and it is expected that a large crowd will be out to witness the games.

Trinity and Murray street teams have qualified for the finals in the Juvenile group and this game will be played at eight o'clock sharp. The second game of the evening will be between St. John's boys and St. James; these two teams have entered the finals in the Junior group. This game will commence at nine o'clock.

The first midget game will be played at the Cognawaga rink tomorrow night at 6.30 when the All Saints' meet the Trinity team. The finals for the senior city championship will not be played until the end of the week as there are a few games to play yet.

RACE FOR RIGHT TO PLAY OTTAWA REMAINS CLOSE

Canadiens and Maroons Both Win Games on Saturday.

BAILEY STARS.

Former Pete Captain's Play Features Game Against Montreal.

TORONTO, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press). — Montreal Maroons and Canadiens remain in a neck-and-neck race for the right to meet Ottawa in the play-offs in the Canadian group of the National Hockey League. The Maroons won again on Saturday night from Toronto Maple Leafs after a bitter struggle, by two to one. Canadiens downed the New York Americans at Montreal rather easily, winning three to nothing. Ottawa maintained their six game lead over Canadiens by defeating the Pittsburg Pirates at Ottawa, one to nothing.

The Maroons had a harder task defeating Maple Leafs than in any other of the four previous games between the two teams. Patterson, aided by Corbeau, gave the locals the first goal of the game and the Leafs held their lead until Stewart scored on a pass from Dutton near the end of the second period. Bailey's brilliant playing featured the third period, which was scoreless, and not until after 12 minutes of overtime did Dunc Munro win the game for Montreal with a snap-shot after a lone rush.

The Senators' determination, rather than any superiority in hockey gave them the game against the Pirates. The only goal of the game was secured by the youthful Hec. Kilrea, who wriggled through the Pirates and burned a shot past Roy Worters.

At Montreal, Vernon Forbes' smart performance in the Americans' nets was largely responsible for keeping the flashy Canadiens' score down to three goals. The Habitants worked through the uncertain New York defence at will. Lepine in the first period, Gagne in the second, and Joliat in the last scored for Canadiens.

GRAND NATIONAL AT AINTREE SOON

VETERAN DEAD.

LIVERPOOL, Feb. 19.—(Canadian Press Despatch)—Publication of the "weights" has quickened public interest in the Grand National steeplechase and the Lincolnshire, which are to be run near the end of next month. The great steeplechase will not seem quite the same this year, because of the death of Old Tay Bridge, veteran 'chaser, who had a long and notable career in the National. He never won the race, but was second in 1925 and 1926, and had been allotted top weight of 175 pounds for this year's National. Jack Horner, winner of the race last year, is 10th in the table of weights with 162 pounds.

Entries for the Grand National, to be run over the famous Aintrees course at Liverpool on Friday, March 25, four miles and 856 yards, number about 70; and there are about 60 entries for the Lincolnshire, a straight mile, run at Lincoln on the preceding Wednesday.

The Grand National is probably the greatest purely sporting event left in racing. Unlike the other outstanding races of the year, betting on the National is not large, for the very good reason that a four-mile course with numerous and dangerous jumps plays havoc with any field that starts. A good horse can fall as badly as a poor horse, while a poor horse in falling can bring down the horses behind him, be they the best of jumpers.

Luck Counts.

Accordingly, while many horses are in the entry list with apparently not the remotest chance of winning, it does ot follow that they cannot win. Jack Horner was little fancied at this time last year, but he won. Double Chance in 1925 and Master Robert in 1924 were both practically "outsiders", but they both won. It is the element of luck and its truly sporting nature which make the race what it is. It cannot be a championship because it is a handicap, unlike the three-year-old Classics or the Ascot Gold Cup.

CHECKER MATCH.

British Team Meets America's Best in New York Next Monday.

One of the most important checker matches in the history of the game begins in New York on Monday, February 28, between teams representing Great Britain and America.

The British team comprises six Scotsmen and six Englishmen. The match will last twelve days, and the world's greatest experts will be engaged.

A similar match was played in 1905, when Great Britain won by 73 games to 34, with 284 draws.

On that occasion the five Scotsmen beat the Americans by 46 games to 2; the five Englishmen lost by 32 games to 27.

Since then, however, Great Britain has gone back considerably, while America has made great strides, so that a much closer result is looked for from the forthcoming match.

Upset stomach, sluggish liver, and acid condition cause bad breath. Seigel's Syrup gets at the cause. Try it and have a wholesome breath. Any drug store.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS

Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your druggist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.

Mr. Arthur Pinch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried.

CANADIAN WRITES HIS IMPRESSION OF FLORIDA

The other day a letter came from a Canadian holidaying in Florida. He bubbled over with enthusiasm for this winter resort. "The grape fruit and oranges with their bright splashes of color are simply marvellous!" (It was his first visit to Florida). "The motoring is wonderful. The golf superb!" In fact, when telling about the tropical scenery, the climate, the recreations and hotels, a whole host of superlatives seemed necessary for an adequate description.

You had better pack your bags for Florida and the Gulf Coast now, when the season is at its height. Any agent of the Canadian National Railways will gladly supply you with all the necessary information regarding rates, routes and resorts.

CANADA ON MAP AT WASHINGTON

Formalities of Recognition Observed and Existence Begun.

MOUNTIE, TOO.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—(Canadian Press.)— In a little white stone building just off Ambassador's Row, Canada's Legation has just begun its active existence. Formalities of recognition have been observed. "Moving in" is nearly completed. To-day Corporal Lamont, formerly of the Ottawa Headquarters of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, sits at his desk at the entrance to 1757 "N" Street and directs visitors to various branches of legation. Also, a taxi driver asked no further direction than "Canadian Legation" today, which is a sign that it is on the Washington map.

BANDITS MURDER SEVEN PEOPLE

LEAVE BODIES.

MOSCOW, Feb. 21 (Canadian Press)—Although the state punishes highway robbery with death, banditry is so prevalent throughout Russia that it has become a national menace, and new outrages are reported daily. With the sole motive of stealing an amount equal to $60, bandits in the town of Riazan, near Moscow, murdered Theodore Kunion, his wife and five children in Taganrog. A group of professional criminals, operating for more than a year, have robbed and murdered nearly 150 peasants. It was their habit to bind the arms and legs of their victims and drag them along the road by a rope. The bodies were allowed to remain in the fields as prey for vultures.

JACK MINER IS GUEST TO-DAY OF ROTARIANS

Impresses Club Members With Exposition of His Philosophy of Life.

PLEA FOR BOYS.

Mr. Miner Points Out That They Need the Help of Parents To-day.

Jack Miner explained some of his philosophy of life for the benefit of members of the Peterboro Rotary Club, at the weekly luncheon to-day, and the result was one of the most striking addresses the local Rotarians have heard.

There is only one Jack Miner, who not only, as he himself expresses it, "knows more facts about the wild goose than all the rest of the men standing on this world, combined, but who has a homely, sunshiny, helpful idea of life that makes him a source of inspiration and help to those who hear him.

In the space available for this report it would be impossible to do justice to Mr. Miner's address—indeed a verbatim report would miss much of the effect produced by the speaker. It was no polished, carefully planned lecture, based on one topic, and built up in logical sequence, but rather a talk on many things coming straight from the heart of a man with a great love for his fellow man as well as for the animal life in which he has always been interested. His references to his success with the wild geese were merely incidental used principally to illustrate how it was possible for a boy who had been given no natural advantages to rise out of his environment, and to accomplish big things. He emphasized the conditions under which his early days were spent, to show how success could be attained in spite of such a start.

But the most notable feature of all in his address was his earnest plea on behalf of the children, the fervent desire that his hearers should realize that what the boys of to-day needed were real parents. There were ten times the temptations today that there were a generation ago, and children needed the help of their parents as never before. Mr Miner emphasized that point with a depth of feeling that made an evident impression upon his hearers.

The speaker was introduced by Rotarian Fred L. Rose, and at the conclusion of his address was tendered a hearty vote of thanks.

WEDDING BELLS.

O'RAY—HARTMAN

The wedding was solemnized at six o'clock this morning, at St. Peter's Cathedral, of Daniel J. O'Ray, M.D., of this city, and Sarah Heaney Hartman, daughter of Mrs. John Heaney of Kingston and the late John Heaney. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Gerard Maher. The wedding music was played by Miss Hurley, who also sang during the progress of the Nuptial Mass.

The bride, who wore a gown of brown cut velvet, with hat, shoes and stocking to match, and sealskin coat, was attended by Miss Irene Hogan. Dr. Fitzpatrick of Brockville acted as best man.

After the ceremony, the immediate friends and relatives of the bridal party were entertained at a dainty wedding breakfast at the home of Mrs. F. A. Hodgson.

Later, Dr. and Mrs. O'Ray left on a short trip, to reside on their return at 315 Rubidge Street.

Y.W.C.A. CLASSES HOLD PARTIES

SNOWSHOE HIKE.

The Young Women's Christian Association was a very busy place on Saturday, when the largely-attended Junior and Senior Valentine parties were held, the former taking place in the morning, the latter in the evening.

At the Junior party, the big gymnasium was packed with the small tots who came in costumes of colorful types, representative of the Valentine season. The programme consisted of a Grand March, games and dances by the various classes, and the service of refreshments. The children had a very jolly time. Prizes for the costumes, which were presented by Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, were won as follows: Ruth McNeely, as a Cupid; Meryl Smith and Bobby Graham, as Bride and Bridegroom, with David Graham as a trainbearer; Barbara Miller, as a Cupid; Thelma McNeely, as Miss Valentine; Florence Trebilcock, as Rose, and Joan Ottewell as Knave of Hearts. Honorable mention was accorded Alicia and Margaret Langley, as an Old-Fashioned Lady and Daughter, and Dorothy Peace, as a Danger Signal.

At the party, which was also attended by members of the Intermediate Classes, nine girls of the Junior Life-Saving Swimming Class became the proud possessors of the Elementary and Proficiency certificates that have just arrived from England. The certificates were presented by Mrs. H. R. H. Kenner, and Miss Caroline Littlefield explained the necessary knowledge of life-saving work, both on land and in water, possessed by all the girls who had completed their final examinations.

Elementary certificates were presented to Myrtle Foster and Mary Vance, and Proficiency certificates were presented to Jean Maconomy, Verna Huffman, Emily Hemphill, Beatrice Florence, Constance Gibbons and Mary Kingsbury. Mary Kingsbury is the youngest member in the city holding such a certificate.

The Bronze Medallion was presented to Irene Foster, and Sadie Levine and Margaret Dunlop were congratulated upon their successful attempts during the examinations for this award, both being unable to qualify, as they were too young.

In the evening, the Senior Valentine party took the form of a snowshoe tramp, which proved quite a success. The girls started from Jackson's Park, tramping through it, and arriving later at the 'Y,' to enjoy hot coffee and sandwiches and cake before the big fire in the reception hall, followed by a sing-song.

No fur is more popular than badger for sport coats and for youthful suits of rough materials.

Editor's Note.—Cal. S. Hirsch, United Press Correspondent, assigned to the Chinese war front, was captured by Sun Chuang-Fang's forces, but escaped and returned to Shanghai today with the first eyewitness' account of the routing of the Northern troops south of Shanghai. In the article which follows, he also related his own thrilling experience.

(By Cal. Hirsch, United Press Staff Corespondent.)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 22.—Kaishing, sixty miles southeast of Shanghai, is in ruins and the forces of the Northern leader, Marshal Sun Chuang-Fang were streaming to Shanghai, looting all villages on the way.

Marshal Sun was making a desperate effort to concentrate his defeated troops at Sun Kiang, about twenty-five miles southeast of Shanghai, for a last stand against the victorious Cantonese on their way to seize the prize city of the Orient.

At Kashing, banks have been looted, all foreigners have been evacuated, and the city is deserted.

Marshal Sun has established headquarters at Sun Kiang and has assembled about 40,000 troops there, awaiting the Cantonese who are nowhere in sight. I returned here today on a river boat from Sun Kiang. A small group including myself left here on a boat last Saturday morning for the war front. We were first stopped about twenty-five miles from Shanghai, but a permit from Sun's representative at Shanghai got us as far as Kaishing, where we were halted by the retreating troops.

After some explanations and loss of time we were again permitted to continue on our journey and were proceeding to Hang Chow when rifle shots across the bow of the boat forced us to halt.

For fifteen hours we were without food.

MUSIC CLUB HOLDS MEETING

STUDY TOPIC.

The regular monthly meeting of the "B" Sharp Music Club was held on Friday evening at the home of Harry Marsh, Homewood avenue.

The responses to the roll call took the form of interesting extracts from the life of Fraz Joseph Hayden, the father of the modern symphony, which was the study topic for the evening, given by Marguerite Kidd.

The programme was followed by musical games, after which dainty refreshments were served. A vote of thanks was tendered to the gracious hostesses, Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Marsh and Miss Hall, for a very pleasant evening spent in their home.

The following musical programme was given:

Piano solo—The Blacksmith Shop (Edmund Parlow), Harry Marsh.

FOUR GROUPS ASK CARILLION RIGHTS

Determined Fight on Power Question Likely at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Feb. 22. — The fight over the Ottawa river power at Carillon, arising out of private legislation, promises to furnish a spectacular feature of the session.

Two interests, the Sifton Georgian Bay Canal Company and the National Hydro Company, were originally after the rights in question, the one relying on its Federal charter, now sought to be extended, and the other upon certain leases from the Dominion, and contracts with the Quebec and Ontario Governments. Now it is intimated, the formidable International Paper Company, which has large developments on the Gatineau River, is also seeking the Carillon rapids; while a fourth Montreal group of affluence and influence has a similar ambition. It is claimed that parliamentary legislation on the subject, while putting the interests in a position to secure concessions on the basis of chartered rights, will not by itself transfer the valuable utilities in question. There is every indication of a determined fight.

Influenza Kills 990 In England In a Week

LONDON, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press). — Influenza deaths in England, which showed a decline the week before last, increased last week by 231. In London and 105 large towns, 990 deaths were registered for the week as compared with 759 for the week ending February 12.

NORTH TO AID IN DEFENCE OF SHANGHAI

If Nationalist Forces Launch Direct Attack o City.

CLEAR ISSUE.

Declare Compromise With South Impossible Until Bolshevists Have Been Eliminated.

PEKING, February 22. Canadian Press. — If the Nationalist Government forces launch a direct attack on Shanghai, the alliance of Northern war lords will aid Marshal Sun Chuan Fang in defending the city.

This statement was made yesterday to Yang Yuring, chief of staff of Marshal Chang Tso Lin, head of the alliance and power behind the Peking government.

Yang made the announcement to foreign newspaper correspondents after a visit of General Chang Tsung Chang, Governor of Shantung, to Peking, to confer with Chang Tso Lin. After the visit the Shantung war lord hastily departed supposedly to Nantung to direct the movement of the northern alliance troops in Kiangsu province to oppose the Nationalists who are threatening to advance against Shanghai.

General Yu Ting, credited with being Marshal Chang Tso Lin's right hand man declared emphatically that compromise with the south was impossible until Russian Bolshevists had been eliminated. He believed it inevitable that the Manchurians and the Cantonese shortly would clash in Kiangsu, Honan and Anhwei province.

"We are not fighting Chang Kai Shek (commander in chief of the Cantonese or Nationalist forces) but are are fighting the Russians," assert ed Yang.

While the Manchurians, he said, did not believe in unifying the whole country by force they did believe in holding everything north of the Yang tse River by force. (The Peking government has claimed jurisdiction over all China.)

Yang charged that both Marshal Wu Pei Fu (once war lord over Central China) and Marshal Sun Shuan Fang (defending Kiangsu, the last of his five eastern provinces from the Cantonese) were hindering planned advances of the Manchurians against the Nationalists.

Yang asserted positively that while the Nationalists were attacking Shanghai, the northerners would attempt to retake Hankow from the Cantonese (Nationalists) who had held it since their defeat of Wu Pei Fu last August.

After the situation in Honan is settled, where Wu is refusing its passage, Yang said the whole Manchurian army of the west would cross the Yellow River within a week. They then would advance westward into Shensi province and eliminate the Kuominchun, the wandering army of the Peking government deposed by Chang Peo Lin last April.

In conclusion Yang said that after long waiting things had come to a clear issue between North and South.

The interview was believed significant as indicating the Manchurian Conservatives had been won over to the plan for war against the Nationalists.

CONSERVATIVE PARTY DIVIDED ON CONVENTION

Conference To Fix Date For National Convention Opens To-day.

AT OTTAWA.

Four Cities Lay Claim As Point For Big Gathering.

OTTAWA, Feb. 22. — Comprised of many Conservative members or defeated candidates of that party, but with some other as well, the National Conservative Committee arrived in Ottawa for the meeting to-day. It will deliberate on the question of the time and place of the proposed national convention. There is an apparent divergence of view, particularly on the question of the expediency of holding a convention this year. A secondary point to be settled is as to whether, if one is held, it should be in Ottawa, Winnipeg, Montreal or Toronto.

While Quebec members would like to have it at Montreal, they have no particular objection to Ottawa, and regard it as perhaps the natural place. Toronto has claims to it on the ground that it is the great dynamic centre of Conservative thought.

Winnipeg's Claim.

On the other hand, it is urged that if a big gathering of this kind were held in Winnipeg it would serve as a stimulus to the party in the Prairie provinces, where, judging by the results of the last election, a little stimulant would be beneficial.

Hon. Robert Rogers has been here for some days and is actively propagating his view that the convention ought to be held this year and that it should be in Winnipeg.

It is not possible to forecast what may be done on either of the two matters that are to come up, because there is an apparent division of opinion. If it should be decided not to have a convention this year, the place where it would be held will probably be left for further determination.

Ontario Delegates.

TORONTO, Feb. 22. — Ontario members of the Conservative committee which is arranging for a prospective national convention, and which meets in Ottawa to-day. They are Hon. Charles McCrea, M.L.A., Ontario Cabinet Minister; John R. MacNicol, president Dominion and Ontario Conservative associations; J. R. Shaw, Woodstock; R. J. Clarke, Toronto; Mrs. Fallis, Peterboro; Mrs. A. T. Edwards, London; Hon. J. D. Chaplin, St. Catharines, and Hon. Dr. J. W. Edwards, Kingston.

BALDWIN LAUDS U- S. FRIENDSHIP

Tells the English Speaking Union of Cementing of Ties.

LONDON, Feb. 22 (United Press).—Emphasizing the increasing ties between England and the United States, Premier Stanley Baldwin to-day spoke at the official opening of Dartmouth House, the new London home of the English-Speaking Union. A distinguished group of English and American members of the union and their friends attended the ceremonies.

Since the founding of the union in 1918, Baldwin said, friendship between England and the United States had been cemented by:

Solution of the Irish question.

Better teaching of English history in the United States.

LARGE AUDIENCE HEARS ADDRESS BY JACK MINER

ON BIRD LIFE.

Several Sleigh Loads of People Present From Surrounding Country.

Jack Miner, the celebrated naturalist, of Kingsville, Ont., spoke twice at George Street Church yesterday under the auspices of the Peterboro Humane Society, delivering two very interesting and highly instructive lectures.

Yesterday afternoon he entertained hundreds of school children, so great was the crowd that even when the large George Street Church was packed to the door, some two hundred children had to be turned away, through lack of accommodation.

In the evening another large audience, composed mainly of adults, listened with marked interest to the entertaining features of the life of the birds' friend who had carried the gospel of kindness to birds and animals to all parts of the North American continent.

Several sleigh loads of people were present from the surrounding country, so great was the interest in his visit.

C. H. Ackerman, president of the local Humane Society, in a brief speech, introduced Jack Miner to the audience, at the same time telling them that it was the purpose of the Peterborough Branch of the Humane Society to form a junior society in the very near future.

Jack Miner.

With simplicity, sincereness, and simple words this great nature lover has been educating the people of Canada to learn the essentials of Christianity through being next to nature, and thereby being next to God. Born in Ohio of English parents, Mr. Miner migrated to this country with his parents in 1878, settling in Essex County. This man who only learned to read when his hair was turning grey, and then learnt from the youngsters in his Sunday school class, told of his bird sanctuary, three miles from Lake Erie. Here thousands of geese, the wild Canada goose that weigh anywhere up to twelve pounds, stop off for a visit and then decide to stay. He told of the migration of these birds and of their intelligence, and remarked on the saying, "The silly old Goose and the wise old Crows," which he says should be, "The wise old Goose and the silly old Crow." It took him years to get the geese to come to him and he was able to catch the crows in a few hours. However, it is not Jack Miner's object to catch the goose, it is to make friends with them. The birds are not the enemies of man, but will come to him for protection from their natural enemies. "Instead of throwing gunshot to them, follow the teaching of God and throw them feed," were Mr. Miner's words, "and the birds will

Three million dollars to be paid in debt retirement in 1927.

Ontario's credit at its highest point—interest rate 4½ per cent.

Revenue in 1926 increased by $4,200,000 over 1925.

Financial policy of debt retirement, economy and tax reductions.

Total assets exceed liabilities by more than $33,000,000.

Holland Soil So Soft Special Plow Is Used

AMSTERDAM, Feb. 22.—An attempt at cultivation is being made in a newly drained area south of Amsterdam. The ground, however, is so soft and wet that a horse cannot stand on it. Specially designed tractors are, therefore, being used, with extra wide bands, and by this means the ground is plowed to a depth of seven or eight inches without sliping or sinking.

Canadian Firms Sell Supplies For Troops

LONDON, Feb. 22.—Contracts signed at Hong Kong by representatives of the British government with Canadian and Australian firms for supplies for the British troops in China have dispelled the fear that a rise in prices would result from the influx of 10,000 soldiers.

NEW TAXATION ERA FOR ONTARIO FORECAST BY HON. DR. MONTEITH IN HIS FIRST BUDGET ADDRESS

After Long Struggle the Balanced Budget Has Been Attained.

TAX REDUCTIONS.

TORONTO, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press).—Reductions in the Provincial amusement tax, some revisions on the municipal income tax and a forecast of what revenue might be expected from the legislation providing for the sale of liquor under Government control were expected to be the features of the budget introduced in the Ontario Legislature to-day by Hon. J. D. Monteith, Provincial Treasurer.

The pronouncement as to the probable date when the liquor control legislation would be in operation was also looked for in Dr. Monteith's first budget.

Delivering his first Provincial budget beforé a crowded assembly in the Ontario Legislature this afternoon, Hon. J. D. Monteith, Provincial Treasurer, presented "a new taxation era" for the citizens of the Province and declared that after a long struggle the balanced budget had been attained. He promised tax reduction in the motor license fees amounting to $1,800,000, and $600,000 in amusement taxes, while he believed the municipal income tax reduction would favor the man with the least money and encourage personal earning.

The surplus for the year 1927 was estimated at $150,000, while the estimated revenue would include approximately $3,500,000 for the balance of the year from the sale of liquor under the Government control system to be introduced shortly in the House. In 1926 the revenue of the Province was increased by $4,200,000 over that of 1925, while the total assets exceedad the liabilities by more than $33,000,000.

Ontario's credit, said the Minister, had reached its highest point at an interest rate of four and three-quarters per cent., and the $24,000,000 four and a half per cent., 20-year refunding serial issue of last month, was the cheapest since the war ended in 1918. He promised continuation of the strong financial policy of "debt retirement, reasonable economy, audit of all sources of revenue, tax reduction and honest bookkeeping." And he believed that the curtailment of the capital expenditure would save many millions in interest to the people of the Province.

C.P.R. Refuses To Comply With Wage Increase Order

MONTREAL, Feb. 22.— (Canadian Press.) — Canadian Pacific Railway has communicated to Minister of Labor at Ottawa, its nonacceptance of the majority report favoring four cents an hour increase, brought in by two of three members of the Board of Conciliation, which investigated the wage dispute between the railway and five thousand of its employees.

OUTLINE TERMS OF AGREEMENT WITH CANTONESE

Whereby Hankow Concession Will Become an Anglow-Chinese Municipality.

NEW RELATIONSHIP.

Aimed at Basis Leading To Complete Equality and Reciprocity.

LONDON, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press).—Both good and bad news was received from China yesterday, but the British public is more or less re assured by the confidence of the Government that all will eventually be well.

In the House of Commons Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, outlined the details of the agreement between Great Britain and the Chinese Nationalist, or Cantonese, Government, whereby, after certain formalities, the Hankow concession becomes an Anglo-Chinese municipality, in which the Cainese and British will enjoy equal rights. A new era in the relatonship between the two people, it is expected, will thus be inaugurated in the great Yangtse port.

Meanwhile London newspapers are flaring with news of the menace at Shanghai, where a reign of terror exists in the native city with scores of decapitations, punishment meted out to those guilty of fomenting the general strike.

Sir Austen announced that the strike at Shanghai was spreading, but that there was no disorder in the international settlement.

Following upon the successful parleys at Hankow, the British minister, Miles Lampson, will probably negotiate similarly with Wellington Koo, the Foreign Minister at Peking. Sir Austen Chamberlain explained yesterday that the British policy was aimed at the negotiation of treaties with China on a basis leading ultimately to complete equality and reciprocity. Throughout Charge O'Malley's discussions with Chen, the Cantonese foreign minister at Hankow, Sir Austen declared, the British representative was under instructions to maintain Great Britain's right to land troops in China for the protection of British lives and interests, and, further, that Chen's demand for the recognition of the Cantonese authorities as the government of all China was refused, the British insisting upon their right to negotiate with any de facto authorities in the country.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press). — Treaty negotiations with China independent from other nations would be recommended by Congress to President Coolidge under a resolution passed by the House yesterday and sent to the Senate. The vote was 209 to 44.

MEN AND GULLS WAGE CLAM BATTLE

Sea Gulls Bombard Men From Air With Clam Shells.

WILDWOOD CREST, N.J., Feb. 22 (Canadian Press).—A battle between men and sea gulls was waged on the beach here to-day. The week-end storm had covered the beach for a distance of five blocks with clams. When the news of the ocean's offering spread, more than a score of men, some with automobiles and others with wagons, appeared and began to reap the harvest.

Thousands of sea gulls were also drawn to the beach. They swooped down and, grasping a clam in their talons, flew several hundred feet in the air before letting it drop to break it open. Men gathering the clams were literally bombarded with them from the air. James Olson was struck on the head and required medical attention.

PROGRESSIVE INTRODUCES BILL RESPECTINGS RIGHTS OF WIDOWS IN ESTATES LEFT BY HUSBANDS

Provided, Might Apply For Relief If Left Less Than Third.

PREMIER AGAINST.

Was Sent By House To Legal Commission For—Consideration.

TORONTO, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press).—There was a sparse attendance of members at yesterday afternoon's session of the Ontario Legislature, but much minor legislation was advanced in order "to clear the decks' for the introduction of the first Budget of Provincial Treasurer, Hon. J. D. Monteith, this afternoon. With the exception of certain reductions in the tax on theatre tickets, as already forecast, the Budget will contain few features and, being barren of any radical change in the method of obtaining revenue, it will provide very little matter for an extensive debate. R. F. Miller (Haldimand) succeeds Harold Fisher, who represented Ottawa West in the last Legislature, as the critic from the Liberal benches, and he will open the debate on the Budget on Thursday. H. C. Nixon (Brant County) will be the financial critic for the Progressives.

Dower Act

Acting on the suggestion of Premier Howard Ferguson yesterday afternoon, the House sent to the legal committee for consideration a bill sponsored by J. G. Lethbridge (Progressive, Middlesex West) respecting the rights of widows in the estates of their deceased husbands. It provided that the widow of a man who died leaving a will by the terms of which she would receive less than if he had died intestate might apply to the Supreme Court of Ontario for relief. The Premier did not think that the bill was the sort of thing for which the Legislature should assume responsibility without some amendment being made, it practically gave power to a judge to make a new will. There might be many women who did not deserve much consideration from their husbands, but it was also a fact that some women contributed largely to the estates over which their husbands had control. Some men might have good and sufficient domestic reasons for not naming their widows as beneficiaries and to say that a judge should have the power to change such a solemn document was a very serious undertaking. He thought that men who had experience as official guardians and were acquainted with the hardships of the present law should should be consulted by the legal committee of the House and then something might be evolved which would have the general approval of the House.

The close, domestic influence which was found in the home of the people some years ago was fast disappearing, said the Premier, owing to the modern attitude of the boys and girls, and he was of the opinion that the Legislature should lay down the lines upon which any change might be made by the judge.

W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, agreed with the Premier's suggestion for consideration of the bill by the legal committee, and W. L. Raney, Progressive leader, also expressed himself in harmony, but asked if the Premier would consent to a small committee of experts taking evidence on the matter and reporting to the House. The time had come, he said, when the Legislature should make some protection for women against caprice.

Mr. Ferguson said that if the legal committee reported that the matter should be given over to a commission of experts, he would be entirely agreeable.

E. Proulx (Liberal, Prescott) also spoke briefly in support of the proposed legislation.

Amending Hospital Act

On the second reading of the bill amending the Psychiatric Hospitals Act, which provides that only residents of the City of Toronto may apply for treatment at the institution which is located in Toronto, Premier Ferguson stated that the Act had worked very satisfactorily, but that certain anomalies required adjustment.

W. S. Haney (Conservative, Lambton West) regretted that no provision was made for the treatment of people outside Toronto in the institution, and he was anxious to know if outside patients would be received if charges were paid. He was told by Provincial Secretary Lincoln Goldie that the hospital was built by Toronto for its own patients and that it could not admit patients from the outside. Premier Ferguson said that if the institution received patients from all parts of the Province it would be heavily congested and, while he appreciated the viewpoint of the member for Lambton West, de doubted if it would be possible for the hospital to make the MEMORIZE BIBLE.

Payment To Widow Will Be Increased in Case of Illness.

TORONTO, Feb. 22.—The peculiar wording of the will of the late Michael Carton which disposed of some $48,000 brought that document before Mr. Justice Smith in weekly court yesterday for interpretation. Mr. Carton gave his wife an annuity of $1,000, paying quarterly, provided, however, that if she married again such annuity shall be thereafter $300 a year only, but in the event of sickness or for other reasonable cause I empower my executors from time to time to increase such payment to my wife, and if she should marry again and again become a widow she shall be entitled to again receive during her widowhood the said annuity of $1,000."

The executors applied for instruction regarding the exercise of their discretion regarding the making of advances to Mrs. Carton, who has not in the meantime married again. His Lordship ruled that in view of the illness of the widow she should be entitled to further advances from the estate. A number of legacies payable to the children of two nieces and a sister-in-law, $300 each, were authorized to be paid into court until the children reach the age of 15. In the will it was laid down that every legatee under the will must memorize certain passages of scripture before they could inherit. This requirement made it necessary for persons ranging from four to seventy years of age to memorize what totalled a considerable amount of the Bible.

A provision for the distribution of the residue of the estate to the poor of Peterboro county was accompanied with a qualification that no one who had a piano or a gramaphone in their home should share except in the most dire need, and that members of the Free Methodist congregation should be given preference.

"Well," replied His Lordship, "I am doing the best I can for her in giving authority for further payments to her in case of illness even though she may be unmarried."

ADOPT BILL.

DELHI, British India, Feb. 22.—(Canadian Press).—The Legislative Assembly yesterday adopted a bill for the protection of the Indian steel industry by a vote of 62 to 40.

(The measure gives effect to recommendations by the Tariff Board for a period of seven years by imposing import duties instead of granting bounties to Indian companies. It provides for a new statutory inquiry at the end of the seven-year period to revise the import duty wherever necessary).

LAND MARINES AT NICARAGUA

American Bluejackets in Khaki Will Help Guard Railroad.

ATTRACT NATIVES.

CORINTO, Nicaragua, Feb. 22 (Associated Press).—Newly arrived American blue jackets and Marines, numbering 810, were on duty yesterday in Chinandega, Leon and other places along the national railroad.

Their duties, as outlined by Rear-Admiral Julian S. Latimer, in command of the United States special service squadron in Nicaraguan waters, are to keep the railroad open to points where there are American and foreign lives and interests, and to prevent destruction of lines of communication by the Liberal or Conservative forces. The admiral emphasized that the landing was merely in continuation of the policy that has been followed of protecting the lives and investments of Americans and foreigners; it was not to be taken as a step toward armed intervention.

At 5 a.m. Sunday the men began to disembark from the Galveston, Raleigh and Milwaukee. Until almost noon there was constant chugging of launches between warships and docks. The blue jackets wore khaki. Their white outfits had been dyed to the more serviceable color for their duties ashore.

When the landing was completed, the Nicaraguan railroad saw more activity than in many months. The troop trains were followed by trains carrying provisions and supplies. At the various stations, uncomprehending, yet admiring, groups of Mozo soldiers of the Conservative army watched the proceedings. First they remained silent. Then there were generous "vivas" and comic attempts to show the Americans their military dignity, with salutes as officers or the flag passed. Between stations there were crowds of curious natives, mostly women and children.

Three hundred and fifty of the American forces are stationed at Chinandega, scene of heavy fighting recently; 400 are at Leon, while the others are scattered along the route of the railroad to guard tracks, bridges and water tanks. Warehouses and large buildings have been taken over by the Americans for barracks.

The landing force consisted of 520 bluejackets and 140 Marines from the three warships and 150 Marines of the legation guard at Managua.

Bathers Flee Attack By Man-Eating Catfish

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 2. — (A.P.) — Ramirez Beach, where the people of Montevido seek relief from the sweltering heat of the South American summer, became a place of panic Sunday afternoon when bathers were attacked by a school of catfish. Men and women suddenly shouted for help and made for the shore. More than 70 persons were bitten, mostly on the legs.

The moving pictures showed the pond with its thousands of geese, preening themselves on the bank, swimming about the pond, or eating the corn strewn on the bank. It took three years before he got the geese to come to him by patiently putting out food and having everything as they would like it. Now the sky is like one dark cloud with these beautiful birds and the pictures showed them in numerous flocks. Pictures of the lake, with the swans and their young enjoying themselves on the sand bars were most interesting. These swans passing over in their flight see the swans passing on the water and knowing that where geese are, spells safety, they also come to rest. There have been as many as three thousand whistling swans there at one time. Other pictures showed his wonderful flower gardens and the trees that he plants; these trees are obtained from the Forestry Department and Mr. Miner has planted thousands on his property.

Pictures were also shown of Ty Cobb and a party of American League ball players who visited Jack Miner's sanctuary. Ty Cobb is one of Jack's most ardent followers. Henry Ford is also another and never loses an opportunity to spend a few days with Jack and his feathered friends.

Robins feeding from his hand and the hands of children were shown. The robins are fed a custard made from one egg, a cup of milk and a little finely chopped meat. Are animals wild, he asked, and showed a picture of a beautiful deer running up to him through his garden. This deer will even go into the house and has her own way of getting a drink by rattling a tin cup until she is heard and given a drink.

arrangement suggested. The bill was given second reading.

Premier Ferguson told Mr. Sinclair that the Provincial Government was not making any separate arrangements for the celebration of the Diamond Jubilee of Confederation, but intended to co-opetate fully with the Dominion authorities in the matter.

Second Reading

Another important bill which received second reading was an act respecting the public health, which transferred certain powers of the Provincial Health Officer to the Minister, gave municipalities power to control the milk supply and also power over inspectors and other officials.

When F. C. McBrien (Conservative, Toronto-Brocton) moved second reading of a bill to amend the Consolidated Municipal Act in order in part to permit Toronto to charge its hours of polling to 9 a.m. till 6 p.m., Premier Ferguson said he was becoming weary of the requests from Toronto for changes in its hours of polling. He was of the opinion that Toronto itself had made the hours as they now stood. The bill was sent to the municipal committee for consideration.

The following bills went through the committee stage: Acts respecting the Village of Windermere, the Township of Sandwich West, the City of Hamilton, the Town of Kapuskasing, the Town of Timmins, the City of Toronto, and the House of Refuge of the District of Thunder Bay. These measures were all discussed during the second reading in the House.

OLD HOUSES TO GO.

LONDON, Feb. 22. — Ancient houses of the days of Queen Elizabeth which stand near the Barbican, Plymouth, whence the Pilgrims sailed to America, are to be demolished, according to reports. The section is regarded as overcrowded and lacking in sanitary requirements. Some of the houses have entrances of Dartmoor granite or carved oak, with stairs built in semi-circle around shipmasts of Tudor days.

Curb Your Pose and Watch Style Of Clothes Berlin Women Warned, While At Photographer's

BERLIN, Feb. 22 (A.P.).—Warnings not to pose archly with a romantic upward look and to beware lest the style of the clothes one wears gives away the age are among twelve rules laid down by the Berlin women's magazine, Aus dem Reiche der Frau for women about to have their photographs taken. Here are the rules:

(1). Never have your full figure taken, lest the fashion of your dress give away your age at some future date.

(2). For the same reason, never have yor hair dressed in any characteristic or conspicuous style, and, if wearing a hat, select one that might be appropriate for most any fashion.

(3). Don't have your hair done otherwise than usual.

(4). Before going to the photographer rehearse at your leisure before a mirror the most becoming pose and with the additional use of a hand-mirror.

(5). When selecting your gown remember that most colors produce a different effect in a photograph than in nature.

(6). Blondes may wear white, sky-blue, rose or dark blue, while brunettes should choose darker gowns. It must also be borne in mind that scarlet, amber and orange appear as dark gray, dark brown and even black on a photograph.

(9). At the slightest indisposition, with the resulting look of fatigue about the eyes, don't hesitate to postpone your visit to the photographer.

(10). Never fail to ask the photographer's advice about the color of your gown.

(11). To appear as natural as possible, refrain from all affected posing.

(12). Also avoid assuming the much-mooted romantic upward look and the frequently seen ingenue expression, both of which are apt to appear ridiculous in a picture.

Drives Man To Hospital Learns He's His Father

CARDIN, Okla., Feb. 22.—A grim turn of fate sent Roy Nichols, ambulance driver, on a call to the Rainbow mine, east of Cardin. Nichols, with the help of others, placed an accident victim in the ambulance and hurried to a hospital. There he assisted surgeons and nurses in an unavailing fight to save the miner's life. While the driver was at the hospital, his grandmother appeared. She told him that the miner was his father. Because of the separation of his parents in his infancy, Nichols had grown up without knowing his father.

BIBLE SOCIETY HOLDS MEETING

Rev. S. G. Pennock is the Speaker for the Special Occasion.

NORWOOD, Feb. 22.—The annual meeting of the Norwood branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society was held on Tuesday evening in the Sunday school room of the United church. Mr. J. A. Stevens, president of the branch, acted as chairman. The report of the secretary-treasurer, Rev. R. F. Stillman, was presented, showing receipts of $160.70, including a balance of $18.24 from last year. The sum of $155.60 was sent to the head office at Toronto. Expenses were $1.25, leaving a cash balance of $3.85.

The annual house canvas for contributions for the work of the society was made by forty-two appointed canvassers and they received $137.00.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were:

President, Mr. J. A. Stevens; Vice-President, Mrs. Alex. Clarke; Sec.-Treas., Rev. R. F. Stillman; Executive, the resident clergy and Messrs. Walter Bitten, Thos. Clarke, Fred Gardner Olive Buck and Jno. E. Roxburgh.

After the election of officers Rev. S. G. Pennock, one of the field secretaries, gave an interesting illustrated address on the work in Africa. Rev. Pennock had spent thirty-five years of his ministry in Africa.

Rev. Stillman made an appeal for life members and at the close of the meeting Mrs. Marjory Fox made herself one. Mrs. Faux, therefore, has the honor of being the first life member from Norwood.

Missionary Service.

The annual Thank offering service of the United church missionary societies was held on Sunday morning. Mrs. (Rev.) Tucker, a missionary from Africa, was the special speaker and gave a very interesting address. There was a very good attendance in spite of the severe storm that was raging. A men's choir led the singing. The offering was taken up by members of the Young Woman's Auxiliary.

The anniversary services of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church was held on Sunday. Rev. W. F. McConnell, of Riverside Presbyterian church, Toronto, was the special preacher.

BIRD IDENTIFIES OWNER.

SCRANTON, Pa., Feb. 22.—Mrs. Mayme Smith had a parrot of which she was very fond. The bird was stolen and she made the rounds of the pet stores in search of it. As she entered one establishment a parrot cried, "Hello, Mama!" Police traced the thief and made an arrest.

LEFT LETTERS.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 22 (Canadian Press). — Captain Randolph Innes-Taylor, of Toronto, sportsman and editor, died at a hospital here yesterday afternoon from a bullet wound through the head.

Captain Taylor was found in a dying condition by the manager of his hotel after repeated rings on the telephone had failed to bring a response from the room. A small automatic pistol of Spanish make, lay beside the body.

Captain Taylor was well-known in racing circles and was said to have sustained considerable losses at the track here recently. Within the past few days, however, he was said to have confined his wagers to those of minor character. Little money was found in his room.

He apparently had just finished writing several letters to friends. The letters lay scattered about a table.

Captain Taylor last was seen Sunday night when he left an order with a telephone operator to be called at 11.45 a.m. Repeated rings had brought no response at 1.30 o'clock and the manager visited the room.

Among the letters was one addressed to Miss Isabel Leonard of New York, requesting her to "wire the folks back home what happened, and say that you are sending letters I have left for them."

Captain Taylor for many years had conducted a magazine devoted to amateur sports. He was a tennis player of note and had promoted and managed several of the annual Canadian tournaments.

DOURO NEWS

DOURO, Feb. 22.— The sale of farm stock and implements on the farm of Thomas Heffernan brought high prices. The horses sold from $69 to $115; cows from $55 to $80; sheep $18 apiece; hens, $1.29 apiece; young pigs $6.50; a sow $35. The machinery also sold well.

Local people who attended the funeral of the late Mrs. Mary McNulty, of Norwood, were: Mr. and Mrs. Michael J. Leahy, Miss Catherine Leahy, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Leahy, Mrs. Mary Fitzgerald and son Thomas, Mrs. Barth Condon, sons John, Alphonsus and Charles, and daughters, Mrs. J. Lunch was served after the game.

Mrs. Richard McKelvie is visiting friends in Kingston.

Mr. Stanley Taylor, Sebastopol street, entertained a number of his young friends at his home on Friday evening.

St. Andrew's Presbyterian Sunday school held their annual sleigh drive on Friday afternoon. After the kiddies had their drive, they repaired to the Sunday school rooms, where the ladies of the church had a sumptuous lunch ready for them.

The Campbellford lodge, No. 248, I.O.O.F., held a very successful 'at home' in the High school auditorium on Friday evening, February 18th. Progressive euchre was played, after which dancing was the special attraction. The High school orchestra with G. Bailey, T. Blute, S. Archer, K. Godden, W. Hay and T. Ibey rendered excellent music for the dancing. An excellent lunch was served to everyone's satisfaction.

Rosewater Bath Of Auto Makes Elephants Worry

MYSORE, India, Feb. 22.—The elephants around here are worrying. It's the modern trend of things they don't like. During a recent festival, the Maharajah of Mysore, abandoning the ancient religious worship of elephants, set up an automobile on the altar, had it decorated with flowers, sprinkled with rosewater and reverently adored.

UNIQUE PROGRAMME FOR CHURCH NIGHT

MILLBROOK, Feb. 22—A capacity audience filled the basement of the United Church for the "Church Night" on Wednesday evening, giving evidence that the root idea of "Christian fellowship in a family church," stressed by the pastor since the weekly gatherings began, is gaining a strong foot-hold.

The western group, taking in King Street West from Rev. Joseph Wilks, Main and Anne Streets, was responsible for the programme. Receptions committees at either door warmly welcomed the incoming guests; primarily the social gathering once each week was arranged for members and adherents of the United Church, but those of other denominations are also welcomed should they desire to come, and several do attend, coming with friends and neighbors when Wednesday comes around.

Music, while the audience was gathering was provided by Misses Elsie Spence and E. Hetherington, and for about an hour social converse and greetings gave happy employment to everyone.

Ex-Warden A. J. Henderson capably filled the position of chairman, and the following items made up the opening programme:

Recitation, "Grandpa's Glasses," by Marjorie McDowell.

Selection, "Away, Away," by the Male Quartette, Messrs. W. H. Coombe, H. J. Anderson, M. McDowell, and V. C. Lambert; encore, "Three Black Crows." Miss M. Duncan, accompanist.

Recitation, "Kitty's Picture," by Lenore Lambert.

Trio, Mrs. J. Guthrie (auto harp), Messrs. J. Guthrie (mouth organ), and H. Hunter (banjo).

Letters had been given each guest when arriving, and six groups were now formed, each having to sing one verse and chorus of a familiar melody; Rev. Mr. Howard acted as judge, the group giving the best performance (without piano) having "the privilege of washing the coffee cups when the entertainment is over."

The "Demonstration of School Days by Miss Sara Bounce (Mrs. V. C. Lambert) and her Scholars," was an original number, providing plenty of fun throughout, and giving opportunity for some clever local hits. The pupils who responded to the roll-call were:

Johnny Cake, Mr. J. Harold Anderson; Ben Zine, Mr. J. Guthrie; James Bay, Mr. C. Sanderson; Tom Atto, Mr. J. Pitt; Mike Robe, Mr. Harold Hunter; Peter Borough, Mr. J. Stevenson; May Onaise, Miss Alvira Davis; Minne Appolis, Miss Elmo Davis; Ella Cution, Miss Wilma Fallis; Mary Christmas, Miss Elsie Spence; Ida Ho, Mrs. M. McDowell; Virginia Creeper, Miss May Duncan; Annie Mation, Miss S. Pethick; Mag Nanimous, Mrs. Guthrie.

The gingham aprons and big bows tied in the hair ribbons of the girls, and the sweaters, and surreptious chewing of gum by the "boys," carried the memory back several years to the "little red school house" in rural sections which many of the older folk had attended.

The "Friday afternoon concert," with its recitations, songs, and other "stunts" of the pupils, and especially the reading aloud of the essays written at the morning session, kept the audience laughing. At the noon hour, when the scholars ate their dinner out of tin pails, the committee in charge served the whole gathering with sandwiches, tarts and coffee.

A selection by the male quartette, "I'm in Love With My Rosalie," was followed with the usual community singing of hymns thrown on the screen, and the brief talk by the pastor, whose text was: "Be content with your wages." Dismissal was with the Benediction.

Next Wednesday evening the Fourth Line group, taking in the Zion neighborhood, and the line running east from there, will be in charge.

REBUKE RUSSIA FOR AGITATION IN THE ORIENT

Great Britain Reported About To Send Note To Reds.

CHAMBERLAIN OPPOSES

LONDON, Feb 22. — Those in favor of the proposed break with the Union of Soviet Republics, to-day claim that the majority of cabinet members have decided that in view of the recent activities of Russian emissaries in this country and in the Far East, an official protest must be sent to Moscow and that this will be despatched within a few days.

No confirmation on the subject is obtainable at present, but it is known that there has been a lively battle over the issue in the cabinet with the foreign secretary, Sir Austen Chamberlain supported by Premier Baldwin, refusing to assent to any severance in Great Britain's relation with Russia and even threatening to resign should his colleagues decide against him.

In view of the strenuous opposition on the part of the foreign secretary, it is probable that the note of protest will result in a compromise.

Only an Impetus.

Sir Austen's supporters declare that nothing would be gained by breaking off relations with the Soviets, as such an action would result in a fresh flood of anti-British propaganda in China, Egypt and India, which would be most undesirable at the present time, considering the critical state of affairs in the Far East. Moreover, they point out, it is sufficiently difficult to combat the existing amount of Soviet propaganda without taking any steps that would only serve as an impetus to these hostile activities. There is, however, no doubt even in the mind of the foreign secretary that the spirit of the Anglo-Russian relations has been consistently violated and that a large proportion of the anti-British propaganda and trouble in China is directly due to Soviet agents.

FEW WOMEN SEEK MUNICIPAL OFFICE

Results of Last Election Show That Women Candidates Were Scarce.

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 22 (By C.P.)—An editorial in the Free Press says: "The municipal elections just completed in Western Ontario show no great change with respect to the number of women candidates for office, or the proportion thereof elected. It cannot be said that they stand aside in deference to the number of ambitious men candidates, for in the late election, as in those of every year, there have been insufficient nominations in numerous municipalities, necessitating a second election. But there seems to be a disinclination on the part of the electors, including women voters themselves to depart from customs. There have been noteworthy exceptions, of course, as in the case of Mrs. E. P. Twidale, who served on the City Council of Niagara Falls, and there will be others from time to time, no doubt.

"On the other hand, woman's home interests connect up normally with those of education, and it is a little surprising that woman school trustees are so few. There is evidently little or no opposition, upon principle, to their election, and their services are apparently satisfactory, for those who continue in office achieve the chairmanship. Windsor board has chosen Mrs. L. A. Killen as chairman for 1927, and there is another woman trustee on the same body. A woman has been elected by acclamation to the board at Exeter. Mrs. J. I. A. Hunt is entering upon her third term in London. St. Thomas in recent years has had a woman trustee, and at present there are two. At Guelph, Mrs. C. R. Crowe, head of last year's board, and the first woman to serve thereon, has been defeated, along with another woman candidate, but that is not necessarily significant, in view of the large number of 1926 aldermen and trustees who shared that fate in the recent elections.

"It is probable that a great majority of women, while interested in classroom work, with which they come in direct touch through the children, and where, incidentally, a majority of the staff are female teachers, concern themselves much less with general administration. One reads that at a London Township school section meeting, to which ladies had been especially invited, only one was present. In the Legislature of Ontario, which frames the school laws, there is not one woman member, and there were but two women candidates at the late election."

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

AN OLD HEART'S VALENTINE

Young hearts are sending many a rime
To other hearts to-day,
And I've been thinking all the time
What old hearts have to say?
Young hearts are finding love is bliss
And life is full of song,
And what shall old hearts say to this,
Who knew it all along?

Well, here's a line to you, my dear,
From this old heart of mine;
The festal day of love is here,
And here's your valentine.
Young hearts are sending many a vow,
The way that young hearts do,
So let an old heart send one now,
And send it all to you.

So here's a heart, a simple heart,
A heart of other days,
Although we meet, although we part,
That loves the same old ways.
Yes, here's a heart a little old,
For much the heart endures,
A little fluttery, I am told,
But all that heart is yours!

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R, Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY'S SNOW TUNNEL

(Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicte.)

(By Howard R. Garis.)

"You had better not go out to-day," said Nurse Jane Fuzzy one morning as Uncle Wiggily hopped down the stairs of his hollow stump bungalow to get his breakfast of carrot pancakes with turnip sugar scattered over them.

"Why not?" asked Mr. Longears. "I must have an adventure, you know, and where shall I find it if I don't go out?"

"Perhaps Nurse Jane and I could make an adventure for you," said Uncle Wiggily's wife. "Or one of our forty-leven little bunnies might; to say nothing of Baby Bunty who makes it forty twelve." Bunty was paying a visit to the rabbit house, getting better of her toothache.

"Thank you," answered Uncle Wiggily politely, "but I want to hunt my own adventures. I don't understand, though, why I shouldn't go out. Why not?"

"Because it is snowing so hard," squeaked the muskrat lady housekeeper. And when the rabbit gentleman looked out of a window he saw, indeed, that the snow was coming down thick and fast.

There sat the Fuzzy Fox.

But this did not frighten him. Uncle Wiggily loved snow. After breakfast he put on his tall silk boots—I mean his tall silk hat—and his long rubber boots, and, taking his red, white and blue striped rheumatism crutch, which Nurse Jane had gnawed for him out of a cornstalk, he sallied forth, as they say in story books about the knights of old. Uncle Wiggily sallied forth, which means he hopped out. And, all at once, he found that in very sooth, as a knight would say, in very sooth the snow was quite deep.

"But I can hop through the drifts on my red, white and blue rheumatism crutch," said the bunny.

So he went along this way, sticking his crutch down in a drift and then, catching hold of the top of it—the top of his crutch I mean—and leaping over it—leaping over the drift, you understand.

Thus Uncle Wiggily traveled on and on, through the snow storm, but though he was out, no adventures seemed to be out and not one could he find, which was very disappointing.

"Nurse Jane was right. I should have stayed home and let the little bunny boys and girls make adventures for me," thought Mr. Longears, for Jingle, Jangle, Tooter, Scooter and all the others had stayed home from school on account of the storm. "I'll go back to my bungalow!" said Mr. Longears.

But this was easier said that done. For when he drew near to the front door there, sitting in a drift of snow, was the Bushy Bear.

"Ha! The Bad chap is waiting for me to come along so he can grab me!" thought Uncle Wiggily who had seen the Bear first, without the Bear seeing the rabbit. "I'll go around to the back door."

But when Uncle Wiggily had hopped softly around to the back door there, in a drift of snow, sat the Fuzzy Fox, licking his chops hungrily.

"Ho! Another bad chap! There are many out to-day!" thought the bunny gentleman. "Well, I can't go in the back door, either. I'll try a side window." So he hopped to one side of his bungalow, intending to tap on the glass with his crutch so his wife or Nurse Jane would open the sash so he could jump in.

But at the west window, in a snow drift, sat the Woozie Wolf. Uncle Wiggily saw this bad chap first, in time to hide behind a bank of snow without being seen by the Wolf.

"I shall have to try the other window," thought Mr. Longears. But when he hopped softly to the east window, there crouched the Bob Cat. "Dear me! I can't get in either by doors or windows!" thought Uncle Wiggily. "What shall I do? Then he happened to notice how deep the snow was and he remembered a cellar window near the back door.

"I'll make a tunnel through the snow, crawl through it to the cellar window and get in that way!" said the bunny. "I'll fool the bad chaps yet!"

No sooner said than done. Quietly Uncle Wiggily began digging under the drifts of snow, making a tunnel such as the trains go through, only the rabbit's tunnel was white instead of black. Soon he came to the cellar window which, luckily, was open, so he could hop in and go up stairs where his wife and all the thers were much surprised to see him.

"I didn't know how you were ever going to get past the bad chaps!" said Mrs. Longears.

"Oh, I fooled them with my snow tunnel!" laughed her husband. And when it came cold, dark night, and the Fox, Bob Cat, Wolf and Bear hadn't seen Uncle Wiggily come to the bungalow to be caught, they slunk off to their dens, very much disappointed, which rserved them right.

Gained Pounds of Weight in Only 3 Weeks with New Yeast and Iron—or pay nothing

Thousands are amazed at IRONIZED YEAST. They can't understand the magic by which IRONIZED YEAST transforms thin, run down, pasty-faced men into well-filled-out, clear-skinned, vigorous people. Those who have been benefited could tell you (for their letters tell us) how a one course treatment of IRONIZED YEAST gave 5 to 15 pounds of firm flesh, cleared the skin, improved digestion and bowel action. It has put them on their feet again—given them a new interest and pleasure in life.

Vegetable iron and yeast have always been known as ideal blood and body builders. But it remained for us to combine them in a highly concentrated form. By our new, special formula IRONIZED YEAST is 8 times more effective than ordinary baker's yeast and iron alone. IRONIZED YEAST gives you all the weight-building benefits contained in cod liver oil.

IRONIZED YEAST speeds up assimilation so that you get the full benefit of the food you eat. It clears the blood of impurities that ruin complexion, giving you a nice, clear, healthy skin. It will pick you right up and fill you with the pep and "life" you have always longed for.

If you are below normal weight—take warning! Underweight people have low resistance to disease. Put on good firm flesh. Take IRONIZED YEAST, 60 tablets to a package. See your body build up. Notice how your skin clears, your digestion improves and you feel new strength and pep. Absolutely safe, containing no harmful drugs.

Try It on 'Money-Back' Offer.

Go today to any drug store and get a full size treatment of IRONIZED YEAST. If after this generous trial you are not delighted with effects, ask for your money back. It will be refunded immediately. In 3 styles—sanitape package, $1.00; bottle, $1.25. For economy's sake get the $1.25 size. If inconvenient to buy from druggist, send $1.25 direct to THE IRONIZED YEAST CO., Fort Erie, Ont., Desk 149C.

W. W. I. MEETING.

Regular Monthly Meeting For Seymour West District Held Thursday.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 22. — The Seymour West Women's Institute held their monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon, Feb. 17th, at the home of Mrs. Robert McCulloch. The meeting opened with the singing of the Institute ode, after which the usual business was dispensed.

A committee was appointed to arrange for a banquet to be held about St. Patrick's day at the home of Mrs. Macoun. This will be for members of the Institute and their families.

Mrs. Reg. McCulloch gave an excellent paper on "What we owe to Ourselves," afte. which Mrs. Charles Macoun gave a synopsis of the convention of the township schoolboards and rural schools, etc., which was very interesting, and much enjoyed by all.

Mrs. Thomas Dun.am, on behalf of the ladies of the Institute, spoke with feeling of regret of the departure from their midst of one of their members, Mrs. Ray Archer, and presented Mrs. Archer, with a pair of silver candlesticks and candles as appreciation of her work among them. Mrs. Ray McCulloch then held a guessing contest which was keenly contested, the prize going to Mrs. Robert McCulloch.

At the close of the meeting a dainty lunch was served by the hostess. There were 26 ladies present.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. George Van Volkenburg on Thursday, March 10th.

WINE 200 YEARS OLD.

BREMEN, Germany, Feb. 22 — Wine 200 years old is being sold here at the equivalent of 35 cents a glass. It comes from a 300-gallon cask found in a cellar built in 1412. The wine was prime about the time of the American Revolution, but now is said to have a slightly woody taste.

THEN SHE OPENED UP.

"John," asked the nagging wife, as the bedtime hour approached, "is everything shut up for the night?"

"That depends on you," growled Henpeck; "everything else is." — Pele Mele, Paris.

FILM SWEEPS ALL EUROPE

Courage of British Adventurers Thrills Audiences in Many Lands.

HERE THIS WEEK.

The "Epic of Everest" film is outstanding both as a photographic achievement and as a record of heroism and endurance with but few parallels in the history of scientific exploration. It has been shown in the principal cities of Great Britain, France, Germany and the Scandinavian countries, and with Captain Noel telling his personal story while the film is shown, it has made a universal appeal. Peterborough will have an opportunity to see the picture on February 25.

The film is "Epic" in the true meaning of the word, for it tells the story of the indomitable courage and heroic endurance of the small party of British adventurers who dared to travel over hostile Tibet, to traverse valleys, snowfields and glaciers never before seen by civilized man and finally to assail the awe-inspiring heights of Everest herself, the highest mountain in the world.

Terrific natural forces—intense cold, rarefied atmosphere and zero gales which swept across the snowfields at a hundred miles an hour—had to be conquered. These were but some of the difficulties encountered in this self-imposed task—hardships which defeat the imagination.

Captain Noel's film leads up to a tragic climax, when in 1924, two members of this gallant party, Mallory and Irvine—carrying oxygen cylinders, without which it was thought impossible to live at such an altitude—succeeded in climbing to within 800 feet of the summit and disappeared from their companions' view, passing upward to their unknown fate. Of their going, Sir Francis Younghusband, in his preface of "The Fight for Everest: 1925." (by Lt.-Colonel E. F. Norton) says:

"Mallory's spirit did indeed force his body to his death. But the manner of his and Irvine's death was such as to kindle the spirit in thousands of others. Their lives were not thrown uselessly away, for it is a fact, just as real as any 'scientific' fact, that the story of their death has roused the spirit of men and women in every country. Few can be Everest climbers, but all can be inspirited by a deed like Mallory's and Irvine's last climb. And many there are who, on hearing of it, have felt themselves helped in battling with their own stern difficulties. Mallory and Irvine will for ever live among the great who have helped to raise this spirit of man."

One of the first tasks undertaken by the intrepid explorers was the establishment of depots, at intervals of one day's journey, up the mountain side. This plan was carried out by a reconnaissance party, from the base camp at 16,000 feet, organized by General C. G. Bruce in 1922.

The site chosen for the first depot was on the East Rongbuk Glacier at 17,000 feet; the second, Frozen Lake Camp was at 19,500 feet; the third was the famous Snowfield Camp situated 21,000 feet above sea level. This is the greatest height at which a camp has ever been built and occupied by men. The Everest climbers lived there for two whole months.

At these depot camps stocks of food and other necessities were laid in and parties of Shirpa porters stationed. These Shirpas are of mixed Nepalese and Tibetan blood and Captain Noel pays many high tributes to their courage and fidelity under the most trying conditions. Their daily task was to carry forward supplies, apparatus and provisions brought up from below by other porters.

Wherever they have been shown, Captain Noel's wonderful moving pictures of Mount Everest, it's towering pinnacles of dazzling white ice, its huge bergs, cliffs and crevazses, have evoked unstinted praise and aroused unprecedented enthusiasm, as the following two of the many remarkable press notices received from London indicate:

"Prince Henry, who was introduced to the audience by Sir Francis Younghusband, highly complimented Captain Noel on his wonderful film. It proved, he said, that man never knew what he could accomplish until he had made the attempt. . . . Captain Noel has an admirable eye for the selection of points of view which supplement one another, the result being that the spectator never experiences the least sensation of lassitude." — (London Daily Telegraph).

"Tremendous in conception and wonderful in achievement both as a record of a great event and a masterpiece of photographic art, the film of the ill-fated attack on the 'Roof of the World' shown for the first time to a large and enthusiastic audience . . . fulfils the highest expectations and justifies its resounding title of 'The Epic of Everest.' It is a great film."—(Scotsman).

FINDS GOATS LIVING IN TREES

Goats calmly pasturing in tree tops were one of the strange sights seen by Dr. David G. Fairchild, of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, on a recent botanical tour around the world. A large part of southern Morocco, Africa, he explains in "Popular Science Monthly," is overgrown with forests so gnarled and grown together that the ground underneath them is quite barren. Consequently, the only pasture for the goats is in the branches, and the animals have become expert climbers. They have regular paths and runways among the branches, and thrive on the leaves and fruit.

GEARLESS CARS AND PAPER HOUSES

Astonishing Discoveries and Useful Inventions Recent Scientific Contributions.

NEW YORK.—Before long we may live in houses made of paper building bricks; our homes will be windowed with a new kind of quartz glass that will bring invisible, health-giving rays of sunlight into every room; we may be driving gearless cars that require no troublesome shifting; we may see firemen fighting flames with flurries of artificial snow instead of streams of water.

Paper already is in use for shingles, sheathing, roofing, furniture, fiber board, clothing, car wheels, and countless other products. But now a way has been found to convert paper into building bricks by mixing it with other ingredients. These bricks are reported to be fireproof, waterproof, and free from damage by nailing.

In the improved window glass quartz is used as a base. This allows the passage of the vitalizing ultra-violet rays from the sun, which ordinary glass shuts out as effectively as does a brick wall. The ultra-violet rays affect the health and growth of everything in the animal and vegetable world. Heretofore curative sun treatments have been given mostly out of doors. The new glass makes it possible to treat patients indoors, and thus it becomes especially valuable to hospitals.

From France comes an announcement of a radical departure in automobile design. In this machine there are no gears and no gear shift lever. Automatically its engineers say, it adjusts itself to the load. The driver has nothing to do except steer and press on the throttle with his foot, whether he is towing a five-ton truck up a steep hill, or travelling at high speed on an open country road. In starting, he simply throws off the brake and steps on the throttle. In stopping, he reverses the process.

Equally remarkable is the new fire extinguishing process, described by Mr. Blossom. This employs, in place of water, a snow or carbon dioxide gas, the same gas that makes bubbles in soda water. The gas is liquified under high pressure in strong steel cylinders. When a fireman opens a valve of one of these cylinders, the escaping liquid instantly freezes into snowflakes, which are blown over the fire. The intense cold of the snow crystals combines with the smothering effect of the gas to put out the fire.

In aviation, an important contribution is a new invention which may enable fliers to reach higher altitudes than ever before. This is a thermos bottle in which the aviator can carry his supply of oxygen in liquid form. Heretofore, in attempting high altitudes, he has carried oxygen in the form of compressed gas, in steel cylinders, which have added to the load the plane must carry.

Deep in the earth, as well, inventive genius has made important advances. A way has just been found for minimizing that great danger to miners—rock dust. Drilling in rock by any method fills the air with rock particles, which, breathed in by the miners, cause serious lung troubles. Now an ingenious new air device—an odd sort of vacuum cleaner—has been invented for use with air drills to prevent the dust from spreading. At the point where the drill enters the rock, an exhaust draft actuated by spent air from the drill soaks up the dust.

Revolutionary processes of obtaining gasoline from coal; experimental methods of developing new sources of future power; railway trains made of aluminum; flashlights that run without batteries—these are other new achievements cited by Mr. Blossom as examples of the swift progress of invention and discovery.

EMPLOYMENT BUREAU HAS BEEN ESTABLISHED

An Employment Bureau has been established at the Canadian General Electric Company. Mr. H. A. Cranfield, who is also secretary of the Suggestion Committee at the works, will supervise this bureau.

The hiring of help at the gate will be discontinued and in future any person wishing to make application for employment with this company will write or apply in person to the Employment Bureau, which is located on the ground floor of the main office. There application forms will obtained and these will be completed giving full information as to the applicant's experience or ability, and they will be notified by mail or phone as a position becomes vacant which they are capable of doing.

This is a long felt want and will do away with men appearing at the gate at certain periods of the day and it will also give a better opportunity for the applicant to intelligently state his qualifications for the different occupations in the works.

In future it will be absolutely useless for applicants visiting officials' houses or calling them up on the phone or appealing to foremen or officials of the works to use their influence to obtain positions. This practice, if carried out, will be a detriment to a means of employment instead of a help. It is recognized in modern business that the employment and proper placing of men is a very important factor both for the company and for the applicant.

FIREMAN BADLY CUT BY COMPANION'S AXE

Radio Battery Charger Blamed For Starting Blaze in Chatham Home.

CHATHAM, Feb. 22. — Robert Powers, a local fireman, sustained painful injuries at a fire here yesterday when he was struck in the face with an axe in the hands of another fireman, Stanley Boylan. The latter was chopping a hole in the ceiling of a room and in the dense smoke was unable to see Powers, he says. The axe cut a deep gash from within half an inch of the left eye, across the nose and down the right cheek.

The accident happened at the home of F. Steinke, where a fire started in the dining-room from a radio battery charger, according to Chief Pritchard. Members of the family were aroused about 3.30 o'clock yesterday morning by the smell of smoke, at which time the flames had made such headway that the electric and telephone wires had been burned off, necessitating a run of two blocks to an alarm box.

HOW TO MAKE AN OUTDOOR RINK

The secret of making a good outdoor rink for ice skating is to spray the water on as if watering a lawn. When the ground is flooded too rapidly, some of the water is apt to drain off after the ice has begun to form and the thin shell of surface ice soon breaks. It is best to use a 1½-inch hose with a nozzle that can be regulated to give a mist spray.

Before starting, however, construct a dike around the selected area, using earth of a clayey nature, snow, or heavy planks/ set into the ground a few inches. A snow dike should be soaked with water and allowed to freeze solidly. Skating can begin after a sheet of ice one inch thick has formed, but the spraying should be continued on every cold night until the ice is five or six inches thick.—Popular Science Monthly.

Fisher Built-Canadian Built -Better Built

It is known for soundness and balance founded upon the skilful combination of wood and steel; for feature after feature of comfort and convenience; for distinguished appointments; for lustrous Duco finishes in tasteful color harmonies; for subtle touches of artistry and refinement that reveal the master designer and the master craftsman.

And wherever Canadian-built Fisher Bodies are known, they have added even greater prestige to that famous name.

For here those standards of quality are met with better materials . . . Canadian materials—

With better lumber . . . Canadian lumber—

With better upholstery . . . from Canadian looms—

With better workmanship . . . Canadian craftsmanship—

With better finish . . . Canadian-made Duco.

Fisher-built — Canadian-built — Better built—these bodies on General Motors of Canada cars present, in addition to their inherent safety and solidity, authenticity of style and commanding beauty, regardless of the price class of the car.

THE BUDGET DEBATE.

The moving by the Federal Progressives of an amendment to the Budget proposals will be merely in the nature of a gesture of independence.

The Progressives, of course, are not very well pleased with the decision of the Government not to make any changes in the tariff, and they want an opportunity to say so in the House.

But the Government has no need to worry over an amendment from that source, inasmuch as it will take the form of urging the reduction of the tariff, and along that line the Progressives can expect no support whatever from the Conservatives.

The debate on the Budget should not be a long drawn out affair under the circumstances; there is no chance of the Government being seriously embarrassed, and the official viewpoint of the various parties can be indicated as well by a few speeches as by a score.

PETERBOROUGH'S PART.

The meeting called by Mayor Holloway to discuss Peterborough's part in the celebration of Canada's sixtieth birthday has been postponed until next week in order that other attractions may not interfere with the attendance.

It will be held on Monday night, and The Examiner hopes that the date will be kept in mind by the citizens generally as a very important occasion.

The successful observance of the jubilee so far as Peterborough is concerned will depend upon the extent to which the community responds to the leadership supplied by the local committee, so that it is desirable that the latter organization should be as representative and efficient as possible.

Public meetings to put over affairs of this nature have not as a rule been successful here; there is too great an inclination on the part of most people to let others do the work.

Confederation itself was never brought about in any such spirit, and it is to be hoped that when it comes to a question of having Peterborough co-operate in a nation-wide celebration of Canada's sixtieth birthday there will be a more ready response than there usually is to an appeal of this kind.

LIFTING THE BURDEN.

Premier Ferguson's reply to municipal representatives who waited upon him to oppose the increased exemptions under the municipal income tax proposed by the Government left no doubt as to the firm intention of the administration to go ahead with its programme.

That there would be opposition to the proposal was to be expected; no municipality likes to face a decrease in revenues, necessitating a readjustment of other taxation to make up for the loss.

And yet such a readjustment is regarded by many people as better than the income tax, which arouses resentment because of the feeling that it is not equitable applied, encourages deception and falls with sureness only upon one particular section of the population, the employees class.

The taxing of incomes two and even three times creates a situation that is regarded by many Canadians as unjust.

Those whose incomes come largely from industrial investments find that they have to pay an income tax both to the Dominion Government and to their own municipality, and in addition the corporations from which these incomes are received have also to pay a Federal tax.

The Ontario Government's decision to meet the situation by increasing the exemption under the municipal levy helps to lift the burden and will be welcomed by many citizens.

WIDE POWERS.

Reference was made in these columns yesterday to the comprehensive scheme of reforestation proposed by Hon. Wm. Finlayson, Ontario's Minister of Lands and Forests.

A perusal of the bill introduced by the Minister last week shows that it gives the Government wide powers.

It provides authority for the Minister to expropriate any land in Ontario which he may deem necessary for forestry purposes.

It authorizes the Government, for forestry purposes, to detach from a union of townships any township having fewer than twenty-five resident freeholders.

Similarly the bill empowers the Government to declare any township with less than 10 per cent. of its area used for farming purposes a Crown forest reserve.

Authority is given to set aside any township or portion of a township suitable for settlement purposes for the purpose of locating settlers, whom the Minister may desire to move from districts that have found to be unsuitable for agriculture and which it is desired to take over for forestry purposes.

In the case of such movement of settlers the bill gives the Minister power to pay the expenses of the removal of settlers, their families, chattels and effects to new locations.

Permission is also given for the creation of a Forestry Board of five members to carry on research work in connection with the forestry lands of the Province, and to study all questions in connection with the planting, growth, developing, marketing and reproduction of pulpwoods.

It is the biggest, boldest and most ambitious plan to save Ontario's forest wealth and to keep for the use of future generations a rich reserve of timber that has yet been proposed in Canada.

AN INTERNATIONAL WHEAT POOL.

There has been talk for some time of a world wheat pool, and in the formation of such an organization the success of the Canadian wheat pool has been set up as a shining example. Agriculturists of the United States have followed closely the methods of the Canadian body, and even from distant Australia men have come to study and appraise it. Lately the proposal for an international pool appears to have gained an increased likelihood of realization.

The present proposal contemplates an organization with Canadian, American and Argentine farmers forming the membership on the American continents. The preliminaries to the formation of this huge business group have been under consideration for nearly a year, and it is expected to advance the plan further at an international wheat growers' conference in May at Kansas City. Canada will send delegates, representative of the Canadian Wheat Pool, composed of the Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba pools, and the recently organized Ontario pool. British Columbia farmers are joining the Alberta pool. The Canadian delegates will represent, therefore, the farmers of five Canadian Provinces.

In preparation for such an international pool Canadians have taken an active part, which is justified by the outstanding success of this method of marketing grain by our Western farmers. Representatives of the Canadian pool have visited both Australia and the Argentine where they have explained the advantages and working of their system. If success crowns the efforts to form an international pool, it will be due largely to Canadian initiative.

Such an organization would revolutionize the marketing of the world's principal cereal crops. It would constitute probably the largest and most influential commercial body in the world. That there will be opposition to it and much criticism is inevitable, but that it would result in benefits of the fullest justification for agriculture there can be little doubt. Farmers can become generally efficient as producers, but in marketing by the individual system they can never hope generally to be so. And the success of the industry as a whole must rest on the marketing results. The pool system appears to be the best so far devised to give the farmer the fullest benefits of efficient marketing.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

WORTHLESS STOCKS.

The London Free Press of a recent issue gives an account of the activities of certain high-pressure salesmen in various parts of Western Ontario who were engaged in selling stock in unsound companies, and who succeeded in obtaining thousands of dollars from unsuspecting persons. In many cases people were induced to invest their entire savings in these worthless securities, and as a result they have been reduced to actual poverty. In spite of repeated warnings from reputable financial journals and reliable dealers against these fake enterprises, people still take hhances. As one dealer expressed it:

"High-pressure salesmen invariably urge investors to 'sign' immediately if they wish to get in on 'the ground floor.' They are quick to assure one that the issue of stock is very limited, or that it is positively their last call, or that they have instructions to return to headquarters at once and, consequently, the proposed buyer will never have such a splendid opportunity again. It's a case of hurry, hurry, hurry—do it now and investigate later. On the other hand, reliable financial institutions, bond dealers and salesmen for legitimate enterprises invite the proposed buyer to investigate before investing. They are glad to call again, after their prospective purchasers have had sufficient opportunity to make thorough inquiries."

It is almost incredible that, after the publicity that has been given to such enterprises in Ontario, that these gentry could continue to operate with any degree of success. People who will not trust well-established business houses without the utmost investigation, will apparently listen to the persuasions of passing agents of whom they know absolutely nothing. In The Free Press story of these activities in Wsetern Ontario there is mentioned the case of a farmer and his wife who sold their farm and moved to a village in the vicinity to spend their life in ease and retirement. A relative became friendly with an oil company agent and was given a free trip to Texas to investigate the company's property. The retired couple were induced to invest, and reports were so rosy they sold a mortgage for $6,500 held against the farm they had vacated and added this to their investment. A representative of a reliable firm warned against this action without thorough investigation, but the warning was ignored, and the entire sum lost, leaving the couple practically penniless. It was found after that the property which was seen by the relative was many miles from the company's real holdings. The salesman could not be prosecuted, for the simple reason that he could not be found. Action could not be instituted against the company, as it went into liquidation, with liabilities many times its assets.

It cannot be too often reiterated that before purchasing stock certificates from irresponsible salesmen, the persons solicited should consult a reputable banker, or bond dealer. If they did, in the majority of cases the purchase would not be made, and there would be no pitiful tragedies like the foregoing.—Brantford Expositor.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Feb. 22 — With a light run the market opened with a brisk demand for the choicest butcher offerings. While export business was light, about 150 cattle taken to make up a total shipment of 350 to seaboard this week, the demand was for the best heavy steers at prices averaging about 10c higher than last week. A few extra choice heavy beef steers sold up to $7.75.

Choice finished butcher steers, handy weights, 950 to 1,000 lbs., steady to firm at $7 to $7.25. Good medium butcher steers going at $6.50 to $6.75.

Good market for fat butcher cows, with a shade firmer feeling at $5 to $5.50, and a few special at around $6.

Calves steady at $12 to $14.

Hogs — Packers bidding $10.50 f.o.b. deliveries, but no settlements made up to noon.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 22 (Canadian Press) — The demand from foreign buyers for grain on the Montreal market yesterday was again of a very limited character, and little business was done.

A moderate amount or business was done in the domestic market and prices were unchanged.

Prices for all grades of spring and winter wheat grades of flour were well maintained under a quiet demand.

A fair amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed and prices ruled firm. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet but steady.

A feature of the egg trade was the weaker feeling that developed from fresh grades and prices were reduced two to three cents per dozen. This was attributed to the steady downward tendency of values in the United tSates markets of late and the fact that the bulk of the fresh eggs is coming from that source for the time being, as the production in Quebec and Ontario is not sujcient to meet the requirements of the trade. The receipts were 710 cases.

The undertone to the potato market was firm with a small trade passing. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.60 to $1.65 per bag of ninety pounds, Quebec White stock at $1.25 to $1.30 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track, with New Brunswick Green Mountains selling at $1.20 to $1.25 per bag of ninety pounds ex-store.

The trade in butter was fairly active. The offerings were none too large and a stronger feeling developed and prices scored an advance. Sales of New Zealand finest creamery butter were made at 41c, 41 1-4c and 41 1-2c per pound, and at the close of the day holders were firm at 41 3-4c to 42c per pound, while Eastern Townships re-graded No. 1 pasteurized Creamery solld at 41c per pound with prices at the close quoted at 41 1-4cc to 41 1-2c per pound. The receipts were 23 packages.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press)—Increase of United States visible stocks of wheat and of world supplies afloat had a bearish effect on the wheat market yesterday. Wheat closed weak, 1-8 to 3-4c net lower; corn 1-4 to 3-4c down; oats 1-4 to 3-8c off, and provisions showing 10 to 17 cents decline.

Another contributing reason for weakness was the fact that premiums for cash wheat at the Gulf of Mexico are the lowest on the crop with No. 2 hard quoted at seven cents over May, 1-2c lower than Saturday. On the other hand, receipts of wheat southwest are showing a gradual falling off in volume. Talk was current, however, that growing weather shortly might tend to emphasize a satisfactory crop outlook for domestic winter wheat.

Enlargement of the corn visible supply total a depressing influence on the corn market. Low grades of cash corn were saleable only at the biggest discounts on the crop. Oats dragged lower with corn.

Provisions were responsive to downturns in hog values and in cottonseed oil.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press)—Cattle 22,000; best heavies, $12.15; yearlings $12.50; bulk fat steers $9.00 to $11.00; stockers and feeders $7.25 to $8.25; choice 800 pound kinds $9.00; vealers largely $10.25 to $11.50 to big packers; few shipper weights $13.00 to $14.00 and better.

Hogs 55,000; hogs $12.15 paid for 140 to 150 pound weights, bulk desirable 150 to 200 pound averages $11.80 to $12.05; most 210 to 260 pound butchers, $11.55 to $11.80; bulk 270 to 330 pound butchers $11.50 to $11.60; few butchers scaling 310 pounds up $11.40 to $11.45; bulk packing sows $10.40 to $10.65.

IN WRONG JAIL.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 22.—Eric Preusser was given 50 days in jail and he served it. But when the time came for release it was discovered that he had served his time in the county jail instead of city jail to which he had been sentenced, so the judge decreed that he had to serve it all over again.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

(By C. N. Lurie.)

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

(By the McClure Syndicate, Inc.)

"MOLLYCODDLE"

Ask educated persons whether "mollycoddle" is a good English word or is slang, and nine out of ten will reply, "Of course, it is slang!"

But they will be wrong. "Mollycoddle" is a word of good standing in the English language, and has been in use for more than a century. One authority says that it was slang as far back as 1801; if that be so, its age entitles it, in all probability, to admission into the family of good English words.

Webster defines "mollycoddle" as: "A person who coddles himself or is coddled; an effeminate man or boy; one who lacks spirit or courage; a person who takes excessive or unnecessary care of his health."

"Mollycoddle" is used also as a verb, in the sense of "to coddle" or "to pamper." The word gained renewed vogue some years ago when it was used by the late Theodore Roosevelt.

WISE AND OTHERWISE

The well-dressed bridegroom will wear a lace-trimmed hat, say fashion's newest dictates. We suggest a nose-ring and bustle to make the costume complete. . . . Pretty soon the word obey will be added to the piece the bridegroom speaks. . . . It's getting harder and harder to get married and easier and easier to live in Hollywood.

Babe Ruth, demanding a higher contract, says he's worth more than obb or Speaker. Maybe he was before Judge Landis helped them along with all that publicity.

HUSKIES WAKE 'EM

NOME, Alaska, Feb. 22.—Huskies are the alarm clocks of the north. The dissonant serenade of the husky hosts in early morning would waken King Tut himself, according to visitors here who recently heard the huskies howl for the first time. The dog choruses of early mornings is one reason why the people of arctic countries are not late sleepers.

DR. FRANK CRANE'S DAILY EDITORIAL.

THREE ELEMENTS OF PROSPERITY

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

The standing riddle which Europeans cannot understand is how the United States does two things at the same time.

That is, how it pays high wages and has low prices.

High wages ought to mean high prices and low prices ought to mean low wages, according to the common understanding.

There are some who think that labor alone produces values. They think of the laboring man as making all of the product of the country, while capitalists and managers merely live off them. Others think that it is the capitalists who are responsible for our prosperity.

On the contrary, prosperity is the result of three things and these three things tend to produce high wages and low prices.

The three things are: First, brains; second, labor, and third, capital.

It is because we have all three of these things in the United States that we prosper.

Of course this implies that we must be at peace. War is purely destructive and the work of construction takes place only in the absence of armed conflict.

You must have labor, of course. There must be certain men willing to work with their hands and to bend their backs in the work of the world. Without this there is no production.

But this work must be intelligently directed. Waste and overhead must be reduced to a minimum and salesmanship must be perfected as a Science. Without brains to direct it labor is a dumb giant. Where there is co-operation between the managers and the laborers and where there is no war between the laborers and society production leaps forward.

In addition to this there must be capital to provide the tools and the machinery with which to work.

This is an age of machinery. The population of a country should be estimated in horsepower of machinery rather than in man power of human hands. Capital supplies this machinery and gives the laborer a chance to work profitably.

Russia tried the experiment of laboring without capital and soon collapsed. It cannot be done.

An important element in the prosperity of the country is the large amount of capital accumulated from small sources all over the country. This capital is poured into factories, and mines and fields and gives labor a chance to work advantageously.

These three elements, therefore, will be found to contribute to our success: Labor at good wages, plenty of capital and intelligence to direct the use of both.

A Thought For To-day

WE ALL PASS THE BUCK.

We spend millions of dollars a year for penal institutions while one-quarter of this money spent on promoting proper environment for young men would prevent much of this tremendous waste of money and morality.

We postpone plans to prevent the cause, then prosecute the effect. We discipline crime while we ignore the causes that create it.

We padlock the barn after the horse has been stolen.

We are great business builders, but mighty poor calculators when it comes to handling crime. We mean well, but the hot spot is paved with good intentions.

We are too indifferent to the most important thing that we should consider in life— the character of our citizenship.

We all know this is the truth, but we all pass the buck.

OLD THEATER PASSES.

TORONTO, Feb. 22 — The boards where trod such actors as Sir Henry Irving, Sir John Forbes-Robertson and Ellen Terry, are to be torn down to make way for a garage and parking station. The Grand Opera House, Toronto's oldest theater, has been dark almost continuously since its former owner, Ambrose J. Small, disappeared in 1919. No trace ever was found of Small.

Moved by Councillors Harrison and Richardson, That the Clerk be authorized to purchase a flag of suitable size for the hall. Carried.

They recommended, That the rent of the hall be placed at $15 a day and the property committee interview non-tariff companies with a view to changing the insurance to a lower rate. Adopted.

Moved by Councillors Robinson and Tedford, That the fee paid by the Canadian Legion for the rent of the hall on January 11th, be refunded. Carried.

Moved by Councillors Harrison and Richardson, That the auditors' report be adopted and that 50 copies be printed. Carried.

The Council ajourned.

Firemen's Dance

The Lakefield Fire Brigade held a very successful dance on Monday evening last which was attended by a very large crowd, being one of the largest dances ever held in the village. The hall was decorated with red and white streamers and hearts in honor of St. Valentine, whose festival it was. The music was furnished by Widdis' Orchestra of Peterborough and was exceedingly good and heartily enjoyed. A competent committee served refreshments before midnight, after which dancing was resumed.

LOCAL FANDOM WILD OVER GAME WITH THE GRADS

Great Performance of Petes Has Aroused Interest To Fever Heat.

RECORD CROWD.

Brock St. Rink Too Small To Hold Everyone Who Wants To Be There.

Last night's sensational performance of the Petes in holding the Grads "wonder" machine to a tie in the first game of the group series has made Peterboro hockey mad, and with the series to be decided by the result of to-morrow night's battle here, there will not be room for everybody who wants to see the teams decide the issue.

Varsity, desperate because of last night's unexpected set-back, will be formidabe opposition in the final game, but they are facing a determined fighting team in the Petes, who with a royal chance to battle their way into the finals, and spurred on by the wild rooting of their home fans, will be hard to beat. The home crew came through last night's game in the best of shape, and they are all fit and ready for the battle upon which the Senior championship may hinge.

The line-ups will in all probability be the same as in the first game. The Grads will have Louie Hudson, Hughey Plaxton and Dave Trottier on the front line, with Porter and Taylor on the defence and Joe Sullivan in the nets. Frank Sullivan and Delahey are the most likely choices as the subs. The Petes will use the same line-up as last night.

BOY SCOUTS

4TH PETERBORO TROOP.

The 4th lost the hockey game they played with the 3rd a week ago, so they will have to provide the feed. It will be given at the Troop room of the 4th Friday night. The 3rd are asked to be there at 7.30 p.m. All they will need to bring is a good appetite. Don't forget to keep this an open date fellows, as we want a good turn out. Any Scouts in the 4th who can get off Thursday night are asked to go down to the Troop room to fix up ready for the feed.

The Troop competition among the four patrols is beginning to spread out now, the Owls having a lead of seven points over the Kangaroos. The Foxes are quite a way behind because of poor attendance. The Crows are half a point behind the Kargaroos.

One of the features of the Troop meeting last Thursday night was a blindfold boxing match between two Scouts, although at one time four Scouts were hitting out into space at once. The tub tilting contest, in which two Scouts stood on a couple of chairs, each with a boxing glove tied onto the end of a Scout staff, and tried to push the other off, also produced a lot of fun, especially for the winners.

Although no tests were passed since the last meeting, a number are expected to try and pass some this week. The Scoutmaster said that he would give two points to each of the first three Scouts to tie twenty-five knots correctly. Harold Chadwick of the Owls has tied his already, and the other two are expected to soon.

A number of the Scouts went on a skiing hike last Saturday and had a fine time. As the weather was too cold and windy, nothing was taken to cook, but this was made up for by some sandwiches and cookies. Most of those who did not go are expecting to go on the next hike. It is the Troop's objective to have everybody out at once, and everybody is trying hard to be there next time.

GOLFING HELPS FREE SWINGER

Goslin Says It Will Hurt Batters Who Choke Their Club.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark. Feb 22. — Golf is great stuff for the base ball hitter who takes a full swing, but bad medicine for the batter who chokes his bludgeon, in the opinion of Leon "Goose" Goslin, slugging outfielder of the Washington Americans.

The "Goose" qualified as a golfing authority by his play here in the South Central open tournament, in which he has an amateur status, Teamed with Joe Turnesa, professional, Goslin shared second honors in the mixed professional and amateur best ball matches Wednesday.

Yesterday, however, the slugger must have been thinking in base ball terms for an excuse to get out of his scheduled game for he picked up his ball after playing only a few holes and returned to the clubhouse. "Too cold," he said.

"Golf has helped me a whole lot," Goslin said in describing his activities on the links. "It has tought me to follow through. Before I played golf I knew nothing of following through on my swing at the plate. I have learned that it is essential on the tees and fairways, and I think it has given me distance in my wallops on the diamond."

The "goose" admitted that the wood clubs and the tee shots with their possibilities of long distances interested him most.

"For the hitter who cow-tails his bat and takes a free swing, the game of golf is a good thing," the fence smashing athlete explained. "But if I were a manager I would not let a player who chokes his bat play golf. It won't do him any good.

Goslin declared golfing put him in trim for the opening of base ball practice and eliminated soreness which accompanies spring training. He and Sam Rice, fellow Washington outfielder, have been on the Hot Springs links a week.

Burleigh Grimes, Brooklyn pitcher, and Carl Mays, moundsman for the Cincinnati Reds, also are making the rounds of the local golf club and frequently play with Goslin and Rice.

IN POLICE COURT.

Regarded as a lucky number by most people, the number 7 has appeared with disastrous results in the life of a man, formerly a resident of Peterborough, who pleaded guilty to charges of "non-support" and "bigamy" before His Worship Magistrate O. A. Langley this morning.

The accused was married in Peterborough 14 years ago. Seven years after that he went through a form of marriage with another woman in Brampton, despite the fact that his wife and child were still alive. Seven years after, or yesterday, he was apprehended and charged with bigamy.

The accused was represented by J. A. O'Brien; his wife by B. E. Clark, and the Crown by Crown Attorney G. W. Hatton, K.C.

Mr. O'Brien made a strong appeal on behalf of the accused, who had one child by his wife and three by the woman whom he had married in Brampton.

He was remanded for sentence for one week on both charges.

NEGROS ATTACK WHITE WOMEN

ONE ARRESTED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22.—(Canadian Press.)—Police are widening their drag net to-day as a result of the second attack here within a week on white women by negroes. While Phillip Jackson, 30 year old negro, was confessing last night that he criminally attacked, beat and robbed in the Capitol grounds Saturday night, Mrs. Daisy Welling, 35, the hotel telephone operator, a report reached the police that another white woman, Miss Grudun L. Larsen, 27 years old, was struck in the chest by a negro and robbed as she was walking near her home in the vicinity of Woodrow Wilson's home.

An automobile squad of police and detectives was searching the city to-day for Miss Larsen's assailant. The twin attacks, coming so close together, have stirred the city authorities to take extraordinary steps to mete out the full measure of the law to the attackers.

THEATRE

JOHN GILBERT IN "FLESH AND THE DEVIL."

"Flesh and the Devil" is one of those snappy feature pictures that has mostly everything to keep the interest of the audience from beginning to end. It has a real honest to goodness 'vamp of the major type the sort of lady who is beautiful and peculiar and unscrupulous, who hesitates at nothing, and thinks of her own comfort and pleasure at all times. She appears to be getting along famously, having everything her own way, but the logical hand of fate grasps her finally, and she pays the penalty of her misdeeds. "Flesh and the Devil," although it pictures a type of existence exotic in the extreme, has a pleasantly conscientious ending which prevents the prudish from pointing it out as an example of what the movies are coming to. Virtue, in the person of the little dark-haired Hertha, triumphs in the end, and the two men who have been fascinated by the ungodly Felicitas (Greta Garbo) turn to more sensible ways of living when the charmer is removed from their path.

It has an exceptionally good cast, with the smoky-eyed John Gilbert as the star, in the role of the lover of the Countess Rhaden, slayer of her husband in a duel and finally the wreaker of vengeance on her head, in indirect fashion. The love of two men is pictured very strongly in this feature, when Lars Hanson and John Gilbert, as Ulrich von Eltz, and Leo von Harden, swear undying loyalty to each other, by means of a blood oath, when children, playing on "The Isle of Friendship." The friendship endures through many turbulent ways, along the path of love for the one woman trodden by both, and later, when Ulrich, ignorant of Leo's infatuation for the widow of the Count, marries her during his friend's absence. Leo returns, to find the lady ready to welcome him as heretofore, but he refuses to betray his friend, and the two finally decide to fight a duel. The most dramatic moments of the picture are enacted in this final scene, with its logical and also very satisfying denouement to what threatens at times to become a hopeless tangle.

The prominence of the cast, their very fine acting and the interest of the theme combine to make "Flesh and the Devil" outstanding in interest.—Jeanette.

AT THE GRAND

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE"

A capacity audience saw "Abie's Irish Rose" at the Grand last night and enjoyed every minute of Anne Nichols' sparkling comedy. Laughter rocked the theatre as the two fathers, Irish and Jew, raged and stormed at each other over the marriage of their children, and as Mr. and Mrs. Cohen exchanged pleasantries.

It was a delightful comedy of love and tolerance, with Abie being a magnet character on the stage as the experiences of this young Jew who married an Irish girl and finds three wedding ceremonies necessary. First with a Methodist minister officiating, next by a Jewish rabbi, and third by a Roman Catholic priest. The bridal march was a most beautiful depicted scene with Mr. Cohen acting acting in the role of giving away the bride.

The feud between the Irish father of the bride and the Jewish father of the groom continued throughout the final two acts with a general love feast in the concluding scene when the two babies were brought onto the stage, and through these the fathers forgot their differences, and Jew and Gentile made up with their children on Christmas Eve with a beautifully decorated Christmas tree in the background.

The acting of the entire cast was most effective, and the reason for the phenomenal success of "Abie's Irish Rose" was not hard to find after seeing the performance.

AT THE REGENT

'THE TRAP,' SCREEN MASTERPIECE, SCORES HEAVILY AT REGENT THEATRE.

Love, hate, revenge, a transition from a simple-hearted child of the open into a wolf in human form with love of a babe his only redeeming trait—these form the motif of one of the greatest motion pictures of the decade—"The Trap," which opened a limited engagement at the Regent theatre last night. It is a drama that will hold you spellbound from start to finish.

Lon Chaney, aptly described as "the man of a thousand faces," plays the leading role of Gaspard, a French-Canadan trapper, and it is of interest to note that this Universal-Jewel production marked his advent to the ranks of stardom. "The Trap" is featured also by the truly remarkable work of little five-year-old Stanley Goethals, who plays the role of the child whose tiny fingers steal around the heart of the human wolf and slowly brings him back into man's estate.

The story is one of exceptional strength, has been ideally cast, and was photographed against a background of impressive grandeur. It is doubtful if there is an actor in pictures whose face can better convey the various shades of emotion than Lon Chaney—you love with him, hate with him and cry with him. The picture makes you forget yourself and any silent drama that can do that truly deserves the designation of "masterpiece."

Heart Palpitation Dizzy, Sinking Spells

Mrs. M. A. Gagnon, Donatville, Alta., writes:—"Some time ago I was very nervous, could not sleep at night, often had dizzy, sinking spells and palpitation of the heart, and was so run down I could not do my housework, but just leave everything and sit down.

I spent a lot of money using medicine from the doctor, but it did not do me any good.

As last a friend told me to use MILBURN'S HEART NERVE PILLS and after using a couple of boxes I was not the same woman. I began to feel so much better, and after a few more boxes I was in perfect health. I always recommend them to all those I know who are suffering from heart trouble."

Farewell Party.

Between sixty and seventy friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Halstead gathered at their home on Friday evening for a farewell party prior to their leaving for their new home, near Bewdley. At lunch hour Mr. and Mrs. Halstead were called to attention, when Clarence Varcoe read a very appropriate address on behalf of the gathering, and E. Braithwaite and George Mouncey presented them with a rattan table, reed fern stand and a reed flower basket. Mr. and Mrs. Halstead were totally taken by surprise.

Board Meeting.

A special board meeting of the United Church was held at Fenella on Monday afternoon to extend a call to Rev. Brown, of Cordova. The board not being able to decide on terms, was postponed until further arrangements.

Honor Young Couple.

On Wednesday evening a most enjoyable time was spent when a large number of friends and neighbors gathered in the Orange Hall in honor of Mr. M. D. Brown and bride (nee Eva Thompson). The bride and groom received the best wishes of their friends, accompanied by a miscellaneous shower of many beautiful and useful gifts, among them being a Coleman Quick-Lite lamp, given by the young men, who gave Mr. and Mrs. Brown a rousing serenade a few nights previous. Dancing was indulged in during the evening and a dainty lunch served at midnight.

Mr. Brown gave a short address thanking everybody for their kindness and good wishes toward Mrs. Brown and himself. Dancing was then continued until early morning.

Women's Auxiliary.

The Anglican W. A. held their February meeting at the home of Mrs. Ernest Timlin, with a fairly good attendance. The President, Mrs. Gordon Parker, conducted the meeting, which opened with singing, followed by the W. A. prayer in unison. During the business transaction, it was earnestly requested that all officers who wish to withdraw from their duties to hand in a written resignation before the next annual meeting. Mrs. Ross McCracken was appointed Secretary and Mrs. Ernest Timlin Treasurer. The meeting closed by repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison.

The hostess then served a dainty lunch, when all enjoyed a social half hour.

BOY FINDS RELICS.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 22.—Investigations of a boy, Hilary Hill, have led to the finding of the likeness of a mastadon, buried 2000 feet long. In the head of the giant image were found what seemed to be human bones so old that they crumbled on being exposed to air. Archaeologists explained the Indians of an ancient tribe often built, in the mounds of their chiefs, the likeness of some beast.

The GRESSMAN Company Limited

FARMERS' UNION INSURANCE CO. ANNUAL MEETING

Financial Statement Shows Company To Be In Good Shape.

MUCH CARELESSNESS.

The 32nd annual meeting of the above company was held in the Council Chamber, Lindsay, on Feb. 11, with a large number of shareholders in attendance.

The financial statement shows the amount of insurance carried in the counties of Durham, Victoria, Haliburton, Peterborough and Ontario as $26,198,746, an increase of $2,700,000 over last year. After paying all fire losses and operating expenses there was a surplus of $8,336.28 to be added to the reserve account, which amounts to $[illegible] in cash and bonds. The additional security of the premium note makes a total surplus of $697,855.00.

In his report the President, Mr. Horn, made an appeal to the members for their co-operation with the board in efforts to reduce fire losses. "It is estimated that over 70 per cent. of the total fire loss is the result of neglect and carelessness, and is therefore preventable," he said. "Thirty-five fires and damages to buildings by lightning cost your company $13,500, and not one of these buildings were protected by lightning rods. Our report of 1925 shows that forty-two fires due to lightning were all on buildings which were unprotected, and for several years no rodded buildings have been damaged. Twenty-eight fires were the result of defective stove-pipes and chimneys burning out and throwing sparks on old shingled roofs; overheated pipes set fire to woodwork which was too close for safety, etc.; matches and smoking were responsible for many more fires, and we believe some of those fires listed in our report under the heading, 'Cause unknown,' should be attributed to this carelessness.

"Although the company pays for all those fires which are preventable, the amount paid does not represent the total loss, as few fire losses are fully covered by insurance and there is always the inevitable distress and loss of things which cannot be replaced. Every such disaster is a detriment to the family, and a loss to the country as a whole. It is not the business of the Board of Directors to simply investigate the cause of fires and pay for them, but to prevent them. An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure, and it is easier to prevent fires than to pay for them.

"By the adoption of the President's report without amendment the board have the authority of the membership to put into force a system of educational propaganda and systematic plan of an inspection of risks. Undesirable risks may be cancelled; values reduced on vacant properties and buildings which are not kept in good repair. All properties must be brought up to the standard of perfection required as a means of reducing the fire loss, and thus retaining low insurance rates for all those who are entitled to them.

"During the past year the Directors have refused more than a million dollars' worth of insurance, as they do not consider any benefits are to be derived by increasing the business, but rather to reduce the amount of insurance carried by cutting off all risks that are regarded as exceptionally hazardous."

It was the opinion of the members present that all new buildings and roofs being renewed should be covered with fire-resisting materials for the reason that many fires originate from sparks falling on shingled roofs and spreading the fire to adjacent buildings. A slight reduction in the rate is allowed on buildings equipped with standard lightning rods and on buildings covered with steel roofs, rodded from the corners and properly equipped with standard rodding.

The election of officers and directors resulted as follows:

President—Alex. Horn.

Vice-President—J. R. Magee.

Secretary - Treasurer — Pearl James.

Directors—Wm. Hoskins, Woodville; W. H. Lowes, Ida; John Suggitt, Cameron; John Robertson, Dunsford; J. R. Magee, Janetville Station; W. J. Porter, Peterborough; Maurice McMillan, Beaverton; Alex. Horn, Lindsay; G. B. Nichols, Lakefield; Albert Davidson, Lindsay.

PRESENTATION TO ORGANIST

Miss Mildred Wood is the Guest of Number of Friends.

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 22.—A very delightful social gathering, in the nature of a surprise party, was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wood, west of the village, on Wednesday evening, a number of the neighbors and friends, including officals and members of Trinity church meeting to express to Miss Mildred Wood their appreciation of her serivces as organist of the church for a considerable time.

During the evening Miss Wood was presented with a handsome leather club bag, Miss Lillia Crocker reading the following address, and Miss Violet Porter, on behalf of those present, offering the gift.

Miss Mildred Wood,
Volunteer Organist of Trinity Church, Cavan.

Dear Miss Wood:

At the annual Vestry Meeting, held at Trinity Church on Monday, January 31st, 1927, a hearty vote of thanks was passed, along with a resolution, signifying the unanimous wish of the members of the Vestry assembled, that some little gift be presented to you as a small token of the appreciation of the congregation of your services as organist of the church.

Your assistance in this connection has meant so much to the success of our Divine services from Sunday to Sunday, and your willing co-operation in matters concerning the church, both by the clergy and members of the congregation, has been noticed continually with much pleasure and satisfaction. We therefore ask you to accept this club bag, not so much for its intrinsic value, but rather because of the good will and appreciation which it represents.

Signed on behalf of the Clergy, and members of the congregation of Trinity Church, Cavan: Henry Blakely, Rector's Warden; Wilbert Wood, People's Warden.

Miss Wood, though taken by surprise, briefly thanked the donors for their useful gift, and expressed genuine appreciation of the kindly words which accompanied it.

The committee in charge served a bountiful supper, and the remainder of the evening was enjoyably spent in social converse, cards, and dancing. It was long past the midnight hour when the happy gathering finally dispersed.

C.G.I.T. Meeting.

The regular weekly meeting of the Wide Awakes group of Canadian Girls in Training was held on Friday evening, twelve girls and the leader being in attendance. One new member, Marguerite Hawken, was enrolled and welcomed at this session.

As three new members have been received in the past two weeks, the suggestion of the provincial secretary, Miss Jessie McPherson of Toronto, that the older members tell briefly what the group and its activities had meant to them was adopted, the resulting, voluntary testimony to the helpfulness of the C.G.I.T. programme and associations being most inspiring.

Routine business included arrangements for a sleighing party on Thursday of this week, A. J. Brown kindly promising the use of his team and sleigh for the event. A hot supper at the leader's home will follow the outing.

The basket social, intended to be held on St. Patrick's Day, will have to be postponed until the weekly church nights are concluded.

The leader's talk was preceded by a discussion of the land of Palestine, and its history, and based upon the story of the blind man who cried for healing as Jesus was going from Jericho to Jerusalem to attend the feast of the Passover. Some helpful lessons were drawn from the incident, and the final thought left was, "What if some other girl is waiting for me to help her to the Master?"

A reading by Elsie Spence, "The Lilt of a Laugh", and by Wilma Fallis, "The Monks' Great Singer" were given during the devotional period.

The usual social hour, and singsong form the new C.G.I.T. book, concluded the gathering.

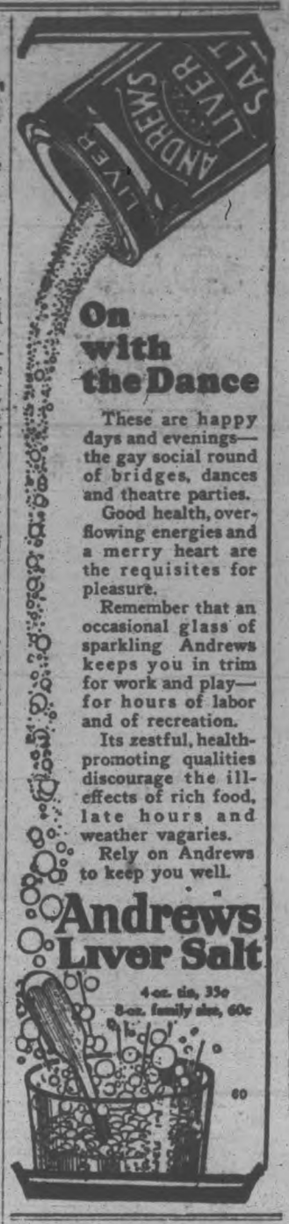
Personals.

Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Fallis entertained the local "five hundred club" at their home, Fallis Line, for its regular meeting last week, Mr. Fallis bringing his team and sleighs for a load from the village.

A fowl supper served about 6.30 p.m., was a delightful feature of the gathering, play following the social time around the well-alden tables.

Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. Milton Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Garside, Mr. and Mrs. P. I. Bentley, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Ball, Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Fallis, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Armstrong, Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Harkness, and others.

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Garnett of Port Hope, were week end guests of Mrs. Herb Ball, Fallis Line.



FOX BREEDERS ELECT J. E. PATTE

Peterboro' Man Made Vice-President of the Ontario Association.

J. E. Patte of this city was re-elected, recently, vice-president of the Ontario Branch of the Canadian National Silver Fox Breeders' Association.

Of particular interest to the meeting was the information furnished them by Mr. Patte, with regards to the results of the silver fox skins which had recently been sold by the Canadian Auction Association through the Canadian Fur Auction Sale. 1,333 pelts were put through this sale by the association, of which number only 64 lots were unsold. The achievement is wonderful when it is taken into consideration that the project was not under way until very late in the season.

It was the unanimous opinion of the meeting that the Provincial registration of foxes would be detrimental to the majority of Ontario breeders as most of them have obtained Canadian National Registration.

The membership of the association in 1926 was 108, an increase of 23 over 1925. There still remain quite a few fox breeders in Ontario who have not joined the association and from the benefits which have been derived from the Ontario breeders it is quite obvious that every fox breeder should belong to the Ontario organizaton. Not only is their financial support needed, but what is really more important, it strengthens the hand of the association and places it in a more favorable position to carry on its work in the interests of the Ontario fox breeders.

The Canadian Association sold over 1000 pelts recently for the Ontario body and at this sale each skin was carefully graded before being offered for sale. In this way no worthless skins were sold.

More than half a ton of snails was shipped from France to the United States last year.

Was Nearly Crazy With Boils All Over His Body

Mr. S. L. Burke, Barronsfield, N.S., writes:—"For some time I was nearly crazy with boils all over my body. I tried everything I could think of to get rid of them, but to no avail, for as soon as one was healed up another would appear to take its place.

I was advised to take

and after I had used two bottles the boils had all disappeared and I have not been troubled with them since."

Put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

WOOLER NEWS

WOOLER, Feb. 22.—Miss Edith and Miss Cora Valentine entertained Mr. and Mrs. Dan Hennessy, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Terrill and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Russell to a dinner party in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Bidwell Smith, of the West, and who are returning from a holiday spent touring Panama Canal, Bermuda, West Indies, New York City, and will visit their daughter, who is attending Queen's University at Kingston.

The Ladies' Aid had a very large gathering on Thursday at their meeting. Lunch was served at noon by Mrs. (Rev.) Neal, Mrs. Edward Nelson and Mrs. Bert McColl.

Two quilts were quilted. The proceeds for the day were $18.00.

On Friday evening a number of our young people attended the carnival at Trenton.

MAYOR FOSTER ABSENT FROM YOUNG BANQUET

Five Principal Guests Fail To Attend Luncheon of Hero.

COUNCIL PRESENT.

Board of Control Meeting Given as Reason For Non-Attendance.

TORONTO, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press).—The luncheon tendered by George Young, conqueror of the San Pedro channel, to leaders in Toronto's official, sporting and newspaper circles, is being held without the attendance of the five chief guests, who are Mayor Thomas Foster and the four members of the Board of Control. The Board of Control meeting was indicated as the reason for their inability to be present. Members of the City Council and the other invited guests, however, were present.

CORRESPONDENT ESCAPES

The Chinese commandered the vessel and forced the captain to tow four barges filled with retreating soldiers to Sun Kiang, where the majority of the troops disembarked. A guard of 25 was left behind with orders to shoot if any of us tried to leave or even move. The purpose seemed to be to avoid word of our capture reaching Sun's headquarters.

Others joined me later and we hired a launch to take us to Shanghai. In spite of the pass we were frequently halted by rifle fire.

Our launch arrived at Shanghai early Tuesday, but we were forced to wait until dawn before being permitted to pass into the city. Uneasiness prevails here. There is a lull in the fighting at the front. Nationalists are holding back. All foreigners are evacuating to Shanghai from the line of the retreating armies. The movement to safer zones is general.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 22. — Canadian Press. — The executioner's knife continued to swing through the ranks of the strike agitators here to-day, although on a much smaller scale than on Saturday and Sunday, when some 30 fomenters of the present industrial trouble, were beheaded by Marshal Sun Chuan Fang's authorities in their efforts to keep down the demonstrations.

Beheadings have been effective in bringing the strikers back to work, although it has also greatly increased the activities of the agitators, who now are directing their affairs from the international settlement. As long as they remain in the settlement they are furnished a degree of safety because the police of the native city have no jurisdiction in the foreign colony and the practice of the international settlement officials has been to surrender no person arrested there for political activities. In spite of the improvement it was estimated there were still one hundred thousand on strike.

Gunboat in Action.

A Chinese gunboat stationed in the Whangpoo River, which had been turned over to the Nationalist Government; to-day attempted to shell the Kiangnan arsenal, once one of the greatest in China. The attempt fell short of success, but at least five shells dropped in the French concession nearby, and the residences of two Americans were damaged. Two Chinese were killed, but there were no casualties.

French concession volunteers, the special police and French marines were mobilized for patrolling the streets of the French concession, which is separate from the international settlement.

The American residences damaged were those of William Rae and F. Schlobohm. The residences of R. Wade and Mrs. M. R. Harris, British subjects, and the old French Club, were also hit.

Mrs. Rae and the children fled from their home. A shell exploded in a bedroom at Schlobohm's home.

French Take Action

Two Chinese cruisers, Kiangwei and Kiangkang, were prevented from taking part in the bombardment by two French gunboats, the Alerte and the Marne. The French warships trained their guns upon the Chinese cruisers, but did not fire.

The Chinese cruisers, it was learned on good authority, had agreed to betray Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, ruler of Kiangsu province, and turned over to the Nationalists, who are directing the campaign against Shanghai. Their plan was to steam up the Whangpoo river to join the Nationalist army above Sunkiang. During the bombardment every machine gun in the French section barred ingress from the native city.

Mails Tied Up

SHANGHAI, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press)—The authorities of the foreign settlement here to-day were ready to take "drastic action" to overcome the tie-up of the mails resulting from the general strike called on Saturday. With post offices locked and picketed and in virtual possession of the strikers, business houses as well as individuals have been unable for the last four days to carry on any correspondence.

Strike Continues

SHANGHAI, Feb. 22 (United Press). — In spite of barbarous methods of intimidation against Nationalists, the general strike continued to spread today and beheading of pickets, agitators, coolies and students kept pace.

The decapitations are more brutal even than during the pre-revolutionary days of the Wanchus. The "city executioners" are "amateurs," with no previous experience. The victim's head is hacked off rather than sliced off with one clean blow.

GAME ASSOCIATION ENTERTAIN MINER

Game Reservation For This District Discussed at the Luncheon.

Last night at the Empress hotel the Fish and Game Association entertained at a luncheon Jack Miner. There was a thorough discussion about having a game reservation in this district and Jack Miner submitted much valuable information to the association re the establishing of one.

It is the purpose of the Association to establish a game reservation, if possible, in this district.

FOR INFLAMED BREATHING TUBES

If you have catarrh you are in danger of losing your hearing. The first symptoms of catarrhal deafness are roaring or buzzing sensations and a stopped-up feeling in the ears. A neglected cold, or an uncured cold, leads to catarrh, and as everybody knows, catarrh affects the eyes, ears, nose, throat, lungs and frequently undermines the general health.

The secret of the successful medication of these hidden parts was discovered by Dr. Blosser in his medical practice. This remedy is applied by smoking a certain combination of medical herbs (containing no tobacco) in a pipe or cigarette. Dr. Blosser's Remedy produces a dense smoke vapor which is inhaled or forced into the Eustachian tubes leading to the middle ear. It penetrates to parts impossible to reach with balms, salves, sprays, douches, pills, tablets, liquids and so-called "constitutional treatments." This Remedy is absolutely harmless and is being used successfully by adults and children.

You can get from any drug store a convenient pocket size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes and prove for yourself their pleasant beneficial effects.

SHORT STORY

MAKING LOVE TO MADAMOISELLE

(By H. Louis Raybold.)

Clarke Burlington was doing about forty an hour on the stretch of road which runs from Quebec to Montreal. He wanted to get the drive over with, although it was an anticipated part of his vacation.

"Heck!" he grumbled, guiding the car deftly between a bus and a hayrick. "This is a healthy way of enjoying the scenery—all by one's lonesome in a place where everyone speaks French, and not the sort of French you learned in college either. What I would like——"

On an unexpected curve, the roadster swerved to the soft shoulder, slewed, balanced, then turned over into a bit of meadow three feet lower than the built-up road.

When Clarke woke to a real cognizance of his surroundings, he was lying on a very high, very comfortable bed. On the walls were strange pictures and about the room was unfamiliar furniture. An old woman in a black dress that reached to the floor stood beside a time-darkened chest of drawers measuring something out of a bottle into a spoon.

Feebly he recalled what had occurred and stirred slightly.

At once, the old woman came over and laid a wrinkled hand on his forehead. "Pauvre garcon!" she murmured. "Pauvre garcon!"

But the following morning when Monsieur le docteur, who could speak broken English, arrived, Clarke was able to get a light on his present situation. He learned that his spill had given him, along with lesser injuries, a fractured thigh. That it had been thought the long ambulance ride to the hospital at Three Rivers would be too much for him. That this French family near whose house the accident happened would be glad to care for him for very small compensation.

Afterwards, Clarke lay thinking over his plight. Four hundred miles from home in what was, to all intents and purposes a foreign country. What should he do? Weakness made him homesick and his eyes filled with tears.

At that moment, the door opened gently. Hastily blinking back the tears, Clarke turned his head, expecting to see Madame Vadnais, the nurse "superbe," who was, his instinct told him, the tall old lady in black. But it was not Madame Vadnais. Not at all.

The person who had come in was young and slender and beautiful.

"Bon jour, Mademoiselle!" said Clarke, wishing he could rise and bow.

She answered him in French and she had to repeat what she said not once but several times before he understood it. He sighed to think that between himself and this enchanting girl, whom he took to be one of Madame Vadnais' several granddaughters, communication must be as tedious and limited as one-way traffic.

In the days that followed, he grew fond of the whole Vadnais family from the grandmother, who nursed him, down to the several small children. There were two other young girls besides the blue-eyed Marie, but it was Marie whom he came very nearly to worship.

Each day she visited him, and each day he sought to understand her better. Sometimes old Madame Vadnais joined them and all three got considerable fun out of his attempts at the language.

The weeks passed quickly.

It was with mingled feelings that he took his first walk from the small green-shuttered house out to a bench in the sun. It was pleasant to smell the fragrance of cut hay, to look across the narrow strips of fenced fields stretching down to the river, to catch the gold gleam of a church dome towering above the village on the other side, knowing that many miles beyond lay the home to which he would be at last able to return.

But when he thought of Marie, a strange ache troubled him. He knew that he had come to love her as he could love no other woman. He knew, also that American men had married French girls and found happiness.

When he saw her coming towards him with a little smile on her face as if she cherished a secret joy, he flung any apprehensions he might have had to the wind.

"Marie," he began, rising somewhat unsteadily to meet her, "Vous etes la——la—plus— Oh, hang it, if I could only tell her I love her in good plain English!"

From beneath curling lashes, Marie looked up at him oddly. "Why don't you try?" she asked in plain English.

Clarke was too dazed to speak. Then, "What—why—" he stammered. "Marie——".

"Actually, I am Mary Leonard," said the girl. "A native of beautiful old Stockbridge. I roomed with Berthe Vadnais at the convent in Montreal and was visiting her when you had your accident. You took me for one of the family, and it seemed best to leave it that way and have the rest do so. The Vadnais would have felt continually shut out, if they knew we had so much in common.

"Besides," she said, laughing, "you know the strictness of French chaperonage. They would never have felt quite sure of the discreetness of our conversation. And now, if you have forgiven me, just what"—and here she blushed adorably, "were you about to say?"

Renewed strength flowed into Clarke's veins, as he drew her to him. "Je t'aime!" he said, tenderly. "My darling!"

For Deep Chest Colds

All colds should be treated with vapors, for vapors alone can carry the medication DIRECTLY to the air passages and lungs.

Vicks is a "vapor" treatment in salve form. For deep chest colds you first apply hot wet towels over throat and chest to open the pores, then massage briskly with Vicks for 5 minutes, spread on thickly and cover with a flannel cloth.

Vicks not only penetrates like a poultice or plaster, but the ingredients, vaporized by the body heat, are inhaled all night long.

COULDN'T WALK STEADY, MAN BLAMES GAS

"For years I suffered from gas on the stomach. At times I could not walk and felt like I would topple over. Adlerika has done me more good than anything I have ever taken."—P. F. Carley.

Adlerika is a compound of the best saline intestinal cleanser with glycerine, buckthorn, cascara and other gas-expelling and detergent elements. It is excellent for Intestinal Stasis, a disease due to modern ways of living and which is often the true cause of sour stomach, gas bloating, nervous dyspepsia and restless sleep.

Unlike most medicines, Adlerika acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel, giving the intestines a REAL clensing and bringing out old poisonous matter you never thought was in your system. Even if bowels move daily, you will be surprised how much more old matter Adlerika brings out which may have been causing all your trouble. In slight disorders, like occasional constipation, GAS bloating, indigestion or sick headache, ONE spoonful always brings relief.

Doctors Praise Adlerika

Dr. H. L. Shoub, New York: "Adlerika, in addition to its intestinal cleansing, checks the growth of intestinal bacteria."

Dr. A. C. Curl: "I prescribe Adlerika with highly satisfactory results."

Dr. J. Weaver: "In my 50 years' practice, I have found nothing to excel Adlerika."

J. E. Puckett: "After using Adlerika, I feel better than for 20 years. Awful impurities were eliminated from my sytsem."

Dr. F.M.P. (name withheld by request): "I use Adlerika in all bowel cases. Some require only one dose."

No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In Peterboro at McDermid & Jury and other druggists.

An Attractive Dress for the Junior Miss

Exceedingly smart is this chic dress suitable for all daytime wear. There is an inverted plait in each side seam to provide for the necessary skirt fulness, and the front is joined to side sections in an attractive manner, while the back is in one piece. Contrasting material may be effectively used for the becoming round collar, belt, and cuffs finishing the long tight-fitting sleeves. NO. 1510 is in sizes 8, 10, 12 and 14 years. Size 10 years requires 2¼ yards 36-inch material, or 2¼ yards 54-inch, and ¼ yard contrasting. Price 20 cents the pattern.

The secret of distinctive dress lies in good taste rather than a lavish expenditure of money. Every woman should want to make her own clothes, and the home dressmaker will find the designs illustrated in our new Fashion Book to be practical and simple, yet maintaining the spirit of the mode of the moment. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

It was a white, enormous-eyed little Cherry who hovered like a forlorn bird at the door into the drawing room where the inquest was being held. Behind her, whispering to her, was a broad-chested, middle-aged man whom Faith had never seen before, but whose pictures had been printed frequently in the papers in connection with sensational trials. Next to Ralph Cluny, who was now dead, Stephen Churchill was the most successful criminal lawyer in the state. He had been district attorney, a judge of a district court and had recently been defeated for attorney general of the state. Faith's heart gave a great throb of thanksgiving when she saw who had aligned himself with her sister, against the hideous net of circumstantial evidence that was closing about her.

"Oh, Bob!" she whispered on a sob. "It's Stephen Churchill, isn't it? How can we possibly pay him?"

"I called him into the case; you're not to worry about money," Bob Hathaway told her in an almost fierce whisper.

"Dr. Murchison," Stephen Churchill followed Cherry Lane Wiley to the coroner's table, "I have been informing Mrs. Wiley, whose interests I represent, that she is not compelled by law to appear before this jury."

"I want to testify!" Cherry cried, throwing her tiny hands out in an unconsciously lovely gesture of appeal. "I have nothing to conceal. I didn't do anything wrong and I want everybody to know I didn't, so they'll stop hinting these dreadful things about me." She slipped into the chair which the coroner indicated.

"What is your name?" Coroner Murchison asked, after Cherry had been sworn.

"Cherry—I mean Charity Amanda Lane," Cherry answered. Then remembrance swept over her and she corrected herself hastily. "Charity Amanda Lane Wiley."

"Your age?"

"Eighteen going on nineteen," she answered childishly. "I'll be nineteen the twentieth of December."

"Now, Mrs. Wiley, will you detail the events of yesterday evening, beginning with about eight o'clock?"

"At eight o'clock my sister, Faith, fixed my bath for me. After my bath, I went to my room to dress, and Faith went to hers. I started to dress, and then I heard something hit against the window. I opened the window and Chris Wiley—Christopher Wiley, who is now my husband—" her voice died away on the words, as they amazed her, frightened her.

"You saw Mr. Wiley?" the coroner prodded her gently, for he had succumbed immediately to Cherry's extreme youth and beauty.

"Yes, sir, Mr. Wiley had been trying for months to get me to marry him, but I didn't want to hurt Mr. Cluny, and my parents didn't want me to marry Chris. But when I saw Chris, and knew that in a little while it would be too late, something happened to me. He begged me to run away with him, said he had his car parked two houses below ours.

"All of a sudden, it seemed I couldn't possibly marry an old man. It seemed horrible to me, when Chris loved me so much he wouldn't give me up even at the very last. So without thinking I took off my wedding things, put on this suit, wrote Faith a note on the back of an envelope, and climbed out of the window.

"It was snowing hard, and we climbed the low fence to the next house and ran through their yard to Chris' car. It couldn't have been more than six or seven minutes after Chris knocked on the window before we got into his car. I didn't take any clothes with me. I couldn't think straight—I just wanted to run away from marrying Mr. Cluny."

There was a complete, a death-like stillness in the room as Cherry made her damning confession.

Stephen Churchill rose abruptly from his seat in the first row of chairs beyond the coroner's table, and strode purposefully to Cherry's side.

"I must warn you, as your attorney, Mrs. Wiley, that anything you say now can be used against you—"

"The truth can't be used against me, when I'm not guilty of doing anything criminal," Cherry cried, both hands outstretched as if to push him away. "I haven't anything to hide, Mr. Church hill, and I demand to be allowed to tell everything I know."

"Now, Mrs. Wiley, go right on with your story. Tell it your own way. We're here to get the truth, and I believe you can give us the truth—or as much of it as you know—without questions from me."

"Thank you, Dr. Murchison," Cherry's golden eyes filled with quick tears. "Chris had a marriage license he had taken out three or four months ago, when he had been so sure I would marry him. He wanted to drive right to a minister's house in Marlboro, and get married, but I told him we'd have to tell poor Mr. Cluny.

"Chris tried to argue me out of it—said if I saw Mr. Cluny, he'd talk me into going on with the wedding. But I knew that I could never marry Mr. Cluny, no matter what he said to me.

"It must have been about eight thirty when Chris drove into the grounds, and stopped the car at the side of the entrance, near the door. Mary, the parlor maid, let me in, and then she told me Mr. Cluny was in his bedroom dressing. I ran right on up the stairs. I was sure he would be nearly ready, for it was getting late, and I knew Bob—Bob Hathaway—was to call for Mr. Cluny at a quarter to nine. I wanted to tell him what I was going to do before Bob got here, because I didn't want to have to argue with two men.

"Mr. Cluny was fussing with his necktie when I went in. I'd knocked and he'd said, 'Come in, Mary. Mr. Hathaway here already.' He was awfully surprised to see me, and I began to talk real fast. I told him that I'd found I couldn't marry him after all, nd that I'd come to tell him so.

"He wouldn't believe me at first, kept saying, 'My dear child! Have you gone crazy?' I kept telling him I couldn't marry him, because I didn't love him—that way—and then I started to cry. He put his arms around me, and said he'd send me home in his car, and I'd still have time to dress for the wedding. I saw he wouldn't believe me, and I said, 'But I can't, Ralph! I can't marry you! I mean it, Ralph! I thought I could go through with it, but I can't!'"

The coroner waited for a minute for her to control her emotion, then gently asked her, "Did Mr. Cluny make any threats to force you to go on with the wedding, Mrs. Wiley?"

Cherry stared at the man with terror in her eyes. Then, with her voice falsely cool and amused, she answered: "Why, of course not, Dr. Murchison! Mr. Cluny is—was—a gentleman! He was angry and hurt, of course, but he didn't threaten me!"

Cherry's first lie at the inquest turned Faith's heart into a leaden thing, that felt as if it would never beat again.

CRISP VEGETABLES

All fresh vegetables should be perfectly crisp before they are put into boiling water to cook. If they have become wilted, they should first be restored in cold water.

WASHING WOODWORK

When varnished woodwork has become very much soiled, it may be washed with soap and water if the varnish is unbroken, but if this is worn off or if there are deep scratches, water should not be used until the surface has been protected by a coat of oil.

IF THEY STAND

If boiled potatoes must stand after cooking, cover the top of the pan with several folds of cheesecloth and let it stand on a warm part of the stove. This allows the moisture to escape, but it protects the vegetable from the cold air.

GROUP MEETING.

Rev. J. D. Paterson is Leader of Y.W.C.A. Religious Group.

The first group meeting at the Y.W.C.A. for discussion and study on the question "What is an adequate religion for the Youth of Today," was held last evening with a good attendance. The group decided to have a question box. Rev. J. D. Paterson who will lead the group outlined a plan for each evening. The first 15 minutes will be for discussion of general questions; the second 15 minutes period Mr. Paterson will give a paper on helps from the Bible for daily living, and the last 15 minutes for discussion of the special thought.

The group last evening thoroughly appreciated the opportunity for bringing together their ideas and the informal hour was a real help.

A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested to come each Monday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

Although just entering her forty-seventh year, Queen Wilhelmina of Holland, Europe's only woman reigning sovereign, bids fair to enjoy one of the longest reins in history, for she became nominal queen at the age of ten, on the death of her father. Counting the Dutch colonies, she reigns over a population of about 30,000,000.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

Your barber may cut your hair so as to leave your ears ruthlessly exposed, but your milliner will make a hat with ear tabs to cover them. Locks of hair extending over ears and down on the cheeks are, of course, no longer considered smart, but if you do insist on these slightly old-fashioned adornments you may have the satisfaction at least of knowing that they will be well hidden by one of the new hats.

Some of these little hats give quite a nun-like appearance to the face, for they are fitted very closely over the forehead with a rounded outline that leaves the eyebrows exposed and then curves down to meet the close-fitting ear pieces. Suzanne Talbot is one of the French milliners who favor this new silhouette. It is quite important, however, that these little hats should be shaped precisely to the head following the outline of the eyebrows—a line which varies enormously with different individuals. Only a very narrow, even line of forehead should show between eyebrows and hat.

Sometimes the ear tabs are little extensions of the felt or other material entirely covered with an artificial flower of some sort—and sometimes only one ear is covered in this way, the other being left exposed. The fact is that, as spring hats become matters of fact and not just something to dream about, the ear tab will be considered the really normal place to wear flower trimming on a hat.

Some of the new hats look a little like Napoleon's high cocked hat, and the ear tabs are extensions of the upstanding front piece that is applied to resemble the enormous cocked brim of the original. The most usual hat of the ear-tab variety is of felt with the ear pieces resembling the points of a crescent curving outward over the ears and cheeks.

RECITAL

(By Jeanette)

There was a good attendance at Murray Street Baptist Church last evening, for the Concert Recital given by Miss Lillian Eastwood, soprano, and D'Alton McLaughlin, A.A.G.O., organist of Bloor Street Baptist Church, Toronto. The recital, of a pleasing length, was varied in character, and was, from beginning to end, composed of music somewhat unfamiliar in type to the average music lover.

Miss Eastwood is the possessor of a voice of extraordinary quality, which has widened and expanded in volume and resonance since her last public appearance here. A very wide range was demonstrated in her programme of last night. It is seldom that a voice has the lovliness in its low register possessed by this singer, and the remarkable clarity, volume and power which made her attack and execution of soaring treble octaves at once a joy and a pleasure to listen to. There are soprano voices which rise to heights like this, but they do it at the cost of a great deal of manifest effort. Miss Eastwood's upper register is birdlike in its natural, unstrained quality. The middle voice is not so good, and the whole programme of songs suffered to a great extent by a constant vibrato in tone also, by a thickening of enunciation in several of the songs. Instead of the words being paramount at all times, as in so many of the modern singers' work, the overtone of the vocal organ itself was most in evidence last night, the words being subordinated to the sound which often obscured their meaning altogether.

The programme of vocal numbers was interesting throughout, but to one listener, and perhaps others, because the applause was general after this song, the little hymn of the "City Four-Square," entitled "No Night There," sung in a contralto range, was exceptionally sweet and well done. However, quite a different type of singing and of versatile execution was evident in two operatic arias which were wonderfully rendered, with a dramatic expression and volume of soaring, beautiful tone that made them outstanding in the extreme. These were the "Pace, Pace, Mio Dio" selection from Verdi's "La Forza del Destino," with beautifully-controlled, flexible trills and cadenzas, and "I Will Extol Thee," from Costa's "Eli."

A broad scope of vocal work was demonstrated in the briefer bits which formed the opening and closing numbers of the vocal programme, in a reverent composition by Wolf, "To Rest, To Rest," two bright things in Brahms' attractive style, "The Disappointed Serenader," and "My Heart is in Bloom," a minor-acted song, "If Slender Lilies Wandered Forth" by Weingartner, and Strauss' "E'er Since Thine Eyes." Buck's composition, "My Redcemer and My Lord" was another attractive rendition.

The last group included five short songs, "Ecstasy," by Rummel, "The Wind in the Corn," by Coryell, "Little Star," by Le Forge, and two dainty things of whimsical import, "Three Little Fairy Songs," by Besly, and "Children of the Moon," by Warren.

The organist, D'Alton McLaughlin, made a very pleasing impression on his hearers by his music. The organ programme was of the descriptive type which appeals to the ear, rather than of a classical or technical in character, and was light and bright in tone. Mr. McLaughlin plays with ease and composure, in attractive fashion that brought him much applause at the ending, as at the commencement, of an interesting programme.

Three brief bits by Bonnet comprised the first organ offerings; the vivacious "Caprice Heroique," the softly smooth "Romance sans Paroles," with its recurrent refrain, and a delicate, trilly rendition entitled "Ariel."

A descriptive thing: "Grape Vines" from "Hours in Burgundy," was in staccato effect, the measures colored by the bird songs of the vineyard and the laughter of the workers.

"Sonata Number Four," by Rheinberger, a composition with unceasing treble against disjointed bass chords, introduced in its first movement the traditional air used at the Last Supper, and the organ programme concluded with three charming selections, the sweetly-played, chiming cadences of "Abide With Me," the mild and peaceful measures of "Cantilena," with the "vox humana" stop in evidence, and the mildly merry music of "An Elizabethan Idyll."

Mr. McLaughlin played accompaniments for Miss Eastwood's songs both on the organ and piano.

WOMEN TO LOBBY MEMBERS OF HOUSE

All Women's Organizations Co-operating in Equal Suffrage Movement.

LONDON, Feb. 22. Canadian Press. — Lady Astor's attack on the government in an effort to obtain equal suffrage for women will be sensationally supported, under the present plans, by mass lobbying of the members of Parliament at the House of Commons, on March 3rd by women drafted from numerous suffragist organizations. Lady Astor herself is coaching lobbyists for the demonstration, which will be the first of its kind since the hectic days of militant suffrage activities before the war. All the women's organizations are cooperating.

Throwing a bombshell into the Varsity camp by a perfect adoption of the six-man defence game so successfuly employed by the Ottawa Senators, the battling Petes surprised the hockey world last night by holding Connie Smythe's Grads to a 1-1 tie, in the first game of the senior group play offs, staged at the Arena Gardens, Toronto.

Group honors therefore depend upon the result of the second game to be played in Peterboro tomorrow night and, although the battle will be a desperate struggle and the series is still anybody's, the Petes hae a royal chance to eliminate the Varsity outfit and qualify for the senior finals.

Last night's result stunned the Toronto hockey fraternity.

The Grads, fresh from a triumphant run of twelve straight victories during which they had piled up a remarkable goal scoring record, were called upon to win pulled up.

The bettors made the Varsity team 5 to 1 favorites on the game, 10 to 1 on the round, and offered even money that the Smythe machine would win last night by five goals.

They had beaten the Petes 10 to 0 only last week and the fans were so sure that the second placers would be overwhelmed that all but 2500 of them passed up the game as not likely to even produce a decent argument.

Well the Petes showed them.

The Grads speed and teamwork, the dazzling stickhandling that had swept them through all season for goal after goal were met by a perfect defensive system against which the Varsity attacks bear all night in vain. The Petes confined their raids into Varsity territory to one and two man affairs with the attackers scampering back to their own blue line as soon as they had got the shot away.

Perfect Defence Work.

The result was that every Varsity attack was opposed by a solid bunch of determined checkers who made combination impossible and smothered individual rushes with equal effect. Not a Grad puck carrier worked into the Petes' defence area without a checker draped around him, not a Grad attacker attempted to get in position for a pass without finding himself covered by one of the Petes. Bearing down three men together time after time Varsity crashed into a packed defence that frustrated their every effort and long before the game was over the clever Grad machine had degenerated into a disorganized outfit who were obviously rattled at finding themselves up against a problem that they could not solve.

So far up in the air indeed were the ex-students in the last period that there is little doubt that had the Petes suddenly switched to a determined offensive they would have brought home a lead on the round. They chose, however, to play their kitty-bar-the-door policy to the finish and even Ottawa Senators who inaugurated this style of play could not have employed it with any more satisfactory results. It is not a system that scores many goals, but the Grads are forced to admit that it is not a system against which many goals can easily be registered.

A daring pass to the blue line by Dr. Joe Sullivan, from a mix-up in front of the Grads nets, and a lightning thrust by Dave Trottier for a marker were all that prevented the Petes' tactics from registering a 100 per cent success.

That one goal came eight minutes from the start and in the remaining 52 minutes the attackers, who last Wednesday had scored five times in 79 seconds, could not get a chance to drive another shot past Joe Dwyer, who rose to the occasion and played an almost perfect game in the Petes' nets.

Varsity did the bulk of the attacking, sending down a three man raid most of the time, but, although the Petes' retaliation took the form of a solitary rush or a two-man attack, Eddie Wright's team, on the night's play, had more chances to score than did their opposition. Individually the Petes' puck carriers showed good stickhandling that carried them into Varsity territory, while several two-man plays by the second placers beat the Grads' defence cleanly and might easily have been rewarded with goals.

It was, however, on a lone-handed play that Babe Bogardis tied up the game two minutes after the second period opened, a fast dash between the Varsity defence pair giving the Petes' right winger a chance to beat Sullivan.

Every Pete A Hero.

That was the last goal of the game, the Grads battering away for the remaining thirty-eight minutes without being able to again take the lead.

Every man in a Peterboro uniform was a hero last night. From Dwyer out the Petes battled with a spirit that would not admit a possibility of defeat. The forwards, fitting into the defense scheme laid down for last night, did their share nobly by harassing every attacker that crossed the blue line, while McLeod and Rose crashed into the puck carrier in effective style. With Dwyer smothering everything that was hurled at him, behind this perfect checking the Varsity attack was impotent from the start and became more so as the worried ex-students forget their technique and training and began to act like rattled juniors.

Dwyer played every drive carefully and although the Grads drove in their shots accurately and with plenty of smoke on them, that one marker by Trottier was the only time the veteran was beaten. McLeod and Rose both rushed well, but their best work was done on the defence where they checked with fine judgment. Defensively it was perhaps McLeod's best effort since he became a member of the Petes. All five forwards covered themselves with glory. Collins, Ranger and Bogardis, the three starters, and Parker and Kane were great in their checking and every one of them was dangerous on the attack. Each of the five made smart plays that came close to goals.

Outstanding for Varsity were Joe Sullivan in the net, and Davie Trottier, the dashing left wing. Sullivan made a lot of fine stops and in addition it was his willingness to take a chance on a long pass out from a mix up that paved the way for the Grads only goal. Trottier was much the best forward. Hudson skated a lot but got nowhere and the usually dangerous Plaxton was smothered by the effectiveness of the Petes' checking. Neither Porter nor Taylor, although they both came down often, could solve the defence barrage successfully.

Something of the Play.

The Petes dropped their whole team back on the defensive from the first bell and Varsity tearing in with three-man attacks found themselves facing unexpected resistance. The tactics gave the visitors a chance to break away but their attacks were confined to not more than two men.

Early in the period Collins was tripped by Red Porter and the big sorrel top got the first penalty of the game. While he was off Bogardis went down and tearing in for his own rebound almost beat Joe Sullivan. Ranger and Collins combined smartly and a goal looked sure but Sullivan's shoulder was in the road. Varsity could not break through, McLeod icing Trottier with a body check on one attack. Dwyer took care of their shots from outside and even when Collins was penalized for tripping Hughey Plaxton when the Varsity centre was working in close the Petes held their own. The sides were even when the Grads got their only goal of the night. McLeod and Kane went down together and McLeod tore in fast for the rebound. Porter checked him just in time to prevent a score and Joe Sullivan recovered the puck. He took a chance by shooting it through to Trottier near the blue line and the Grads left wing broke fast, went around Collins and when almost past the goal post let drive a shot which ripped between Dwyer's pads for a goal.

The reverse did not daunt the Petes. They stuck to their defensive system and the Grads' attacks could get nowhere while their own raids gave Sullivan something to worry about. Penalties to Kane and then to Delahey and Collins, the latter when Frank Sullivan tried to hurdle his stick and fell came before the period ended.

Early in the second frame Bogardis sewed up the game. Right off the reel he went up alone and just missed netting his own rebound. He came back with another similar rush and was checked by the Varsity defence pair as he was about to shoot. The puck rose into the air and fell in front of Sullivan and Bogardis ripped through between Porter and Taylor to slide the rubber past Sullivan as he came out to clear.

The goal threw dismay into the Varsity ranks while the Petes skated over to clap Bogardis on the back as he came back for the face-off.

It was fast hockey after the goal and Varsity came close on a three man rush Dwyer saving twice in the mix-up that followed.

Then Kenny Kane drew a cheer from the crowd when he battled up in the Varsity corner with three of the Grads, finally eluded them all and carried the rubber out in front almost scoring.

Delahey drew the only penalty of the period for slashing and several Peterboro attacks while he was off made it interesting.

The Petes' defensive system was still air tight and the most dangerous attack for the rest of the session was made by Trottier who stickhandled inside only to be beaten by a great stop by Joe Dwyer.

So far as the Petes were concerned the last period was a repetition of the other two. They declined to be drawn out and if anything tightened up their checking with the result that the Grads desperate efforts to break through became easier to handle as the Varsity attackers in their anxiety to take the lead began to lose their judgment and balled up their own plays. Had the Petes pressed the attack from this stage on they would in all probability have won. As it was they came closer to scoring than did the Grads. A rush by Ranger and a neat pass to Parker gave the Petes a great chance. "Snap" tried to pick the corner of the net but Sullivan got his arm over in time to make a great stop. The Grads got a chance when Delahey went in close but Kane pulled his feet from under him ,getting a penalty but spoiling a good scoring opportunity.

The closest the Grads came to scoring in this period was on a nice rush by Trottier and a pass out to Plaxton at the goal mouth. Rose, however, picked the pass off in the nick of time and the Varsity crew did not get another close in chance the final bell finding the Petes' still holding the fort and credited with a tie that under the circumstances was as good as a win.

EMIL ST. GODDARD LEADS IN FIRST LAP

Makes Time in 3 Hours, 47 Minutes and 30 Seconds.

QUEBEC, Que., Feb. 22 (Canadian Press).—Emil St. Goddard of The Pas, Man., with his team of seven greyhound huskies, demonstrated yesterday his exceptional speed when he won the first day's 40-mile lap of the Quebec International Dog Derby over a hilly and snow-drifted course in the fast time of 3 hours 47 minutes 30 seconds. His average rate of speed was approximately 10 miles per hour. Emil finished some 16 minutes and 35 seconds ahead of his nearest rival, George Chevrette, of Quebec, and following close behind was Leonhardt Seppala, some three minutes in the rear.

St. Goddard's dogs all finished with their tails in the air and ready for the grind to-day.

Summary first day:

No. 8—Emil St. Goddard, first, 3:47:30.

No. 14—G. Chevrette, second, 4:05:35.

No. 5—L. Seppala, third, 4:06:25.

No. 11—Paddy Nolan, fourth, 4:32:50.

No. 1—Frank Dupuis, fifth, 4:54:45.

No. 4—V. Lavigne, sixth, 4:55:05.

No. 12—J. Roberts, seventh, 4:56:20.

No. 7—A. Beaulieu, eighth, 4:56:50.

No. 9—H. Pouliot, ninth, 4:59:30.

No. 6—F. Blouin, tenth, 5:08:00.

No. 2—J. Villeeneuve, eleventh, 5:09:40.

No. 13—Joe Dupuis, twelfth, 5:11:50.

Chevrette crossed the finish line trailing one dog and one or two in his team loping very groggy. For the third year in succession it is noted that his type of pure-blooded greyhounds cannot stand the test, for each successive year they start out strong but fail in the finish.

The most dangerous competitor St. Goddard has is Leonhardt Seppala. His "Siberian malamites" have not the appearance of show animals, but they have the staying power. They are small in stature but grit throughout, and gallop their gait over hill and dale without change. His team finished in first-class condition. The demonstration of mushing ability exhibited by the 15-year-old Quebec idol, "Paddy" Nolan, who drove only five dogs and finished in fourth position, was heartily applauded. A thrill went through thousands when young "Paddy" crossed the finish line.

The race yesterday was a great endurance test, and the position in which the teams finished show remarkable stamina for the first 40 miles of the race.

Frank Dupuis, winner of last year's race, and who was rated high to win again this year, fell down badly, and finished with one of his best dogs trailing behind his sled.

However, Dupuis is a wonderful dog musher. Last year he copped the race as a dark horse, and a similar performance may be repeated this year. Then there is J. Roberts also who ran a clean and wonderful race, and who may surprise the most confident in to-day's event.

CANADIAN TEAMS FOR DAVIS CUP

Championships in 1927 To Be Held in Vancouver.

The ranking list of Canada's first ten players for 1926, as compiled by the ranking committee, was confirmed by unanimous vote.

The Vancouver Lawn Tennis Club was awarded the Canadian championships for 1927 by unanimous vote after the Toronto Lawn Tennis Club had withdrawn its application on the understanding that this event would hereafter be played in the east for some years. The time fixed for the event this year was the week commencing July 25.

It was decided to enter a team in the Davis Cup contest for 1927.

The various amendments proposed in the Canadian Association bylaws and tournament regulations were approved, as also the changes in the rules of the game and regulations of the international lawn tennis championship (Davis Cup.)

The question of the proposed new definition of an amateur which is to be submitted to the International Lawn Tennis Federation at its annual meeting in Paris next month was referred to council of the association for consideration.

The treasurer's report for the past year was adopted, and a vote of thanks given the officers for their attention to the association during the year.

AT MILLBROOK.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 21.—One of the rinks of local curlers, W. H. Collins, W. E. Ball, G. W. Sayles, and R. H. Edmunds, which competed in the annual bonspiel at Peterborough last week, was in the finals for the Morrow trophy, the mild weather making the ice so soft the last game against Dr. Harvie of Orillia to be postponed, probably until Saturday next, the players returning home by motor on Friday night.

In the first round for the Morrow Cup, Edmunds defeated Gandie of Lindsay, 13-8; in the second round the score stood, Edmunds 16, Peacock of Oshawa 8; and in the semi-finals, Edmunds defeated T. H. Connal of Peterboro by 13-8.

Dr. Harvie, the opposing skip, carried off both the Matthews-Blackwell and Morrow trophies from the bonspiel last year.

The local rink is the one which brought home the District Cup from Peterboro this season, and in the series for winners of this trophy at Toronto won four straight games, one of them over a Toronto rink. Had it not been a double rink competition the Governor - General's trophy would have been gracing Edmunds and Sons' store window beside the District Cup.

The second rink from the local club, H. B. Allen, H. J. Grassett, J. E. Allen, and J. Steele, also gave a good account of itself, the indisposition of the skip, J. Steele, necessitating his return home before the 'spiel was concluded.

Steele defeated R. F. Downey of Peterboro in the first round for tthe Matthews-Blackwell trophy by 22-7, and lost to W. J. Moore of Keene, 3-18; in the second round the score stood, Steele 15, Langdon of Lindsay 8; and in the third round, J. H. Connal of Peterboro had 16 points, and Steele 3.

In the 13-point games at the local rink last week for the Gillott trophy, G. Raper defeated W. West, the score standing 13-8.

TWO FIXTURES AT CAMPBELLFORD

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 22.—Tuesday night's card at Covert's Arena should draw the biggest crowd of the season. The senior fixture bringing together the fast stepping Clerks and Menie. Menie has to win this game to stay in the running, and right now are playing their best hockey of the season. While the Clerks will not take any chances of being knocked out of the playoff and one of the best games of the season should result. As an added attraction the all star midget team will take on the speedy Warkworth juniors in an exhibition game prior to the senior fixture.

Warkworth juniors have been winning consistently all season, but the speed and cleverness of the local midgets will give them plenty to worry about, and the game should be worth going a long way to see. It will start at 7.30 p.m.

BOARD PROBES BANTAM MOLD

Fighters, Their Managers and Tex Rickard Called in Investigation.

RULES VIOLATED.

NEW YORK, Feb. 22.—Charges that "inside business" was done before the recent bantamweight championship fight between Charley Rosenberg and Bushey Graham was being investigated today by the New York boxing commission.

Rosenberg and his manager, Harry Segal; Graham and his manager, William Parr, and Tex Rickard, William Carey, William Walters and Jess McMahon were subpoenaed to tell what they knew about the manipulation of contracts entered into between the managers of the two boxers.

On the surafce it was charged that the rules of the commission covering contracts for the purses in championship fights were violated, but underneath an effort will be made to learn how much, if any, the big gamblers cleaned up on advance information.

Won and Lost.

Rosenberg was 4½ pounds overweight and forfeited the title before he entered the ring, but he won the decision from Graham and the title was declared vacant.

The rules of the commission provide that 37½ per cent of the receipts shall be paid to the champion in a championship match and 17½ per cent to the challenger. The commission, however, charges that a second contract between the managers was drawn, giving Graham only five per cent of his purse.

Segal, Rosenberg's manager, practically admitted that such an arrangement was made and claimed it a common practice for a champion to get a kickback from the challenger for risking his title.

He claims the Mandell-Kansas lightweight championship fight and the Walker-Flowers middleweight championship fight had to be underwritten by the challengers.

Just A Gift.

"I never knew it was in the New York law that a champion's manager couldn't accept a gift from the challenger, and that's all we got. We had to give one before Eddie Martin would fight Rosenberg", he said.

Segal denied blame because Rosenberg was not at weight and had to forfeit the title. He pointed out that he asked the commission for a postponement because Rosenberg might not be able to make the weight and that he was forced to fight.

The commission was interested to know how long in advance the gamblers knew that Rosenberg would not make the weight and how they were wise enough to bet that Rosenberg would win the decision and at the same time that he would lose the title.

Rickard and McMahon said they were not responsible for agreements between managers and fighters, and that they made out the checks to the fights according to the rules.

No poisonous reptiles and few wild animals are to be found in Japan.

T. ROSE WINS BILLIARD GAME

TORONTO, Feb. 22.—The first games in the Ontario preliminaries for the Dominion English billiard amateur title opened last night at Brunswick Hall between J. E. Higgins, representing the Beaver Recreation Club, Toronto, and T. Rose, representing Williamson's Billiard Academy, Toronto. There are sixteen aspirants for the title in Ontario, and these two were the first to clash.

The two players are very evenly matched, and it was a tussle right through with Rose finally emerging the victor, 500 to 472. Higgins is usually reckoned by close friends to be a good player, but last night he evinced a nervousness and a tendency to play too carefully, which resulted in many of his shots going wide of the mark.

Rose, who is the much older of the two, on the other hand is a very steady player and the made thirteen 'long losers" during the course of the game, missing only one out of the thirteen, which is a record some of the Canadian professionals might envy.

This evening, commencing at 8 o'clock, J. Johnson, representing the West End Canadian Legion Club, meets H. Bottomley of the Strang Billiard Hall.

The Billiards' Association of Canada, which is conducting these matches, is paying all expenses connected therewith and is devoting the entire proceeds to the East End Hospital. The public is therefore cordially invited to attend and, besides witnessing good billiards, assist a worthy cause.

BASKETBALL NOTES.

The junior basketball team will practice to-night at 8 o'clock in the Y.M.C.A.

THE TORONTO PRESS ON HOCKEY GAME

Grads Lucky To Earn a Draw, Says Mail and Empire.

Need for a thoroughly sound anti-defense rule—one that cannot be evaded or surmounted, if it be possible to evolve such a clause in the hockey code, was demonstrated last night by the Peterborough O. H. A. seniors in their game against University of Toronto Grads. The Peterborough sextet adopted "packed defense' tactics that would have done "credit" to any of the pro. teams who have resorted to that aggravating method of defending the goal. The visitors held the Grads to a 1-to-1 score, and meet the ex-Blue team in the Lift Lock City on equal terms, in so far as goals are concerned. From the standpoint of a tactician it was 'good business." Frequent one-man sorties into Toronto territory, made the game not altogether uninteresting, but it was far from the O.H.A. senior game at its best. Absence of an adequate anti-defense rule is the weakest spot in the O.H.A. code, which is superior to the messy and intricate pro code in most other respects.—The Globe.

The Grads were rather lucky to earn a draw, and but for some wonderful goal tending by Dr. Joe Sullivan, would have gone down to defeat, for Peterboro had a shade the better part of the play the greater part of the 60 minutes. Jack Porter and Ross Taylor at times appeared powerless against th Peterboro thrusts. The Grads' defence pair would not or could not use their bodies on the opposing puck carrier, but the chances are Taylor and Porter not having found it necessary to body check in their group games, could not get back into their stride last night.

But the Petes must be given a whole lot of credit for their magnificent hockey. They matched the Grads at their own game, and the Petes' defensive system prevented their opponents getting away on the fast breaking attacks which were so prominent in the scoring of twelve straight victories. The Grads continue as favorites to win the O.H.A. senior championship but they will have to play a superior brand of hockey than they did last night to eliminate the Petes, who, apparently, have finally reached the form expected of them earlier in the season. The return game on Wednesday should be a clinker, but if Peterboro wins it will be the biggest hockey upset in all time.—The Mail and Empire.

CANADIAN WOOLLENS DEFEAT LOCK WORKS

Losers Play Fine Brand of Hockey But Lose 5 Goals To 3.

The Canadian Woollens beat the Lockworks in a game of hockey on the Brock street rink on Saturday afternoon by the score of 5-3. The favorable score of the Woollens was due to the fact that the Lockmakers could not shoot at the goal, and when they did they shot straight at Deb Hillier, the Woollens' goalie. After stopping one shot from Hall, Deb obligingly got out of the net, and made room for the next three, with the result of a goal each time.

Vic. Lang tried hard but spent much of his time lying on the ice as did also Rope Holland. Scotty Maudesley played hockey.

The losers all played good hockey, with the goal keeper starring. Hall rushed well and packs a nice shot.

Murray played a nice game both ways, as did also Howe.

With the losers it was a good hockey game; with the winners it was good vaudeville.

CANADIAN WRITES HIS IMPRESSION OF FLORIDA

The other day a letter came from a Canadian holidaying in Florida. He bubbled over with enthusiasm for this winter resort. "The grape fruit and oranges with their bright splashes of color are simply marvellous!" (It was his first visit to Florida). "The motoring is wonderful. The golf superb!" In fact, when telling about the tropical scenery, the climate, the recreations and hotels, a whole host of superlatives seemed necessary for an adequate description.

You had better pack your bags for Florida and the Gulf Coast now, when the season is at its height. Any agent of the Canadian National Railways will gladly supply you with all the necessary information regarding rates, routes and resorts.

MONTHLY MEETING OF ST. PAUL'S MEN

R. F. Downey Gives Interesting Talk To Men's Association.

The monthly meeting and dinner of the Men of St. Paul's held last night proved to be a most successful event. R. F. Downey the speaker of the evening delivered an interesting and instructive address entitled "Canada and Education." During the course of his address Mr. Downey stressed the value of education along the line that the particular pupil wished to follow.

The speaker was introduced by Dr. J. J. Craig.

An enjoyable programme was presented, Miss Jean Hamilton, elocutionist, contributing several enjoyable numbers. Hugh Niven also sang in his usual pleasing manner. Martin Chenhall acted as accompanist.

The thanks of the meeting were conveyed to the artists by the Rev. William Allan and to the speaker by Richard Lees.

PROBE FOLLOWS SUDDEN DEATH TORONTO GIRL

Died at Muskoka Hospital As Result of Acute Peritonitis.

SECRET MARRIAGE.

Constable States He Was Offered $5,000 To Keep Quiet.

(Special to The Examiner.)

GRAVENHURST, Ont., Feb. 22.—Constable F. J. Stiles of Gravenhurst, on the stand at yesterday's investigation into the death of Miss Ruth Elizabeth Dembner, 22-year-old former University of Toronto student, who died suddenly at the Muskoka Hospital for Consumptives on Saturday last, declared that on their arrival in town late on Saturday night, accompanied by an undertaker, the parents had enquired the location of the hospital, the mother saying she wanted to get the body.

"I told her the body was being held and she couldn't have it," said the constable. "Mrs. Dembner then yelled: "She's my baby. She's my baby. I have a good right to see her."

The constable declared that Mr. Dembner had then offered him $5000 to keep "quiet."

B. Dembner, the father of the girl, flatly denied today that he had made any suggestion of bribery to the constable at Gravenhurst.

"The constable's statement is absolutely false," he said. "There were no witnesses to our conversation after we left the Sanitarium. What occurred was this: In my distress of mind I appealed to him as a human being not to say any more to the press than was necessary in the course of his duty."

"If the man is under the impression that I was attempting to bribe him, he simply jumped to a false conclusion."

Regarding the alleged statement that his daughter and B. J. Brooks were not married, he said: "B. J. Brooks solemnly stated to Mrs. Dembner and myself this morning that he was legally married to our daughter on September 19 last."

Evidence was given yesterday that the girl, the probe into whose death followed a last minute ante-mortem statement that she had been secretly married last September to B. J. Brooks, Jr., of Toronto, died as a result of acute peritonitis. It was also stated that she had shown not the least signs of tuberculosis, though taken to a hospital recognizedly maintained for tubercular patients.

The body has been taken to Toronto, where the funeral is being held today.

According to the statement taken by Dr. Kendall of the Sanitarium, who is also a Magistrate for the Gravenhurst district, the effect was that the patient had desired to have an operation performed upon herself, and that an operation was carried out before she came to Gravenhurst." Dr. O. J. C. Withrow, the Toronto surgeon who operated, said today: "I examined her twice and recommended a minor operation to relieve her condition, which was one quite frequently met with. I arranged for her admission to the hospital and for the operating room. It has been suggested that I performed an illegal operation. Nothing of the kind was done, and there is absolute proof to support this when the time comes."

"I desire and welcome the fullest possible investigation into the death of this young women."

Miss Dembner had a record as one of the most brilliant pupils who ever passed through Toronto's schools.

Later she took up a journalistic course at the University here, also preparing herself for a business career.

RIOTS OPEN ELECTION DAY

Three Thousand Extra Policemen Required in Chicago's Mayoralty Election.

JUDGES KIDNAPPED.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press).—The climax in Chicago's most bitter mayoralty primary campaign in years was reached to-day when the heavily guarded polls were thrown open to the holiday vote. So intense was the feeling over Edward Litsinger's attempt to prevent a comeback by William (Big Bill) Thompson, the city's war Mayor, in the Republican race, that a special police detail of more than three thousand was assigned to the polling booths, with machine gun patrol of the more turbulent wards.

Anticipated trouble began with opening of the polls, and within a short time half a dozen arrests had been made. Arms were bound on the prisoners, and the police were informed that weapons were being distributed in several precincts.

Shortly after the polls opened, the police squad sped to the twenty-sixth ward and found that two Democratic precinct judges had been kidnapped.

JAPANESE FETE AT ST. ANDREWS

Central Group of Ladies' Aid Society Hold Novel Event.

GOOD MUSIC.

The Central Group of St. Andrew's Ladies' Aid Society gave a very pretty and novel entertainment under their auspices in the Sunday school hall of St. Andrew's church last night. The programme took the form of a Japanese fete, with the singers in Japanese costumes, and singing songs of the Flowery Kingdom. Decorations of the stage were exceptionally pretty, carried out with cherry blossoms, lanterns and quantities of artificial blossoms, lanterns and quantities of artificial 'mums. Arrangements were in charge of Mrs. J. Forbes Allan and Mrs. J. W. McDermid, Hugh Niven acting as chairman for the latter portion of the programme. Those taking part, all of whom were heartily applauded, were Mrs. H. F. Doig, the Misses Helen Lamb, Doris Donley, Daisy Davidson, Helen Lytle, Ellen Eagleson, Bertha Hill, and Messrs. M. H. Park, D. Carlisle, H. Niven. Miss Gwen Donley played accompaniments.

PRESENTATION MADE TO F. J. McFADDEN

Dickson Store Employees Present Local Man With Club Bag.

The employees of the Dickson Store gathered after closing hours last evening to present Mr. F. J. McFadden, member of the firm for some time, who is leaving the city shortly to establish himself in business in Napanee, with a handsome leather club bag, accompanied by an address. The gift was acknowledged with sincere gratitude by Mr. McFadden. The address, signed by Messrs. T. H. Adams, Cecil R. Wasson, Harold D. White, A. B. Burrows, Miss Della Brotherstone, and Miss Dora McMillan, was read by Miss Brotherstone, the presentation being made by Mr. Wasson. It was worded as follows:

"Mr. J. McFadden, — After the years of close business relationship, during which you have proved yourself a friend and companion worth having, we cannot allow you to leave our midst without giving expression to the regret we feel at your loss. We fully appreciate the unfailing good nature and kindly disposition which has always made it a pleasure to work with you.

"Your cheerful presence will be missed for many a long day, and our only wish is that you and your estimable family are going to what will be the beginning of rapid prosperity, pleasant surroundings and a happy future.

"We ask you to accept the accompanying gift just as a slight reminder of those you leave behind, and whose thoughts and good wishes will go with you to your new home."

General Depression Exists On Mining Exchange

TORONTO, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press).—A few firm spots brightened the general depression on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, but the general list continued to slightly lower levels. One firm spot was Nipissing, which improved 15 cents at 9.40, and McIntyre firmed 15 at 22.75. Dome eased twenty cents at 8.80, and Laval-Quebec lost 1½ at 37½. Area dropped sharply to 37½, more than four points lower, but its companion, Amulet, was a point firmer at 136.

Massey Harris Is Again Outstanding Stock Leader

TORONTO, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press).—Massey Harris, once more the outstanding issue on the Toronto Stock Exchange, led the widespread upturn in the active session this morning, closing at noon two points higher at 97, after reaching a high of 97 3-4. Seagram and the unlisted distillery issues were all prominent in the trading and all gained to some extent. Gooderham and Worts led these stocks upward with a gain of 2¼ to the record high of 52¼. Hiram Walker gained 1 1-8 at 40¼, and Seagram firmed three-eighths at 23 3-8. Brazilian was the leader of the older section, with a gain of 1¼ at 119 in heavy trading. The Bell Telephone lost a point at 151.

IMPRESSIVE SERMON AT KEENE FUNERAL

MARMORA, Feb. 22. — Blustery weather, succeeding crimson skies of the previous evening, had to be faced on Sunday afternoon by those attending the last sad rites in connection with the grim tragedy that is gripping Marmora just now, and whereof Jerome Keene was the victim. At half past one, the cortege left the residence of James Gordenier, nephew of the deceased, and proceeded to United Church, the following attending as mourners: Mrs. Catherine Keene, the widow; James and Agnes, son and daughter; Mrs. Nancy Gordenier, sister; Mr. and Mrs. James Gordenier; Mr. and Mrs Charles Cordenier; Mr. George Gordenier; Mr. John Reid; Mr. and Mrs James Nobes; Mr. and Mrs. William Smith; Mr. Hilliard McGarvey; Mr. Dave McGarvey and Miss Stella McGarvey.

The casket bearing the simple inscription, At Rest," was surmounted by four wreaths, these being sent by his son, his sister, his nephews and friends. The pallbearers were M. S. Doupe, W. McCoy, T. Warren, C.A. Lumniss, T. E. Potts and F. Matthews.

The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. C. J. Beckle, and for a day so stormy the congregation was goodly sized. "Jesus, Lover of my Soul" having been sung as the opening hymn, prayer followed, after which "Nearer my God to Thee" was rendered. Following the reading of selected portions of Scripture, Rev. Mr. Beckley announced as his text, "What shall a man give in exchange for his life?" Mark 8:37. The reverend gentleman at the outset mentioned that the whole countryside had been deeply shocked at the discovery made in the past week and he felt he was voicing the sympathy of the whole countryside in expressing his own to those mourning there their loved one. Speaking with driving force, the preacher declared that homicide is always unspeakable, man's hand is against (and rightly against) any man who takes a neighbor's life. Dishonesty, malice and such like sins are terrible enough, but to take the life of another is the sin of sins. He who thus acts is a sinner among sinners so the penal law has it fixed that imprisonment must not be enough for him. "I want you to think," he continued "of the man who perpetrated this deed. Perchance the hand of the law will not be laid upon him. Perchance we shall never know who he was. But I tell you this: the man who escapes the law cannot escape altogether. He will carry the mark of Cain right through. There is a disfigurement of his soul which even the love of God can scarce take away. He is a haunted man, and dammed, except God hath pity on him. He is a son of God carrying the imprint of evil. Referring to his text, the preacher remarked that he had chosen the King James' version which rendered the word "soul" as "life." Life and soul were just the same for nothing we possess is as valuable as our own life. The remainder of the sermon was an answer to the preacher's own question: "How does a man differ in his life to that of a horse or a dog?" He showed that only man can love his enemies, look backwards and forwards in life, and sorrow in the presence of death. "Rock of Ages" was sung at the close of this impressive service.

THE WONDERFUL NEW BRUNSWICK PANATROPE

A Musical Instrument Absolutely New in Principle.

Last evening the large audience in the Grand Opera House heard the first public demonstration in Peterborough of the wonderful musical triumph, the new Brunswick Panatrope. For the first time one got the full effect of a symphony orchestra out of a record machine. The swelling tones of a large pipe organ were reproduced with such fidelity that one could easily imagine that he was in a church listening to one of the largest organs.

The Panatrope is a musical instrument bound to make musical history. Its capabilities are literally amazing. It is a purely electrical reproducing musical instrument, absolutely new in principle and different from the old machanical methods of sound reproduction. It is so difficult to describe the wonderful merits of the new Panatrope that it is necessary for the reader to hear it. Just call on Heintzman Hall, Hunter Street, for a demonstration, which they will gladly furnish without obligation to you.

Operating on electrical principles, the Panatrope has abolished the hampering limitations of mechanical diaphragms, horns and other mechanism, and it may be safely predicted that the new electrical principle of the Panatrope has inaugurated a new era of musical reproduction. 1d-45-119

General Chang Tsung Chang Former Enemy, Sends 30,000 Soldiers.

SUN WEAKENED

Believed That Chang Will Oust Him From His Territories.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23. Canadian Press. — Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, once overlord of five of the richest provinces in China, to-day surrendered the capital of his last remaining state to an erstwhile enemy in a desperate effort to prevent Shanghai and the surrounding important territory in Kiangsu province from falling into the hands of his mortal foes —the Cantonese. General Chang Tsung Chang, military governor of Shantung province, nominally Sun's ally, but once his enemy, entered Nanking this morning and assumed control of the city preparatory to sending thirty thousand northern troops to the defense of Shanghai.

The movement was taken as an indication that Sun has practically been eliminated as a factor in the military situation, the general belief being that Chang, while defending Shanghai, will oust Sun and take over his last remaining province, Kiangsu, of which Shanghai is the principal city.

KOO RESIGNS.

The Chang-Tso-Lin Government reported the resignation and appointed Liang Shih-Yi premier, the despatch adds.

BRITISH OFFICERS VOLUNTEER.

LONDON, Feb. 23. United Press. —Twelve would-be adventurers, all popular club men, and all former British officers to-day awaited a reply to their offer to join the army of Marshall Chang Tso-Lin of the North China forces, who are struggling to keep control of China from the Cantonese.

"We desire to join the Cantonese, because we believe if they win the situation in China will be serious, and also that it will have a considerable effect on India," said Captain David Livingstone-Learmouth, a descendant of David Livingstone, the African explorer. Captain Livingstone-Learmouth is credited with originating the project.

The dozen Britishers would pay their own expenses, it was explained.

"Our motives are partly hatred of Bolshevism and partly love of adventure," the Captain said. "Our greatest risk would be capture by the Cantonese, who probably would behead us.

The men originally planned to buy an old destroyer and sail to the Orient, but found that to be impracticable.

Forty Year Mystery May Be Cleared To-Day

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press). — The forty-year mystery surrounding the disappearance of Arch Duke Johann of Austria was believed on the verge of solution here to-day in the possible identification of the missing nobleman as John Orth, who died in 1924. Orth, shortly before his death, told Mrs. Charlotte Fairchild of this city that he had sent a letter to the Vatican at Rome, containing an authoritative account of the unexplained fatal shooting of Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria at the royal shooting box at Meyerling. The letter was not to be opened, he said, until February 23, 1927, the day he had previously set for a meeting with Mrs. Fairchild and three unidentified men. Mrs. Fairchild said that she believed private papers and photographs from England, expected with the letter, would reveal Orth as the Archduke Johann.

PRIESTS SENT TO ARCTIC ISLE

Wholesale Arrests And Deportations by Soviet Government.

NUNS ARRESTED

NEW YORK, Feb. 23, (Special by United Press.) — Wholesale arrests of Catholic priests and nuns in Russia by Soviet authorities, are reported in the press despatches from Leningrad to Warsaw by way of Minsk, according to an official Polish despatch received here yesterday.

The recent arrests in Leningrad and other dioceses says the despatch, have raised the total of men and women prisoners to about 6000.

Many of these, it continues, have been deported to Solovetsky monastery, on the Solovetsky islands, just below the Arctic Circle, in the icy White Sea.

Among those recently arrested while their churches were being searched are mentioned twelve Sisters of the Order of St. Francis, and the following Leningrad priests:

Parocha Wasilewski of St. Catharines Church; Troyna, of St. Stanislaus Church; Szandziwnis, of the Leningrad Cathedral, and Chomiez, of St. Casimir Church.

CANADIANS USE MORE TOBACCO

Per Capita Consumption in Canada More Than Doubled.

BEER IN FAVOR.

OTTAWA, Feb. 22 (Canadian Press).—Canadians of the present generation are consuming more beer and smoking more tobacco than their grandfathers did back in 1869, but are drinking less wines and spirits than their forefathers did in the Victorian days.

The decrease in the consumption of spirits is best illustrated by the figures of 1869, which state that 1.12 per cent gallons were drunk on an average, while last year only .27 of one per cent. gallons were consumed.

On the other hand last year an average of 5.61 per cent of a gallon of beer was consumed, while back in 1869, 2.29 per cent of a gallon was the annual consumption per head.

Just after Confederation—in 1869 —the annual consumption per head of tobacco was 1.75 per cent of a pound, while last year 3.46 per cent pounds were smoked, due probably to the number of female smokers.

Her work in the Red Cross convinced her parents that she will be useful in helping to educate her people. She will finish her studies in the United States.

Protests Arrest, Prisoner Goes On Hunger Strike Quits Jail 35 Days Later, About 41 Pounds Lighter

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 23 (A.P.).—After maintaining a hunger strike for thirty-five days, Carl S. Robinson walked out of the city jail here yesterday.

He exhibited signs of weakness and was 41 pounds lighter than when he entered the jail more than a month ago, but he was able to walk away unassisted when his sentence expired.

Robinson conducted his hunger strike as a protest against his arrest and conviction on a charge of blocking traffic while he was distributing literature against militarism. He said that the occupation of a public square by an army recruiting station led him to distribute the pamphlets.

ITALY REJOICES OVER SUCCESS OF DE PINEDO

SING HYMNS.

ROME, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press).—Italy was rejoicing last night over Commander de Pinedo's successful flight across the South Atlantic as only Italians know how to rejoice. Word of the intrepid aviator's passage over Fernando Noronha was spread throughout the nation by special editions of the newspapers and bulletins posted on walls, columns and pillars. It was followed by a tremendous outburst of enthusiasm. Crowds gathered in public squares singing national hymns and holding aloft pictures of de Pinedo and his companions. Impromptu parades were started and flags and bunting were hung out from hundreds of houses. Faces beamed, every man and woman seemed to express the feeling that de Pinedo's victory was the personal victory of all Italians.

The long and anxious vigil for word from the commander, who remained several days at the Cape Verde Islands, increased the popular interest in his progress and another circumstance which contributed strongly to the outpouring of excited emotionalism has been the fact that the news last night provided the first excuse of abandoning for the moment Mussolini's admonition that the year 1927 must be one of quiet stern discipline, devoted to work and achievement, rather than celebrations.

Summarizes Comment

The Gionnale d'Italia summarizes the general comment saying: De Pinedo's crossing of the Atlantic is new proof of virile national power. It demonstrates the capacity of the fliers, the excellence of the methods employed, the resistance and efficiency of the hydro-aeroplane, the power of the motors, the splendid preparation of the route, all of which is due to the aeronautical policy inaugurated by the Fascist regime, which aims to resurrect the Italian aerial forces—men and machines."

Queen Without Crown Disappoints Little Girl

LONDON, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press). — Keen disappointment that the Queen did not wear a crown was shown by a little girl patient when King George and Queen Mary paid a visit to a London hospital yesterday.

"Oh, but she hasn't a golden crown," exclaimed the child, showing plainly that she was disappointed.

Hearing of the incident, the Queen leaned over to whisper: "My dear, I am sorry I have left my golden crown at home, I have only this sort of crown" —pointing to her hat.

Turning to the King, she said: "Come here, George. This pretty little girl wonders why we are not wearing our crowns."

"This is the King, my dear," the Queen said to the little girl. The child's eyes sparkled with joy as the King patted her cheeks.

KINGSTON HOLDS ROAD GRANT UP

City Says Money Has Not Been Spent on Roads in Outskirts.

ASK "SHOW DOWN"

KINGSTON, Feb. 23 (Special).—The City Council has asked for a "show down" with the Frontenac County Council over the expenditure of money on the suburban road area.

The Council has instructed its clerk to notify the Suburban Road Area Commission that the city will not make any grant to that body this year. For the last eight years the city has been paid $8,000 per year to the Commission. Members of Council claim that it was understood that certain amounts would be expended on roads running out from Kingston, but it is stated that these roads have been neglected and the money spent in other sections.

OPPOSE DAY OFF AS UNNECESSARY

Kingston Aldermen Ask Member to Vote Against Firemen's Bill.

COST $4500 A YEAR

KINGSTON, Feb. 23 (Special).—The City Council has asked its member in the Ontario Legislature, Mr. T. A. Kidd, to oppose the bill to come up in the Legislature to give the members of the fire departments one day off in seven. Kingston has the double platoon system, and it is felt that under this system the men do not need the extra day, and the Council is of the opinion that the legislation is intended more for cities of 30,000 population or more. To give the firemen this one day in seven it would be necessary to have four additional men on the department, and this would entail an expenditure of $4,500 per year. It is the intention of the city to give the men an increase in salary this year too.

PRESBYTERIANS GAIN VICTORY IN COMMITTEE

Private Bill is Reported To the Ontario Legislature.

EXPECT APPEALS.

TORONTO, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press).—The Presbyterians gained a victory yesterday in the private bills committee of the legislature by the passing, without substantial amendment, of a bill respecting church property in Beaverton. There was a tense and at times exciting session of an hour and a half, at the end of which the committee voted 43 to 10 in favor of considering the bill, and then proceeded to approve the various clauses without further discussion.

The bill conveys to the Continuing Presbyterians what is known as the Old Stone Church in the township of Thorah, the manse, half the church furnishings and half the organ fund, held by the joint congregations prior to the vote on union.

W. E. Raney opposed the principle of the bill on the ground that the legislature should not transfer property standing in the name of one party and say that it belonged to another.

Col. Price, chairman, suggested that the original church union bill did that very thing.

Appeals Expected

It was predicted that passing the measure would result in further appeals from all over the province, but the committee seemed persuaded that granting the specific application was a matter of justice.

A committee of four, two from the United church at Beaverton and two from the Presbyterian church, is to meet and arrange division of the church furnishings and organ fund referred to, and if they cannot agree by September 30, the matter goes to a county judge.

At noon the committee reported the bill and broke up in some disorder, declining to go on with further private bills.

BRITAIN WAITING ON DOMINIONS

Regarding Views on President Coolidge's Naval Disarmament Proposal.

FURTHER PROGRESS.

LONDON, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press).—The British government is still waiting to hear the Dominions' views on President Coolidge's disarmament proposal, but Premier Baldwin, in opening Dartmouth House, the new headquarters of the English-speaking Union, on the occasion of Washington's birthday, expressed pleasure at the prospect of further progress in disarmament.

The Premier's remarks were brief and used to illustate the benefits of discussing international problems. Further emphasizing the point, Mr. Baldwin declared that prohibition in the United States "might very easily, with less restraint and understanding, have led to trouble between the two countries."

The Prime Minister emphasized that Great Britain had done its best to see that British subjects maintined the United States law. Pointing out the different conditions which prevail in the United States and Europe, he said it must be hard for Americans to realize the problems of Europe.

"And very often," he added, "when they criticize us in Europe it is apt to hurt those who are doing all they can to steer the broken nations through a period of unprede Pinedo and his companions. Imare not appreciated, and sometimes a little more, and if their motives are not fully understood."

LINDSAY, Feb. 23.—J. A. Lonergan, of Peterborough, will, in a few days, assume the management of the Mansion House at Fenelon Falls, which has been conducted for some years by Joseph Jocque. The Mansion House is one of the best known hostelries in Central Ontario, and enjoys a big commercial trade.

Mary's Lamb Ferocious It Frightened Thug Away

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 23.—Crime prevention has been added to the varied uses of radio. A highwayman in the act of relieving a pedestrian of his roll heard a loud voice from a nearby house and fled.

The voice that frightened away the robber came from a loud speaker amplifying a broadcast recitation on "Mary Had a Little Lamb."

DATE SET FOR TORY MEETING

National Convention of Conservative Party To Be Held Tuesday, Oct. 11.

AT WINNIPEG.

OTTAWA, Feb. 23.—A national convention of the Conservative party for the purpose of selecting a leader in succession to the Rt. Hon. Arthur Meighen, is to be held on Tuesday, October 11th, at Winnipeg.

The national committee dealing with the matter so decided yesterday.

Practically all of the thirty-seven members of the committee were present at the gathering which was presided over by Hon. Hugh Guthrie who gave an address of welcome and outlined the purpose of the meeting.

Some Opposition.

There was some opposition to the idea of a convention this year, the view being expressed that there is no urgency. On the other hand, reference was made to the fact that the caucus on October 11th last had unanimously decided on a convention at "the earliest possible time," after the Parliamentary session. On account of the Diamond Jubilee and because of the time necessary to get ready, it was agreed that a convention cannot be held before October.

900 ALREADY THERE.

QUANTICO, Va., Feb. 23. — Canadian Press. — The Atlantic Coast Marine Corps Expeditionary Force, one thousand strong, marched aboard the naval transport 'Henderson' today for duty in Nicaragua.

It will augment the force of nine hundred marines and blue jackets already there, charged with the protection of American lives and property.

MOST TELEPHONES COST LESS UNDER RATES FOR PETERBORO'

Business 'Phones Go Up in Price While House 'Phones Decrease.

EXTENSIONS DOWN.

Only 600 'Phones Out of 4,909 on Local Board Will Cost More.

The telephone increase just announced, bear less heavily on Peterboro than might be expected by many who read the detailed statement.

According to a statement given by W. R. Northgrave, local manager, in an interview with the Examiner today, only three classes of phones will be increased in rates and five classes will have a decrease. Out of the total phones in the city, 600 come under the increase and 4300 will have a slightly decreased rate per month, and there will be a small increase in PBX, or switchboard installations.

The phones that will pay more under the new rates are one party business phones, increase of 67c; two party business phones, an increase of 54c per month; and rural business phones, an increase of 20c per month.

Against these there are decreases in one party residence phones, 7c; two party residence phones, 5c; rural party residence phones, 5c; extension station business 23c; extension station residence, 48c.

The two party rate in a residence was formerly $2.05, and is now $2.00. The one party residence phone was formerly $2.57, and is now $2.50. These rates of course are for wall phones.

FINED $5 FOR PASSING SIGNS

Several Local Citizens in Court For Breach of 'Stop' By-law.

OTHER OFFENCES.

Several citizens were fined in the police court this morning for breaches of the Highway's Traffic Act, in not stopping before entering through streets. They were fined $5 and $3.25 costs, but His Worship stated that the fines would be heavier in future.

Chief Newhall said that he had been receiving numerous complaints regarding drivers on the through streets crossing the intersections at a greater speed than ten miles an hour. It was his intention, he said, to prosecute all offenders in this regard vigorously in future as it was just as essential to the success of the stop law that drivers on the through streets slow down their speed as it was for the driver on the stop streets to make a complete halt.

SUIT ARISES FROM FATAL WRECK ON HIGHWAY NEAR PETERBORO' WHEN AUTOMOBILE LEAVES ROAD

Plaintiff Asks For $25,000 in Trial at Cobourg Spring Assizes.

JURY DISMISSED.

COBOURG, Feb. 23.—William Ira Stillman of Campbellford was awarded $3,500 and costs by Mr. Justice Lennox at the Spring Assizes here yesterday, in his suit for $25,000 damages against Thomas Leslie Diamond, also of Campbellford, for injuries and losses resulting from the automobile accident near Peterboro on June 25th last, in which Mrs. Stillman was killed and Mr. Stillman and Mr. and Mrs. Diamond were injured.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., of Peterboro, and D. J. Lynch, of Campbellford, appeared for the plaintiff, and D. L. McCarthy, K.C., of Toronto, and Charles A. Payne, of Belleville, were Mr. Diamond's counsel.

The trial, which occupied two days of the court, adduced but little new and important evidence that was not brought out at the coroner's inquest and subsequent action by the Crown in Peterboro. It was marked by one rather unusual episode when Mr. Justice Lennox, on Mr. McCarthy's motion, assumed the case himself and dismissed the jury in consequence of an assertive question by Mr. Gordon in his cross-examination of Deputy-Reeve Davidson of Campbellford.

"Did you frequently ask Mr. Diamond not to drive fast when you were in his car?" Mr. Gordon asked.

"No, not before the accident."

"Did you tell anyone in Campbellford you had asked Mr. Diamond that?"

"That was since the accident."

"You know he had a whole series of accidents——"

This statement by Mr. Gordon brought Mr. McCarthy to his feet in protest.

"That was an obviously improper statement," he objected, "and entitles me to ask to have the jury struck out."

Mr. McCarthy, to Mr. Davidson: Had you any reason at any time to complain of his driving?

Mr. Davidson: No.

After the noon recess, the Judge asked Mr. Gordon if he had any objection to the jury being displaced.

"My question to the witness wasn't answered," he replied, "and the jury has heard the case since yesterday."

"I don't think the point is absolutely free from doubt," said His Lordship, "but I have come to the conclusion, in order to avoid an appeal, that the wiser thing would be to withdraw the case from the jury."

The Court's Decision.

When the evidence had been reviewed by both counsel late Tuesday afternoon, Mr. Justice Lennox proceeded at once to dispose of it.

"I might as well decide this case now. I find the defendant was negligent in the operation of his car, and that this was the cause of the injuries the plaintiff complains of. I won't go into the various reasons that come to my mind now, but I can't conceive of the circumstances occurring, that did occur, without neligence on the part of the defendant.

"He was driving a well-equipped car, and was accustomed to cars a long time. If I were to accept the theory of the defence that Mr. Diamond became suddenly incapable of controlling his car through no fault of his, then that would not be a case of negligence. Whatever I say when I hand out my memoranda of judgment, I can't accept the evidence on that part of the case. In contrast with that evidence is the evidence of Mr. and Mrs. Coward, and I cannot reconcile it. I am satisfied on the whole evidence as to that trip, that this man was driving at an exceedingly rapid rate of speed. I am not sure whether he was going 60 or 45 miles an hour. He was driving in a way to show off the peculiarly fine qualities of his car. That may be a wrong conclusion.

"As to statements Stillman is said to have made, exonerating the defendant, I don't think that, in view of the circumstances that the plaintiff doesn't know how it occurred, this is pertinent evidence one way or another. Because Diamond was suffering as a result of gossip about the accident, Stillman may have wished not to cast odium on him, and this feeling may,

It Pays To Be Careful When You Take a Drink

PARIS, Feb. 23 (A.P.).—"Bootleg blackmail" is a new industry of crime uncovered by French police.

Americans of prominence, it is said, frequently are shadowed by a photographer, who follows his man until he gets a good picture of the American taking a drink and, preferably, in some night cabaret where dancers are likely to get into the photograph.

The plate and a print are offered to the American after he returns to his home town and usually he thinks it worth while to pay a good price.

BANDIT MAKES DARING HOLD-UP

MAKES ESCAPE.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Peter Dawson, aged 15, living at 1077 Dufferin Street, was taking a parcel of money containing between $1,500 and $2,000, to his father, Peter Dawson, landscape gardener, to pay employees who are engaged planting trees at "Oaklands," the McCormick estate, at the corner of Avenue Road and Farnham Avenue, when he was held up by a man, who seized the parcel and escaped in a motor car at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon.

Money in Paper Bag.

The boy left his home on Dufferin Street at 4.20 yesterday afternoon, with the money in a paper bag, according to the story told by his mother. He was accompanied by his sisters on to the street car as far as Avenue Road, where he transferred to another car. His father met him at the corner of Farnham Avenue. They had walked about fifteen yards into the McCormick estate, when a man came behind, and they heard him say: "Stick 'em up." Dawson says he did not see a revolver, but the man grabbed the bag and ran.

As soon as he got on the street, he jumped on the running board of an auto that was waiting for him, and they heard him tell the driver, "Step on it." Young Dawson followed in another car, but lost track of the robber on Roxborough Street. The license markers of the bandit car had been badly marked and could not be read.

The boy's mother said that the boy had once before taken a large sum of money to his father for paying purposes.

have prompted him to speak in that way.

"As to damages, they should be moderate. They should err on the side of paring down rather than of building up. Thinking the matter all over as well as I can, and keeping in mind that if any damages are allowed, they should be kept dow.., and not allowing the plaintiff as much as he would be entitled to receive calculated fairly on a financial basis, I fix the amount of damages at $3,500 with costs."

Life-Long Friends.

The Stillmans and Diamonds were life-long friends. William Stillman conducted a general store, and Leslie Diamond is a real estate dealer. And it was was because of their friendship that Mr. Stillman could propose last June that the four attend Ringling's Circus at Peterboro. They took with them Mary McGregor, a young relative of the Diamonds. The story of that trip has been featured before in the press. Mrs. Stillman was almost instantly killed in the car's crash against a maple tree on the Duffus Hill southeast of Peterboro. Her husband was talking to the women on the back seat, and being partly turned around, could not decide the exact cause of the accident.

This is Mr. Diamond's account. He had spent a busy morning, driving ten miles; only a glass of milk for breakfast and a hurried lunch.

"I went up the hill about 25 miles an hour," he swore. "I don't know what speed I was going down. I had started to coast with the gas cut off. I know it was slower. The last I remember, the car seemed to get hot. Something came over my eyes. I don't know what happened then."

Mr. McCarthy: Do you know whether you stepped on the gas or the brake?

No. The first thing I remember I thought a man was hugging me very tightly. I don't remember anyone walking me up and down the hill. The first thing I was conscious of was seeing a man in uniform writing with a pencil that looked like mine. I walked over to him and said, "That's my pencil." I reached over to get it, and he said he'd give it to me later. Then everything was blank again, and I don't know what happened to me until they were taking me in the hospital.

Felt Car Spring Forward.

And this is Mrs. Diamond's story as she told it sitting in the witness-box. She could see the speedometer from her seat and noticed that it varied from 22 to 25, 28 and 30 miles an hour.

"Coming down that hill I felt the car suddenly spring forward. I saw my husband sort of stiffen out, and his head roll to one side. I sprang forward to try to catch hold of the emergency brake, but I lost my balance and then everything went black.

"The nex thing I remember was hearing murmurs," Mrs. Diamond said. "They seemed to be far away, and gradually coming closer. I couldn't realize what they were saying. I remember some one saying to get out of the car, and saying "give me your hand and I'll help you out."

Mr. Gordon—Do you remember saying to Mrs. Dolman and others on June 28th that you didn't know anything about the accident and how it happened? I don't remember.

You had a talk with her? I don't remember.

Did you ever have a talk with her ? I remember she was in to see me.

Mrs. Diamond said she was not familiar with that road, and did not notice what cars passed.

Did you look at the speedometer on the Duffus hill? No, I did not.

Where did you see him lose control? I didn't see him lose control; I felt the car spring forward.

Did it move much faster, say five miles an hour faster?

Mrs. Diamond answered that she couldn't gauge the increased speed.

How long have you been riding in cars? We've had a car about 14 years.

Suggested Settlement

Tuesday morning His Lordship asked whether a settlement could be effected out of court. The principals and their solicitors retired for fifteen minutes, but failed to reach an greement. It was reported that the defendant had offered topay $2750.

Plaintiff in his eidence said that he had paid $5 to Dr. Longmore, $401.20 to St. Joseph's hospital, $256.50 to the Peterboro Clinic and $450 to Miss S. Crowley, registered nurse, a total of $1,112.70. He had $1,700 in book debts, of which $1,000 might be collected. He also had a debt of $300 on a promissory note.

Dr. T. W. H. Young of Peterboro testified that he had examined Mr. Stillman and found his right arm broken, compound fracture of the right leg below the knee, and one leg was between one-quarter and one-half an inch shorter than the left. He would be permanently lame. He was also nervous as a result of the shock of the accident.

Albert Lowe, Edward Lowe, Thos. Heffernan, Harry Redmond, Provincial Constable N. F. Maker, County Constable Frank Pratt, Elsie Stillman repeated their evidence given at previous hearings.

Mr. and Mrs. Maynard Coward testified to having come upon the wrecked car and its occupants. To Mrs. Coward, defendant said "Lady I was driving too fast. I was going 60 miles an hour." Her husband corrobborated this evidence.

John I. Adams

John I. Adams, merchant, Campbellford, testified that shortly after the accident he called at St. Joseph's hospital and was with Mr. Diamond about ten minutes.

Mr. Diamond told me that when he felt the car leaving the road he must have stepped on the accelerator instead of the brake."

"He told me he must have lost his head when his car got on the grass," witness said, "and must have stepped on the gas instead of the brake. He shook his head and said "too fast, too fast."

Edgar Dolman, son-in-law of the plaintiff, said Mr. Diamond had told him that he had completely lost his head and didn't know whether he had stepped on the brake or the accelerator.

Mrs. Pearl Dolman, wife of Edgar Dolman, testified that Mr. Diamond had told her that when the car took the grass he lost his head and "never thought of the brakes."

"At the hospital he said he would like to get into Mr. Stillman's room to make it right with him, as he knew Mr. Stillman was worrying about hospital expenses.

Cross-examined by Mr. McCarthy—You knew your mother was treated by Dr. Scott? Yes a few times.

Did you know what the treatments were for? No.

Did you ask her? No, not especially.

You were interested in her health? Yes

But knowing she was treated by Dr. Scott, you didn't ask her? I knew mother wasn't serious.

Witness said her mother had not complained to her of any serious illness. She said Mr. Stillman was worrying about hospital and other expenses. He hadn't money enough that he could afford to throw any away.

Did your mother have any money when she married Mr. Stillman? I suppose so.

Don't you know? No. I was only a small child.

Did Mr. Diamond know Mr. Stillman was hard up? I don't know.

Didn't he say so? He said he knew Mr. Stillman was worrying about it.

Did he need to worry about money matters? I don't know.

Suit arises—Take 3 ....

Witness said Mr. Diamond promised her he was going to help Mr. Stillman, and would be satisfied if he go to his room and relieve his mind.

Opening of Defence

J. A. Irwin, Campbellford merchant, was the first witness called by the defence.

Examined by Mr. McCarthy, Mr. Irwin said Mr. Stillman had asked him in January to quote a price on the Stillman merchandise and fixtures.

"I valued the groceries at $600 or $700, and the balance of the stock at $200 or $300. I fixed a certain value in my own mind and offered Mr. Stillman 75 cents on the dollar for the groceries and 50 cents on the dollar for the balance. My offer was not accepted. Later I bought the stock, after a sale, at 60 cents on the dollar. That was about the end of January. The total value of the stock then was about $264, and I gave him 60 cents on the dollar on that sum.

Mr. Gordon.—I suppose there'd be about 50 per cent difference between a buyer's and sellers price in a case like that? I don't know about that.

Mr. Irwin said a lot of goods had been sold from the store between his two interviews with Mr. Stillman.

J. L. Hay of Campbellford said that in the Spring of 1925 Mr. Stillman offered to sell his business to Mr. Hay for $5,000 because his health was not good and he wished to go away.

Mr. McCarthy—Did he tell you what was wrong with him? Answer, No.

To Mr. Gordon witness said he had engaged in a number of real estate deals with Mr. Diamond.

"I don't think I ever used any of his money," Mr. Hay added. "I have had deals with the other real estate men in Campbellford, too.

Councillor Wiggins

Walter Wiggins motored to Peterborough on circus day. He examned the tracks of the Diamond car at the place of the accident.

There was no evidence of it having skidded.

"I saw Mr. Stillman at the hospital on the following Friday," Mr. Wiggins continued. "When I went into his room he started to cry and said: 'Walter, I owe you an account, but I'll pay you."

Mr. McCarthy—Did he owe you anything?

Yes, an account for $15. I walked over to his bed and took his hand and said: "Don't worry about that."

He said: "My, my, Walter, isn't this awful. It was only an accident. I feel awful sorry for Les. and Maggie (Mr. and Mrs. Diamond). I was turned around talking to the little girl. I don't know what happened."

Anything said about speed. No.

How long were you with him? About half an hour.

To Mr. Gordon, witness said he sold Chrysler cars and had sold him the coach.

"Isn't that a remarkable feat of memory your recalling word for word what was said last June?"

It doesn't seem a remarkable feat to me. I'm telling the truth.

Witness said he had married a niece of Mr. Diamond..

William Stillman

"He said it was only an accident and that he couldn't blame Mr. Diamond," witness testified. "I asked him if they were going fast, and he said, 'No, just a nice speed, and having a good visit among ourselves'."

Witness said that Mr. Stillman, then at the hospital, could raise his injured arm "higher than I could raise mine." Up over his head, he added.

"Let's see you raise your right arm now," Mr. Gordon asked.

"Rheumatism," he remarked.

"Not a very good model," was the judge's comment.

Yes.

Does that include money-lending, too?

Yes; money-lending, too.

George E. Hay, mail carrier, also visited the patients from an interest of long acquaintance.

Stillman said to him—"It was bad accident. No one was to blame for it. I don't know how it happened. The first thing I knew I was sitting on the grass. Les needn't worry. He was not to blame.

When did you tell Diamond about this conversation you had with Stillman?

I told him that day, if I told him.

Have you told him since?

I don't think so.

Did Diamond ever sell a house for you?

I don't know as he did. He had it to sell, but I think I took it away from him.

Did he sell it or not?

I think perhaps he sold it.

Nurse On Stand.

Miss Shannon, a nurse, said she and Mrs. Vanderwater, defendant's daughter, had often called on Mr. Stillman at the hospital. "He said it wasn't fast driving, but was just an accident."

To Mr. Gordon she said she had been nursing in New York, came up to Grafton on a vacation, and on hearing of the accident went to Peterborough because of her friendship with the Diamond family. On a previous occasion when she had business in Campbellford she had stayed with them, and Mr. Diamond had looked after some real estate for her.

She attended Mrs. Diamond at the hospital, arriving on the Wednesday after the accident. The regular nurse was on duty from 7 until 2 o'clock, and Miss Shannon from 2 until 7. She remained as nurse after Mr. Diamond left the hospital.

Mr. Gordon—Had Stillman repeated crying spells?

I saw him crying several times.

To you that means he was suffering from shock?

No. I was under the impression he was crying about his wife.

As a nurse you appreciate that a shock is a lowered vitality resulting from physical or mental injury?

I don't think that's true.

Well, I'm not going to argue with you.

Mr. Gordon—Is it usual for a nurse to disclose what she learns in a hospital? No. I was not in uniform.

Is that your idea of a nurse's ethics?

I was not engaged when I heard Mr. Stillman.

You had access to the hospital as a nurse?

No. I was there as a friend of the Diamonds.

You engaged with them because of that friendship?—Yes.

Didn't they pay you?—Yes, afterward.

Mr. Justice Lennox—You were not in uniform when you listened to that conversation?— No. It took place when I was in the hospital the first time with Mrs. Vanderwater.

Defendant's Daughter.

Mrs. Ruth Vanderwater (nee Diamond) corroborated Miss Shannon's evidence of the conversation with plaintiff.

Mr. Gordon—Did you hear Nurse Crowley say Mr. Stillman was averse to discussing the accident? —Yes.

Did that surprise you?—Yes.

If Stillman didn't see what caused the accident, and didn't know how it happened, he'd hardly be in a position to blame anyone?

I can't answer that.

Then don't answer it.

Did he cry very much when you called on him?

Yes, whenever he mentioned his wife.

Did he mention his wife more than twice?

I know it would be two times.

To Mr. McCarthy: Stillman's were always great friends of the family. They made a point of coming to see me when I came home from Toronto. Mr. Stillman told me at the hospital he wanted to relieve our minds of worry about the accident.

Deputy Reeve Davidson.

At the hospital, two weeks after the accident Mr. Davidson called on the plaintiff.

"Mr. Stillman started to cry at first. He said it was too bad, and nobody was to blame. I have known Mr. Stillman 37 years."

Lorne Pearse, a Bell Telephone salesman, said he had known both men since 1923. At the hospital Mr. Stillman told him he didn't blame Diamond, as it was "purely an accident."

Similar evidence was given by Wm A. Diamond of Toronto, brother of the defendant. At the scene of the accident there were no signs that would indicate the brakes had been applied.

Mr. Gordon: You came up and started to investigate?

I visited my brother and went to the scene of the accident—the same as you would, I suppose."

"There's no occasion for impertinence," Mr. Gordon retorted. "The car cost $2000, and you say it could be repaired for $200?"

About that; I wanted him to get it repaired. Instead it went to the wreckers.

How much did your brother get for it? I don't know.

The Defendant Called.

After relating the events of the Duffus hill accident, T. L. Diamond, the defendant, said that at the hospital he offered Mr. Stillman $100 to pay the nurse and other expenses.

"When that's done," I said, "there will be more, and as soon as you're able I'd like to have you moved to Campbellford. The nurse looking after Mrs. Diamond could also attend to you. He said Edgar Doleman was looking after him. I said you can give me a note for this money if you like and if you never pay it it will be all right. He said he had enough notes against him. He told me—"Les the Lord knows I don't blame you; you are not to blame. I couldn't take less than $1000 if I took any and I won't take that; you are one of my best friends and I hope you continue so."

He asked me what they were saying in Campbellford. I told him they were saying everything, even that I was arrested. I said he could have a piece put in the paper letting the people know how things stand. He said, "Never mind, I'll soon be home and they'll see how it stands between us. You've always been a true friend to me.

As soon as I knew he was home, I went to see him. We shook hands, and I asked him how he stood the trip. "Not so bad," he said. Mrs. Dolman asked me to sit down, and I stayed about 20 minutes. I noticed they never asked me about Mrs. Diamond or myself. When I was on the verandah, Mrs. Dolman asked me how my wife was, and Mr. Stillman said, "Yes, how's Maggie?" The next day I went back, but stayed only two minutes. I called him once at his store and he was very short with me. Afterwards he would pass my office, but never looked in.

Questions by Mr. Gordon centred around statements by defendant at the inquestion and trial before Mr. Justice Logie as to Mr. Diamond's knowledge of the Keene road.

"At the inquest you said you knew it pretty well, and before Mr. Logie you said you were over it only once.

Mr. Diamond— I can't account for what's there, (as Mr. Gordon read the depositions).

Referring to what he mentioned as a "series of accidents," Mr. Gordon queried the defendant about a number of mishaps that had befallen him. In one of them Mr. Diamond had accidentally backed his car into the canal. In the J. I. Adams incident one car took the ditch. At Petherick's Corners, Mr. Diamond stopped his car at the edge of the road, and it then slid into the ditch. In accident in Rawdon tried to save another man's life. Once he was fined for racing cars.

Mr. Gordon pointed out that defendant did not tell his physician or the nurses at the hospital about his weak spell.

"I won't swear it," Mr. Diamond said.

Mr. McCarthy—Who did you tell it to?

Defendant — Walter Wiggins, Will Diamond, Miss Shannon, Geo Hay and others.

Recalled by Mr. Gordon, plaintiff denied that he had told Mr. Diamond he had too many notes out.

Did you tell him "never mind, I'll be home and let them know of this situation. It was a pure accident, and you were not to blame?"

Mr. Stillman—That's not so.

OLD MASTERS

O talk not to me of a name great in story;
The days of youth are the days of our glory;
And the myrtle and ivy of sweet two-and-twenty
Are worth all your laurels, though ever so plenty.

What are garlands and crowns to the brow that is wrinkled?
'Tis but as a dead flower with May-dew besprinkled:
Then away with all such from the head that is hoary—
What care I for the wreaths that can give only glory?

Oh Fame!—if I e'er took delight in thy praises,
'Twas less for the sake of thy high-sounding phrases,
Than to see the bright eyes of the dear one discover
She thought that I was not unworthy to love her.

There chiefly I sought thee, there only I found thee;
Her glance was the best of the rays that surround thee;
When it sparkled o'er aught that was bright in my story,
I knew it was love, and I felt it was glory.

Says That Canada Is Endangered By the Scum Which Is Rejected From the United States

LONDON, Feb. 23. — In the Morning Post is published a letter from C. M. Goethe, the president of the Immigration Study Commission now centred at Sacramento, California. He says: "As a descendant of an old Yorkshire family and of an Australian pioneer of the 40's, may I say that America's tragic blunder was made when our previous generations failed to appreciate the unwisdom of mixing populations.

"The injection into our nation of not only ten million negroes, but of what was infinitely worse, perhaps, twenty million of Southern and Eastern Europeans, has been ruinous. We have postponed, perhaps absolutely prevented, the flowering of a civilization that might have equalled that of the golden days of Pericles.

"With this history as a guide, Australia ought to come to realize that she should change her slogan of a 'White Australia' to a 'British-Nordic Australia,' or at least a 'Nordic Australia.'

"Canada should be awakened to the fact that to-day she is endangered by the scum which America has rejected by the Johnson Immigration Restriction Acts. It is estimated we have already barred from this country about four millions of races whose culture wars with our own.

"Canada and Australia, just because they have been founded by Nordics, have attractive living conditions approximating those of the United States. Their great open spaces should be filled up as quickly as possible with Britain's excess population. Only thus you can hold these Dominions close to you racially. And, after all, it is the racial tie that binds."

KING MISSES RADIO SPEECH

Had Planned To Hear President Coolidge's Washington Day Address.

WAS IN CONFERENCE.

LOUDON, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press) — But for a last moment interruption by important business, the king would have been among the million in Great Britain who heard President Coolidge's Washington Day address before the joint session of the United States Congress.

The transmisssion was considered excellent. Atmospheric conditions interfered a little at the beginning but the air soon cleared and the president's voice came through perfectly—as well as any trans-Atlantic speech ever heard on this side. His eulogy of Washington was heard by the greater part of the listeners-in quite distinctly, and at the end the applause came over and the strains of the Star Spangled Banner.

The king, who had a busy day visiting hospitals and attending to other affairs, returned to Buckingham Palace at 5 o'clock in the evening. He had planned to listen to President Coolidge, but just before six o'clock an important matter came up and the king was in conference at hour or more with several officials.He missed the speech.

STRIKES EASIER AT SHANGHAI

ISSUE WARNINGS.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23. Canadian Press. — The heavy swords of San Chuan Fang's soldiers, which since Saturday have struck off heads of inciters to the strike promoted by the Nationalist government to weaken resistance to it. armed forces, were less active yesterday. There has been partial resumption of postal and transportation service, but approximately 100,000 strikers remain idle in general industry.

The violence of the beheader, however, has aroused the opposition to threats of reprisal. In Changsha, capital of Hunan province threats of death have been made by labor unions to all Chinese who remain in British employ and to all who supply necessities to the British. In that far inland city controlled by the Cantonese, a coal contractor was seized for supplying his commodity to the Britsh consulate.

While there was no sign of anti-foreign feeling in the strike agitation in Shanghai, where heavy military and naval forces of foreign nations were on guard, increased anti-British agitation was generally reported from up the Yangtse River. Chinese pilots were intimidated at Ichang and the crews of American ships were threatened for carrying British passengers.

The proclamation by Li Pao Ching (Chinese defence commissioner, of Marshal Sun's forces in Shanghai) posted in the main post office, that any employees not returning to work would be executed, ended all picketing of the post office, and caused many to return to work. The executions of the past three days, while effective in bringing back to work many of those who struck in the native city, greatly increased the activities of the agitators in the international settlements.

Meanwhile reports have been received here that Chang Tsung Chang (war lord, of Shantung province) was sending troops to aid his ally Sun, in the defence of Shanghai, the most prized commercial city in China.

WILL AID SUN.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23. Canadian Press. — A Japanese report from Nanking yesterday says that troops of Chang Tsung Chung, war lord of Shantung province, apparently are in the movement to aid the harrassed troops of Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, who are attempting to halt the advance of the Cantonese army upon Shanghai.

The Shantungese army is reported to be crossing the Yangtse into Nanking capital of Sun's Kiangsu province. From Nanking to Shanghai by railroad is 210 miles.

Sun, whose troops retreated from Hangchow Thursday before the Cantonese, appealed many times for aid to Chang Tsung Chang, another member of the alliance of the northern war lords. Chang, however, has been playing a waiting game, some observers ascribing to him an intention to move in and take possession of Shanghai for himself when the opportunity was afforded.

There has been little reported movement of the Cantonese troops and Sun's army which lie between Hangchow and Sungkiang, since the defeated forces of Sun fell back toward Shanghai. Both are reported to be reinforcing for renewal of the struggle in which about 100,000 men have been engaged.

EXTEND PERMITS FOR U. S. TOURISTS

Auto Tourists From States Permits Extended To Sixty Days.

OTTAWA, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press) — Permits for automobiles driven by tourists entering Canada have been extended from thirty to sixty days, according to an announcement yesterday by Hon. W. D. Euler, Minister of Customs and Excise.

In the past, American tourists entering Canaa have been permitted to drive their cars in this country for thirty days without the payment of fees. This period has now been extended to sixty days with the option of an extension to ninety days under certain restrictions. It is understood that tourists wishing to remain the full limit of time will be required to present identification and credentials from authorized motor clubs or similar organizations. For some years past provincial governments, Canadian automobile clubs, and organizations interested in the tourist traffic generally, have been seeking to have the thirty day restriction widened.

MRS. H. J. WALKER.

NORHAM, Feb. 23. — A gloom was cast over the village of Warkworth on Saturday morning by the death of Mrs. Theressa Walker, widow of Henry J. Walker, M.P. The late Mrs. Walker was in her 74th year and had been ill for about three months. She was born in Prince Edward County. The funeral services were held in St. Paul's United Church on Monday at 2.30 p.m., and were conducted by Rev. W. W. Jones, assisted by Rev. Stillman A. Kemp of Lakefield and Rev. John R. Butler of Frankford, two former ministers of the United congregation. Mrs. Walker's late home is the nearest to the parsonage, and it was most fitting that she should desire to have present at the service two former pastors who had been neighbors for a term of four years each.

The deceased was well and favorably known and her passing is keenly felt because, as one small school girl expressed it, "She was a mother to every child in Warkworth." Floral gifts testifying to the love of her many friends were numerous and beautiful.

The late Henry J. Walker, husband of the deceased, departed this life on March 19, 1918. Mr. Walker represented East Northumberland in the Federal House of Parliament from 1911 until 1917.

Interment was made in the family plot in Warkworth Cemetery.

R. O. MORROW.

HILTON, Feb. 23.—One of the oldest residents of the village of Hilton passed away in Peterboro on Saturday morning in the person of R. O. Morrow. Mr. Morrow was born in Hilton 68 years ago on the same farm on which he owned when he died. He resided in the house which his father erected until about four years ago, when it was destroyed by fire.

He leaves to mourn his loss a widow (nee Alice Burton), two sons, Burton, a banker in the West, and R. Z., who resides on the homestead, as well as two daughters, one of whom lives in the city of Peterboro, where he had gone for a visit a few days before his death.

Mr. Morrow represented the Township of Brighton as councillor in the years 1907 and 1908, in 1909 as Deputy Reeve, and 1910 and 1911 as Reeve, having never suffered defeat at any election.

He attended the United Church at Hilton, and was a member of L.O.L. No. 507, Orland.

He was also an ardent admirer of the Rt. Hon. Sir John A. Macdonald and a life-long Conservative.

RECOMMEND ACTION AGAINST VINEGAR CO

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 23.—(Canadian Press.)— Recommendations that proceedings be taken against the Regina Vinegar Co., Limited, "for recovery of the amounts for which the revenue has been defrauded" and also that the license of the company be not renewed, were formally made to the customs commission yesterday by counsel. The recommendations were preceded by a request from counsel that the commissioners make the following findings based on evidence taken at the Regina sittings:

1—That substantial quantities of alcohol were improperly, illegally and fraudulently removed from bond by the company and its officials which did not go into the mix but were removed from the premises for sale or compounding for sale for beverage purposes.

2—That in respect of the alcohol so removed, the company paid only excise duty of twenty-seven cents a gallon, instead of nine dollars per gallon, and thereby defrauded the government of Canada of a sum substantially in excess of $40,000.

After listening to argument by R. B. Law, assistant counsel for the commission, and A. H. Friedgut, of Regina, appearing for the Regina Vinegar Works, the commission took the recommendations made under consideration.

TWO MORE ARE ADDED TO LIST OF BOY SUICIDES

High School Student Is Shot, Another Knifes Himself.

MORE BRAWN NEEDED.

Main Trouble Is Lop-Sided Education Says U.S. Senator.

CHICAGO, Feb. 22. — Canadian Press. — One high school student was found shot to death Monday night, and a short time later another attempted to end his life by plunging a hunting knife into his chest.

Authorities were undecided whether the dead youth had committed suicide or had shot himself accidentally, but the other boy who stabbed himself, said before lapsing into unconsciousness that he had intended taking his life. He gave no reason for his act. Doctors said he probably will die.

Harold Marks, 17-year-old high school senior, was found dead in his father's garage, a rifle lying across his body. His parents said that he was cheerful and had no school troubles or love affairs, and declared that he had shot himself while trying to fit a cartridge of different calibre into the rifle.

Stabs Himself.

John Brazel, 18, Barrington high school senior, drove his father's automobile into the depths of the forest preserves, and plunged a hunting knife into his chest below the heart. Fellow class mates found him wandering along the roadside, blood streaming from his chest.

"I stabbed myself," he told them. Police said they believed he tried suicide after reading accounts of other students killing themselves recently

Less Brain Needed.

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 23. — More brawn and less brain is needed by college students, if the epidemic of suicides that has broken out among those taking courses of higher education is to be checked, in the opinion of State Senator William L. Love of Brooklyn, who is a nerve specialist of some note.

"The main trouble with college students to-day is lop-sided education," said the senator. They are spending too much time developing their brains and not enough in expanding their physical being.

"Every student should be forced to take up swimming, for instance, but all forms of exercise are useful in promoting a healthful balance between the mental and physical state of the human body.

"To-day the people are studying philosophy and psychology at the age of 16—before they have arrived at the proper mental background."

The tendency to promote, students over classes or 'skipping' classes as it is commonly known, is blamed in part for this over-mental development by Love.

Scorns Parents.

"The youngster at 16 often has had more education than his parents. What is the result? He looks down on them and gets into a grandiose mental state.

"The outcome of that is cynicism—disbelief. Then follows pessimism, and after that despair, and with despair comes the desire to end it all."

ITALY REJOICES

Francesco De Pinedo from Porto Praya, Cape Verde Islands, to Port Natal, Brazil, marks the seventh time that the Atlanto Ocean has been spanned by aviators.

Trans-Atlantic flying became an actuality in 1919, when three crossings were made, two by aeroplane and one by a dirigible.

The United States naval plane, the NC-4, in command of Lieut.-Commander Albert C. Read, made the trip from Halifax, N.S., to Lisbon, Portugal, with a stop at the Azores, in May.

In June Captain John Alcock and Leut, A. W. Brown took a British biplane on a non-stop flight across the Atlantic from Newfoundland to Ireland.

In July the British dirigible N-34, in command of Major G. H. Scott, flew from Scotland to Mineola, N.Y.

In 1924 the U. S. army air service airplane crossed the Atlantic in their round-the-world flight.

Forced to Return

ROME, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press) —Commander de Pinedo, after passing over the island of Fernando Noronha yesterday afternoon on his flight from Cape Verde Islands to the Brazilian mainland, was forced to return to Fernando Noronha, latest advices from that place declare.

Three hours after circling the island he was back again and anchored at 5.07 last evening.

DISCOVER FILTER FOR RADIUM RAYS

Five years ago the women of America bestowed upon Madame Curie, discoverer of radium, a gift of one twenty-eighth of an ounce of the precious element, worth $160,000. Today the gift has been turned into profit for all the world, for workers in Madame Curie's laboratory in Paris now have found a way to prevent injury to the flesh of a patient during radium treatment.

The method, reports "Popular Science Monthly," is to wrap the radium tube in a sheath of dense metal, such as platinum, and many layers of gauze, providing a filter for the rays that are needed.

RESTORER FOR CHECKED VARNISH

Furniture finishers, especially those who have to restore piec s of furniture that have become damaged, make use of what they call "amalgamators." These contain solvents that soften the varnish and cause small cracks and checks to run together. One formula is two parts of heavy-bodied wood lacquer reduced with eight parts of lacquer thinner and one part of butyl alcohol. This is applied cautiously with a very soft brush after the surface has been lightly sandpapered. A second application can be made, if necessary, after the first has dried thoroughly and been sandpapered smooth.—Popular Science Monthly.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R, Garis

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE JEWEL TREE

Baby Bunty came hopping home from school one afternoon so excited that she could hardly get up the front steps of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow, where the little rabbit girl was visiting.

"Oh, Oh!" gasped Bunty, as she opened the front door. "You'll never guess what has happened!"

"Did the Hollow Stump School burn down?" asked Uncle Wiggily. He had just come in from adventuring, and with not much luck, for nothing happened him except that he slipped on the ice and bumped his pink, twinkling nose. "But that," as the rabbit gentleman said, "was an accident and not an adventure."

"Oh, no, the school didn't burn down, nor yet up," answered Bunty with a laugh. "I'll have to tell you, as you'd never guess. I am to be a fairy princess in a little play the Lady Mouse teacher wants us to give in school Friday afternoon. And, being a fairy princess, you must get me a lot of jewels to wear, Uncle Wiggily. I must have diamonds and rubies and emeralds and sapphires and all manner of sparkling stones to wear in the fairy princess play.

"You'll never guess what has happened!"

"Jewels?" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "Where am I to get diamonds, sapphires and rubies?"

"Oh, they don't need to be real, you dear old rabbit!" exclaimed Baby Bunty, who seemed to grow up all of a sudden. "Just make believe jewels will do. You can get them at the three and four-cent store."

"Yes, I suppose I could do that," agreed Uncle Wiggily. "But tell me, about you going to be a fairy princess Bunty."

The little visiting rabbit child was telling how the Lady Mouse teacher had picked her out for the school play, when, all of a sudden, in came hopping Jingle and Jangle, together with all the other rabbit girls of Uncle Wiggily.

Oh, Daddicums!" cried Jingle. "We are all to be in the school play with Bunty! She is to be a fairy princess and we are to be her maids and we must have jewels for our gowns—diamonds, rubies, emeralds and garnets!"

"Hoity toity!" cried the rabbit gentleman. "More jewels! Where am I to get so many?"

"From the five and ten-cent store," answered Jingle. "They don't need to be real just for a play, you know. Make believe ones will sparkle just the same. Oh, how lovely it will be!"

"Well, if I am to get even make believe jewels for so many little players, I had better bestir myself and get busy," thought Uncle Wiggily. "Friday isn't so far off. I'll hop to the six and seven-cent store and see how many pretend diamonds, rubies and topazes they have."

But there was an unpleasant surprise for the rabbit gentleman when he reached the store. There wasn't a single make believe diamond, emerald or sapphire to be had!

"We sold them all for Christmas trees and we haven't any new ones in yet this year," said the little mousee girl clerk in the nine and ten-cent store.

"Dear me! This is too bad!" said Uncle Wiggily. "Baby Bunty and the other rabbit girls will be so disappointed if they don't have make believe jewels to wear in the play. What can I do?"

The night before Friday, when the play was to be given, Uncle Wiggily still had no jewels, and he didn't dare tell Baby Bunty and the others.

"Tomorrow!" sang Bunty, "I'll be a fairy princess in the play!"

Poor Uncle Wiggily didn't know what to do. But in the night it rained, wetting every tree and bush in Woodland. And then the rain froze on every branch and twig. More rain fell and that froze, until, in the morning, ice coated everything. And when the sun shone on the ice-encrusted twigs and branches it turned them all to jewels—red, green, purple, blue, yellow and gold jewel trees were on every side.

"Now I see where I can get jewels for Fairy Princess Bunty and all her attendants," Uncle Wiggily told his wife. "I'll gather twigs and branches from the ice covered jewel trees."

And when these branches were hung around Bunty and the other bunny girls, and when the sun shone on the frozen crystals, nothing more beautiful was ever seen. There was no fire in the school to melt the ice and it sparkled and glittered like real diamonds, rubies and emeralds.

"Oh, what a lovely fairy princess!" everyone said who saw Bunty in her dress festooned with ice crystal twigs. "Uncle Wiggily is wonderful!"

"No!" laughed the bunny gentleman. "It was Jack Frost who did it!"

And if the prune pie doesn't go out in the rain and get so soaked that it looks like appleslump, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily and the rain tree.

SHORT STORY

FOR SELF-SUPPORT

(By Jane Osborn)

"You saw my father," Amy anticipated eagerly

"Yes, I saw your father," admitted Peter somewhat morosely "His objection was certainly original"

Amy and Peter sat tete-a-tete at a little tearoom in a city side street where they had met to talk things over Peter's call on Mr Mellon, Amy's father, the purpose of which was the formal request for the hand of his daughter

"Then he didn't say it would be all right?" asked Amy.

"He didn't say in so many words that I couldn't ever marry you, but he did say you couldn't marry me or any one else—I was glad he said that—until you had shown yourself capable of supporting yourself. I never heard of such a thing. Never asked me what I was earning, though I'd have been glad enough to show him my weekly check and my bank book. Had them ready to show him if he asked. But—well, I never heard of a father naming such an objection."

"Of course it's unusual," excused Amy, "but you know father has rather advanced ideas about some things. He thinks every woman should be educated to earn her own way. I suppose it is because, as a lawyer, he has often known of women, used to luxuries, who, when their husbands died or left them, or something, haven't been able to do anything to earn a living. It's terrible to be a dependent—especially when you're married—and maybe have children."

"Well, I told him I'd planned to take out a big life insurance. And I'll put my savings in government bonds——"

"I know, but father says that he's known of cases where every sort of security was swept away. The only sort of real security, he says, is knowing how to earn your own living. And somehow I just don't seem to be able to do it. Peter," said Amy, looking across the table with tearful eyes, "I think I must be stupid. You know I tried nursing, and honestly I ouldn't stand it. And I never finished high school so I couldn't get into normal college to learn to be a teacher. Then I took a business course—but I just can't stand shorthand. Oh, dear, Peter, I couldn't begin to tell you the things I've thought of—and tried and failed at. But I'll try, Peter."

That night Peter told his mother of his interview with Amy's father and his mother listened at first with amazement and then with amusement. She made no comment, however, save to say that Amy was a dear girl and it would be a shame for her to have to go to work just to humor the whim of her father. That evening she telephoned to Mr. Mellon and asked him if he would dine with her at her house the following evening. Since their children had become such good friends she thought they too ought to renew their old acquaintance.

Mrs. Drew arranged to have her son Peter dine at his club the following evening and gave orders to her cook for the best possible dinner. It was after they had finished and had gone to the cozy little drawing-room to drink their coffee that Mrs. Drew first mentioned Peter and Amy.

"You know, Bert," said Mrs. Drew, "my son is really quite in love with your daughter Amy. I believe he wants to marry her. But I really cannot let him consider it—at least, not now. You see, I believe that no man ought to think of marrying unless he is perfectly able to keep house for himself. I've known of several cases where young men were left widowers with children. They have had to send their children to boarding schools and homes because they haven't been able to keep house and take care of the children themselves. So I've said for some time now that I should never allow my Peter to marry until he had taken a course in domestic science and baby tending. And Peter simply won't do it. All right, I say, then you must remain a bachelor or marry without my consent."

"I'm sure, Alice, that is a most absurd theory of yours. Amy is in the best of health—she wouldn't leave Peter a widower, and, besides, Peter could afford to get a governess and a housekeeper—but it's so absurd to talk about such a thing——"

"Not absurd at all," persisted Mrs. Drew.

There was a protracted pause, during which each waited to see what the other would say next. Then Bert Mellon began to chuckle.

"Alice," he said, "I believe you've been kidding me. But don't lets talk about Amy and Peter. I guess it will be all right about them. I'll give in if you will. But what I want to talk about is ourselves. Alice, I've been alone now for six years—and you?"

"Twelve years," supplied Alice Drew. "And you know I wanted to marry you when I was a boy—or if you didn't know it was because I was too shy to tell you. But I'm not too shy now, Alice. After Peter and Amy are married—let's just run away somewhere and get married too.

. . . REFLECTOR OF EVERY HUMAN INTEREST . . . FRIEND OF EVERY RIGHTEOUS CAUSE . . . ENCOURAGER OF EVERY GENEROUS ACT.

HAIL, THE PETES!

Whatever may be the result of tonight's hockey game, the members of the Peterborough senior O. H. A. team have earned the admiration of their fellow-citizens as well as of the hockey fraternity throughout the Province by reason of the gallant determination they displayed in Monday's game in Toronto.

A team that can go out and show fighting spirit of that calibre in a game in which they are pitted against opponents who have already beaten them three times by large scores and whose chances of winning the championship have been regarded as almost certain, is not made up of weaklings.

It takes a whole lot of moral courage as well as physical cleverness to make such a stand under conditions such as outlined, and for their showing in that memorable game and the good hockey they have played here and elsewhere all season, the players of the Peterborough team deserve the thanks of the whole community.

Win, lose or draw tonight, they have already earned for their home city a vast amount of valuable publicity that, following upon their spectacular success in winning the senior honours last season, is a splendid advertisement for Peterborough.

THE AMUSEMENT TAX.

The action of the Ontario Government in abandoning the amusement tax in the case of all kinds of entertainment where the admission charge is not more than 25c is, it is hoped, the first step toward the repeal of this form of taxation.

The tax is a war legacy; it was passed first as a convenient means of raising revenue for war work, and it was retained because it was regarded as an easy method of finding funds for general purposes.

It has always been regarded, not only by amusement and sporting promoters, but by the public generally, as a nuisance.

The responsibility of collecting the tax falls upon the promoters of entertainment, with the responsibility accompanied by a considerable amount of work, while the patrons feel that the levy adds unnecessary cost to the price of amusement.

The exemption now proposed by the Government will mean that some $600,000 collected by this tax will remain in the pockets of the people of the Province, and there is hope that next year it may be possible to exempt higher-priced entertainments from the operation of this tax.

O MIGOSH!

"The Property Committee recommended the purchase of a tunic only for the constable. Adopted."—Report of Lakefield Council meeting.

Here is a motion that calls for an explanation.

If the village constable is to be provided only with a tunic what is he expected to wear as a covering for the rest of him?

And if he furnishes his own trousers is his garb to be considered official only from the waist up?

The explanation may be found, of course, in the condition that Lakefield's police force has managed to make a pair of official trousers out-last an official tunic.

If that is the case it is manifestly to his credit as a proof that he has not been wearing out his nether garments sitting on a comfortable chair.

A constable clad only in a tunic is not to be considered for a moment; there will be some anxiety on this point until the explanation of the Council's motion is to hand.

A BALANCED BUDGET.

The chief feature of the Budget brought down by Hon. Dr. Monteith, Provincial Treasurer, in the Legislature yesterday was the encouraging report of Ontario's financial condition, rather than the changes in taxation announced.

The Provincial Treasurer was able to predict that at last a balanced Budget had been reached, and that the surplus at the end of 1927 would be $150,000, in spite of the fact that a number of taxation sources of revenue has been dropped, and that the sum of three million dollars is to be paid in debt retirement this year.

It is interesting to note that in estimating 1927's revenue Hon. Dr. Montieth included the sum of $3,500,000 from the sale of liquor under the Government control system during the balance of the year.

Ontario's credit, according to the Provincial Treasurer, is at its highest point, with an interest rate of 4 1-4 per cent., and the total assets of the Province exceed the liabilities by more than thirty-three millions.

The taxation changes announced in the Budget had all been announced previously, some of them during the Provincial election campaign.

They include the abandoning of Provincial taxes upon pool-rooms, leaving the latter to the municipalities to tax, the change involving a revenue loss of $100,000 a year to the Province.

The luxury tax on soft drinks, which yielded over $102,000, is also being given up, while the amusement tax on any entertainment where the price of admission is not more than 25c is cancelled, $600,000 a year in revenue being lost in this way.

Similarly the reduction of $5 in the price of automobile licenses will mean $575,000 to $200,000 less in the Provincial Treasury and that much more in the pockets of Ontario motorists.

THE TAX ON RADIO.

Eleven owners of radio receiving sets in Ottawa have just paid $7 each as a lesson to the others that the Federal annual tax on such machines is more than an amiable gesture. The law provides that the owner of a radio set shall take out a license from the Government at a cost of $1, and there are penalties for failure to do this.

There are objections to this tax, as to many other items of taxation, and it is hardly likely to be a permanent thing. There are very obvious difficulties in collection, and the increasing use of inside aerials is doing nothing to make collections easier. It has been estimated that only about fifty per cent. of radio owners pay the tax, and it is natural that licensed owners should demand more adequate enforcement or elimination of the fee. No man likes to feel that he is paying something which his neighbor, equally obligated, is evading. The question inevitably is asked, why a tax on radio receivers and not on gramophones and pianos?

The defense of the tax is found in the conditions which are peculiar to this new form of entertainment. There is a Radio Department which spends considerable money in protecting the interests of those who own receiving sets, in regulating wave lengths and the general conditions of broadcasting. This service, it is pointed out, is for the sole and direct benefit of the persons who own radio sets, and it is held that they should pay for it. There is no license fee exacted in the United States.

That is the situation as it stands. Radio owners, always reserving the inalienable right of protest, should pay the tax while it is the law.—Ottawa Journal.

FRANCE PREFERS THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS.

Foreign Minister Briand of France has again displayed his political adroitness in the form of his negative reply to President Coolidge's suggestion for a further limitation of naval power by the five signatories to the Washington agreement. He does not base his refusal on any particular grounds or arguments affecting France, but on a frank declaration that France prefers the League of Nations' method of seeking peace to those of the Washington administration. In doing so he strengthens France's prestige as a member of the league and at the same time provides a rebuff—delightfully courteous—to the United States for its failure to join the league, which will be received with delight in those other nations which have felt critical over American aloofness.

The French reply raises a curious contrast in the attitudes of France and the United States now and at the Peace Conference. The League of Nations, with its own proposals for limiting armament, was distinctly an American idea accepted reluctantly by France at Versailles. But the realization of Wilson's strongly urged scheme for the promotion and maintenance of peace found France a member of the league and the United States, for reasons which must still seem to outsiders to have been determined by internal politics, standing aloof. President Coolidge was himself a hearty advocate of it until after the presidential election of 1920. Even then he said that the Republican victory should not be interpreted as barring United States membership. Yet since then the United States has continued to remain outside. It is curious today to find France standing as the defender of the league, not against attacks against that body but against steps proposed by the United States in the interests of peace, which might lower the prestige of the league as a strong, dominating agency for peace.

"To decide today, without consultation with the league, a change in method and to seek a partial solution of the problem while pre-occupied more with the maintenance of the existing situation than with the determination of conditions essential to the assurance of security of each individual state, and further, to limit this effort to a few powers, would be at the same time to enfeeble the authority of the League of Nations, which is so essential to the peace of the world, and to encroach on the principle of equality of states which is at the very base of the Geneva compact and to which, for its part, the French Government rests firmly attached."

But while the French reply is a definite refusal of the Coolidge proposal, it does not shut the door on co-operation toward disarmament with the United States. The Washington Government has been working toward this end with the Preparatory Disarmament Commission of the league at Geneva, and M. Briand states particularly that France will welcome continued participation of the American delegates in the work of the commission and expresses the belief that it is in this way "that the American proposal can be effectively examined." That the United States will follow this course there can be little doubt. Secretary Kellogg only last week avowed the full and hearty intention of the Washington Government to go on working with the commission at Geneva in a letter stating for Congress the reasons for appropriations for this purpose. This is not to say that President Coolidge may not continue his efforts for a naval disarmament conference even if it must be of a restricted character.

Whatever progress may be made in the latter way, it seems likely that for the purpose of general disarmament the United States must go on working through the League of Nations. The door will be left open through that organization. It is another demonstration, as The New York Times remarks, that the more the United States protests its aloofness from the league, the more it is driven to accept its animating principle and to approve its action. It may become increasingly difficult for the United States to seek peace leadership and remain a non-member. Certainly it becomes also increasingly difficult to understand how the United States can establish consistency between its professed desires for the promotion of peace and remain only a participating spectator of the work of the League of Nations through which these desires can most conveniently be realized.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The George Young case in many respects is developing into a farce. It is a pity after the youthful swimmer's wonderful victory.

The public meeting to arrange for Peterborough's Dominion Day celebration will be held on Monday night. Citizens generally are asked to remember that date.

The Budget debate in the Legislature should not take much time, leaving plenty of opportunity to discuss the Government control legislation when the long awaited bill is brought down.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Feb. 23.—Trade not quite so brisk as yesterday, with export buyers practically out of the markets for the rest of this week except for a few pick ups. Prices were steady, with a good feeling for the best weighty butcher steers and heifers.

Choice finished butcher steers, handy weights, 950 to 1,000 lbs., steady to firm at $7 to $7.25. Good medium butcher steers going at $6.50 to $6.75. Extra choice heavy beef steers, $7.50 to $7.75.

Good market for fat butcher cows with a shade firmer feeling at $5 to $5.50, and a few special at around $6.

Calves steady at $12 to $14.

Hogs—Owing to the light runs of hogs this week, buyers were unsuccessful in their efforts to lower prices, which remain steady with last week on basis of $10.75 f.o.b. and $11.55 off cars.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press). — The demand from the United Kingdom for Manitoba Spring wheat on the Montreal market yesterday was better and a little business was done.

There was no change in the condition of the domestic cash grain market, prices being maintained under a fair demand.

The export and local trade in Spring and Winter wheat grades of flour continued slow, but values were steady.

The undertone to the market for all lines of millfeed was firm, with a moderate amount of business passing. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats continued quiet and prices were unchanged.

The weakness that prevaled in the local egg situation on Monday was again the feature of the trade yesterday, and prices were reduced one to two cents per dozen. This makes a net decline in two days of three to five cents per dozen. Indications are that values will still go lower on account of the depression prevailing in the United States markets and the liberal supplies coming forward here. The receipts were 2,791 cases.

A feature of the potato trade was the weaker feeling that developed for Quebec varieties and prices scored a decline of fifteen cents per bag, which was attributed to the increased receipts and the continued somewhat limited demand. Car lots of Quebec White stock were quoted at $1.10 to $1.15 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track. Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were steady $1.60 to $1.65 per bag of ninety pounds, ex-track; New Brunswick Green Mountains were reduced ten cents per bag with sales at $1.10 to $1.15 per bag of eighty pounds, ex-store.

The undertone to the butter market was again strong and prices scored a further advance, which was attributed to the limited demand. A fairly active business was done with sales of New Zealand finest creamery butter at 41 3-4c to 42c per pound, Eastern Townships regraded No. 1 pasteurized at 41 1-2c to 41 3-4c per pound. The receipts were 19 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade and prices were easier. The receipts were 139 boxes.

AERIAL GOLF.

LONDON, Feb. 23.—The course may be rough, but most golfers never find it too rough even to tee up the ball. That's the case, however, with many of the air pilots at Roehampton who play aerial golf. On windy days it is impossible to tee up the balls, but when the weather's fair, all's well. The golf course, to be sure, is laid out on the ground and flour bags are dropped by the flyers.

G.W.V.A. MEETING.

Annual Meeting For Marmora and Delora Held on Friday.

MARMORA, Feb. 21 — The annual meeting of Marmora and Deloro G.W.V.A. was held in the Club rooms on Friday evening with a goodly attendance present. Comrade P. Gray, president, took the chair. As the first item of business Messrs. D. G.Bell and C. W. Gladney were called upon to read their report as auditors. This was adopted and filed. Election of officers ensued, resulting as follows: President, Comrade P. Gray; 1st vice president, Comrade W. M. Regan; 2nd vice president, Comrade W. J. Cottrell; executive, Comrades F. R. Wells, J. Laird and H. Nayler; secretary-treasurer, Comrade J. W. Hickey.

Lengthy discussions on matters pertaining to the welfare of the Association occupied the major portion of the evening.

NORWOOD NEWS

NORWOOD, Feb. 22.—Messrs. W. J. McLaughlin, chairman of the Hydro Commission, and Councillors W. Bitten and R. Dean were in Cobourg on Thursday attending a meeting of the municipalities on the Hydro system in this district, which are protesting against the raise in Hydro-Electric rates recently announced by the Ontario Hydro-Electric Commission.

An enjoyable social evening was held in the Masonic Lodge rooms on Wednesday evening, when members of the craft, together with their wives and lady friends, made merry. Progressive euchre and lost heir were played, after which a sumptuous lunch was served by the men. Vocal numbers by the male quartette and Prof. J. Edwards, also community singing, brought to a close a very enjoyable evening.

The concert given during the week by the Ye Olde Tyme Quartette of Toronto, under the auspices of the Young People's League of the United Church was all that it had been advertised to be. Every one who heard them was delighted. The quartette consisted of Betty Thompson McKenzie, contralto; Thelma Baird, soprano; W. Norris, bass, and A. C. Chapman, tenor. Mrs. A. C. Chapman was pianist. Miss Pearl Carter accompanied them as elocutionist.

The social on Monday evening under the auspices of the Presbyterian Y.W.A. was attended by a good crowd, and all enjoyed the programme of instrumentals, duets, songs, stump speeches and games, to say nothing of the delightful lunch served by the young ladies at the close.

Literary Society.

One of the most successful meetings of the year took place on Friday, under the direction of Committee III., of which the convenor was William Stinson. After the singing of "O Canada," and the reading and approving of the minutes, the president announced a chorus by the group, "In Autumn Time."

A solo by Thomas Rowson, entitled "In an Old-Fashioned Town," was delightfully rendered, and following this, Florence Cameron addressed the society on the very interesting subject of "Edward Jenner," whose medical research work in connection with small-pox innoculation has meant so much to the world.

A charming instrumental, "Maybells," was played by Regina Cleary, and was followed by a monologue, "Miss Edith Helps Things Along," very prettily recited by Helen Buchanan. Jack Duffield's solo, "If Winter Comes," was as usual, well given and much appreciated. "Getting Rid of an Agent" proved to be a humorous playette, with Bernard Quinlan as leading man and also starring Margaret Armstrong and Mary Roxburgh.

The final number, "Two Preludes," by Chopin, rendered by Wilson Riseborough, was very favorably commented on, by the critic, Miss Solomon, who congratulated the executive on the obvious success of the new group system, and the committee, on its splendid programme.

MARMORA NEWS.

MARMORA, Feb. 23.—Miss Peggy Murray and brother, Fergus, left for the West on Monday.

A Thought For To-day

INSOMNIA.

Insomnia, a mental torture caused by things that we do not care to advertise to the world.

It may be the lack of money, the lack of morals, or the lack of courage to meet [illegible] threatening situation, but, whatever it is, put it down as the "lack" of something.

Hot water bottles in winter, ice packs in summer, counting imaginary jumping sheep—all these things have been known to help—but if you will find the "lack" then conquer this "lack", you will not lack sleep.

Ask her what life insurance means!

* * * *

All too often husbands and wives in the heyday of life become blinded to the future by present favorable circumstances and good health.

This frequently results in one of life's greatest tragedies — mothers and children left alone to face a world they never knew.

It's all the more pitiable since life insurance protection can be secured so easily and at such low cost from The London Life.

$10,000 Insurance

Age 25	- -	$ 94.50
Age 35	- -	$122.00
Age 45	- -	$208.00

These extremely low premiums are subject to substantial reduction by annual dividends.

If you are tempted to postpone the taking of adequate life insurance protection think twice and consult an expert.

RINK RATS WIN MIDGET MATCH

Last Year's Champions Finish Schedule Without Defeat.

BEAT ROVERS

The Rink Rats defeated the Rovers in the final game previous to the play-off in the Midget League on Monday evening on the P.C.I. rink. The game was well contested, the Rovers putting up a great fight to get in the play-off. It looked as if they were to make a draw, but by nice combination, last year's champions ran out winners by 3 goals to 1. It was a well-contested game, and each did his best. It would be unfair to signal out any one player for distinction. The record of the Rink Rats is: Played 6, won 6, and scored 33 goals to 6.

The teams:

Rovers—Goal, LeBarr; defence, Johnson and Dorrington; forwards, Dallin, Weir and Saunders; sub., Tranter.

Rink Rats—Goal, N. Calladine; defence, Playford and Starr; forwards, McCullough, Ellis and Cuthbertson; subs., Simpson and G. Merritt.

Referee—Mr. White.

CURLING NEWS

One of the features about the game in Lindsay yesterday, when Peterboro won the Carew Challenge Cup was the playing of J. Anderson. Mr. Anderson is an old resident of Lindsay and in that town he was right on in the game of curling. It is hard to say whether it was the hard sweeping of Mr. Anderson or the good playing of Walter Oke which won the cup. The Granite Club of Toronto are expected to challenge the cup next week.

On Friday afternoon the Waddell cup games are going to be played, and on Saturday afternoon it is expected that the finals of the Morrow Trophy will be run off.

company is sufficient to take care of these necessary expenditures some increase is unavoidable, as the company must expand to provide for the ever-increasing demand for up-to-date telephone service.

That the inconvenience and financial loss that would result from curtailment of such service could not be estimated.

In the Cities of Montreal and Toronto the proposed one-party residence rate of $3.50 per month will be reduced to $3.25 per month, and for a two-party line the rate will be $2.75 instead of $3.

In Ottawa and Hamilton the proposed rate of $3.25 for a one-party line will be reduced to $3.10 per month, and for a two-party line it will be $2.60 per month instead of $2.75 per month as proposed. No four-party rates are provided in the revised schedule.

Effective Next Month

The complete schedule of revised rates is published as a part of the judgment, and may be made effective on March 1 next.

Attention is directed in the judgment to certain discriminations which exist in the present schedule. The City of Ottawa, with over thirty-three thousand stations, has heretofore been paying the same one-party residence rate as was charged in Woodstock, Brockville and Lachine, the latter exchanges having fewer than two thousand stations. In the City of Hamilton the increase in one-party line residence rates will amount to 24 cents per year, and subscribers will no longer be required to pay the same rate as in effect in the City of Toronto.

In Toronto and Montreal the business rate will be $7, which is 40 cents per month higher than authorized by the board for the City of Vancouver, and the residence one-party line rate will be 5 cents less than Vancouver, although the number of stations in Vancouver is about one-third of that in either of the above-named cities.

In New Brunswick a business rate of $7.50 per month is charged in exchanges of something over 5,000 stations, which is 50 cents higher than proposed for Montreal and Toronto.

In the new schedule there will be an increase in business rates in all groups except No. 9, in which there will be a reduction affecting 16 exchanges.

Effect of Order

In the residence rates there will be 49 increases, 18 decreases, and 281 rates in which there is no change. In the new schedule reductions amounting to nearly half a million dollars are to be made in charges for the following: Desk sets extention stations, P.B.X. stations, hotel stations, excess mileage.

The board is to keep closely in touch with the company's operations and finances by means of statements which are to be filed monthly, and will be in a position to judge of the effect of the rates prescribed.

Generally speaking, higher rates will, under the judgment, become operative in Montreal, Toronto, Ottawa, Hamilton, and other centres. The new tariff, it is estimated, will mean an annual increase in revenue to the company of $2,000,000 approximately. The application before the board sought a yearly increase in earnings of $2,750,000.

In the new schedule there will be an increase in business rates in all group areas with the exception of Group 9, where reductions affecting sixteen exchanges are being made.

Oliver's Objection.

OTTAWA, Feb. 23. — Commissioner Frank Oliver of the Railway Commission dissents from yesterday's judgment of his colleagues on the Bell Telephone Company's application for a 25 per cent. increase in rates. Mr. Oliver is of the opinion that the company has failed to support sufficiently its application, and he therefore thinks the application should have been dismissed. He declares that the 1921 rates were not only adequate, but ample to meet the proper requirements of the company. He finds that since 1921 there has been a continuous and steady expansion of the company's business, accompanied by continuously substantial and increasing profits on operation. He further finds that it was not established by evidence that there has been any necessary increase in basic costs of any kind since 1921, and that common knowledge of decreased costs of food, labor, materials and money since 1921 was confirmed at the hearing.

Toronto May Appeal.

TORONTO, Feb. 23. (Canadian Press).—City Solicitor Colquhoun to-day informed the Board of Control that an appeal may be taken to the Supreme Court on points of law against the decision of the Dominion Board of Railway Commissioners allowing in part the application of the Bell Telephone Company for increased rates. He also stated that an appeal may be taken to the Federal Government on points of fact.

THEATRE

"PRISONERS O' STORM" MADE FROM CURWOOD'S TALE, "QUEST OF JOAN."

Another novel from the pen of that immensely popular author, James Oliver Curwood, has been brought to the screen in "Prisoners of the Storm," the Universal-Jewel production starring House Peters, which will be screened at the Capitol Theatre to-morrow.

The picture is based on one of Curwood's most famous novels, published under the title of "The Quest of Joan," and was adapted to the screen by Charles A. Logue.

"Prisoners of the Storm" has its locale in the north woods, as have most of the stories by this popular writer. It deals with the adventures of a miner, who is surrounded by a chain of circumstantial evidence, connecting him with murder of which he knows nothing.

Pursued by the relentless North-West Mounted Police, he is involved in an unusually thrilling number of adventures before he can convince them of his innocence.

The novel has been translated to the screen very faithfully, and carries not only the spirit of the author's story, but the spicy atmosphere of the Canadian woods.

To get the proper exterior scenes, the company which made the picture travelled more than two thousand miles, from Universal City, California, to McCall, Idaho, where the snow scenes were filmed.

Lynn Reynolds, who directed Peters' last stirring picture, 'Combat,' and has made many other successes, including "Chip of the Flying U," with Hoot Gibson, directed "Prisoners of the Storm."

Peggy Montgomery, Walter McGrail, Harry Todd, Fred DeSilver, Lillian Nicholson play prominent roles in support of the star.

AT THE REGENT

"WHILE LONDON SLEEPS."

Rin-Tin-Tin, famous canine screen star, has enacted death struggles with many creatures, from men to crocodiles, but never before has he fought a more thrillingly dramatic fight than in his latest Warner Bros. production, "While London Sleeps," a picture written and directed by Walter Morosco, which opens to-morrow at the Regent Theatre, with Helene Costello and Walter Merrill in the featured human roles.

Rinty, after an enmity lasting throughout the story, pits his ninety pounds of flashing energy against the hundred and eighty pounds of George Kotsonaros, the world's light-heavyweight wrestling champion, who portrays a ferocious apeman. The dog is fighting to save his beloved mistress; the 'monk' is fighting for her possession, while she, weak with horror, beholds the evenly matched struggle which will decide her fate.

This gripping climax is but one of the many thrills in this melodrama of romance and adventure, laid in the sinister shadows of the Limehouse district of London. Included in the supporting cast are Otto Mattiesen, John Patrick, Dewitt Jennings, Carl Stockdale and Les Bates.

"My carburetor is out of order, but I think I can put it right."

"No, but perhaps my neighbor has one. I'll borrow it."—Everybody's.

The HALL STORE

Murdered as far back possibly as last November, a coroner's jury at Marmora, Ont., will soon probe the murder of Jerome Keene, 64, whose body was found only last week in his one-roomed shack. He was the victim of a shotgun attack. For some years he and his wife had been separated, following disagreement over religion. She is a Roman Catholic. Keene's shack, in which the body was found in bed frozen, is shown at the UPPER RIGHT. In the illustration at the LEFT Mrs. Agnes Keene, who is the victim's second wife, is at the RIGHT. With her is her sister and brother-in-law, Mrs. Benjamin Demas, with whom she has been living in their home, only about 300 yards from the death scene. LOWER CENTRE the Mr. and Mrs. John Bell, who purchased the Keene place some years ago, Mr. Keene retaining a small portion of ground for his shack, which is only a short distance from his former home, shown on the LEFT. On the RIGHT is reproduced a snapshot of Keene taken recently with a friend. He is standing on the LEFT.

darts, were everywhere displayed on posters, lamp shades and even on some of the cakes. There was a large attendance and the financial results were well over $100, marking an unusually good sale. Mrs. Trude Waldon, president of the Society, received the guests, and Mrs. T. Watson, Mrs. F. Kendall and Mrs. E. S. Kelsey were in charge of the home cooking table.

Mrs. Jackson, Mrs. Nesbitt and Misses S. Hetherington and A. Atwood were in charge of the fancy work table.

Mrs. Marling and Mrs. Mahood were in charge of the autograph quilt, which was won by Master Jack Smith.

Mrs. K. A. Mackenzie and Miss A. Osborne presided over the candy table while the tea room was in the capable hands of Mrs. Stenner, Mrs. Junkin, Mrs. W. Watson Jr. and Miss L. Hampton.

The illness of the secretary, Miss Florence Atwood, which prevented her from being present was the only cloud on the day's success. Miss Atwood had been preparing for weeks for this occasion and had put such an amount of personal effort into it that all the members regretted her inability to be present to enjoy the joy of achievement.

Young Worshipper's Valentine Party.

A Valentine party was held in the assembly room of Regent street church for the members of the Young Worshipper's League. There were over seventy children present varying in age from 8 to 15 years. A valentine post office was operated by Miss Merle Crawford, Miss Elva Hendren and Mr. Kenneth Kemp and the distribution of the mail provided lots of fun.

"Drop the handkerchief", "Passing the ball", "Bean bags" and other games were played for which prizes were given.

A little programme with music and readings was heartily enjoyed after which refreshments were served by Mrs. (Rev.) S. A. Kemp, assisted by Mrs. John Charlton, Mrs. James Northey, Mrs. John Hendren and Mrs. Frank Darling.

This was a real event which will long remain a happy memory by the boys and girls of the church.

Card Party.

The regular weekly euchre held under the auspices of the A.Y.P.A. was held as usual on Thursday evening last with six tables played. Prizes were won by Mrs. C. Lake and Mr. F. Moon and consolation prizes were won by Miss Watson and Mr. George Pearson. Rev. W. J. Creighton was present and presented the prizes and announced that the last of the series will be held on Thursday evening next, February 24th.

Board Meets.

The official Board of the Regent street United church met in the church parlor on Monday evening, February 7th. The work of the church was found to be in healthy condition, and the pastor, Rev. S. A. Kemp, was unanimously invited to remain as the pastor of the church with an increase of $150 in salary making a total of $1,800 a year.

Hockey.

Friday night's win for the Grove has made a three-cornered final for the Casement Cup with the Colts, Grove and Juniors all in the running. The first named team has held it for two years and while they are the heaviest team, the two younger teams have had a great deal more practice so the result is "in the air" as yet. The Kennedy cup will be presented at the same time to the player of greatest value to his team and this individual trophy is much coveted. It was won last year by Gordon Hill (Bob) Mr. Norman A. Faulkner, the one-legged skater who visited the village two years ago, will be here again on Thursday evening and will give an exhibition.

The Catholic Women's League are holding an At Home in the Lakefield House on Friday evening of this week, which will be their last party till after Easter. With reasonably good weather and fair roads they are assured of a good crowd.

Citizens' Band.

The Citizens' Band are holding their second annual skating party on Saturday evening, February 26th, when numbers will be given each skater and prizes for lucky numbers will be presented. The prizes have been donated by the business men of the village toward this worthy cause. The use of the rink has been given by the Rink Company and the Band expect a good night with the generous support of the citizens.

Curling.

Horse Which Went Overseas in 1914, Shot at Kingston Barracks.

KINGSTON, Feb. 23.—A horse that saw service in the Great War and was owned by Col. W. P. Elkins, has answered 'the last call.' The animal saw service with the R.C.H.A. and yesterday was destroyed in a humane way at the battery stables. The horse was taken overseas by Col. Elkins with the First Canadian Division and after being on duty for the whole period of the war was brought back to Kingston. The animal suffered greatly from rheumatism.

DEBATE FEATURE OF COMBINED MEETING

C. G. I. T. and Tuxis Boys Hold Gathering in Lakefield.

LAKFIELD, Feb. 22.—The C.G.I.T. girls and Tuxis boys of the Katchewanoonkan Square held an open evening last Wednesday in the Regent Street United Church with a debate as the main feature of the evening.

The meeting was opened by the girl's regular opening exercises with Miss Hazel Darling, president of the C.G.I.T. in the chair. After the devotional period Mr. Kenneth Kemp, president of the Katchewanoonkan Square took the chair while the following programme was rendered:

Reading, "Pat's Mistake"—Miss Greta McColl.

Piano solo—Miss Ione Sanderson.

Musical selection with bones—Mr. Ivan Butler.

Reading, "Thou Art the Man"—Miss Merle Crawford.

Cornet duet—Messrs. Kenneth and Ronald Kemp.

Reading, "How Jimmie tended the Baby"—Miss Elva Hendren.

Piano duet—Misses Marion Wagar and Ione Sanderson.

Dialogue, "Jokes"—Messrs, Melville Kingdom and Norman Lemay.

Solo—Miss Francis Fairbairn.

Brief speech—Mr. Harry Sherin.

The subject of the debate was: "Resolved, that the country girl would make a better housewife than the city girl."

Misses Hazel Darling and Alma McCracken took the affirmative side while Ted Leonard and Roland Alford took the negative. Both sides presented a strong case and the judges, Miss M. Payne, Mrs. H. E. Moore and Rev. S. A. Kemp, had no light task in arriving at a decision. While they were deliberating over the question the young people sang some of the old favorite songs. Mr. Kemp announced the decision of the judges in favor of the affirmative. The meeting adjourned after a very pleasant and profitable session.

Valentine Tea.

The annual Valentine Tea of St. John's church was held on Tuesday last from 3 to 6 o'clock, in the Parish Hall, which was gay with emblems of St. Valentine, the patron saint of lovers. Hearts, cupids,

Mr. P. T. Flanagan recently elected Managing Director and Secretary of the Gillette Safety Razor Co. of Canada, Limited.

GILLETTE RAZOR CO. ANNUAL MEETING

R. T. Flanagan Appointed Secretary and Managing Director.

The annual meeting of the Gillette Safety Razor Company of Canada was held at the head office of the company, Montreal, February 15th.

Mr. J. E. Aldred, Chairman of the Board of Directors, presented the most satisfactory statement since the inception of the company in 1906.

Both export and domestic business for 1926 showed a remarkable increase over the previous years. Sales amounted to 1,500,220 Gillette razors and over 50,000,000 Gillette blades.

Mr. P. T. Flanagan was elected a Director of the Board, which now stands as follows:

J. E. Aldred, Frank J. Fahey, P. T. Flanagan, Henry J. Fuller, King C. Gillette, Sir Herbert S. Holt, Howard Murray, Thos. W. Pelham, Ralph E. Thompson.

The following officers were elected: Chairman of the Board, J. E. Aldred; President, King C. Gillette; Vice-President, Thomas W. Pelham; Treasurer, Frank J. Fahey; Managing Director and Secretary, P. T. Flanagan.

CAVAN PERSONALS

CAVAN, Feb. 23.—On Tuesday "a pot-luck dinner" was held at the home of Mrs. Richard Matchett. Twelve names had been drawn from among the names of the ladies on the United Church roll. Nine of these ladies were present, each one bringing one thing towards the menu of the dinner, sufficient for all present. These ladies were not supposed to say what they were contributing or to plan the menu, so that it was a matter of great interest to those attending as to what the dinner would consist of. Details were not published, but a well balanced and satisfying meal was reported. Each one paid a fee, just whatever amount she wished. The social side of the gathering was equally successful. The gathering broke up about four in the afternoon. Other dinners or teas are expected to follow along the same lines.

Mrs. L. H. Winslow was in Cavan Village on Wednesday morning teaching her music class at the home of Mrs. Albert Tinney.

Mr. and Mrs. William Gray, Millbrook, and Mr. Ward Brown, Oshawa, were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. James Paul.

Mr. Fred. Matchett is down from the West, visiting his brother, Mr. Richard Matchett, and other friends.

To the destruction of the city of London by fire in 1666 may be traced the present system of fire insurance. The first company was formed at that time.

Bishop Brown is at present in Toronto.

PRESENTATION TO BETHEL PEOPLE

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carveth Are Leaving Dummer For Smith.

WARSAW, Feb. 23.—On Wednesday evening the people of Bethel church and of its various organizations, as well as many neighbors and friends, gathered at Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Carveth's home to show that they would miss them when they are gone and wish them happiness and prosperity in their new home.

About the first of March they expect to move to Smith township, near Lakefield. The move is a certain wrench to each of them as Mr. Carveth was brought up and lived in Dummer beside Zion church until his marriage, Mrs. Carveth has lived her life since infancy on the farm they are leaving. In that house she was married and there she stayed, her parents remaining with her for a few years.

After some time spent in social converse, community singing, music by Mrs. G. Taylor, solos by Mr. H. Batten, and recitation by Mr. W. Anderson, the event of the evening took place. A handsome tablecloth was spread on the dining table, a few of the dishes of a dinner and tea set were placed upon it. The bowl, which contained the money over the gifts was in the centre of the table. Miss Clara Payne read the address and Mesdames Clayton and J. A. Crowe made the presentation, by pushing the table towards Mr. and Mrs. Carveth. The address was:

Dear friends:

It was with deep regret that we learned of your intention of moving to another community. Of course we know that such partings come to us from time to time, and that you make this change only because you feel that you can better your conditions; nevertheless the parting of old friends always is with pain. Though you are going but a short distance from us, and we shall see you from time to time, yet it will not be the same.

This community, in which you are highly respected, will miss you greatly. Your neighborliness and good fellowship has been an inspiration and a help to us all; and your influence has reached beyond the immediate community to the surrounding settlements, where men and women have been made better by even that distant acquaintance with you. You were associated with all that was good in the community, and if there was anything worth while to be promoted your assistance could always be counted upon. Nor were you afraid to take your stand against that which conscience disapproved of.

When we have said this it is but natural that we should refer to your church life, for it was owing to the influence of the church that you made that spiritual contact with Christ which has blossomed into such noble ideals as we see lived out in your lives. The church was given its proper place in all your plans. You were to be found at all its services, and you showed that you believed in the value of the church by the substantial financial support you gave toward its upkeep. You also so planned your work as to give time to the various organizations of the church, Mrs. Carveth being vice-president of the Ladies' Aid, and Mr. Carveth being secretary-treasurer of the congregation and trustee board.

Because of the prominent place you occupy in our lives and hearts we, the members of Bethel congregation, Bethel Ladies' Aid, together with your other neighbors and friends, felt we could not let you depart from our midst without gathering at your home to wish you God's blessing, and, as an outward mark of our esteem and good wishes, we present unto you this china dinner and tea set with this table cloth.

Our prayer is that as you go to your new home the grace of God may accompany you. May you have health, strength and happiness, and may your expectations be fully realized.

Signed on behalf of Bethel congregation, Bethel Ladies' Aid, and neighbors and friends by: Mrs. C. Jury, Mrs. George Garbutt, Mrs. E. Garbutt, Mrs. J. A. Crowe.

Mr. and Mrs. Carveth each thanked the donors, and expressed the hope that, as the distance would not be great, they would often meet their old friends and be able to welcome them in their new home.

On Thursday afternoon at the Public Health class Miss Alexander put in a very strong plea for clean, healthy bodies, and showed how cleanliness, rest, sleep and good plain, wholesome food made strong healthy bodies and clear minds fit to cope with what duties God put before them. She showed the evils of late hours, and spoke of the Peel county girls who made up their minds that there would be no public entertainment lasting later than eleven o'clock, whether for the church or any other purpose, and these girls have been able to carry out their idea.

The truth is that men honor and respect girls more, who do not keep late hours, and who do not allow any liberties.

Another theory the instructors stressed was proper food and clothing. During the great "flu" epidemic, six women died to one man, probably because the men were properly clothed, and the chest was protected. A man has an undershirt close up to his neck, then a shirt, then a vest, and perhaps a sweater, then a coat. He has warm underwear to his ankles, his trousers are cloth, his socks and boots are warm. He is comfortably and warmly clad. Many women wear light underwear, with nothing under the dress, over the shoulders a strap (and she never knew of any warmth in a strap, except when applied to the palm of the hand, light underwear, at best, silk stockings and thin shoes.

The fact that a child's pulse is more rapid than an adult's shows that the child should not have as heavy a diet. A child needs lots of rest and sleep, light nourishing meals, and frequent daily baths. Then it will grow and be healthy, and lessons will be no drag.

BETHANY NEWS

BETHANY, Feb. 23.—The villagers are getting their supply of summer wood in now while the good sleighing lasts. The recent fall of snow has greatly improved the roads for this job.

The saw-mill yard is rapidly filling up with saw-logs ready for the spring sawing.

A number of teams are drawing fine gravel for James McKinnon in readiness for the spring to re-build the dam at the grist-mill, which broke away before Christmas.

Other teams are drawing gravel from Cairns' gravel pit to repair the roads, thus trying to avoid spring holes in the roads which have heretofore held terror for the unwary motorist.

Mr. Herbert Patterson, who has been spending part of the winter with friends in Clarke Township and who has spent the past week with his family here, left on Tuesday for a visit with Toronto friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Grandy, of Fleetwood, were visitors to the village on Tuesday.

Mr. Fred. Gray's little son, who has been ill for some weeks, was removed to Nicholl's Hospital on Thursday evening for a slight operation.

The Swiss Bell Ringers or the Musical Erkardts gave the villagers and surrounding district a musical treat on Thursday evening in the Town Hall. There were music from bells, goblets, broom-handle and hand-saw, as well as piano, violin, saxaphone and xylophone, besides singing and dancing.

Dr. Moir, of Peterboro, paid a professional visit to this village on Thursday.

Dr. Hamilton was a business visitor to Peterboro on Friday.

Miss Olga Fowler, of Peterboro, who for a number of years conducted a class of music pupils in the village and district, was in the village on Wednesday to resign her class, as she has accepted a position in the Capitol Theatre in Peterboro as organist. For the remainder of the term the class will continue under the instructions of Miss Webber, of Peterboro.

Mr. Harold Palmer left on a trip to Western Canada on Friday morning.

Miss Elva Jackson, of Otonabee, is spending a few days with Miss Violet Jackson and attended the Young Farmers' dance on Friday night.

Mr. Edward Swanson left on Thursday morning to take charge of the Lakefield section of the C. N. R.

The Young Farmers' Association gave a dance in the Town Hall on Friday night. The Stewart-Moncrief orchestra was engaged to play for the dance.

200-YEAR-OLD WOMAN PICKLED

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—A 200-year-old woman warrior (that is, her torso) pickled and shrunken to a height of less than a foot, was displayed here to reporters and scientists recently by Charles P. Erez, of Quito, Ecuador. The woman was killed in battle. Her body was soaked in vinegar for six years, the bones removed, and then the mummy was ironed with hot stones. It was presented to the American Museum of Natural History.

OSAGE INDIANS BUY CARS' QUIT WORK' HIRE HELP

Ten Years Ago Villagers Lived in Mud Huts. Now Have Modern Improvements.

WHITE SERVANTS.

Women Ostracize Members of Sex Who Discard Tribal Dress.

BY BRUCE CATTON.
NEA Service Writer.

PAWHUSKA, Okla.—This is a story about the only town in the United States where every man is independently wealthy: where there is no poverty, no charity, no want: where every house is furnished with just exactly the things that the owner wants to have.

That town is the Indian village on the outskirts of Pawhuska, capital of Osage county and headquarters of the Osage nation, richest people on earth.

The Indian village ten years ago was a place of tents and huts. Its streets were little more than muddy lanes: its inhabitants eked out a rather scanty living as best they coucil.

Then the fabulous Osage oil wells began to flow. Money poured into the tribal coffers, to be divided equally among the members. And the Indian village became a village of comfortable homes, paved streets, modern improvements—and automobiles.

Nobody Works.

No one works in the Indian village—no one, that is, except the white servants who are hired by the wealthy Indians.

"The Indians don't like to work," admits J. George Wright, U.S. agent for the Osage reservation.

"What do they do to fill in the time, then?" he was asked.

"Drive automobiles, mostly," he says with a grin.

He's right. You will see more high-priced automobiles in the little Indian village than in any ordinary town of five times its size. Pierce-Arrows, Cadillacs, Packards, Marmons and Rolls-Royces: these are the cars favored by the noble red man. The automobile is his great hobby. And, considering that each Osage draws nearly $15,000 a year, why not?

Pawhuska, the white man's town, has felt the effect, too. There are as many automobile salesrooms here as there are in Oklahoma City. One of the salesmen tells a story to illustrate the vagaries of the leisure class of Osage county.

"An Indian came in recently and bought a big sedan," the salesman says. "It cost him about $2000 and he paid cash. Four days later he came in and wanted his money back. Said he didn't like the car.

"I told him I couldn't give all his money back, as he had used the machine, but I said I'd credit him with a good sum if he wanted any other car I had. So he pointed to a touring car, that came about $600 cheaper, and said: 'I want that.'

"It was a bargain all right, and I made the swap. Then I asked him why he preferred the open car to the sedan.

"'Well, you see,' he said, 'I can't spit in this closed car'."

Twice yearly the Indian village is enlivened by gaudy ceremonial dances, when Indians of neighboring tribes are invited in and great rows of barbecue fires light up the night. Then the men and women mingle in the "stomp dance," a weird parade to the tune of tom-toms. The dance has no religious significance, though it seems to have had a religious origin.

Wear Gaudy Blankets.

Most of the Indians go clad in blankets of the most giddy hues imaginable. These blankets, however, are not the woven Indian blankets of former days. Far from it. They were woven on the looms of Pawtucket and Fall River, and they sell in the stores here for prices ranging from 135 on up. The red man pays without a a whimper.

Some of the men ffect the white man's clothing but very few of the women do. The Osage women ostracise any Indian woman who does not ordinarily dress in the tribal costume.

All of which means much money to the merchants of Pawhuska. As a result, Pawhuska's retail shopping district is more substantial looking than similar districts in Guthrie and Ponca City, for instance, though these two cities are nearly three times Pawhuska's size.

Pawhuska would be only a shell without the Indians—and Pawhuska knows it. Consequently, Pawhuska is very fond of its upper class.

44 Hours a Week Enough Australian Court Decides

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 23 (United Press).—Declaring that modern workers need more leisure, the Federal Arbitration Court to-day decided that a 44-hour week of five and a half working days was practicable, and for all practical purposes the 44-hour week set forth will be the standard in Australia excepting in the State of Victoria.

The Court's decision was reached after five months' investigation in which employers' organizations solidly opposed Labor efforts to show that 44 hours a week work was sufficient for the welfare of the Commonwealth and 48 hours too much for the welfare of the workers.

The Greatest Of All Wars

The greatest of all wars is now at its height. The spiritual world is in a state of such fearful conflict that nothing so momentous has hitherto occurred in its whole history. Which is to win—the fundamentalists or the modernists, for so are the two opposing armies named? The cause of the conflict is and was, the statements made by many eminent ministers that they could no longer believe in certain things taught in the Bible such as the creation of man, the punishment of Jesus for the sins of others (the Atonement) the Virgin Birth, Jonah and the whale, and many others.

Clearly, if this attack upon the authenticity of the Bible as the inspired book which God issued for the instruction of mankind should prevail, then the Bible itself might be made the subject of further criticism and ultimately be thrown to one side as unworthy of belief. The reply to this attack by the modernists was the war-note of the old believers or fundamentalists, addressed to man, revealing only as God can, His own nature and thoughts.

The fundamentalists rejected, and reject with scorn and bitterness, the attempt of the modernists to interpret God and His ways as they, the modernists, see fit. They charge the modernists with usurping the place and power of the Bible and with substituting themselves and their ideas for God and the Gospel.

That this charge against the modernist is a true statement of the case there can be no doubt and what makes this conflict the greatest of all wars is that if modernism triumphs, then there is no revelation of God to man no history of Jesus and His divine mission except such as is admitted by the modernists. The modernists have placed themselves between God and man, and maintain that only that which appeals to their common sense and scholarship is worthy of credence.

Hence, we see that if the modernists prevail, we must take our religion from man. The fundamentalist maintains that our religion can come only from God Himself, and His Son, the Savior, as set forth in the Holy Scriptures. Clearly, if the Bible ceases to be our rule of faith we have nothing but the errant words of men to go by—a wholly impossible situation. In fact, so fundamental is the difference that it is a case of go-as-you-please if the modernist idea prevails, and the triumph of the rationalist follows. The whole matter has become the old appeal to Reason as against the appeal to Revelation all over again.

Some of you readers may remember that for many years I have been writing on this subject. it is only now, however, that the coming events have cast their actual shadows upon us. The spiritual evangelical world must now say which side it is on. The crisis has arrived and can no longer be side-stepped. Do you believe in the Christian religion as set out in the Bible because you believe the Bible to be God's own account of it and of the birth, life and destiny of man; or do you propose to believe only what seems reasonable to yourself?

In a word, do you propose to reject revealed religion in favour of rational religion.

These are the fundamental and modernistic facts of the case. The whole Protestant world is rent in pieces by the storm of conflict—the greatest of all holy wars. If you are a Christian according to the Bible you must say so. If you are a Christian according to the teaching of the modernist you must dsay so. The point of these remarks is not so much what the conflict is about, since that is now well known, but as to which side are you on? That is the question now forcing itself upon us. The intense bitterness of the conflict was further increased by the fact that those who changed their faith did not change their pulpits, but tried to carry their churches with them.

ASSESSMENT BILL IN SECOND READING

Provides For Increased Exemption From Municipal Income Tax.

TORONTO, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press).—When Hon. J. D. Monteith, Provincial Treasurer, suggested in the budget speech yesterday that the income tax reduction would encourage thrift on the part of workingmen, he had in mind the bill which the Government has introduced in the Legislature for the purpose of amending the Assessment Act. This bill provides for an increase in the exemption of householders from $2,000 to $3,000 and of non-householders from $1,000 to $1,500. The bill awaits second reading when the various provisions will be discussed.

SUN SURRENDERS

Panic in Native City

SHANGHAI, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press)—Near panic prevailed in the native quarter of Shanghai to-day as deserters and stragglers from the broken army of Marshal Sun Chuang Fang continued to arrive in increasing numbers and rumors were that they were planning the wholesale looting of the prize city.

French authorities strengthened the defences about their concession, which yesterday was bombarded by a Chinese warship which had deserted Marshal Sun's cause and gone over to the Cantonese. The intention was to shell Sun's arsenal by firing over the city but the shells fell short. In spite of the incident in the French quarters, thousands of refugees poured into it from the native section as the situation outside became more tense.

Meanwhile, the strike abated appreciably. It was estimated that thirty thousand of the hundred thousand which were on strike yesterday had returned to work. The majority of the inside force at the post office went back and the transportation services were nearing normal operations again.

Strike Abates

Marshal Sun was reported to have reached Shanghai to-day from Nanking, capital of this Province, which he surrendered to the Shantung military forces earlier in the day. The Shantungese took over the city as part of their plan to bring troops from the north to aid Sun's tottering army in the defense of Shanghai against the approaching Cantonese, who are lining up south of here.

Cruisers Captured

LONDON, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press)—A Reuters despatch from Shanghai says that Marshal Sun Chuan Fang's local officials to-day captured the cruisers whose mutinous crews were responsible for yesterday's bombardment of the Kiangnan arsenal, resulting in the dropping of shells in the French concession. The crews of both vessels had previously escaped.

"WORTH ITS WEIGHT IN GOLD" SAYS OTTAWA MATRON

Mme. Beatrice Charlebois Could Not Hold Pen To Write. Nerves Completely Shattered, Health Ruined. Now Alert, Vigorous and Strong, She Gives Praise To Tanlac.

The two-year ordeal which she passed through before Tanlac came to her permanent relief, was recently described by Mme. Beatrice Charlebois, of 22 Rose St., Ottawa.

"What I endured in that time could not be told," she said. "I was so weak I could hardly walk. My appetite was poor and my stomach gave no end of trouble. Gas and pains would bring on fainting spells.

"My nerves were so completely shattered that I jumped in fright every time the doorbell rang. My hand trembled so that it could not hold a pen to write my name. Night after night I've gone without sleep, too nervous to lie still for even a few moments. Even my housework became too much for me.

"I tried all kinds of remedies in those two years, but can honestly say Tanlac gave me my first real relief. It built me up so that I've gained 11 lbs., eat and sleep fine and have nerves as calm and steady as ever. Tanlac is worth its weight in gold."

Marsh, who was sitting near a fence, offered no resistance, permitting the posse to tie him up.

THE AGE OF THE EARTH

An Astounding Bit of Information!

Scientists have not as yet been able to compute the age of the earth. But there is nothing to stop them from having as many guesses as they want.

* * *

The best guess so far is this:

A whole is as old as any of its parts. Therefore find out how old a portion of the earth is.

Take a couple of shovelfuls of earth and weigh it. Say it weighs three pounds. A pound is or was $4.86. Three times $4.86 is $15, roughly estimated. That was the way we were taught in school.

King Tut lived long ago, although he didn't live long.

The population of Yonkers is over 100,000. Why?

Therefore, the earth is 400,000,000 years old. Maybe more, maybe less.

SONATA RECITAL

(By Jeanette.)

A very interesting and out-of-the-ordinary musical programme was given in the hall of the Conservatory of Music last evening, in the form of a Sonata Recital by Miss Edwina Palmer, violinist, and Miss Agnes Best of Toronto, pianist. It was an ambitious programme, composed of three difficult Sonatas in contrasting type and treatment and the work of the two young ladies was received with enthusiastic appreciation by those present.

The expert finish, the thorough, "intellectual" atmosphere, and technical proficiency of Miss Palmer's violin work is well known here, and was demonstrated fully in her music last night, while the piano playing of her companion, Miss Agnes Best, was delightful in the extreme. Her confident execution, animated and velvety tone, firm touch and a brilliant interpretation made her performance exceptionally attractive.

As explained by Mrs. J. Forbes Allan, prior to the opening number, the two artists are not classed as soloist and accompanist, but rather as companion soloists, the violin and the piano taking the lead in turn, and the ensemble work showing the excellence of the combination.

There was a splendid interpretation of the noble music of Beethoven, in the Sonata in F major, Opus 24, which formed the first number on the programme. Spiritual in import and purport, this quality gives warmth and elasticity to music which is intensely thematic in character, and the Sonata played last evening was an excellent example of the master composer's variation in themes to avoid monotony. The opening mood is one of happiness, sometimes exuberant, while a dreamy and langurous atmosphere characterizes the second, with a merry little "Scherzo" preluding the closing Rondo which combines elements of all three in its ending.

The Brahms' Sonata in D minor, Opus 108, was an outstanding composition, beautifully played. The yearning after emotion and expression which marks the work of this musician, the originality in figure and harmony, and the ascetic mood which combines with an element of barbaric force to make his music quite out of the ordinary, were splendidly interpreted in the different passages of this Sonata, which opens with a smooth beat that recalls the seductive music of the East, and progresses through movements in which the violin and piano are in turn paramount, expressive of simple, folk-song melody, to the heaped-up, massive harmony of the finale.

In contrasting atmosphere was the final Sonata, a composition in C major by Frederick Delius a modern composer whose work neglected for nearly a quarter of a century is now coming into prominence. His muse is of the attractive poetical type and his compositions have a wistful charm which shifts constantly through kaleidoscopic passages of ethereal charm. This composition, like its contrasting companions, was interpreted with fascinating effect by the two musicians.

Several lovely floral tributes were presented to Miss Palmer and Miss Best, the former receiving a sheaf of roses from the Women's Music Club and an exquisite bouquet of rose tulips from her pupils, and the latter being presented with a bouquet of carnations from Mrs. Dorothy Allan Park and a bouquet of tulips and daffodils from Miss Palmer's pupils. They were presented by Mary Westbye.

Evening Examiner "IDEAL Fashions" by Jean Bell-Hamilton

The Bolero Dress is Smart

This bolero dress is decidedly smart, yet quite easily fashioned. The skirt has inverted plaits in the front and is joined to a front bodice, while the back is in one piece. A bolero is attached at the side seams and falls in graceful folds in front, and the long sleeves are gathered to wrist-bands. A wide girdle fastens with a buckle in front. Contrasting material is effectively used for the shaped collar and bodice front over which the bolero opens. NO. 1476 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3⅝ yards 39-inch material, or 2⅝ yards 54-inch, and ¾ yard 36-inch contrasting. Price 20 cents the pattern.

The garments illustrated in our new Fashion Book are advance styles for the home dressmaker, and the woman or girl who desires to wear garments dependable for taste, simplicity and economy will find her desires fulfilled in our patterns. Price of the book 10 cents the copy.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

The coroner's friendly smile faded as he leaned toward Cherry across the table. "Think hard, now, Mrs. Wiley. Did Mr. Cluny say nothing—nothing whatever—about forcing you to marry him against your will?"

Cherry shrank against the back of her chair, her eyes dilating with fear. She glanced helplessly at her sister, as if seeking help. Faith shook her head slightly, forming words soundlessly with her lips: "Tell him the truth! The truth!" She wanted to rise, to rush to her sister, to whisper in her ear, "Mary Kearney was listening! Mary has already told what Cluny said to you," but she had to sit there helpless, forming soundless words with her lips.

Then understanding flooded Cherry's face with color. Faith had not failed her. The silent message had reached the distracted girl's dazed brain.

"Oh," she drew a deep breath and smiled like an adorable child who knows that no one can be seriously angry with it. "He said things like that, but he didn't really mean them! He said something silly about forcing me to keep my word. He said he'd make me stay there until Bob came and go home with him to dress for the wedding. Then I told him that I was going to marry Chris, that I'd rather kill myself than marry him—Mr. Cluny, I mean. I meant it too," she added in so low a voice that the stenographer looked up uncertainly from his notes.

"Then what happened, Mrs. Wiley?"

"Then I ran to the door and tried to leave the room, because I couldn't make him believe me and I was afraid Mr. Hathaway would come any minute. He was closer to the door than I was, and he opened it, and he saw Mary, the parlormaid, listening near the door."

"Did you try to—to escape then?" the coroner phrased his question with distaste.

"Oh, yes," Cherry spoke brightly, "but he held me back. Then he closed the door and I began to cry again. I told him Chris was waiting for me down below in the driveway, and that I loved Chris, and was going to marry him or not marry anybody. I—I told him I'd say 'no' when the rector asked me at the altar, if he made me go to the church. He gave up then and—and kissed me on the forehead—" again she spoke in a low voice, blurred with tears.

"Then he said, 'I hope you will be very happy, my dear child. I have known all along that I was too old, that it was wrong of me to let you sacrifice your youth and beauty to an old man.'

"Oh, he was good, good, and I felt so sorry for him I could hardly bear it. I kissed him on both cheeks, ran down the stairs and out of the house to Chris."

"Now, Mrs. Wiley, this is important. Did you see anyone—any living soul—as you left the house, either in the house or in the grounds?"

Cherry shook her head, forlorn and terrified again, for no one knew better than she that everyone in the room was asking the question of himself, "If she didn't do it, who did? Who could have done it?"

"No, sir," she answered simply. "I didn't see anyone but Chris. I asked him what time it was—it seemed that it ought to be awfully late, so much had happened. It was nineteen minutes 'till nine."

"You're sure of the time?" the coroner asked, his face very grave.

"Yes, sir. I remember saying to Chris that Bob was due in just four minutes and it would be just like him to be early and catch me running away with Chris. But we didn't see him or anyone else."

"Mrs. Wiley, before you got into the car, did you see any footprints in the snow along the path you took or near Mr. Wiley's car?"

Cherry's eyes widened, held the coroner's for a long moment as comprehension of the motive behind his question dawned, then she shook her head. "I wasn't looking for footprints or thinking about them. All I was thinking of was getting away from there—here—before Bob Hathaway came and caught me running away with Chris."

"You were not running away because you were afraid of the consequences of your act—of what you had done to Mr. Cluny?" the coroner shot the question at her suddenly.

Anger flooded Cherry's cheeks with color. "Dr. Murchison!—I didn't do anything to Mr. Cluny. I don't believe anybody did anything to hurt Mr. Cluny. I believe it was an accident, that the wind blew the vase off the bookcase or that he knocked up against the bookcase and jarred the vase so that it fell on the back of his head and—and killed him."

"Are you prepared to testify that that is the way it happened, Mrs. Wiley? Come now—don't be frightened. Let's have the whole truth. In scuffling for your freedom with Mr. Cluny, did he bump against the bookcase and jar it so that it fell upon his head?"

Cherry half rose from her chair, her eyes blazing. "I only said that is the way I think it happened!" she cried indignantly. "I didn't see anything happen to Mr. Cluny. He was alive and well when I left the room. That's all I know—every blessed thing—about Mr. Cluny. I didn't kill him, I didn't. I didn't. And I didn't see any accident happen to him, or see anyone else kill him! You've got to believe me!"

"Try to control yourself, Mrs. Wiley," the coroner spoke in a gentle, soothing voice. "And go on with your story. You joined Mr. Wiley in his car—"

"Yes, sir. Chris wanted to stop at his apartment to get his bag, which was already packed. He said he'd been pretty sure I'd marry him, if he could talk to me at the last minute, as he did. He got the bag, while I waited in the car. Then he stopped at the garage where he keeps his car, and had it filled up with gas and oil, and we drove on to Marlboro county. We got to the preacher's—his name was Bates—about ten o'clock."

"Just a minute, Mrs. Wiley. You say Mr. Wiley drove all that distance—at least thirty-six miles in an hour, while it was snowing hard?"

"Oh, Chris' car can do fifty any time," Cherry answered, with a tinge of boastfulness. "He always drives fast. Now, don't you go to thinking we were driving fast because we were scared!" she cried indignantly. "We didn't know that anything dreadful had happened. But of course we wanted to get married as quick as we could, because—because, well, I was afraid Faith would try to stop me."

"I see. Now, Mrs. Wiley, when and how did you receive the first news of the tragedy?"

"After we were married, Chris and I went to a farmhouse that often takes eloping couples in for the night. The Rev. Mr. Bates sent us there. They didn't have a telephone, or I'd have phoned Faith that I was married, and not to worry about me. We'd planned to drive on to Chicago for our honeymoon, if the roads were good enough, and got up early this morning to make a start.

"When we were eating breakfast early the next day, Mr. Bates came over with a morning paper, and told us he'd phoned the police here that he had married us last night. Chris and I couldn't believe our eyes; it seemed too horrible, so we drove right on to Minturn and reported to the sheriff. We came here with him, and—and that's all I know."

Women's Hygienic Worries

Ended by new way—Discards like tissue

By ELLEN J. BUCKLAND
Registered Nurse

THANKS to modern scientific findings, women are now almost entirely relieved of old hygienic worries by a new way called Kotex.

✓ You discard Kotex easily as tissue. Which ends laundry and disposal problems completely.

You wear sheer frocks and gowns, dance, motor, go about for hours without a moment's fear—for this way is 5 times as absorbent as ordinary cotton "pads."

Also, it deodorizes—ending all fear of offense.

You can obtain it at any store, without embarrassment, simply by saying "KOTEX." Box of 12 costs only a few cents.

Obtain today. Once you try it, you'll never again risk old ways. Be sure you get the genuine. Only Kotex itself is "like" Kotex.

DRESS

Full blown roses of silk and velvet with rhinestone centers, worn over the shoulder at the back, are shown on the figure above, and below is shown a large georgette flower placed on the shoulder of one of the new satin frocks. The little bouquet at the right below consists of leaves and flowers made of feathers. To the left in the center are two red crystal cherries with green taffeta leaves to be worn on the lapel of one of the vew suits or jackets and above at the right is a red patent-leather flower appropriate for a tailored costume.

In France it is an act of patriotism to wear artificial flowers, just as it is to drink wines. We can hardly do our bit to favor the fortunes of the French republic by drinking French wines without breaking the laws of our own, but as yet it has occurred to no one to see anything immoral or unwholesome in wearing artificial flowers. An enormous number of women and girls in Paris and other French cities earn a meager but adequate living by making artificial flowers of all descriptions. Consequently French women of more ample means feel it their duty to favor this industry by keeping alive the fashion for wearing artificial flowers. And when fashionable Parisians set the fashion for wearing artificial flowers, the whole world follows suit.

Some of the loveliest of spring dance frocks are made of georgette, chiffon or other diaphanous material with their rather ample hems entirely edged with small artificial flowers. The weight of the flowers on the light skirts gives them a swing that is very graceful in dancing. There are period frocks of taffeta appropriately trimmed with flowers of silk ribbon and silk tissue of the sort made in the eighteenth century, when the frocks which inspire the present period frocks were worn. The tailored jackets that are spoken of so favorably for spring really need one of the bright posies of patent leather or other shining material at the buttonhole. Larger, more intricate nosegays are chosen to give a note of interesting contrast to wide fur collars on evening and afternoon wraps. Enormous chrysanthemums of chiffon and velvet are often chosen for this purpose. A group of three big chiffon and velvet clematis makes an effecive bouquet for the fur wrap of ermine and on the darker fur a cluster of gardenias may be worn to advantage.

On your evening frock you may wear your nosegay of artificial flowers conventionally on one shoulder at the front, or you may show your originality by wearing it at the back on the shoulder. You may place one or two huge roses or chrysanthemums on your hip if you like, though this is not so convenient for the dance frock.

Quite the newest lapel ornament for the spring tailored suit consists not of flowers, but of two crystal cherries with bright green taffeta leaves and stems.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

Thursday, February 24, 1927

Good and evil planetary influence contend to-day, according to astrology, 9nd it is a time to be exceedingly cautious.

Women have a fairly good chance to succeed in business or social affairs while this rule prevails.

This is a favorable planetary government under which to be married, but there is danger of frequent quarrels which will not be serious.

Good luck is foretold for the young folk who employ brains as well as heart in choosing their domestic partners. The stars seem to encourage love founded on common sense.

Many elderly persons will wed in this new year, for there will be a desire to escape solitude which is part of the complex of the jazz age.

New inventions of the most amazing type are foretold for this year which is to be marked by many extraordinary steps in world progress.

This is not a lucky day for promoters or for those who seek political preferment. It is well to await more favorable planetary influences.

It is not an auspicious sway for those who seek employment, but, while positions may be hard to find, it is prophesied that war somewhere on the globe soon will greatly stimulate industry.

Mars is in threatening aspect that is read as foreshadowing terrible conflicts in various foreign countries.

If astrologers are to be believed, the world is on the edge of many serious disturbances, and even grave conflicts.

It will be remembered that, since the close of the World War, those who read the stars have foretold that peace for all the nations of the earth is a dream not soon to be realized.

The aspects to-day encourage the study of psychology and philosophy and indicate many religious revivals.

Persons whose birthdate it is may expect rare good luck in romance and they should avoid too much concern regarding affairs of the heart.

Children born on this day probably will have a capacity for intense emotion. These subjects of Pisces usually have distinct personality.

BLEACHED BONES TELL THE STORY

ROCHE PERCEE, Sask., Feb. 23 (By Canadian Press).—Discovery of bleached bones strewn at the base of strange rock formations, which rise above this little Southern Saskatchewan settlement, has brought forth a story from neighboring farmers, which explains the absence of grazing livestock on the fertile plateau.

Years ago stockmen were troubled by depletion of their herds through some mysterious agency. One night the cause was found. Racing wildly toward the precipice, a herd of horses which had been stampeded by a violent thunderstorm, plunged through the darkness to their doom. Subsequently, it was revealed that many head of cattle had been killed in the same manner.

The toll exacted by the treacherous precipice, became so large that ranchers eventually moved their herds to new grazing grounds. One of the loftiest beacons of the formation became known as "Hoodoo" rock, for at its base was found the remains of a great number of horses and cows.

To-day, "Hoodoo" rock, a landmark of superstition, is seldom visited, and only the bleached bones of dead livestock mark the narrow shelf along the creek-side 100 feet below.

MAKES OFFER TO EX-CHAMP FOR HEAVY BOUT

Jack Dempsey May Enter the Ring For Match With Maloney.

PROBE SCALPING.

Guess Is That Pugilist Will Return to Ring Under Rickard.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23—(U.P.)—Humbert Fugazy, runner-up to Tex Rickard in the merry business of promoting prize fights, is attempting to win another pot from his better known contemporary.

Fugazy has jumped into the heavyweight elimination tournament, Rickard's pet project, with an offer of $300,000 to Jack Dempsey for a bout with Jim Maloney, recent conqueror of Jack Delaney.

A United Press dispatch from Los Angeles yesterday said that Gene Normile, Dempsey's business representative, had announced after a two-hour conference with the former champion, that he "probably would accept Fugazy's proposal if no larger offers were forthcoming."

Normile said Dempsey intended to return to the ring and had not been affected seriously by an attack of blood-poisoning.

Fight for Rickard

The probability is that Dempsey will return to the ring and meet Maloney, but not under the direction of Fugazy. The guess is that Tex Rickard will stage the bout and that it will be held between Decoration Day and the Fourth of July at one of the local ball parks.

Fugazy has made the same mistake he exhibited while courting Gene Tunney's signature to a contract after the marine had won the heavyweight championship. He tipped his hand to Rickard and the latter went right out and hiked the bid.

While the wily Texan may not offer Dempsey more than $300,000, if that, there is one thing he can promise that Fugazy can not, and that is a bout with Tunney.

The feeling has grown lately among local boxing fans that the so-called "elimination" tournament may already have succeeded in eliminating everyone but Dempsey and Maloney.

Both fighters are drawing cards and probably would prove better gate attractions than any of the other heavyweights now matched in the tournament, including Mike McTigue, Jack Sharkey, Paolino and Knute Hansen.

Ticket Scalping

A determination to investigate ticket scalping coincident with the Jack Delaney—Jim Maloney fight, even though the bout itself has passed into history was expressed by Chairman James A. Farley, of the State Athletic Commission. He has ordered Tex Rickard to appear before the board with a full list of every ticket sold or given away for the bout.

Some of the tickets sold by speculators have been traced to a consignment bought by Dan Carroll, Maloney's manager. Others were believed to have come from a block purchased by the Commission itself.

Still others, Farley believes were free tickets given to personal friends of Garden officials and to newspapers.

VICTOR AND VANQUISHED

At LEFT, Jack Delaney, light-heavyweight champion, who tried to give away thirty-one pounds and beat Jimmy Maloney, RIGHT, in a ten-round bout at New York last week. The Canadian, despite the disparity in weight, was a 13 to 5 favorite, but the odds should have been the other way around. Maloney won six of the ten rounds and held Delaney even up in two of the others.

BILLIARD TITLE DATES ARE SET

Matches For Canadian Championship Take Place Next Month.

FINAL IN TORONTO.

If one could judge by the entries, the first annual amateur English billiard championship of Canada is going to be a huge success. On the closing date the Secretary of the association had in his possession eighty entries; seventeen more than were received by the Billiards Association of England for the English amateur championship.

That the interest in this great contest is not confined to one particular part of the country is shown by glancing over the list of entries; practically every Province in Canada being represented in this contest. The Provinces and their entries are as follows:

Prince Edward Island	16
Quebec	7
Ontario	16
Manitoba	7
Saskatchewan	6
Alberta	21
British Columbia	8

making a total of eighty (80).

Big Task for Officials.

Now that the entry list is closed, the officials of the Billiards Association have a tremendous task ahead of them in arranging schedules of playing dates for the various contestants. This is especially hard in such a vast country as Canada, as in order to save the time and expense it is necessary to work out even the smallest detail, such as the arrival and departure of transcontinental trains at various points throughout the country where the players will meet. The officials of the association in each Province are arranging the preliminary games to decide their Provincial champion, as quickly as possible, and the first clash of Provincial champions for the Dominion title will take place at Calgary on March 8. The various points at which Provincial champions will meet across the country, and dates, are as follows:

Calgary, March 8, between the champion of British Columbia and champion of Alberta. The winner of this match will then play the champion of Saskatchewan at Moose Jaw on March 10. The winner of this match plays the champion of Manitoba in Winnipeg on March 12. The winner then plays the champion of Western Ontario on March 14, at Fort William. The champion of Prince Edward Island will meet the champion of Quebec in Montreal on March 14, and the winner will then come directly to Toronto, meeting the Eastern Ontario champion on March 17. The winner arriving from Fort William will then play the winner of the March 17 match on March 18, and March 19, for the Dominion finals.

Good Trophies.

A series of beautiful trophies are being donated by the Brunswick-Blake-Collender Company of Canada, Limited, consisting of one large trophy valued at $500.00 emblematical of the Dominion championship, and to be competed for annually. Also, one large trophy will become the permanent property of the Dominion champion, and a Provincial trophy to become the permanent property of each Provincial champion.

The elimination contest to decide the contest of Ontario is being held in Toronto this week. Mr. Tom Tothill, the well-known professional and champion of the north England, has kindly agreed to referee free of charge, it having been decided that the proceeds of all these matches during the entire championship for all games played in Toronto will be donated to the new East-End General Hospital. The association has arranged that all proceeds from all games from coast to coast be donated in each case to some deserving charity.

Last year the Billiards Control Association of London, England, inaugurated a British Empire amateur billiard championship scheme, in which each Dominion and Colony of the British Empire would have an opportunity of sending a contender to London, England, to play for the British Empire billiard championship. Owing to the previous lack of organization among Canadian amateur billiard players, it has been unfortunately impossible to send a contender to England for this event before, but the Billiards Association of Canada hope that at the conclusion of this championship they will be in a position to have a worthy contender for the British Empire title.

It is also realized in this connection by the officials of the organization that the reason for the amazing skill of the English player is the fact that English billiards is an indoor sport made familiar to practically every English boy in his young days, and in order to put the game on a similar basis in Canada, the Billiards Association of Canada is now considering plans to promote a junior amateur English billiard championship.

To show the interest taken by prominent men in this movement it might be stated that the officers of the Billiards Association of Canada for 1927 are as follows:

Prof. Wm. P. Kennedy, M.A., L.D., of the University of Toronto —President.

A. C. Gillespie, Toronto — 1st Vice-President.

Fred. Ratcliffe, Toronto — 2nd Vice-President.

Frank A. Eddis, Toronto — 3rd Vice-President.

Manitoba Provincial President—Lt.-Col. R. H. Webb, Mayor of Winnipeg.

Membership in the association includes the privilege of taking part in any contest organized by the association, and costs only $1.00 per year.

Information regarding the championship games will be gladly given by the Secretary-Treasurer of the association, Capt. H. Dudley-Waters, M.C., 252 Carlton street, Toronto.

EMIL ST GODDARD AGAIN LEADING

Wins Second Day's Race in Quebec International Dog Derby.

FAST TIME.

QUEBEC, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press)—Emil St. Goddard, the boy dog-musher from The Pas, Manitoba, again proved his knowledge of dogs in winning the second day's race in the 120 miles three-day international dog derby. He now has a margin of time of 24 minutes and 10 seconds over his nearest competitor, Leonard Seppala, Nome, Alaska. Both these teams, however, made strong finishes with every dog in harness running in perfect condition. While young St. Goddard finished with a strained tendon in his left leg, yet he declared tonight that his grey hound huskies would carry him to victory on the final day's race to-day.

His time to cover the 40 miles yesterday was some seven minutes slower than Monday. This was entirely due to the previous hard day's grind covering the hilly course at a speed slightly exceeding 10 miles per hour.

Leonard Seppala, the wizard from Nome, is to be reckoned with in the final race to-morrow. His seven malamutes are also in good condition and made a wonderfully strong finish. He declared tonight that he would not listen to the word "defeat" and would face the starter in the morning just as confident of victory as when he dashed away on the first day of the race. Speed and grit exude from every muscle of his husky malamutes. The training, breeding and feeding which his dogs have had is not in line with a quitter and the twenty four minutes handicap held by St. Goddard is not felt by Seppala to be impossible to overcome.

The total two days time for St. Goddard is 7 hours 42 minutes and 20 seconds and that of Seppala is 8 hours, six minutes, 30 seconds.

George Chevrette, who is in third place, has fought a hard race and is some 38 minutes behind.

1, Emil St. Goddard, first day 3:47:35, second day 3:54:43, total 7:42:20; 2, Leonard Seppala, 4:06:25, 4:00:05, 8:06:30; 3, George Chevrette, 4:03:35, 4:17:00, 8:20:35; 4, Paddy Nolan, 4:33:50, 4:24:20, 8:58:10; 5, F. Dupuis, 4:54:45, 4:20:55, 9:15:40; 6, V. Lavigne, 4:50:05, 4:45:25, 9:35:30; 7, J. Roberts, 4:56:20, 5:08:05, 10:04:25; 8, A. Beaulieu, 4:56:50, 5:10:55, 10:07:45; 9, R. Pouliot, 4:59:20, 5:17:40, 10:17:00; 10, P. Slouin, 5:08:00, 5:13:35, 10:21:35; 11, Jos. Dupuis, 5:11:05, 5:16:20, 10:27:25; 12, J. Villeneuve, 5:09:40, 5:19:00, 10:28:40.

FREDERICKSON LEADS IN N.H.L.

SIXTEEN GOALS.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 23. —(Canadian Press).—Frank Frederickson, centre man of the Boston Bruins, has forged ahead in the race for scoring honors in the National Hockey League. The scoring and penalty statistics up to and including games of February 20, issued yesterday by President Calder, show Frederickson with sixteen goals and twelve assists, for a total of twenty-eight points—ten of which were acquired in the early part of the season when he was with Detroit. Bill Burch, of the New York Americans, Captain Dick Irvin of Chicago, and his teammate, Babe Dye, are hard in the leader's heels with 27, 26 and 25 respectively.

Bill Cook, of the New York Rangers comes fifth, with twenty goals and three assists, for a total of twenty-three points. Mickey McKay of Chicago follows with twenty points.

Eddie Shore, Boston, is still top man among the League's defencemen with seventeen points, and Fraser, Chicago, is next with sixteen points. King Clancy, of the Ottawa Senators, has fourteen points to his credit.

THRILLING TILT WITH THE GRADS HERE TO-NIGHT

Battle Should Be One of the Most Thrilling in Local History.

GRADS DESPERATE.

Face Elimination at Hands of Team They Thought Easy Picking.

Tonight's hockey game, upon which the championship of the group depends, should be one of the most thrilling battles in the long history of hockey in Peterboro.

Varsity Gards, the 'wonder' team, hailed as one of the greatest amateur clubs ever gathered together and regarded as almost sure to be Canada's representatives at the next Olympic game, are facing elimination at the hands of a team they have already beaten three times by big scores this season.

That is drawn enough in itself to make tonight's game a spectacular battle.

Against the Grads there is a peppery game Peterboro team, confident that they have solved the Varsity problem and grimly determined that their home fans will see them win the group honors here tonight.

The Toronto press agrees that the Petes outsmarted the Grads on Monday and that Connie Smythe's team was lucky to escape a beating. The Queen City scribes still, however, call Varsity to win the round but the Petes refuse to see it that way.

That there will be a record crowd is certain. The reserved seats were all gone last night and today scores of applications for seats have been refused. Many outside fans are coming any way, taking a chance on standing room, and there will be a packed house when the game gets under way at 8.30 o'clock.

The earliest existing issue of the oldest known house organ in the United States continuously published since 1879, is a copy of the Fall River Line Journal for May 1881.

CANUCKS WIN LEAGUE GAME

Defeat Regular Fellows 6-1 and Qualify For Playoff.

MEET ROVERS.

A large crowd of spectators was present at the Sacred Heart rink to witness the Midget League game between Canucks and Regular Fellows. The Canucks had the best of the game, winning by the score of 6 to 1. The ice being in splendid condition fast hockey was played by both teams. Leo Burke of the Canucks was the best man, scoring three of the goals, Roach was second with 2 goals and H. Jones scored the other. Creighton played his best game of the season in goal. Fitzgerald on the Regular Fellows got their only goal. Anthony played well in goal and saved his team from a greater defeat. Teams lined up as follows:

Young Canucks		Reg. Fellows
Creighton	goal	Anthony
McGrath	defence	Carroll
Bloidgett		Fitzgerald
Roach	center	Reynolds
L. Burke	wing	Duffus
F. Meagher		Archambault
Collins	subs	White
Jones		Houlihan

Bernard Jones, referee.

Goals scored by:

Canucks—L. Burke 3, J. Roach 2, Jones 1.

Regular Fellows—Fitzgerald 1.

Penalties—Meagher and Roach.

The next game is to be played between the Rovers and the Canucks on February 24. The winners play the Rink Rats for the league title in a two game series goals to count.

SUBMITS FIGURES.

Babe Ruth Carries On Transcontinental Argument With Yankees.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Feb. 23. —(Canadian Press).—Babe Ruth, who is carrying on a transcontinental argument with the New York Yankees over his salary for 1927, yesterday mailed to Col. Jake Ruppert, of the Yankees, his outline of what he should be paid. He refused to make public his figures.

It is known however that the Laird of Lam thinks he ought to get more than $52,000 as an attraction at the gate.

DREAMS, aspirations, imaginary palaces—we need but enterprise and initiative to turn these "Castles" into delightful reality.

For there are Castles in Spain, in England, in France, built of stone and mortar—beautiful cities of ancient glamour, romance and historic memories—awaiting you.

The journey need cost little—no more than ordinary holidays at home. Service and accommodation on shipboard surpass those of most hotels. Enjoyment aplenty—from the very moment you start down the long, smooth St. Lawrence.

It costs no more to travel by these big, oil burning ships:—Athenia, Alaunia, Ascania, Aurania, Antonia, Ausonia, Andania, Letitia.

TORONTO CLUBS PLAY IN FINALS

Peterborough Ladies Lose In Preliminary Round Of Tankard.

BY THREE SHOTS

TORONTO, Feb. 23. — Granite and Oakwood meet this afternoon at the Toronto Curling Club in the finals of the Ontario Tankard. Granites qualified by beating Peterborough in the preliminary, and Toronto in the first round, while Oakwood had an easy time beating High Park. Howeyer, in justice to the latter club it might be mentioned that only a few of the ladies curled previous to this season.

The first round of the Consolation was to be played this morning at the Toronto Club, with Kingston meeting Peterborough and Toronto playing High Park. Scores:

TEAMS DRAW SIXTH ROUND

Three London Clubs Play at Home For English Cup.

ON MARCH 5TH.

Fortune smiled most graciously upon the three clubs left to uphold the honor of London in the English Cup, for the trio were drawn to play at home in the sixth round on March 5. In the metropolis the "Gunners" are already conceded a place in the final which, after all, might be a good guess, and the way things are shaping it might be a purely London final. Millwall's stock has firmed considerably as the result of the defeat of Middlesboro', following upon the subjugation of Huddersfield Town and Derby County, Southampton, the conquerors of Newcastle United, must not be left out of the reckoning, as the "Saints" are in deadly form at present, and in Camsell, who leads the Old County goalgetters, they have probably the most dangerous centre-forward in the league. The draws is as follows:

Chelsea v. Cardiff.
Arsenal v. Wolverhampton.
South Shields or Swansea v. Reading.
Millwall v. Southampton.

JOHNSTON WINS BY GOOD MARGIN

Defeats Bottomley in Second Preliminary of Billiard Tournament.

WINNER HAS BREAKS.

TORONTO, Feb. 23. — The secondary preliminary game of the amateur championship, was played last night at Brunswick Hall, 358 Bay Street, before a large assembly, between J. Johnston, a much fancied player for the championship, and H. Bottomley, who was expected to give Johnston a close run. This however, did not materialize, as the result shows Johnston 500 Bottomley 293.

Although the loser made only 3 breaks over the 20 mark, he had many fine strokes, and also much the worse of the luck. Johnston was the first to make a move with a 27 break, followed by 29 and 24. These were made by losing hazard play which is the backbone of Johnston's play. Bottomley sandwiched in two 21 breaks, but these were nullified by his opponent adding in rapid succession 42, 26 and 25. At this stage Bottomley was more than 200 points behind and continued so to the end. Further breaks were; Johnston 24, 39; Bottomley 26.

The East End General Hospital is thhe selected charity to benefit by these amateur games.

To-night at 8 o'clock W. Majury; representing Orr Bros.' billiard academy, and P. W. Haywood of the Ontario Club, will meet to decide the third preliminary game.

EVERY MILE A THRILL

Amazing Sights to See in Alaska and along the Pacific Coast.

The Pacific Coast and Alaska is a land of Romance—a promise of new and exciting experience for you.

In one complete and inexpensive tour you can cross the Prairies of the Canadian West, visit Jasper National Park, see the majestic scenery of British Columbia and the charming coast cities of Vancouver and Victoria.

Then a trip by steamer through the Scenic Seas of the North Pacific Coast to Alaska. From the ship you will see mighty glaciers, massive cloud-capped mountains and tumbling glacial streams. And in Alaska, land of the Northern Lights, land of a strange and fascinating beauty, you will see nature at its rugged best.

Plan now for next summer's trip. Such a tour as this can easily be arranged. Any Canadian National Agent will give you full information, supply you with illustrated literature and, if you wish, help you plan your itinerary.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited,

PARIS, Feb. 23.— The tallest man in the world comes from the smallest country in the world. In the tiny republic of Andorra lives Jose Punlos, who is 10 feet 6 inches tall. Goliath, according to Biblical experts, was only 19 inches taller than this, but Jose may yet reach that mark, for he is only 19 and still growing.

CLUB ADOPTS SLOGAN.

St. James Young People Hear Interesting Talk on Citizenship.

At a meeting of the St. James' Young Peoples' Club held on Monday evening a very interesting paper was given by Miss Connie Wagar, the subject being "Citizenship." Miss Wagar developed her subject under six principles of citizenship, viz.:

1. To know our country.
2. To be worthy of it.
3. To respect it.
4. To protect it.
5. To build it.
6. To love it.

The young people adopted as the Club's slogan "United for faith, fellowship and fun."

The Children Will Catch Cold

Mothers should never neglect the first sign of a cold or cough when their children are concerned, for if they do some serious lung trouble is liable to follow.

Mrs. R. T. Hubley, 1022 Barrington St., Halifax, N.S. writes:—"The children are continually getting colds, but I have no trouble with them, for just as soon as they begin to cough I give them a dose of which breaks up the cold within a day or so. I get great results out of it and would not be without it for anything. I can highly recommend it to any one."

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—Very little matter of fact about the whole business, Daniel Rudge, 17-year-old messenger of London arrived here yesterday on the Cunard liner Aquitania, bringing with him $25,000 worth of master phonograph records for the Beethoven centennial.

Whatever messenger boys of London do while waiting for a job, Rudge was probably doing it—and probably doing it very well—about two weeks ago. He was "next out"—another trudge to Tottenham Court Road, Oxford Circus, Bond Street or some other place—one of the many jobs he had been doing for three years.

The next call for a messenger brought Rudge.

"We want you to go to America for us," he was told by the London representative of the Columbia Gramaphone Company.

"All right," the London representative was told by Rudge—in just that way.

As the Aquitania was coming up the bay, a huge reception was aimed, set and cocked for Rudge. As the ship came alongside the pier, the Western Union Boys' Band of 60 pieces lustily began to play, and as the gangway went up a phalanx of scrubbed and shining messenger boys stood rigidly at attention as the tune shifted to "God Save the King."

One of them, Luke Muldoon, rehearsed himself on his little speech—something about a man named Garcia who was in the habit of getting lots of messages. It was a very nice speech and had some very nice sentiment.

About fifteen minutes of this and the initial enthusiasm waned slightly. Then they found Rudge, busy about his affairs in the second class quarters of the Aquitania.

"Hello, Rudge," shouted Muldoon eagerly.

"How do you do," said Rudge, and the speech died in Muldoon.

However, they all got very chummy and escorted Rudge to the Biltmore Hotel, where he will stay until sailing for home on Friday on the Aquitania—finishing another job.

TORONTO, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press). — Distillery stocks were strong leaders in the busy session of the Toronto Stock Exchange today. Gooderham and Worts touched 58, receding again to yesterday's close of 56; Seagram touched 25, and at the noon close of 24 3-8 was 3-8 higher, and Hiram Walker in heavy trading touched 42, but sold down again to yesterday's mark of 40 5-8. British American Oil, Bell Telephone, and Brazilian had considerable advances. British American Oil was 1 3-8 higher at 23 7-8, Brazilian more than a point better at 120 7-8, and Bell Telephone 2½ higher at the noon close of 150½, which compared with the high mark of 152. Massey Harris eased a half at 96½, and International Nickel, in which there was also heavy dealing, firmed a quarter at 43 7-8. Other gains were shown throughout the list.

CHICAGO, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press).—With Liverpool quotations lower than due and with predictions current that supplies ariving in Europe will exceed requirements, wheat suffered an early setback today. The weakness of corn tended also to depress wheat. Starting a half cent to 7-8 cent off, wheat showed but little power to rally. Corn, oats, and provisions went sharply down grade, corn opening 1-4 to 3-8 cent to 7-8 cent lower, and continued to decline.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 1.39 1-2, July 1.32 7-8; Corn, May 77 3-4, July 82 1-8; Oats, May 45 1-2, July 46 3-8.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press).—Easier call money rates and expanding steel mill operations provided the background for another advance in prices in to-day's stock market. Pools were active in both rails and specialties, but they appeared to encounter stronger resistance, probably because several of the large commission houses had urged their customers to take profits in the expectation of an early technical reaction.

The elevation of United States Steel Common to the highest price ever recorded coincided with the announcement that mill operations had increased to above 30 per cent of capacity. Further softening of steel prices brought the Iron Age composite price to the lowest level since August, 1925. Independent Steels also improved with the accumulation of Bethlehem reviving rumors of a possible resumption of dividends this year.

Despite the increasing demand for funds with the approach of March 1, call money dropped to 3 3-4 per cent. Crude Oil price cuts in several sections of the country were practically ignored by the oil shares, General Asphalt and Houstch actually showing large gains.

TORONTO, Feb. 23 (Canadian Press).—Despite the heavy volume of trading, this morning's session of the Standard Mining Exchange was very dull. No definite price trend was in evidence and the large majority of issues remained unchanged in price from yesterday. Teck Hughes was conspicuous for its strength, gaining 14 cents at 6.35. Consolidated West Dome Lake was also firm and 1 1-4 higher at 15. McIntyre at 2.70, and Dome at 885 were both slightly higher. Argonaut lost one at 36. Area and Amulet were unchanged. Duprat and Laval Quebec each eased fractionally to 16 1-4 and 37 1-4.

TRENT RIVER, Feb. 23.—There was a large attendance at the euchre and dance held on Thursday night, under the auspices of L.O.B.A. No. 179, at the home of Mrs. A. Wight. Fourteen tables were played; the following winning prizes: Ladies' 1st, Miss Alfreda Clark, Havelock; ladies' consolation, Mrs. Stephenson, Hastings Road; gentleman's 1st, Mr. Harold Brown, West Seymour; gentleman's consolation, Clarence Revoir. After refreshments two large rooms were cleared for dancing to the accompaniment of violin and piano. Among the company were a number from Campbellford, Hastinbs, Stanwood, and Havelock.

The L.O.B.A. is holding another euchre and dance Friday night of this week at the home of Mrs. George Brown, West Seymour.

A truck load of young folk made the trip to Springbrook Friday night to attend the bi-weekly Orange Order dance.

Mrs. George Ellis entertained about twenty little folk, Saturday afternoon, the occasion being the sixth birthday of her youngest son, Carl. Games of all kinds were indulged in, and a bountiful spread was arranged on the tea tables with all good things to eat.

Mrs. W. Wylde and Miss Mona of Havelock are spending a few days with Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Brown and family Browning Avenue.

OWLS MOVE SOUTH.

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 23. — Hundreds of snow owls have invaded the light station at Half Way Rock and there seems to be a general migration of these birds from their usual homes in the far north. Hunters believe that they were driven south by the scarcity of rabbits, their chief food.

WHITES MOVE INSIDE LIMITS OF CONCESSION

Leave Homes in Native Section of Shanghai as Troops Fall Back.

STRIKE CANCELLED.

Reports Of Looting By Retreating Army Causing Anxiety.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—Foreigners who had been living outside the foreign settlement districts of Shanghai were brought within its borders to-day because of the arrival in the city of a large number of defeated and demoralized soldiers of Marshal Sun Chuan Fang, deposed war lord.

The retreating troops arrived by train from the front between Sungkiang and Hanchow, where the victorious Cantonese invading army is preparing to continue its advance towards Shanghai.

United States, Portuguese, and Japanese military companies of volunteer residents of the foreign settlements of Shanghai stood by to check any attempts by the demoralized troops to enter the foreign sections of the city.

Three thousand Shantung Province troops arrived from Nanking, and it is understood that 5,000 are to come daily for the next few days for the defence of Shanghai against the Cantonese.

Marshal Sun Chuang Fang, a few months ago military ruler of five provinces of Eastern China with a population of 113,000,000, appeared to have retired to private life. Chang Tsung Chang, Governor of Shantung Province, has assumed complete military control of Kiangsu Province, of which Shanghai is the chief city. Chang, a member of the alliance of Northern war lords, had been paid $600,000 monthly by Sun to aid him with troops if the need arose.

STRIKE CALLED OFF.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 24. Canadian Press. — The general strike of the workers here, which at its height involved more than one hundred thousand workers, and caused some 30 of its fomenters to be beheaded, was called off to-day by the general labor union.

Lift Amusement Taxes On German Bridal Feasts

BERLIN, Feb. 24.—Wedding feasts and subsequent anniversary celebrations will be relieved of of the burden of amusement taxes if proposals of the city Tax Commission are heeded.

Heretofore music and dancing on these occasions have been subjected to heavy amusement imposts, which in many cases made observance of the nuptials in the time-honored style impossible. The member who proposed abandoning these taxes expressed the opinion that in many cases these affairs could not be considered an amusement and therefore should not be taxed as such.

PRIVATE BILLS IN COMMITTEE

Toronto Board of Education Not Allowed To Establish Own Insurance.

CHURCH BILLS PASS.

TORONTO, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press)—The Private Bills Committee of the Ontario Legislature today killed a bill to enable the Board of Education of Toronto to establish its own insurance fund. A bill respecting the general synod and the missionary society of the Church of England, which provided for a change in internal financing, was approved. A bill establishing sewer and water areas and the issuance of debentures for the town of Thorold also met with the committee's approval, as did a bill giving the town of Cobalt permission to increase its poll tax from five to ten dollars. The Lutheran seminary of Ontario is permitted to increase its holdings from fifty thousand to half million dollars, by another bill approved by committee.

DISTILLERIES PROBE OPENS AT WINNIPEG

Customs Commission Enquires Into Operations of Manitoba Refinery Company.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—Investigation of Manitoba distilleries opened here yesterday afternoon with some inquiries into the operations of the Manitoba Refinery Company, Ltd., of St. Boniface. John Lee, manager of this company, was called to the stand and questioned by R. L. Calder, K.C., Commission counsel. He said that the firm of John Labatt, London, Ont., acted as the agents for his company in the export of liquor to the United States through the Windsor, Ont., district.

"Why is it necessary to ship through Labatt?" asked Mr. Calder.

Mr. Lee replied that it was cheaper to do it this way than to establish an agent for the Manitoba Refinery in the Windsor district.

"And, to a large extent, it conceals the shipment?" asked Mr. Calder.

"No," replied Mr. Lee. He said that all shipments were direct to the American purchaser. It was all duty paid liquor. When shown a bill of lading made out to W. K. Sullivan, of Sarnia, Ont., Mr. Lee explained that this was an export shipment, but Canadian railways would accept shipments only to the border. The liquor had to be reshipped from there. A permit was obtained from the customs for each shipment, he said.

The Manitoba Refinery Company here was not connected with the Manitoba Refineries of British Columbia, said Mr. Lee. The latter was the company which shipped the cargo on the Chris. Moeller which was held up in Victoria. We had shipped liquor to the British Columbia company, however, he said.

Major A. E. Nash, commission auditor, presented a report in which he found that this company had paid customs duties on imports and that its export documents were in good order.

MEMBERS NOT SUPPORTING BILL DENYING FUND CONTRIBUTIONS

Although Agreeing With Principle, Believe Provisions Were Too Limited.

SECOND READING.

Suggestion Given Might Be Considered With Amendments Next Year.

TORONTO, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—Although they agreed with the principle of a bill introduced in the Ontario Legislature by W. E. Raney, Progressive leader, aiming to prohibit contributions to campaign funds by distillers, brewers, standard hotelkeepers, public contractors and certain corporations, Premier Howard Ferguson, Attorney-General Price and W. E. N. Sinclair, Liberal leader, thought that its provisions ere too limited, and when it came up for second reading yesterday afternoon they declared they could not promise it their support. The bill was read a second time, however, but was referred to the Privileges and Elections Committee with the suggestion that it might be considered with amendments next year.

Mr. Sinclair was prepared to give the bill support if it would prohibit contributions from all sources, and while Premier Ferguson would not go so far as to eleminate all contributions, he considered that Mr. Raney's measure was not dressed in "decent" clothing. It was "too low in the neck and too short in the skirt." Also it was "bristling with weaknesses" for the reason that it was confined to brewers and distillers and certain corporations.

J. A. Pinard (Liberal, Ottawa East) also took part in the debate and added his opposition to the measure, adding that everybody knew elections were not won with prayers.

Moving the second reading of the bill, Mr. Raney recalled that the Premier had referred to it as the "purification bill." He did not consider it necessary to make any argument on the matter as it had been made for him in evidence which had been adduced in the investigation by the Federal Customs Commission. He read extracts from evidence taken before the commission at Ottawa, which, he said, conveyed a more vivid picture to the members than anything he might hope to say. The evidence of A. E. Nash, Toronto financial expert, who investigated the books of certain Ontario distillers, disclosed, he claimed, that payments had been made by these firms which were not in connection with business, and that officials of some of the firms did not deny having made subscriptions to campaign funds.

Payments Made.

The Progressive leader quoted from the evidence of Mr. Nash to the eeffct that Hiram Walker's had the sums of $62,900 and $79,137 in their books under the heading of "profit and loss," and Gooderham and Worts had the sum of $69,100 in their books under the heading of "sales promotion." No other explanation had been given for the presence of these sums in the books of these distilleries, but, continued Mr. Raney, it was brought out by Mr. Kennedy, Progressive member for Peace River, in questioning Mr. Nash that, "Mr. Walker, I think Hiram Walker," had admitted having contributed to the campaign funds "of both parties."

Denounced Contributions.

Dealing with the situation in British Columbia and the evidence brought out before the Federal Customs Commissions in its investigations in that province, Mr. Raney quoted from a leading article in the Vancouver Province which, under the heading of "Protection and Assurance," denounced admitted contributions by liquor interests to the political parties of British Columbia. The newspaper had dealt with the evidence of the head of the brewing interests in Vancouver to the effect that the brewers had paid out $100,000 to party funds in the last two years, and, in reviewing the situation on December 17 last, and subsequent dates, strongly denounced "the corruption of public affairs by the liquor interests." The newspaper had put the matter up to the Legislature and asked what it was going to do about it.

Figures Show 140,000 In French Legion Of Honor

Women Wearers Of Coveted Ribbon, Now Total 600

PARIS, Feb. 24.—Six hundred French women share the coveted right to wear the red ribbon of the Legion of Honor today, according to figures just available. The majority of the crosses were awarded by the Ministry of Public Instruction and the recipients were school-mistresses, matrons of lycees, etc.

A close second is the Ministry of Fine Arts, which distributed awards to authoresses, poetesses and a few prominent members of the stage. This list includes only one musician—a violinist. Then there were the medical profession and nurses, most of whom won crosses during the war.

The Ministry of Commerce also has a number of awards to its credit. One air pilot, two explorers and one Colonial "plantress" complete the feminine roll of honor.

It may be added that male holders of the Cross of France number more than 140,000.

PRISONER BREAKS DOWN AT TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER IN ACCIDENT

Trial of Percy Cowan Suspended For Fifteen Minutes at Cobourg.

RAN DOWN GIRL

Ruby Phair, 18, Was Walking To Church When Killed By Car.

COBOURG, Feb. 24. — Percy Cowan, 40, of Bowmanville broke down under the cross-examination of T. L. Monahan of Toronto, Crown Prosecutr, during his trial here yesterday before Mr. Justice Lennox for manslaughter in the death of Ruby Phair, 18, daughter of Henry S. Phair of Darlington Township on the evening of October 21st last on the Highway between Oshawa and Bowmanville.

Cowan paled suddenly and trembled with such agitation that he spilled some of the water from the glass that was given to him, and the proceedings were suspended for fifteen minutes to enable him to recover. It was a dramatic interruption to his recital of the accident in which the automobile he was driving ran down Miss Phair as she was walking along the highway to church and only a short distance from her home. Her neck was broken and she was picked up dead.

Cowan and Frank Christie who sat beside him, swore that they did not see the girl until she was four or five feet in front of the car. Cowan swung his wheel and crossed the paved road almost at right angles, colliding with a bus on the opposit side. Witnesses for the Crown declared that he was under the influence of liquor and unfit for driving a car. Others testified that his car was partly off the pavement and on the earth "shoulder" of the road where it was said the girl was walking.

Defence witnesses swore they did not see or smell evidences of liquor and also that Miss Phair was walking on the pavement. Testimony conflicted to that extent, but its weight seemed to bear against the prisoner.

Cowan, tall and apparently robust, was dressed in the mode of the business or professional man—wing collar, bow tie, white shirt, his clothes including smart overcoat and derby hat suggesting prosperity and a good tailor. He admitted to being a bootlegger with jobbing in potatoes as a side line. On the stand he was calmly poised, his hands at his sides avoiding pockets. Occasional twitching of his fingers indicated nervousness that belied his attitude of self-possession. And his collapse under Mr. Monahan's insistent but not harsh grilling betrayed his poise as only a pose.

The evidence showed that the motor bus was travelling west toward Oshawa on the north, its right, side of the road. Cowan was driving east on the south side, and Miss Phair was walking in that direction and on the same side as the car. Cowan's defence was mainly that the glare of the bus's headlights prevented him from seeing the girl.

W. F. Kerr, K.C., of Cobourg, assisted Mr. Monahan and D. A. J. Swanson defended the prisoner.

The Father's Story

Henry Phair, Darlington township farmer and father of the dead girl, said his property was on each side of the Kingston Highway. His daughter was 18 years old. On Thursday evening of October 21st she left home about 7 o'clock to go to church, three-quarters of a mile away.

"I was working in the barn with my son. I heard a crash out on the road and went out with my son. There was a car and bus there, and I heard someone say a girl was hurt. My son said it looked like my daughter. I said "Give me the lantern," and I got in the automobile where the body was. I saw it was my daughter."

The father's voice caught as he recalled that shock, but he recovered control of his emotion and told of taking the body home.

Mr. Monahan—Did you have any conversation with Cowan?

"Yes. I asked him if he was hurt. He was rubbing one arm. He said, 'Never mind me, I'm all right.' I caught the smell of liquor on his breath. He seemed much excited, naturally, I suppose."

Mr. Swanson.—Isn't it a fact that when Mr. Smith said the girl was dead, Cowan fainted and dropped on the pavement? I guess it was.

"Do you take liquor? I take a drink now and then.

You say that in the open air at a distance of six feet and in your excited condition you smelt liquor on his breath? I did.

Did you tell anyone afterwards that you were going to see Cowan went to jail?—I don't remember.

Will you deny it?—No.

You approached several neighbors to get them to come here and swear Cowan was intoxicated?

Yes.

And a good number refused to come?—I didn't want them to swear falsely. If they didn't smell liquor that was the end of it.

Do you deny that you said he would not only go to jail but that you would sue him and make him pay?—To the best of my knowledge, yes.

Anson Phair, son of the preceding witness, said that on the morning after the accident he saw skid marks on the paved strip of the road and leading up to them were tire tracks in the south shoulder of the road extending 120 feet. The car, he believed, had apparently been travelling east and swung from the south side across toward the north side.

14 Year Old Boy Admits He Wrecked Interurban

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., Feb. 24 (A.P.). — Spencer D. Scribner, Jr., 14-year-old Berrier Springs school boy, son of a carpenter at Emmanuel Missionary College, Berrien Springs, yesterday confessed that he rolled a 250-pound rock on the tracks of the Southern Michigan interurban line Monday evening, causing the wreck of a South Bend-bound car and endangering the lives of 25 passengers.

The car was wrecked but none of the passengers received more than painful bruises. Traffic on the line was tied up Monday night and Tuesday, the interurban company using buses to transport passengers.

The boy gave no reason for his action.

GREAT BRITAIN FORWARDS NOTE PROTESTING PRESENT RELATIONS

Warns Russia of Notoriously Unsatisfactory Standing Between Two Countries.

STRONGEST PROTEST.

Declares Ango-Russian Trade Agreement Severed Unless Violations Cease.

LONDON, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—The rising tide of British feeling against Communist propaganda and the unsatisfactory relations between the British Government and the Russian Soviets have culminated in a stern warning forwarded yesterday by Sir Austen Chamberlain to the Soviet Government against the "continuous breach of solemn engagements" between the two governments and also the widespread Bolshevist propaganda.

The warning was in the form of a diplomatic note, declaring in the gravest terms that the Anglo-Russian trade agreement would be abrogated, even diplomatic relations completely severed unless "the flagrant violations of the solemn agreement between the two countries cease."

The note addressed to M. Rosengolz, Soviet representative in London, is the strongest of the numerous protests sent to Russia since the trade agreement was signed in March, 1921, and is one of the most outspoken diplomatic documents ever issued from Downing Street.

The storm of protests against the Soviet Government which burst in Downing Street with unexpected fury has been gathering for more than two years. Some sort of protest to Russia had been looked for, but not couched in such serious terms. The first heavy clouds on the Anglo-Russian horizon came in 1924 with the famous Zinovieff letter, which was one of the main causes of the downfall of the MacDonald Labor Government.

Aided Strikers.

Moscow gold—a million sterling of it—contributed for the purpose of aiding the British general strike last year, which the London Government considered a revolutionary movement, further darkened the skies, as have recent events in China where the British are convinced Bolshevik agents caused the Chinese to single out the British as their arch enemies among the hated foreigners.

The British protest covers all phases of these difficulties. Sir Austen Chamberlain starts: "Sir, the relations between the British Government and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics continue notoriously of an unsatisfactory nature."

He continues through two thousand words of detailed charges, supported by lengthy appendices, speeches by M. Tchitcherin, the Russian Foreign Minister, and other Soviet officials, hostile extracts from the Bolshevik press and Communist manifestos; then concludes by warning that "there are limits beyond which it is dangerous to drive public opinion in Great Britain," and that a continuation of the breeches of the agreement sooner or later will cause a break between the two countries.

Soviet Responsible.

One of the most important sections of the note charges the Soviet Government with full responsibility for the campaign of slander and defamation of Great Britain and says that so long as the present rulers of Soviet Russia, "be they technical members of the Government or members of the political bureau which is the dominating authority in the Soviet Union, or its ambassadors abroad, persist in defaming Great Britain or advocating a world revolution, no improvement in Anglo-Russian relations is possible."

The note recalls that on June 4, 1923, the Soviet signed an agreement undertaking not to support by funds or otherwise agencies aiming to spread discontent or rebellion in any part of the British Empire, and sets forth the warning contained in Ramsay MacDonald's note of October 24, 1924, declaring that no government would ever tolerate an arrangement with a government which plotted revolution for its overthrow. Despite previous warnings, the note continues, the British Government has been compelled frequently to protest constant violations of the agreement.

"The British Government," says the note in conclusion, "trusts that this protest and warning will be received by the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics with the attention they require and that no further cause for complaint may be given."

Sir Austen Chamberlain's action in issuing the warning to Russia had the approval of the Cabinet.

An institute for the study of detecting imitation gems has been established at Vienna.

General Strikes Made Crime Under New Law

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Feb. 24 (Canadian Press). — The broad intentions of the government's legislation to be introduced, restricting the privileges of trade unions, were indicated by Earl Birkenhead, Secretary for India, in the course of his address here.

"We do not think it proper to leave the legality or illegality of a general strike to depend upon the expression of opinion of a judge, however distinguished he may be," he said. "We intend that it should be laid down by the authority of that parliament which was challenged, that now and hereafter that weapon is forbidden, and has become criminal."

CRUISER SENT TO NICARAGUA

British Vessel Will Be There For Moral Effect Only.

NOT LANDING FORCES.

LONDON, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—H.M.S. Colombo, a cruiser attached to the West Indies station at Bermuda, and commanded by Captain Lecky, has been ordered to Nicaragua to protect British lives and interests there endangered by the civil warfare now going on.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The British Ambassador formally notified the State Department to-day that the British cruiser 'Colombo' would arive at Corinto, Nicaragua, on Feb. 26, for the "moral effect" its presence might have but that under no circumstances would British forces be landed.

U. S. Protecting Foreigners.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—Commenting on the British Government's decision to send a warship to the west coast of Nicaragua to stand by during the Liberal-Conservative warfare, the Secretary of State declared to-day that "Admiral Latimer has been instructed from the beginning to protect foreign as well as American lives and property aid is doing everything he can to do so."

At the State Department it was said that the explanation of the sending of a British warship to Nicaragua appeared "satisfactory." Reference was made to the fact that British and other foreign war craft were sent to Vera Cruz in 1914 at the time of the United States naval occupation of that city. While officials declined to discuss the relation of the Monroe doctrine to the sending of a British warship to Nicaragua it was clearly indicated that the movement was regarded as in violation of that doctrine or as establishing a precedent.

London Comment.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—The only comment on the British move in the afternoon papers is that appearing in "Londoner's Diary" in the Evening Standard. The writer says that the dispatch of the warship could hardly

COLD PLUNGE FOR WORKMAN

City Employee Falls Into River While Engaged in Snow Removal.

SAVED BY MATES.

William Collins, a teamster in the employ of the city, was in imminent danger of drowning yesterday as a result of being immersed in the Otonabee River at the foot of Simcoe Street. His rescuers, before they could remove him from the river, had to tow him some distance with the aid of an iron bar with a hook on the end of it, finally landing him on top of a large piece of ice, from whence he was helped to the shore.

Mr. Collins has been working with the gangs of men who have been removing the accumulation of snow from the city streets during the last few days. The snow is being taken to the foot of Simcoe Street where it is dumped in the river. At the time of the incident Mr. Collins was endeavoring to save a shovel which had fallen, and in the effort jumped off his sleigh. He landed in the water, which flows very swiftly at this point. Some of the men obtained an iron bar with a hook on the end, which they reached out and which Mr. Collins was able to grab, but due to the steepness of the bank it was found impossible to bring him to shore at that point. They then towed him down the river for some distance until firm ice was reached, after which he was hauled ashore.

PILGRIMS CHEER CANADA'S ENVOY AT GREAT DINNER

Hon. Vincent Massey Urges Strengthening of Friendship Ties.

VETERANS PRESENT.

Pilgrims Maintain Precedent of Being First To Entertain British Diplomat.

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—Pilgrims of the United States entertained Hon. Vincent Massey, Canadian Minister to the United States, last night. Three hundred men from different parts of the United States, with a sprinkling of Pilgrims from Great Britain and Canada, assembled at dinner to do honor to the first Envoy from the Dominion, Vice-President E. H. Outerbridge explaining that the pilgrims had followed their precedent in being the first to entertain a British diplomat on United States soil.

When the toasts of the President and the King were honored, five British and Canadian war veterans officiated, in carrying the colors. With the British and United States flags crossed above their heads, the chairman and Mr. Massey were the centre of the gathering, which stood while the respective National Anthem were played. Senator Hewitt Bostock, Speaker of the Canadian Senate, was the principal Canadian at the head table.

Lord Desborough Cables.

A cable was read from Lord Desborough conveying the greetings of the British section of the Pilgrims, as well as one from Chauncey M. Depew, the President, who is in Florida.

In a graceful speech, Chairman Outerbridge paid tribute to Canada's part in the development of the North America Continent, and the contribution which the Dominion has made to the culture of the continent.

Senator Bostock Praises Massey.

Senator Bostock spoke briefly, explaining that he was substituting for Senator Dandurand, Government Senate leader, who was unable to attend. He praised Mr. Massey's efforts to achieve national unity in Canada.

The Government, said Senator Bostock, had done the right thing in sending Mr. Massey to Washington and he felt sure that it would result in benefit to both countries.

Mr. Massey was given a great ovation when he rose to speak. The welcome extended to him everywhere, he said, would warm the heart of every Canadian.

"To strengthen the bonds of sympathy between His Majesty's oldest Dominion and the Government and people of your great Republic," Thus Hon. Vincent Massey summed up his mission to the United States in his speech.

Mr. Massey paid tribute to the friendliness of Washington, extended by President Coolidge, the members of his Cabinet and the citizens of the capital generally. He assured his hearers that Hon. W. S. Phillips, newly-appointed Minister from the United States to Canada, would find a genuine welcome awaiting him in Ottawa.

PLAN OF LABOR GETS SETBACK

Colwyn Committee at London Frowns on Capital Levy Proposal.

SUGGESTS SCHEME.

LONDON, Feb. 24.—Labor's plan for a levy on capital has received a serious setback in the report of the Colwyn committee on the national debt and taxation, it is recognized, even in Labor circles, according to reliable information reaching the British United Press to-day. The three Labor members of the committee naturally signed a minority report adhering to the principle of a capital levy, but even they recognize, as The Daily Herald emphasizes, that "general goodwill would prove an important factor in the success of the proposed levy."

The paper, however, approves a supplementary plan which is suggested by the minority for the upward grading of taxes on unearned incomes and alterations in the death duties which would yield £100,000,000 annually, but declares that the plan would result in a levy, not on capital, but an unearned incomes from invested capital. There is little double that Labor, with hopes of winning the next election, is not enthusiastic about a capital levy, despite the speeches of Labor leaders.

PREMIER OLIVER SUGGESTS PROBE OF ACCUSATIONS

Moves For Appointment of Royal Commission To Investigate Charges.

DENY ALLEGATIONS.

Personnel of Commission To Investigate Campaign Funds Is Announced.

VICTORIA, B.C., Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—Premier John Oliver, in the Legislature, moved that a royal commission under the Public Enquiries Act be appointed to investigate the alleged irregularities set out in affidavit by J. A. Gauthier, relative to liquor purchases for the province, which was read in the House last Friday by H. D. Twigg, Conservative, Victoria. Mr. Twigg had asked for a royal commission to investigate the charges. The Premier's amendment was not voted upon, the debate being adjourned by R. Burde, Alberni.

Premier Oliver claimed that with the appointment of a commission such as he proposed there would be the greatest opportunity afforded the mover and seconder of the motion to present their views and to back up their allegations.

Contradicts Answer.

The Premier met many of the allegations made in the affidavit with absolute contradictions on his part and the part of those particularly concerned. Hon. Dr. Sutherland, the Premier said, had assured him that the statement made that he had entered into any arrangements as alleged, was false. Mr. Oliver, who said he had not yet met Mr. Gauthier, denounced the affidavit Gauthier had sworn to in Seattle, Wash., and which Mr. Twigg has read in the House as a "fabrication of falsehoods."

Campaign Funds.

The personnel of the royal commission to investigate campaign funds in British Columbia was announced in the Legislature by Attorney-General A. M. Manson.

Mr. Justice A. Morrison, of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, will be chairman, assisted by W. H. Malkin, Vancouver business man, and Rev. J. H. Henderson, pioneer Presbyterian Church minister. This commission is in accordance with the recommendations of the select committee of the Legislature presided over by Brigadier-General V. W. Odlum and will not touch on the charges laid in the House by H. D. Twigg, Conservative, Victoria, in connection with the commissions allegedly paid on the purchase of liquor.

FORCE AIR OUT.

To prevent a depression in the middle of loaf cakes, push the batter up on the sides and leave a hollow in the centre when you put the mixture in the oven. Rap the pan on the table a few times to force out any large air bubbles.

BE CAREFUL OF WOOL.

Never rub soap directly on wool, or never press with too hot an iron. Never let wool garments freeze by hanging outside, or do not subject to too great heat as they are drying by the fire.

OLD MASTERS

Gather ye rosebuds while ye may,
Old Time is still a-flying:
And this same flower that smiles today,
To-morrow will be dying.

The glorious lamp of heaven, the sun,
The higher he's a getting
The sooner will his race be run,
And nearer he's to setting.

That age is best which is the first,
When youth and blood are warmer;
But being spent, the worse, and worst
Times, still succeed the former.

Then be not coy, but use your time;
And while ye may, go marry:
For having lost but once your prime,
You may forever tarry.

NEWS BRIEFS.

Found Guilty.

CANTON, Ohio, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—Ben Rudner, Massillon, Ohio, hardware merchant, was convicted yesterday of second degree murder in the slaying last July of Don. A. Mollett, Canton editor.

May Send Warship.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—Great Britain is contemplating the despatch of a warship to the west coast of Nicaragua, the State Department has been informed.

SHANGHAI QUIET STRIKERS BACK

Messages Received at Washingtont Report Strike Conditions Much Improved.

UTILITIES RESTORED.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—The situation in Shanghai was reported well in control of the Chinese authorities with strike conditions improved and public utilities partially restored, in a message to the State Department yesterday from Consul-General Gauss, timed 4 p.m. Feb. 23.

Firing by a Chinese gunboat on the Shanghai arsenal, with shells falling in the French concession, was described as probably a sporadic attempt by Cantonese subordinates to create disturbances.

"Responsibility for opening fire has been disclaimed by both naval and arsenal authorities," the department's announcement said.

The arrival of Chang Tsun Chang, war lord of Shantung province, at Nanking, was reported from that point.

Troops of Marshal Sun Chuan Fang were evacuating Nanking and the Northerners were crossing the river into the city, Sun himself having left Nanking for Shanghai.

Other advices reaching Washington indicate that the abandonment of Nanking by Sun is construed as meaning his political elimination as an important factor in the Chinese political situation. At one time he controlled six provinces along the coast, including Shanghai.

He has suffered reverses due to the disloyalty of several of his subordinate commanders, but the loyal remnant of his army is concentrated at Sungkiang and preparing to defend it against further Cantonese advance toward Shanghai. The Shantung forces are moving toward the Shanghai area from the north for the purpose of co-operating with Sun's army in the defence of Shanghai.

One despatch reported that rumors were current that an agreement between the Shantung forces and the Cantonese for division between them of the revenues derived from Shanghai was in prospect.

STARTED FIRES TO KEEP JOBS

Long Inactivity in Fire Line Made Kiev Fighters Worry.

SIX WILL BE SHOT.

KIEV, Ukraine, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press) — Severe sentences have been passed on ten firemen, guilty of arson. Six of them, including the chief, will be shot, two were sentenced to ten years' solitary confinement and the other two must serve five years in prison. The chief pleaded that the men set the fires, fearing they would lose their positions because of a long period of inactivity.

The members of the fire brigade were arrested several days after they had been commended for heroism and skill in fighting fires in the Trade Union club of Kiev and the headquarters of the navigation company. It was charged by the police that they deliberately set the building ablaze for excitement.

Mapping the heavens has taken thirty years but the task is now practically completed. It has been an international task, the countries of the world co-operating.

MASSEY PRESENTS CREDENTIALS

On Friday Vincent Massey, Canada's new minister at Washington presented his letters to the president of the United States, and assumed his place among the diplomats at the United States capital. Mr. Massey wore the uniform of his rank at the official function.

PRISONER BREAKS DOWN AT TRIAL

Car Hit the Bus.

Fred Brown, bus driver, said he left Bowmanville at 7 p.m., going west towards Oshawa. "I saw a car approaching from the west. It was over on the south shoulder. In the lights of that car I saw a girl walking on the south side of the road. The car was 150 feet from the girl, and the bus 150 east of the girl. I pulled over to the north side as far as I could. I thought it would be safer to avoid him swerving as I thought he would do when he would turn to pass the girl. He must have struck her and swung in a circle across the road. His car hit the bus on the right fender and wheel, then twisted around on the road, striking the rear end of the bus. It stopped behind me facing a south-easterly direction."

Brown asked Cowan his name three or four times. He answered, "You know who I am."

"I didn't know who he was," witness said. "The girl was lying on the south side of the road, her feet towards the ditch and her head toward the pavement and close to it. Cowan was highly excited. I noticed a strong smell of liquor when asking his name in a closed car."

Mr. Swanson—Did you ask Barnett if Cowan's car was off the pavement?—Yes.

Why had you any doubt?—I wanted to make sure another witness saw it besides myself.

Did you see the car hit the girl?—No.

Brown declared that Cowan turned his car almost at right angles across the road at the place of the accident.

Thos. J. Barnett.

Thomas J. Barnett ,of Oshawa, was a passenger in the bus. He saw the girl walking on the paved part of the road and focussed in the glare of the car's headlights.

'My first thought was why she didn't get off the pavement. I watched the car approach unitl it was 4 or 5 feet from her. I said "he's got her" as the car struck her and swung almost at a right angle across the road. I saw wheel marks of the car on the paved part of the road. The outer wheels were about two feet down from the edge of the pavement. I said after the accident that Cowan's car was on the pavement before the accident. Mr. Brown heard me. No one disputed what I said."

Witness said he did not smell liquor off Cowan although he was within five feet of him.

Noticed Liquor Odor.

Henry Smith, of Bowmanville, was visiting at a neighbor of the Phair's on the night of the accident.

"On the road and at Phair's house I noticed a strong odor of liquor from Cowan. I was right beside him."

Mr. Swanson—Did you know what that odor was?—Yes.

Was it very noticeable?—Yes.

You swear that even if others say they did not smell liquor of him that night?—Yes, sir, I can't help what others say.

Russell Luke, brotherin-law of Henry Phair, said he saw Cowan at the house after the accident.

"He was sitting in a rocking-chair. He said 'Hello.' I paid no attention to him, but went on into another room. He was still in the chair when I went back into the room. He started to talk to Dr. Bird, and the doctor told him he'd better keep quiet."

Cowan then said, "I'm Cowan from Bowmanville. I'm a bootlegger. I've a bad reputation, and this'll go hard with me. He smelled very strongly of liquor."

Mr. Swanson — I suppose you'll say the odor filled the room?—Yes, you could certainly smell it any place in the room.

Tires Off Pavement.

T. A. Garton, 'bus driver, arrived at the scene of the accident at 7.30 p.m. He saw tire marks off the pavement about two feet and extending about 150 feet along the road. There were skid marks in a curving direction from the edge of the pavement toward the standing 'bus.

Witness said he saw Cowan later at the back of Phair's house talking to Chief of Police Jarvis of Bowmanville.

Mr. Monahan—Was there anything noticeable about him?—A very strong odor of liquor.

Were you near him?—About 4 to 6 feet in front of him.

Doctor Was Certain.

Dr. Grant Bird of Oshawa was called to the Phair home and examined the dead daughter. He found the bones of the spinal column at the neck broken. This condition was the cause of death.

Mr. Swanson — Did you see the prisoner at the house?—I did.

What occurred? — I noticed he seemed to have an injured arm. I examined it, but it was not seriously injured. He said he didn't wish any publicity for the parents, and he was a bootlegger, and publicity would not hurt him as he was well-known. I noticed the odor of alcohol on his breath. He gave me the impression from his manner and statements and the odor that he was under the influence of liquor. He was talking so much he made a nuisance of himself, so I asked him to leave the room."

Was he in a condition to drive a car?—No.

To Mr. Swanston witness said Cowan was so much under the influence of liquor that he didn't appreciate the circumstances of his surroundings.

His Lordship—In the presence of affliction, isn't the best sympathy to remain silent?—Yes.

Unfit to Drive Car.

Dr. David Hoig, Oshawa, said he verified the cause of Miss Phair's death as determined by Dr. Bird. The second vertebra at the neck was broken.

Mr. Monahan—What impressed you about Cowan's condition?

"I would say he was under the influence of liquor. He was swaying a little and there was a perceptible odor of liquor in the room that wasn't there before he came in.

Was he is a condition to drive a car?—I feel he shouldn't have been driving a car.

Had Best of Brakes.

John Hately, Bowmanville garage owner, said he examined Cowan's car on the morning after the accident. It was equipped with Lougheed hydraulic four-wheel brakes, probably the best obtainable, and the brakes were in good order. At a rate of 20 miles an hour they should stop the car within 25 feet.

W. A. Reid, highway traffic officer, said he saw Cowan at Phair's house.

"I asked him to come outside. He told me he had come from Toronto."

To Mr. Swanson, witness said he saw Cowan crying three times that evening.

"What do you say as to his condition?—There was no evidence of liquor on him in the three conversations I had with him.

Did you examine him at Bowmanville as to liquor? — Yes, at the police station I was about a foot from him. I sat that close to him, but did not get any odor of liquor off him. I stood beside him at the Police Magistrate's office that night and on all three occasions I didn't smell liquor from him. I was interested about that because I heard a mention of liquor when I was up near Phair's.

Reid said he arrived at the place of the accident shortly after 8 p.m. It occurred at 7.20 p.m.

This closed the Crown's case.

Prisoner Called.

Mr. Swanson opened the defence by calling the accused, Percy Cowan. He is a married man with two children.

"At 6 o'clock on the evening of October 21 I was in Frederick's store in Oshawa arranging for the delivery of potatoes. I was selling them in Oshawa. Going home on the highway, I noticed the lights (of the 'bus) approaching. As I got about 25 feet from the 'bus I looked down at the white strip on the road and saw this girl."

Prisoner said his speed was about 20 miles an hour. He had driven a car 29 years.

When I saw the girl I hollered and swung my wheel to the left to avoid striking her. She was on the inside of my right hand light, and was on the pavement.

What happened after you turned to avoid her? I didn't see the car hit her.

You've heard the evidence here about your condition? My condition was the same as it is now.

What was that? I had no liquor that day; I had not been well and had not taken anything for some time. All that I had that day was some Coca Cola.

What do you say about being off the pavement? It's not true. My car was on the pavement and on the inside of the white line.

Cross-examined by Mr. Monaghan the prisoner maintained that he was not under the influence of liquor when driving his automobile.

What did you mean by saying "it was Cowan the bootlegger, and will go hard with me?" I said, "they'll say it's Cowan the bootlegger, and I didn't care so much about publicity for myself as for the Phair family."

Cowan admitted that he was a bootlegger, but sold potatoes, although he hadn't a store. He employed a man to help deliver them. Last year he handled about 5000 bags. He bought 2415 bags from Mr. Berry of Pontypool.

Cowan's hands shook violently as he turned over the pages of a note book.

You heard what Dr. Bird said? Yes; but I was not under the influence of liquor.

Mr. Monaghan: Do you say his statement is not true? I say I was not under the influence of liquor. I fainted when told girl was dead—an awful feeling came over me. I can't explain it. My head struck the road when I fell.

Did you ever faint before? No.

Cowan maintained that he could not see 50 or 75 feet ahead of car in the headlights of one approaching. He could see an object 100 or 150 feet away.

His Lordship: Do you stop when you can't see anything 50 feet away? I did not.

I am not talking of that case, but generally. When there is danger of not seeing some one do you stop? If I am blinded by the glare I do.

If it just puzzles you a lit : do you stop? No.

And you didn't stop this time? No.

Well then from your own account of your practice the lights of the bus didn't blind you?

No answer by Cowan.

His Lordship: Did they blind you? They did.

Why didn't you stop then? They didn't completly blind me.

Mr. Monaghan: Why didn't you see her when she was a rod or so ahead of you? I didn't see her.

Was it the condition of your eyes?—No, sir.

If you were under the influence of liquor wouldn't that affect your eyes and bother you?—Yes. (After hesitation).

Do you consider that if you are under the influence of liquor you would be less likely to see what is ahead of you?

Mr. Monahan pressed for an answer.

You first saw her 4 or 5 feet ahead of you?—Yes.

When you were 100 or 150 feet from the bus where were you looking?—Down the road.

And you didn't see her?—No.

Cowan swore it was almost impossible to see an object that far if another car was approaching.

Dr. Vernon Storey, of Bowmanville, said he attended Cowan at his home on the night of Oct, 21 about 11 o'clock. "He was crying and extremely nervous. He had his arm bandaged and I looked at it. I saw there was no serious injury.

Mr. Swanson.—What do you say about any odor from him?—There was a peculiar odor but I did not consider it alcoholic.

Did you ever see him under the influence of liquor?—I have.

What was his condition then?—He was swaying, and sleepy or mopey and slow of speech.

What difference did you notice between that time and the night of the accident?—He was not swaying. He was continually repeating the same thing and talking rapidly.

Mr. Monahan—Is it true that a shock tends to sober a man?—Yes.

You wouldn't say from what you saw at 11 p.m. that he was not under the influence of liquor at 7 p.m.?—No.

Mayor Thos. Holgate, of Bowmanville, testified that he was close to Cowan in the magistrate's office that night. "I did not notice any alcoholic odor."

Witness said Cowan had been smoking a cigar when he first saw him a short time before.

On Front Seat.

What was his condition before the accident?—He was normal, acting all right.

Notice any odor of alcohol?—I did not.

What did you see?—I was watching the bus. I happened to glance over and saw the girl.

When did you see her?—Just as the car hit her.

What part of the road were you on?—On the paved part.

Was it on the shoulder of the road?—It was not.

Howard Jollow, Bowmanville, an occupant of the car on the rear seat, said Cowan was sober that night.

What do you say about any odor?—I didn't notice it.

Chief Is Positive.

Richard Jarvis, chief of police, Bowmanville, saw Cowan at Phair's yard at 8.45 p.m. on the night of the accident. "I didn't detect any odor of liquor. I was about a foot from him. I heard somthing said in the house about liquor and I went back to him a second time, but I didn't smell any odor of liquor."

Mr. Swanson—What do you say of his condition?— Very excited, but perfectly sober.

Mr. Monahan —You did notice some odor?—Yes.

What was it like?— I have a tooth paste with wintergreen in it and it smelt like that when I was near him at Phair's.

Walter Hall, constable at Bowmanville, saw Cowan perfectly sober at Phair's.

::I drove with him to the police station at Bowmanville but did not notice any odor of liquor."

This concluded the evidence at 5.40 p.m.

PRESS COMMENTS ON DISARMAMENT

Editorial Accepted as Reflecting Pope's Views on Naval Proposal.

ROME, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press) —President Coolidge's disarmament proposal is the subject of an editorial in The Osservatore Romano, signed by its editor, Count Della Torre. As The Osservatore Romano is the official organ of the Vatican, the editorial is accepted as reflecting the Pope's views.

"Once again," says the writer, "peace appears to be indissolubly tied to disarmament, showing the absurdity of armed peace, which is momentary, transitory, which is peace derived from fear instead of being based on faith, on convictions, both felt and practiced."

Armed peace, says the writer, is like playing with a gun which may at any moment unexpectedly fire a mortal shot.

"Peace must not be the sacrifice of anybody," he continues, "otherwise it will cause inevitable reprisals. Nor can those be accused of egotism who maintain their right to have armaments efficient for their military and colonial necessities."

In order to face the problem in its entirety, it is contended, disarmament must be general and simultaneous, backed by guarantees for its maintenance. It was those ideals which inspired the appeal addressed by Pope Benedict XV. on August 1, 1917, to all the belligerent Powers, asking for a just accord and for simultaneous and reciprocal decrease in armaments, limiting them to what are necessary for the maintenance of public order in each country.

"There could be no better guarantee," continues the paper, "than dissolution of permanent armies and abolition of conscription, which is a new system introduced first by the French Revolution. Disarmament must come only through spiritual causes, because what is necessary is moral disarmament, education of the conscience and peace of the spirit."

OBITUARY.

THOMAS G. CLUTE.

STIRLING, Feb. 24.—Another of the older residents of Stirling was called to his reward, in his 81st year, on Saturday afternoon last at 5 o'clock, in the person of Mr. Thomas G. Clute, who had enjoyed the esteem and respect of the citizens of this community for the past 50 years. He was engaged in the mercantile business as one of the firm of Milne and Clute for a number of years. Through the changing scenes of his business career he finally became head of the firm of Clute and Mather, occupying the store where Mr. R. P. Coulter is doing business. He was clerk of the 5th Division Court for a number of years, also librarian of the Public Library since its beginning, recording steward of the Methodist Church for 40 years, also treasurer of the village for a great many years.

Mr. Clute was twice married, his first wife being a Miss White, who predeceased him a number of years ago. By this union there were two sons, Gerald at home and Harold in the United States. The second wife was the widow of David Vandewater of the 2nd Concession of Sidney.

Mr. Clute was a staunch Liberal in politics. The funeral service was held on Tuesday afternoon in St. Paul's United Church, Rev. C. W. Barrett being in charge, and assisted by Rev. B. F. Byers of St. John's Anglican Church, and Rev. F. Joblin of Rawdon Circuit United Church. Interment in Stirling Cemetery. The bearers were Messrs. Geo. Luery, E. T. Williams, Lindsay Meiklejohn, W. S. Martin, C. B. McGuire and Dr. C. F. Wall, some of whom had been associated with him in his business or church life during all the years of his residence here.

ABUNDANCE OF MANUAL LABOR IN DOMINIONS

Labor Minister Questioned on Immigrant Problem in Maritimes.

PRESENT PETITIONS.

Minister of Immigration Has Already Notified Agents in Europe.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 24. — Abraham Heaps, M. P., in the House yesterday afternoon, returned to the question of importing Scotch workmen to the Cape Breton mines. He had seen in the papers that the men wanted to be sent home, having come out under false representations. What about it? he asked of the Labor Minister.

"There is plenty of manual labor in Canada, and I have asked the Minister of Immigration to notify his agents in Europe, and send no more now," answered Hon. P. Heenan.

J. S. Woodsworth wanted to know if there was no way of protecting against being brought out under false pretenses, but was advised by the Speaker to put his question on the order paper.

Who Sent Cigars?

There were cigars on the desk of every member.

"Are these from the Bonne Entente League of Quebec?" queried H. C. Hocken.

"No," said Mr. Lapointe gravely. "I understand they came from a colleague of my hon. friend on the other side."

H. C. Hocken presented a batch of petitions from Ontario, British Columbia and the three prairie provinces in favor of a transfer of the resources of the western provinces without any restrictions.

Dr. P. McGibbon, Conservative, Muskoka, resuming the Budget debate, declared that in the Budget the Minister had evaded his responsibility. His greatest criticism was that it afforded no relief to the Canadian manufacturers. There had been 60 applications to the Tariff Board for a high tariff. On thirteen of these the Board had reported and yet nothing had been done. He instanced woollens and boots and shoes as particularly needing more protection.

McGibbon Accuses Forke.

Dr. McGibbon accused Hon. Robt. Forke of apostasy in going from Progressives to Liberals and in supporting a policy which for 40 years his party had opposed. He accused the government of general dereliction in not affording a greater measure of protection for manufacturers and farmers and also in failing to get fair bargains in trade treaties. He appealed for more help to Home Bank depositors and then criticised the Postmaster-General for dismissing many postmasters in small offices.

Thomas McMillan, Liberal of South Huron, claimed that the farmers were not receiving economic justice from the Customs tariff. Farming was the great basic, domestic industry and yet many people were able to buy wholesale and sell retail, while the farmer had to do business in the reverse way. He felicitated the government on the reductions effected in the agricultural implement tariff and thought that when Henry Ford believed in free trade in auto cars the duty might well be reduced further.

Iceland Is Progressing Freezing Plant Planned

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 (A/P.). —The long-deferred shipment of "coals to Newcastle" may be in the offing. Announcement has just been made of plans to construct an artificial freezing plant at Reykjavik, Iceland, with a capacity of 80 tons of fish per day.

During the last six years aerial ambulances in France have transported more than 3,000 wounded soldiers.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

OUR JOBS

It's Father's job to give us all
This place in which to dwell,
To pay the doctor for his call,
To guard us, sick or well.
It's Father's business to provide
Our clothes, our daily fare,
And lay a little bit aside
For days he won't be there.

It's Mother's job to make the home,
To sweep, to dust, to sew,
Whatever places we may roam,
Make this the best we know.
It's Mother's job the plates to lay,
To fix our beds of white,
It's Mother's job to work all day,
That we may rest at night.

It's Sonny's job—what is his job?—
To do his work in school,
To lift himself above the mob
Of those who only fool,
To read the books upon his shelf
That fit him for life's task,
To make a future for himself—
Is that so much to ask?

BEAUTY—A TRANSIENT THING

(By W. Edgar.)

The love of beauty is a fundamental instinct which, in one form or another, is encountered among all the races of mankind.

Standards of beauty vary widely. The Greek ideal was the slender, lithe, graceful form; the Roman preferred the heavier, stronger type of body, the Moor today regards extreme obesity as the highest type of physical perfection, and among the Dutch the buxom, plump figure is regarded as the ideal towards which womanhood should strive. Red hair was prized among the early Israelites; today, in Western lands, one man raves over blondes; another is attracted only to the dark-skinned, black hair type of beauty, and so the ideal of beauty shows endless variations in taste.

In recent years, we have witnessed a succession of types which took the eye for a short time, had their brief reign of popularity, and were then cast away into the limbo of neglected things. For a brief period, the vamp, with her languid eye and drooping wilowy figure was queen of the castle. She was succeeded by the fragile beauty, who demanded rouge for the cheeks that were formerly of a ghastly paleness, and who insisted on having golden hair, no matter what was the natural color of her tresses. And now the hair is bobbed, the color is high, the figure excessively slim, and the hair-dresser and the beauty specialist are having the time of their lives.

Man's conceptions of beauty are, on the whole, fairly consistent, but, under the influence of ever-changing fashions, and having ready contact with women and ideas of a score of nations, woman's standard varies so readily that the distinguished-looking women of today cannot be assured of retaining her preeminence tomorrow.

Lady Oxford, a few years ago, created quite a furore by announcing that among the women of today, there were none to equal in beauty and grace three famous belles of last century, two of whom were peeresses, and the other an actress, Mrs. Langtry, still living, and whose name has once more come prominently before the public eye as a result of the Gladstone-Wright libel case in London. So far from accepting Lady Oxford's view, the modern woman is disposed to challenge even the position of the beauties and heroines of, history and romance. Helen of Troy we are told, was very ordinary looking Cleopatra was fat and coarse in appearance, while we hear occasionally quoted an extract from a contemporary account of the trial of Mary, Queen of Scots, in which the "Rose of Scotland" was described as "a large, lame woman"—but after nineteen years of imprisonment what else could one expect? True or not, these beliefs indicate a change in the accepted standard, among women as to what constitutes real beauty. While the women of earlier days were by no means averse to using various auxiliaries to enhance their charms, none of them showed the unflinching determination exhibited by the girl of today in her effort to overcome any natural handicaps with which she may be afflicted. She literally refuses to continue to be plain. Probably for her predecessors a more convincing excuse for "making up" could be advanced, for to the girl of all previous generations, marriage was the only goal of her ambition.

If a girl had loveliness, men sought her eagerly; if she was plain, she was usually in the plight of Pauline Pepys, of whom the naive Samuel writes in his famous diary:

"Walked in the garden with my father, to talk about a husband for my sister, whereof at present there is no appearance, but we must endeavor to find her one, now for she grows old and ugly." A later entry informs us that a prospective husband has appeared in the offing for the unlovely lady—"a plain young man, handsome enough for her" ungallantly writes the practical minded Sam, who finally gets the whole matter off his mind in the following entry: "I have news that my sister was married on Thursday last, so that work is, I hope, well over."

In the olden days, when a woman was endowed with a certain measure of good looks, all that was required to retain them was health, freedom from accidents or excessive labor or sorrow, and the living of a natural life. Today the treatment that gives the pleasing exterior must be continued or the happy effect will soon wear off. Nature is the great healing mistress, and the real beautifier, far above all others; but nature is not allowed to work; indeed, her dictates are flouted, and resort to artificial means, once generally adopted, must be continued.

The beauty we see so often around us is applied from without. It can easily be worn off.

The manicure is required to produce pink, smooth, rounded tapering nails and even fingers out of the most unpromising material; to whiten hands, remove freckles and hairs from where they should not be, but are, to produce dimples, where they have not previously existed, and, unless she supplies at least "hopeful treatment" is doomed to business failure. Woe to the hairdresser or aspiring barber who knows of no sure method of rejuvenating and tinting the hair. If a bath-rubber and a masseuse do not confess to the soft impeachment of possessing a touch sufficiently magic to stroke away a wrinkle, a double chin, or an overplusage of avoidupois, no matter where located, how may they hope to rise? The times produce the opportunist; the experience of one temptation after another finally turning out a complete beauty specialist with claims to suit all comers.

Beauty shops flourish, says an observer, because women are less vain than men. If a man baths regularly, has his clothes pressed with tolerable frequency, and brings his unruly hair into something like proper subjugation, he feels that, on the whole, he passes muster, —not so the woman. Even the most attractive beauty is always on the qui vive for possible defects in her appearance. She knows all her weak points, and is ever on guard lest they become weaker. She is at all times eager to enhance her natural possessions, and dares not to lapse into the careless, easy-going, self-satisfied attitude of the man. This indicates a fundamental difference in the outlook of the two sexes. A man is afraid that he will be broke when he is old; a woman is afraid she will become fat. Cost is a matter of no consideration whatever in the effort to avert the tragedy of losing the charm of feminine youth. Nor does the question of pain cause any shrinking. The most heroic deeds of men, fall into insignificance when contrasted with the fortitude of women, suffering in silence, for beauty's sake, tortures which are comparable only to the sufferings inflicted before the final scalping process by the Iroquois on their victims in the virgin forests of this continent. How many women have sat unflinchingly in a chair while a point, at white heat, of a needle has pierced through the tender flesh of the upper lip to kill the hair follicle that has caused endless worry and dismay? It is true that many men, especially among those who have seen long periods of service in the army or navy have suffered considerably in having inartistic designs, painfully tatooed on their flesh, but conversation with those who carry on their bodies the colored fancies of the tatoo artists almost invariably elicits the confession that they were fortified for the ordeal by strong doses of strong drinks.

Not so very long ago, people consented to have operations performed on themselves only to save their lives. Nowadays, women in rapidly increasing numbers are submitting to the surgeon's—or near surgeon's knife, not because their lives and health are threatened, but just because they do not look so handsome as they think they should, or because they do not look quite so youthful as they used to.

Beauty, indeed, is no longer skin deep, for the beauty doctor cuts through skin and flesh to the bones of the face. Another way, now fortunately largely fallen into desuetude, was that of pumping quantities of paraffin into the face and cheeks, very often with disasterous effects, when applied by unskilled hands. It is probably impossible to estimate the physical harm that has been done by unwise expedients devised as means for the gratification of that very natural and laudable ambition of every normal woman—to look her best, and perhaps a little better than her natural best. Women have carried marks of such unfortunate experiences through life to the grave.

Attention was recently called at a medical convention of U.S. physicians, to the fact that over 117 million dollars were spent annually in the purchase of cosmetics, many of which it was said contain ingredients which are really harmful. The medical men recognized freely the reasonableness of woman's desire to add a little color to her cheeks, but were generally agreed that in many cases cosmetics nip nature's bloom in the bud. The surgeons and physicians were by no means pioneers in their denunciation.

The use of paint and powder has, from the earliest days of the Christian era been regarded with no small amount of suspicion. From the days of St. Cyprian, who was conspicuous in his opposition to the "use of coloring the eyebrows and placing a false and lying blush upon the cheek" down to the Bishop of Hereford of the English Church in Stuart days, the practice was censured by the pillars of the Church. In fact, the dislike of this method of enhancing the charms of womanhood seems to have been common to all creeds.

"From a woman who paints," beseeches an old French prayer, "good Lord, deliver us, and a Restoration Litany—belonging to a period which was not remarkable for austerity of manners, contains, in singular juxtaposition, the suffrages:

"From a Kingkilling Saint Patch, powder and paint Libera Nos Domine!"

A noncomformist writer of the same era observed contemptuously that, "in the first place, ladies paint in order to gain the reputation of a beauty, and to win a gallant, and then daub to keep him." Pulpit denunciation, and the wrath of moralist writers failed signally to end the practice, just as the resolution of the doctors will, probably have little effect on the sale of beauty specialties.

Despite their most frantic efforts, women find it hard work to retain the good looks in these nervous, straining days of high pressure, late hours and wear and tear of body and mind.

The greatest foe to beauty in woman is not however, errors in diet, lack of exercise, not overwork or late hours, but bad mental habits. How many otherwise presentable faces do we see in the streets or stores that are characterized by the lined mouth, the drawn brows and other facial disfigurements which accompany undesirable mental states. What is meant by undesirable mental states? Anger, fear, worry, anxiety, irritability, regret, envy, jealousy, lack of trust in oneself and one's fellows—all of these are bad mental states, and all these destroy beauty, not only by interfering with the action of the vital organs, but by directly disfiguring the expression of the face, robbing it of a charm and attractiveness that cannot be restored by all the cosmetics and beauty preparations to be found on the globe. The cultivation of good nature, kindliness, calmness and cheerfulness, and the will to conquer all tenderness leading in the opposite direction, are indespensable for the successful pursuit of the most divine gift of beauty.

Thousands have got relief

SLEEPLESS WITH PAIN OF RHEUMATISM

Now sleeps well and can work with ease

"I could not sleep or do my work, but now I sleep well, walk and do my work with ease. I used Sloan's Liniment only once and it relieved me of my pain. It is just wonderful. I shall never be without it."

This is only one letter but it is typical of thousands that the makers of Sloan's have received, testifying to the amazing relief that Sloan's gives to every kind of muscular pain.

Sloan's gives real relief because it doesn't just deaden the nerves. It stirs up the bodily forces to get rid of the trouble that is causing the pain.

No need to rub, it's the medicine itself that does the work. Just pat it on. Instantly it sends the fresh, healing blood tingling through the sick tissues—and the pain simply has to go. So clean and easy to use, too. Get a bottle. All druggists—35 cents.

PYTHIANS HOLD INSTALLATION

Grand Officer and Many Visiting Brethren Attend Ceremony.

LODGE PROGRESSING.

Deputy Grand Chancellor Harold Barnes of Toronto, installing officer for the Grand Domina of Ontario, visited the local Pythian Lodge on Tuesday evening to install the officers for the coming year.

Brother Barnes was accompanied by a great many Toronto brothers, among these being Supreme Master at Arms Bro. Wilson; Grand Keeper of Records and Seal Bro. Alex. Coulter; Bro. Harcourt, Chancellor Commander of Amicus Lodge, Toronto; Bro. Benson, D.O.K.K., and many other Notables; Brothers from Indianapolis, Connersville, Detroit, Hamilton, and Toronto were also present.

The installation was very ably carried out by the brothers in charge. The ceremony was a very impressive one and the local members only regret that the installation was not open to the public, so that many more might have an opportunity of seeing a wonderfully impressive ceremony exemplified in a manner possible only when done by those who have spent years at the work.

After the ceremony, addresses were given by most of the forementioned brothers, also by Rev. Bro. Spencer of Lakefield and several local brothers.

Brother Spencer stated that he had not been in a lodge room for almost twenty years, but Pythianism had put its stamp on him so firmly that, although he had not been near his own lodge or any other in all that time, he was still a member in good standing, and always would be.

In the addresses given, the brothers told of the progress of Pythianism in the lodges they represented. Marathon Lodge members were officially invited to the new Pythian Castle Hall on College Street in Toronto, which is a lasting monument to Pythianism.

The Peterborough Lodge was congratulated again and again for the success they had attained during the past year and with many wishes for the future success of Pythianism in Peterborough, the meeting came to a close.

A delightful banquet was then served in the hall by the committee in charge, and a general good fellowship meeting was heartily partaken of by the enthusiastic brothers.

Making friends as they must wherever they go, the Toronto brothers certainly worked their way deep into the hearts of the Pythian brothers in Peterborough.

The officers in stalled were J. Ralph Knox, Chancellor Commander; A. Jobe, Vice-Chancellor; E. Catton, Prelate; K. Sloane, Keeper of Records and Seal; V. Hamilton, Master of Exchequer; F. Milliken, Master of Finance; B. Cleghorn, Master at Arms; A. W. Cuppy, Master of Works; H. Hair, Inner Guard; N. Henry Outer Guard.

PILES DISAPPEAR

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom banish Piles and for the very good reason that the cause is inside—bad circulation in affected parts, veins are flabby and bowel walls weakened.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send fresh, healthy blood to the raw, sensitive membranes. Internal treatment is one safe method. Ointments and other external treatments can't give lasting relief.

J. S. Leonhardt, M.D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and it has proven successful in thousands of cases—so successful that now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists under a money back guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at McDermid & Jury, who will promptly refund the purchase price if you are dissatisfied.

FAMOUS MUSICIANS

Of the two hundred and forty-seven men of the name of Bach who were known as musicians, there were over fifty who were distinguished as composers and performers. In the parts of Germany where most of that quiet, home-loving people lived, they had been for generations so prominent in local musical affairs that the town musicians were known as "the Bachs," even after there had ceased to be any of the name among them.

But of all the Bachs, John Sebastan was "The" Bach. He is generally known as simply "Sebastian," for the name "Johann" is found constantly in the family that to use it alone would fail to distinguish the particular "Johann" that was meant. Out of the twenty-three most prominent Bachs, the first name of sixteen was "Johann," and six of them were labelled as "Johann Christoph." But there was only one "John Sebastian," and it is an incident in his early youth that we here relate.

At the age of ten years, little John Sebastian lost both his parents and was taken from Eisenach to Ohrdruff, where he made his home with his elder brother, one of the "John Christophs." The little fellow had begun his musical study with his father, and now continued under the tuition of his distinguished elder brother. Even at this age his great genius began to manifest itself, for he would come to his lessons with his music learned by heart. Soon he began to aspire to higher and more difficult music than his teacher would allow him. It seems that John Christoph had laid away on the upper shelf of a certain cupboard a manuscript volume of pieces by Buxtehude, Frohberger, Pachelbel and other noted composers of that day, and this book the little Sebastian modestly requested to be given him for study. His brother curtly refused and locked up the cupboard. But the young seeker after the knowledge was not to be so easily defeated.

Determined to gain possession of the coveted treasure, he one night managed to get his hand through the openings of the latticed cupboard door, and, rolling up the manuscript drew it out. Then for six months he would utilize the moonlight nights copying the music, and each night would again place it back in its proper place. But at the end of that time his nocturnal occupation was discovered, and the brother was cruel enough to confiscate the results of his hard labor, and, it is said, burned it before the boy's eyes.

Chronic constipation conquered by Nujol treatment, said doctors

WE asked leading doctors all over the country how they treated chronic cases of constipation. 80.7% said they recommended the Nujol type of treatment.

Here is a typical answer taken at random from hundreds of interviews: "Where hard, dry impacted conditions are present as in chronic constipation Nujol type of treatment is especially successful. Laxatives and cathartics do not tend to correct the causes of constipation. In their place I recommend an intestinal lubricant in all obstinate cases."

Doctors Advise Nujol

Nine doctors out of every ten told us they were advising the Nujol type of treatment for their patients in place of laxatives—and for these reasons: 1. Nujol is not habit-forming; 2. A more natural method; 3. A lubricant is better than a laxative; 4. Does not gripe; 5. Is not irritating; and 6. Nujol gives lasting relief.

Unlike Laxatives

Laxatives and cathartics act by irritating the intestinal tract. They cause the bowels to frantically expel the contents of the intestines and thus rid the system of the drugs that pills and potions contain.

Nujol acts entirely differently. It contains no drugs, no medicine. Its action is mechanical. It merely softens the dried waste matter in the intestines and lubricates the passage so that the muscles of the bowels can expel the waste matter regularly, naturally and thoroughly.

Nature-given Remedy

Nujol appeals to the medical man because it is a simple, scientific and safe remedy for constipation, no matter how severe the case may be. It is gentle in its action and pleasant to take. Children love it!

Get a bottle of Nujol from your druggist today. Doctors advise it for constipation whether chronic or temporary. Avoid substitutes.

OBITUARY.

MRS. A. R. GAMSBY.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 24. — The death of Mrs. A. R. Gamsby, (Margaret J. Kennedy), took place on Saturday, February 19, following several months of comparative ill health, culminating in some weeks of serious illness.

Deceased was born on the family homestead, "Highland Farm," about one mile south of the village, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Kennedy, early settlers of the township.

Mrs. Gamsby was one of a family of four children, three daughters, of whom the eldest, Mrs. M. A. McQuade, of Omemee, alone survives, and one son, the late Mr. Hamilton Kennedy; Mrs. Elizabeth K. Gray, of Orono, predeceased her sister by a few months.

Several years ago Miss Kennedy was married to Mr. A. R. Gamsby, of Orono, and after some years' residence in that town, they removed to Uplands, California, where they resided for nineteen years, and where Mr. Gamsby's death took place. They had no family.

One year ago last December, Mrs. Gamsby bought the home on Anne street, belonging to the late Mrs. Henry Mulligan, and came to Millbrook to reside.

After her marriage Mrs. Gamsby joined the Christian church, with which her husband was affiliated. An earnest Christian, interested in all that pertained to the church's welfare, she and her husband, while living in Uplands, frequently opened their own home for the Sunday service, ministers from neighboring towns and cities coming each week to the little village and fulfilling the duties of the pastorate.

Deceased was connected with the United church during her residence in Millbrook and was a member of the Woman's Missionary Auxiliary, though ill health prevented her regular attendance at either the church services, or the missionary meetings.

The funeral took place on Monday, February 21, from her late residence, Anne street, her pastor, Rev. F. H. Howard having charge of the service which was held about 8.30 a.m., the early hour being necessary because of the long drive to Orono, where interment was beside her husband in the family burial plot.

The pall-bearer at Millbrook were three nephews, Messrs. William and Hugh Kennedy, Kennedy Gray (Ohio), H. Argue, Rev. G. C. R. McQuade, and J. Whitefield.

Some beautiful floral tributes were laid in loving memory upon the casket.

Rev. S. T. Tucker had charge of the service at the graveside at Orono.

Among those from outside points attending the funeral were: Mrs. M. A. McQuade, Mrs. George Newman, Mrs. Fred Bent, of Omemee; Mr. Kennedy Gray, of Marietta, Ohio; Rev. G. C. R. McQuade, of Odessa.

AVIATION SCHOOL HERE TO TRAIN BOTH PILOTS AND MECHANICS

Ground Training on Theory To Be Followed By Practical Work.

LESSONS BY MAIL.

Qualified Officers To Be In Charge of All Parts of Work.

Peterboro citizens will hear the buzz and whir of the aeroplane engines this summer, for this city is to be the centre of an aviation school, the only one of its kind in Canada. Already one aeroplane is in the city, and more are expected early in April when flying commences.

The aviation school is in charge of Harold P. Ayres, of the Canadian Air Services Company, who was overseas with the Royal Flying Corps during the war, and since then he has been actively engaged in aviation work.

At present there are eighteen resident students planning to take the course, and ten out-of-town students. The first part is ground or preliminary work, which is theory, and the same as that which was given the members of the Flying Corps during the war at the University of Toronto. This part of the course is general in its scope and from it a man may train either for a pilot or a mechanic.

The second part of the course is mechanical, when the student is thoroughly taught the intricate parts of the engine, and how to repair the same.

The third stage is the actual flying. Men are taught to pilot their planes, and with this they are taught meteorology, navigation, map reading, and a thorough knowledge of the theory of flight.

A correspondence course is also being carried on whereby the students are taught the fundamental elements of aeronautics, after which they will be taught flying.

A flying field has been secured just outside the city, in the township of North Monaghan, and hangars will be erected to house the aeroplanes.

In the mechanical part of the course two aeroplanes of different makes will be use and the men will be trained to take these apart and put them together again. A suitable building is to be erected for the mechanical part of the course, and rotary, radial, vertical and V-type motors will be studied by the students.

It was at first proposed that a civic flying field should be established in the district for the time is not far of, according to authorities, when there will be a great deal of commercial flying in Canada, but the city council did not look with favor on the scheme. Canada and the United States are away behind Europe with respect to commercial flying.

All the personnel which is in charge of the school, must be registered according to Canadian regulations and the planes have to be passed as safe for flying.

This district will be the school headquarters and it is expected that aviators trained in the school will carry on commercial flying in other parts of Canada. The aeroplane today is being used very extensively in the province of Quebec to cruise timber lands. It has been found that a man in an aeroplane can do the work just as accurately as a whole crew of men tramping through the timber lots, doing in six hours what would take a crew of men six months to do. Aeroplanes are also being used to portage food and other necessities of life into the north country, and much surveying is being done by them.

LIQUOR REVENUES.

Hon. Dr. Monteith's estimate of the amount of revenue that will be obtained by the province from the government sale of liquor is suprisingly high.

In his Budget speech the Provincial Treasurer declared that it was expected that for the part of the present fiscal year the system would be in operation a revenue of $3,300,000 would be derived.

As the government control regulations are not likely to come into effect until May 1st and the financial year ends on October 31st, government sale will be in operation only six months, so Hon. Dr. Montieth is counting upon a yearly revenue of $7,000,000 from this source.

Compared with the returns from Quebec the Treasurer's estimate is large enough to cause some wonder as to the government's estimate of the provincial thirst.

The average revenue from liquor in the past four years in Quebec has been $7,000,000, so Ontario people are evidently expected to prove bigger consumers than their neighbors.

THE STORY OF EVEREST.

The enterprise of the local Kiwanis Club is responsible for the opportunity that is being given Peterborough citizens on Friday night to see the film, "The Epic of Everest", and to hear the story of Captain John Noel, one of the members of that famous expedition.

The attempt to scale Mount Everest is one of the most stirring episodes in the history of the British race, a race that has given the world so many epics of sheer courage and dogged determination.

It is a story that every Britisher should know, and with the visit of Captain Noel, with his moving picture presentation of some of the most interesting features of the whole attempt, there is an unique chance.

The Kiwanis Club has not arranged for this unusual event as a money-making scheme on its part but merely as a community contribution, feeling that the story of the Everest expeditson is one that should be brought before the citizens of Peterborough for the fresh revelation it gives of British daring, pluck and perseverance.

ADVERTISING CANADA.

Valuable work in advertising the many advantages of Canada is being done by the National Resources Intelligence Service, operating under the Federal Department of the Interior.

The service, which is under the direction of F. C. C. Lynch, has just issued a most informative and interesting booklet entitled "Canada As a National Property", that has been prepared primarily for distribution abroad, mainly to British and American business men who are, or may be, actively interested in one phase or another of Canadian development, and to educational officers in universities, colleges, etc., through whom a wider and sounder appreciation of Canadian resources and development may be created.

The booklet should prove of much benefit in stressing Canada's varied natural features and resources.

As is pointed out in a foreword by Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, "The Canadian people possess a national estate neither fully employed nor well known."

"Canada As a National Property" should do much to cause the resources of this country to be better known and therefore more completely employed.

THE POLICE DEPARTMENT.

The annual report of Chief Constable Samuel Newhall indicates that the local police have rendered good service during the year.

Perhaps the best indication of the value of an efficient police department is to be found in the figures presented by the Chief Constable in regard to the amount of stolen property recovered by the police.

During last year articles to the value of $10,756.65 were reported to the police department as stolen and Chief Newhall reports that of this stolen property $10,305.90 worth was recovered.

At the same time out of a total of $2,230.13 worth of property reported lost $1,604.23 was returned to the owners through the medium of the police department.

The patrol work of the police force was responsible for 192 doors and windows of shops and offices being found open and made secure, during the year.

Attending 41 fires, investigating and reporting on 150 accidents, and dealing with 12,401 telephone calls were other activities that kept the local "bobbies" from too much ruminatnig over the thought that "a policemans life is not a happy one."

WHEN IS A MAN DRUNK?

The legal definition of "drunk" has puzzled many courts. There is a school of auspicious wives and policemen which considers a man intoxicated if his breath indicates a recent drink; there is another branch of opinion which holds that a man is not drunk if he is able still to move one little finger. In between, there is a wide range of belief on the subject.

There are those who hold to the efficacy of the chalk-mark test for intoxication, and others prefer trial of the subject's tongue on subtle alliteratives having to do with Sister Susie or Peter Piper. One man is considered drunk because he sings, another because he fights, a third because he goes to sleep.

The question has more than an academic interest, because there are many cases, both civil and criminal, in which the decision is affected by someone's sobriety or lack of it. To arrive at an interpretation of intoxication, therefore, the British Medical Association appointed a committee of fifteen doctors, two magistrates and a military officer and this committee, after investigations which occupied sixteen months, reports "that the word 'drunk' should always be taken to mean that the person concerned 'is so much under the influence of alcohol as to have lost control of his faculties to such an extent as to render him unable to execute safely the occupation in which he is engaged'."

The report says there is no single test of drunkenness, but that many factors have to be considered —breath, speech, locomotion, memory, breathing, etc. The conscientious officer or magistrate presumably will study the subject's reaction to these tests and then form his opinion on the suspect's ability "to execute safely the occupation in which he is engaged." The situation appears not to have been clarified greatly by these learned enquiries. Generally speaking, a man is drunk when a policeman says he is drunk, and the word of a policeman, backed by experience and authority, carries a good deal of weight with magistrates.—Ottawa Journal.

THE POWER OF DISSOLUTION.

An interesting debate in Parliament was that which arose last Monday over the motion of Mr. A. M. Carmichael, of Kindersley, that no Government should have the right to ask for a dissolution of Parliament prior to the completion of the five-year term provided by the British North America Act, unless authorized to do so by the majority vote of the House. Its intention was, of course, to oversome the possibility of such a situation as that of last summer when members of the Commons found Parliament dissolved without warning and another election impending, although only a fraction of the normal duration of Parliament had passed since the previous election.

Under present parliamentary practices, in Canada as in Great Britain, the power of determining the life of Parliament is vested practically in the Cabinet. The latter body is dependent upon parliamentary support, which means generally the possession of a majority of the seats in the Commons by party followers. So long as it holds this majority its position in power is assured and a Cabinet in this assured position is not likely to seek a dissolution which would shorten its hold of office and, possibly, result in its defeat at the polls. There may be times, however, when it will see the likelihood of an advantage in an earlier appeal to the electors than by waiting for the expiration of the statutory limit of five years. And there may be times, as last year, when the majority of one party over the other is so slight that business cannot be satisfactorily conducted and such an appeal offers the only way out of a practical impasse.

The question raised before the House was virtually as to whether this power of dissolution by a division of the Cabinet was justified. In setting forth his arguments Mr. Carmichael pointed out that in the sixty years since Confederation there have been sixteen Parliaments instead of the twelve necessitated by statute, the shortest being that of last year. He asserted that it gave the Cabinet the power of wielding a club over the heads of members who were more concerned with legislation than dissolution, forcing them to decide their attitude on the alternative of supporting the Government or facing the uncertainty of a general election. This condition jeopardised fair consideration of legislation. It was an excellent thing for the party man, but unsatisfactory for an independent member. Further, the power of the Cabinet led it to frame attractive legislation at an opportune time for going to the country. To overcome these evils he believed that Parliament should be supreme in deciding as to dissolution.

In opposition to these views Hon. Ernest Lapointe asserted that there might be times when Parliament would be out of harmony with the people, and that at such times it would not be well to have a rule compelling them to wait three or four more years or to decide the matter by a vote of members who would likely be opposed to dissolution. To the contention that the Government would take the same attitude he cited instances in Great Britain where the Government, believing itself without moral support in the country, had appealed to the people because the heads of the Government felt that they had lost popular confidence. More substantial was his contention that, where the Government proposed a radical change in national policy, it should have the power of appealing direct to the electorate. In this respect the present practice was essentially democratic. To the Minister of Justice's arguments M. Henri Bourassa added the point that members of Parliament are "interested individually in not going to the people, in not running the risk of an election." And it has been shrewdly hinted elsewhere that this factor had a lot to do in the support which this motion received.

To the dispassionate observer the arguments on both sides may appear as of fairly equal value. There appear both advantages and disadvantages to either practice, but the present has worked out to such general advantage that there would seem no reason for a change to a different practice which might result in a marked change in parliamentary influences.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Feb. 24 — Satisfaction was expressed among cattle men at the improved prospects for export business by the lowering of ocean rates from $20 per head to a new rate of $15 per head. There will also be a ten per cent. reduction off the $15 rate for store cattle bringing the rate in this class to $13.50 per head.

While the full benefit of the cut may not immediately be felt, it will at once help both producer and shipper. Later on it will no doubt result in a large increase in the number of cattle shipped, particularly around next fall shipping season. The reduction is the outcome of a long agitation, and much satisfaction will be felt at the result.

Business at the cattle yards yesterday was good for all types of butcher cattle, and a good clean up was early assured at steady to firm prices. Export buyers were picking up a few heavy steers to carry over for next week's shipment.

Choice finished butcher steers, handy weights, 950 to 1,000 lbs., steady to firm at $7 to $7.25. Good medium butcher steers going at $6.50 to $6.75. Extra choice heavy beef steers, $7.50 to $7.75.

Good market for fat butcher cows, with a shade firmer feeling at $5 to $5.50, and a few special at around $6.

Calves steady at $12 to $14.

Sheep and lambs steady. Lambs $13 to $13.25.

Hogs remain steady with last week on basis of $10.75 f.o.b. and $11.65 off cars.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press) — Corn and oats smashed down yesterday to new low price records for the season. There was heavy general selling and country advices indicated free offerings from first hands. North American corn supplies are nearly 12,000,000 bushels larger than a year ago. Wheat reflected the weakness of feed grain.

Corn closed heavy, 1 7-8 to 2 5-8c net lower; wheat 1-2 to 3-4c down; oats 1 1-8 to 1 5-8c off, and provisons two to 15 cents up.

Lowest prices both of the day and the season were reached in the corn market right at the close. Buying was confined largely to previous sellers who were in a position to collect a profit. Failure of shipping demand to broaden here attracted much notice, and so likewise did the fact that Chicago receivers yesterday had booked 100,000 bushels more of corn to arrive. Oats followed the downward sweep of the corn market.

Wheat was bearishly affected not only by the weakness of other grain bbut also by unusually fine weather for domestic winter wheat and by unexpected lower quotations for wheat at Liverpool. Predictions, too, were current that wheat supplies arriving in Europe will exceed import requirements.

Provisions were responsive to the fact that packing house products are below a profitable manufacturing basis compared with the current cost of hogs.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 24 (Canadian Press)—The export trade in grain on the Montreal market was again dull yesterday. There being no demand from foreign buyers at prices that could be accepted. Business in ocean grain room from Canadian winter ports was slow with the result that some spot Hamburg freight was let recently at twelve cents per hundred pounds and more is now offering at fourteen cents per hundred pounds.

Owing to the weakness that developed in the Chicago future market for corn today, local prices for cash corn were reduced two to four cents per bushel. Sales of American No. 2 yellow were made at 90c, No. 3 yellow at 89c, No. 4 yellow at 85c, sample yellow corn at 82c, and cool sweet corn at 80c per bushel, ex-store. The spot market for Canadian Western Oats was also weaker and prices declined 1-2c per bushel.

The flour trade was without any new feature to note, the demand for spring and winter wheat grades being quiet and prices steady.

A fair amount of business was done in all lines of millfeed and values were unchanged. The demand for standard grades of rolled oats showed no improvement and business was slow.

The efature of the egg trade yesterday was again the weakness that prevailed and prices scored a further decline of one to three cents per dozen. This was attributed to the depression in the United States situation of late and the continued liberal supplies coming forward here. The market was moderately active. The receipts were 1,719 cases.

The undertone to the potato market was easy at the late decline noted on account of the fact that there was no improvement in the volume of business. Sales of odd cars of Prince Edward Island Green

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

"TO THE MANNER BORN"

(By The McClure Syndicate, Inc.)

"Which is correct," writes an inquirer, "'to the manner born,' or (to the manor born'? I have seen them both used in books and magazines."

This is one of the "stock" questions that is certain to confront, sooner or later, every writer on English. It is settled, according to most if not all authorities, that "to the manner born" is the proper form. Webster's International Dictionary treats of this matter and says:

"To the manner born; born to follow or obey a certain practice or custom; also, having lifelong acquaintance with given conditions, customs, etc.; apparently naturally fitted for some occupation, work, or position. The phrase as used by Shakespeare in 'Hamlet' (I, iv., 15) has by some been wrongly understood to refer to a manor, of which manner is an old variant spelling, and hence the phrase, 'to the manor born,' is sometimes used in the sense, 'accustomed to the usages of a locality, or of high or polite society.'"

HEALTH and DIET ADVICE

QUESTIONS IN REGARD TO HEALTH & DIET WILL BE ANSWERED BY DR. McCOY WHO CAN BE ADDRESSED IN CARE OF THIS PAPER

LIVING WITHOUT COOKS

But a vast increasing number of people are attempting to live on uncooked food alone. Most of these "Raw Fooders" claim to be able to live in good health on only uncooked vegetables, fruits and nuts. I am sure that it is true that there have been instances where this diet has proved to be adequate to all of the body's requirements, but upon close investigation I have found most people professing to believe in the efficiency of raw food really add to their otherwise restricted diet such food as cooked grains, eggs, cheese and milk, it is likewise true that those who claim to be vegetarians generally use milk, eggs, cheese and such animal products.

The raw food diet certainly provides plenty of vitally nourishing food, but has several drawbacks which make it an impractical diet to use day after day and year after year. It is necessary to use a large amount of food, as most of the vegetables and fruits used contain so much water and cellulose that the stomach must be filled to capacity in order to be sure of a large enough amount of materials in these foods which are tissue building.

All herbivorous animals spend most of their waking moments engaged in the pleasant pastime of chewing, swallowing and digesting food. Modern man does not have the time, inclination or energy to use up so much time in order to get enough nourishment. The keen man of to-day can not give so much of his attention to food, but the dull phlegmatic man still exists who is willing to be mostly a walking digestive organ.

Another good reason why a strict raw food diet is not practical is that it is a most unsocial diet. If one persists in such a radical diet, he will soon have few friends who are willing to dine with him. Because he does not wish to seem "Queer," the raw fooder will eat his own restricted diet, and then, to be sociable, use some of his friends' tasty dishes. In place of deliberately choosing a good steak, he will invariably select the most unwholesome foods because of their pleasing taste. He is also very liable to fill up between meals on ice-cream, candy and soft drinks. In fact, the candy stores would soon go out of business if it are usually overfed, but still starving for the right foods, out of which they can secure the proper elements to build and repair their bodily tissues. Craving something else, their appetite tries to secure satisfaction by the use of sweets; this is particularly true of the earnest student of dietetics who attempts to live on an exclusive uncooked diet. The craving for sweets always seems to be present and is never satisfied.

The best plan is to use enough raw vegetables and fruit each day to supply the needed organic minerals and also use such cooked foods as the grains and the valuable proteins, meat, fish, fowl, etc. The meals may be abundantly satisfying if cooked greens are also added.

Man may indeed live without cooks, but is far better for him to use some foods in their natural state and supplement such foods with those which can be improved by the art of cookery.

UP STREAM

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

When Bishop McIntyre stood on the Canadian bank of Niagara Falls he said that everything in the universe seemed to be going down. Yet a closer scrutiny revealed the little steamer, "Maid of the Mist," going up.

Pessimists tell us that everything and everybody is going to the dogs.

We have the authority of the realists and the gloomy philosophers that things are getting worse and worse. Yet somehow the world seems struggling upward.

It has made much improvement in the last eighteen hundred years or so and it is liable to make more in the next few years.

The stream of traffic on Broadway is ceaseless, but occasionally a policeman raises his hand and the traffic stops while he leads a little child or an old woman in safety from curb to curb.

The newspapers are filled with accounts of murders and all sorts of crimes until it seems that the country is afflicted with a crime wave, but every once in a while you hear of a kind deed done by somebody who is not at all afflicted with crime motives.

Doubtless there are many kind deeds not recorded all through the world. Many hearts are going up stream.

It is pretty hard on them at times and the struggle is pretty severe, but taking all in all the company of those who are struggling to make the world better is considerable and they have the cosmic laws in their favor.

Whoever does what is right may be peculiar, but he belongs to a long line of beneficent forebears. He may know that his labor is not wasted.

For there are always a number of people who are going up stream just as there are many people who are laying down their oars and going with the stream toward the deadly water falls of disaster.

There is something in the human breast that inclines men to struggle, to push onward and upward, notwithstanding that the stream of things seems to bear hem down.

PILGRIMS CHEER

He went on to speak of the "noble contributions which the Pilgrims' Society has made to the cause of strengthening the friendship which exists, and must ever exist, between the people of the United States and of the British Empire."

"Canadians," he added, "are on the same high pilgrimage of international amity and goodwill. We feel that we know you who live just across our border and can understand in some measure and appreciate the intricate and fascinating pattern which modern American life presents. On the other hand, we have too a first-hand knowledge of and an abiding affection for the great mother nation whose impress has been placed upon our institutions and our modern life. This role of interpreter is one which individual Canadians love to play. In almost any smoking-room you will find a Canadian telling an Englishman what fine fellows the Americans are when you get to know them, or telling an American that the Englishman is a first-rate chap even if you never quite get to know him."

Inheritors of a common language and a common basis for art and literature, the United States and British peoples probably always would be found shoulder to shoulder in any crisis which threatened society, Mr. Massey said. He then went on to express the conviction that the growing dissimilarity in the modern trend of art and literature, business, law, education, or public administration in the one country or the other was a healthy trend. Each country should develop its peculiar forms of expression, and it was on that respect for self-expression that the solidarity of the British Empire was built up. In the United States, too, the principle of federation rested on the solution of the problem of reconciling local rights to national unity. "National characteristics," added Mr. Massey, "are not an obstacle to international amity. They give color to life in a world where standardization has become a peril. Unity in diversity is a key to Anglo-American relations."

Turning to Canada's part in the "trusteeship" which the Anglo-Saxon race holds in the world, Mr. Massey said that in years gone by there had been talk that the two English-speaking countries of North America should be merged, but that now that idea "belongs either to the sphere of the antiquarian or humorist." Separated only by a boundary which "is not a frontier,"

"Let the Clark Kitchens Help You"

Canada and the United States had preserved for more than a century relations which are an example to the world. He added humorously that "Canada has magnanimously abandoned any ambition she may have had to take forcible possession of her southern neighbors," while he admitted that in some professions Scotsmen from Canada had quietly carried out a peaceful penetration in the United States.

Mr. Massey went on to speak of Canada's economic development of her exports in cereals, newsprint, gold and others minerals, and added that "a rising tide of prosperity in my country has engulfed the few pessimists that remained."

The Canadian Minister referred to French-Canada and said that the experiment in reconciliation had resulted in the harmonization of forces hitherto opposed. The French Canadian minority had been given the precious rights of language and religion and Canada had reaped "a strain of culture which gives great richness to our national life."

The establishment of separate legations from the Dominions, said Mr. Massey, would not weaken the ties of Empire. "The new diplomatic enterprise of my own Dominion—with which I have the honor to be associated — is one more great evidence of the relationships which prevail within the modern British Empire," the Canadian Minister went on. "I should like to say that this new step of ours was taken not only with the fullest approval but with the heartiest co-operation of British statesmen and British officials, which represented the prevailing attitude in Great Britain of active sympathy with the full development of the other nations of the British Empire. This spirit of friendly co-operation has not been shown more fully than by the distinguished gentleman who now holds the great office of British Ambassador to Washington, Sir Esme Howard. The attitude of genuine helpfulness which has been practiced and generously demonstrated by the Ambassador and the members of his staff is of very great service to Canada on the occasion of her entry into the diplomatic sphere.

"I have heard it said that the entry of the Dominion into diplomacy will impair the diplomatic unity of the Empire and therefore may threaten Imperial unity itself. Perhaps at first blush such misgivings may seem forgivable. When the proposal was first seriously made, seven years ago, it represented an entirely new conception — a new idea—and someone has said that 'there is no pain like the pain of a new idea.' But after all, gentlemen, the only thing that could threaten the unity of the British Empire would be a desire to impair that unity. Such a desire is, of course, entirely contrary to the spirit of my country. There is no true Canadian living who does not wish to see the Empire placed on an enduring basis and Canada's connection with it deepened and strengthened. The new development which we are setting up will not weaken the ties which bind the British Empire. I believe it will have the contrary effect. There are now in Washington three envoys of His Majesty—the British Ambassador, the Minister of the Irish Free State, who was established some three years ago in the person of Professor Smiddy, and the Canadian Minister. But the presence in a great friendly capital of several representatives of the King, responsible to his different governments, should provide, not obstacles to unity, but, I believe, bridges to an even greater unity between the British nations which these envoys represent.

"It is, after all, the human motives behind mechanism that really matter. Canada believes the Empire, and it is the wish of the Canadian people that nothing that exists to serve our national ends should operate to the detriment of the larger unity of which we are a part. The three British envoys, in your capital, represent a great peace-loving family of nations, united not only in friendly co-operation with each other, but united also in our friendship for this great nation to whose government we are now accredited."

SOVIET AGENT DENIES CHARGES

Says Republic Too Busy With Internal Economic Problems.

NOT INTERFERING.

MONTREAL, Feb. 24. — Canadian Press. — L. Guerus, official agent and trade representative of the Soviet Republic in Canada, to-day issued a statement dealing with announcements made in the British House of Commons by Sir Austen Chamberlain yesterday. Mr. Gueras says that charges that the Soviet government is responsible for events in China are unreasonable, and that the Soviet is too much occupied with the economic and cultural reconstruction of former Russia to seek any clash with England.

Houdini's Wife Waits For Spirit World Message

NEW YORK, Feb. 24. (United Press.) — Since the death of Harry Houdini, the magician, his widow has waited in vain for his promised communication from the spirit world. Before his death Houdini left with his wife a code and said that if possible he would communicate with her in that code.

Mrs. Houdini has received many messages from mediums who assert they have talked with her dead husband, but their 'messages' have not tallied with the code.

THEATRE

AT THE REGENT

LIMEHOUSE MELODRAMA.

Limehouse, the stronghold of the underworld gangs of London, is in the old dock district; and white, yellow, black, brown and all other shades of renegades of every land, ply their villainies upon each other there. Out of this swamp of crime rise those terrifying adventures which keep the agents of Scotland Yard on perpetual man-hunts.

And out of the dark, threatening shadows comes the thrilling melodrama, "While London Sleeps," a Warner Bros. production, starring Rin-Tin-Tin, and opening to-day at the Regent Theatre. It is a story of high loves and noble hearts; of loyalty and bravery, with Rinty fighting an ape-man to save his lovely mistress and her sweetheart; a story of breath-taking thrills and deeds of daring.

With the narrow, broken streets of Limehouse as its locale, against the dark, threatening shadows of evil, "While London Sleeps" tells the dramatic story of a master criminal, his aid, half-man, half beast; his dog and the beautiful girl they abduct and hold for ransom.

Walter Morosco wrote and directed this picture. The cast includes Helene Costello, Walter Merrill, John Patrick, Otto Mattiesen, George Kotsonaros, Dewitt Jennings, Carl Stockdale, and Les Bates.

GOOD-BYE, MALLORY! GOOD-BYE, IRVINE! GOOD LUCK!

There was no sentiment in the parting when the two explorers left their party in a last struggle to reach the roof of the world.

Sentimental display is not the British way.

But those who see that parting as it was caught in his camera by Captain Noel will feel a heart-throb, for Mallory and Irvine—brave gentlemen of England—never came back.

One may fancy their welcome into the heaven of the explorers, as those restless shades of Franklin, Cook, Drake, Grenville, Frobisher and hundreds others gathered around—men who had long years past penetrated the vast unknown of earth and had passed into the greater unknown after planting the flag of England in the uttermost parts of the world.

And if it be true that soil where lie the bones of an Englishman is for ever part of England, then the heights of Mount Everest are everlastingly British, claimed for their country by Mallory and Irvine.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE — CXI—The First Balloon Passengers. — by MAX HAHN

NOT DARING TO RISK THEIR OWN LIVES THE MONTGOLFIER BROTHERS OF FRANCE SENT A SHEEP, A DUCK AND A ROOSTER UP WITH THEIR SECOND BALLOON. ALTHOUGH A RIP IN THE SILK CAUSED THE SECOND BALLOON TO FALL THE AERIAL JOYRIDERS WERE UNINJURED.

KING LOUIS LVI BECAME GREATLY INTERESTED IN THE ASCENSIONS AND WAS ON THE POINT OF CONDEMNING TWO CONVICTS TO GO UP WITH THE NEXT BALLOON. PILATRE DE ROZIER PROTESTED, HOWEVER, THAT THE HONOR OF BEING THE FIRST BALLOONIST OUGHT NOT BE GIVEN TO A PRISONER. IT WAS CONSIDERED A GREAT FEAT FOR DE ROZIER TO GO UP 84 FEET IN A CAPTIVE BALLOON.

GATHERING COURAGE AFTER SOARING SEVERAL TIMES WHILE THE BIG BAG WAS ANCHORED DE ROZIER AND HIS COMPANION, THE MARQUIS D'ARLANDES, VENTURED ALOFT IN A FREE BALLOON WHILE A THRONG OF ASTONISHED THRILL-SEEKERS PROPHESIED THAT THE BALLOONISTS WOULD LOSE THEIR LIVES. HOWEVER, THEY SAILED FIVE MILES IN 25 MINUTES WITHOUT ACCIDENT.

AFTER A YEAR OF SUCCESSFUL ASCENSIONS TWO MEN STARTLED THE WORLD BY CROSSING THE ENGLISH CHANNEL IN A BALLOON. THEY LEFT DOVER ON THE MORNING OF JAN. 7, 1[illegible] AND FIVE HOURS LATER WERE BEING CHEERED AS THEY DESCENDED IN FRANCE.

MRS. G. CLOKE,
A Peterborough Woman, Says:

"I have been using Rinso since it came on the market. It does wonders for me—makes my work lighter and shorter—gives a nice clean washing. I used to rub all my clothes on the washboard. But now now—Rinso soaks out the dirt and leaves me ever so little rubbing—and the clothes last longer for not being rubbed so hard. I recommend Rinso highly to friends and neighbors. There is nothing like it."

Each Week ~a snow-white wash

without boiling, rubbing or scrubbing

Rinso—the granulated soap—has changed washday. Made it quicker—simpler—easier. Taken all the hard work out of it. Brought new glorious results.

Just by soaking a few hours in Rinso—overnight if you wish—your clothes come cleaner and whiter than you could ever get them by boiling, rubbing and scrubbing in the old-fashioned way.

Rinso gently loosens dirt so that it floats off in the rinse. Only very soiled parts need a tiny rub.

No aftermath of red, swollen hands with Rinso, either . . . . it contains no acids or chemicals—nothing to hurt hands or clothes.

If you have a washer, use Rinso for cleaner, whiter clothes. Nine leading makers have thoroughly tested it and recommend it.

Save time—save work—save clothes—save yourself! Get Rinso today.

PROPER MEANS OF SEGREGATION NEEDED IN JAILS

Mr. Justice Lennox Says Offenders Should Be Kept Separate.

JURY'S REPORT.

Public Buildings in Counties Found To Be in Good Condition.

COBOURG, Feb. 24.—Provision for the segregation of prisopers, especially for the benefit of young offenders, was suggested as a necessary improvement of the penal system of Ontario by Mr. Justice Leinex in acknowledging the presentment of the Grand Jury yesterday.

"I hope that before long," said His Lordship, "we will have some proper means of segregating the different classes of offenders, so that boys may be kept away from hardened criminals. At it is, I have felt compelled to prescribe the lash for three young men who assaulted a woman, rather than have them associate with hardened criminals. We should have some means of keeping those of settled criminal minds separate from those who have made their first mis-step.

I notice you found this court house in good condition. That is a matter of taste. This is one of a number of such buildings in Ontario that are excellent externally but very unsatisfactory internally. It was constructed long ago. It is fine to look at, but was constructed on an inconvenient plan. There is a large room space in the front that has no meaning whatever. If it were a market hall, it might be of some use.

I heard it suggested yesterday that the court room floor be raised. That might be well if you could raise the ceiling and the theatre above us a little nearer the clouds. The ceiling now is about as low as is endurable. I'd say to the authorities to think well before deciding to raise this floor a foot or two. I am glad to say that County Councils have accepted suggestions I made and we have effected some improvements."

The Grand Jury's report follows:

To His Lordship, The Honourable Mr. Justice Lennox.

We, the Grand Jurors for the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, at the present sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario, beg leave to make the following presentment:

We wish to thank your Lordship for your very helpful address and instructions given us at the opening of the Court, which aided us greatly in the discharge of our duties.

We have visited the various institutions suggested by your Lordship, and beg to report as follows:

The Gaol for the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham at Cobourg, we found in excellent condition in every respect, the sanitary and heating arrangements are satisfactory, and the 10 prisoners are receiving careful and proper attention. The officials are courteous and attentive to their duties.

We visited the House of Refuge for the United Counties of Northumberland and Durham, and found 86 inmates, all receiving kind, generous treatment, and everything possible is being done by the officials for their well-being, and contentment. The inmates appear to be satisfied, happy and free of care, and the officials are very courteous and obliging.

We also inspected the Court House at Cobourg, and found everything highly satisfactory. The officials are courteous and attentive, and spared no pains to assist us in the performance of our duties.

We visited the Cobourg Hospital and found 22 patients being well cared for. Everything was in the highest possible state of efficiency. The equipment was surprising for a town the size of Cobourg, indeed, as the president informed us, some of the appliances were not to be found in the Toronto Hospitals. The matron and nurses seemed to be taking a deep interest in the welfare of those in their charge.

We visited the Ontario Government hospital, where we found accommodation for 419 patients, and at the present time 405 patients were in the institution. There were 24 day and 5 night nurses. This institution was also very well kept, everything in splendid condition.

In conclusion, we desire to express our pleasure at again having your Lordship as presiding Judge at our Assizes.

PRIZES OFFERED YOUNG ORATORS

Campbellford School Winners Will Compete in Provincial Contest.

FOR HIGH SCHOOLS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 24. — Some time ago a Toronto daily paper announced the beginning of an oratorical contest, Canadian and International, the Dominion champion to be given a free trip to Europe. Principal E. H. Greig of the Campbellford High School has received the following information through Dr. James L. Hughes, who is chairman of the committee in association with the donors, and who will be responsible for the contests in Ontario:

"Dear Sir.—We are enclosing clippings from to-day's Daily Star with further information about the Canadian and International Oratorical contests which are being organized throughout Canada in connection with the celebration of Canada's Diamond Jubilee.

"You will notice that, as in the other provinces, the high schools and collegiate institutes in Ontario will conduct their own contests, under whatever method of elimination and judging you consider best. The winner from your school and from other high schools and collegiate institutes in the province, will be eligible to compete in the district championships which will precede the provincial championships.

These district championships in turn lead up to the provincial and Canadian contests, which then lead up to the international competitions to be held in Washington in the autumn.

The time schedule will be announced shortly and will probably call for the completion of all district championships by the middle of April.

"Yours truly, Oratory Editor."

Every school will conduct its own contest by whatever method it considers best, to determine the champion orator of the school, the same to represent his school at the district contests which will probably be held at Ottawa, to compete for the championships of Canada.

The district, provincial and Canadian champions will receive suitable awards. In addition to the award received by the champion boy or girl of Canada, the winner will have the opportunity of representing Canada in the international oratorical contest to be held in Washington in October, when contestants from Great Britain, France, United States, Mexico and other countries will be present.

The subject of the orations for Canadian competitors will be "Canada's Diamond Jubilee; her achievements since Confederation."

The contest is well away in the Campbellford High School, and Mr. Greig will be prepared to announce the time for the local contest in the near future. The school will provide two suitable prizes for the winners of the contest here.

Campbellford High School is not lacking in excellent material for this contest, as many of the town people know from recent meetings of the school, and should well be able to send a representative to each contest and claim the championship of Canada.

JUDGE HUYCKE AGAIN CHAIRMAN

Estimates of Police Department Passed By Commission Yesterday.

TOTAL $25,986.50.

His Honor Judge E. C. S. Huycke was re-appointed chairman of the Board of Police Commissioners at a meeting held yesterday.

The estimates for the year 1927, totalling $25,986.50 were passed for submission to the Finance committee of the city council.

The annual report of the Chief of Police was read, one section covering property stolen and property recovered drawing great commendation from His Honor. The report showed that out of $10,756.65 value of property stolen, $10,305.90 was returned to the owners, leaving the value of the stolen property unrecovered at $450.75.

His Honor expressed his appreciation of the good work of the Chief and his men, as also did His Worship Mayor W. T. Holloway in speaking of the fact that there was not a single complaint regarding answering telephone calls. The report showed that during the year 12,401 telephone calls were received at the station.

Regarding an item for $600 for insurance included in the estimates it was moved that the city council be asked to approve of the appropriation in order to provide $2,000 insurance for each member of the force; one half the premiums to be deducted from the salaries of the men on their written consent.

Present at the meeting were His Honor Judge Huycke, Mayor W. T. Holloway and Magistrate O. A. Langley.

The estimates for 1927 are as follows:

Estimates For 1927.

Salaries	$20,991.50
Police Commission	350.00
Telephones and telegraphs	325.00
Clothing and equipment	1,150.00
Upkeep of police quarters, including light, gas and fuel, etc.	450.00
Printing and stationery	223.00
Postage	45.00
Incidentals	300.00
Upkeep of motor car, motorcycle and new bicycles	1,200.00
Insurance 5 ways	150.00
Insurance for force	600.00
Chief's convention	200.00

ONE-MAN CHURCH

ROME, Feb. 24.—It took an Italian mason named Mazzoli 32 years to build a church, but he did it, and without assistance. He started the structure, which has just been completed at Venezzano, near Bologna, and neighbors helped by supplying bricks, sand and mortar. Mazzoli was 34 years old when he started his gigantic task.

TEACHING PENMANSHIP

Music and education can effectively be used together, according to a certain well-known school teacher.

Her statements are based on experience. She is thought to be the only teacher in the country who uses singing as an art in teaching penmanship to her pupils.

"Since I began to teach my pupils penmanship methods to the tune of popular songs," she says, "I have noticed that not only has their writing improved greatly, but the exercises have become more of a pleasure than a burden."

This teacher's pupils literally sing while they work. Almost every child knows the popular tunes of the day. They hum the melodies and, while doing this, trace the letters being studied at the time in the air in order to get the proper formations. After they have practised in this manner for a short period they put the exercise on paper.

The two words, "rhythmic writing," were written to humming of "Whispering," and a number of "r's" to "Show Me the Way to Go Home." Several "e's" were formed while the pupils sang "Moonlight and Roses." Such popular numbers as "Bananas" and "Barney Google" are especially well adapted to rhythmic writing lessons, she asserts.

To prove that the success of her penmanship method was not due to her personal direction, a substitute teacher was called in to take charge of her class and conduct a writing lesson. The substitute did not know the novel method of teaching until one of the pupils informed her. After that the lesson was learned automatically.

It is possible that a phonograph, or player-piano would make the rhythmic method even more effective.

WONDER EQUIPMENT ON EVEREST CLIMB

Noel Had 14 Cameras To Ensure the Splendid Pictures He Got.

Elaborate preparations were made to take the kinematograph pictures of the third expedition to Mount Everest. Captain John B. Noel, F.R.G.S. who was in charge of the photographic section profited by two things—the experience he obtained on the previous expedition and by greatly improved equipment. Captain Noel is bringing these wonderful motion pictures and his own personal story of the expedition to this city on the evening of February 25 at St. Paul's Church under arrangements being made by the Kiwanis Club.

He took 14 cameras of all kinds and sizes so as to be able to photograph every phase of the expedition. On the 1922 expedition the films were developed on the journey, and many thousands of feet were dealt with in a tent at the foot of the Rongbuk Glacier, ice having to be broken and melted in order to obtain the necessary water for the solutions and the washing of the many films and prints. This method did not make for good results, and in 1924 other and better arrangeemnts were made. The exposed film was sent from the slopes of the mountain, carried at first by messengers on foot, and afterward by mule-transport, and then by the Indian Post to Darjeeling where a special labo atory had been erected. Darjeeling communicated by wireless with the members of the Expedition, and reported on the results disclosed, after development, in order that any faulty sections might be taken.

The equipment was unusually interesting. Special arrangements were made to meet with the difficulties and dangers which were foreseen. On the previous expedition the film camera was carried in several sections, and it was found impossible to bring it into action quickly. Quick acton occasionally was imperative, and so in 1924 the camera was concentrated in one box, so that it might be got ready at a moment's notice. This apparatus it was hoped would be effective to a height of 16,000 feet. After that the camera was taken out of the box and when the high climb up the mountain glacier was started, it was transferred to a specialy constructed box of very light three-ply wood. Thus, with all its fittings intact it was light enough to be borne on the back of a native carrier even to the Worth Col (23,000 feet). At that height, the tripod was discarded for the ground was too steep for a tripod to be of use. A special "unipod" was constructed, which could be held steady by the operator while the handle of the camera was worked by a small battery which was carried on the back of a native porter. This battery was powerful enough to expose 5,000 feet of film.

For greater heights there were small cameras which could be carried slung around the shoulders and worked by clockwork. Each reel in these small cameras contained 16 feet of film, and any number of films could be carried and readily loaded. It was hoped by this means to film the view from the actual summit of the World's highest mountain. In addition to this appaartus there were large 20-inch telescopic lens which could be used on the larger camera. THIS LENS WAS CAPABLE OF PHOTOGRAPHING VIEWS AT A DISTANCE OF TWO AND A HALF MILES.

Another interesting piece of apparats was a slow-speed clockwork camera which was specially designed for the purpose of filming the dawn and sunset at the rate of one exposure every half-second, every second, or every two seconds; thus, the long process of dawn with its slowly changing lights extending over a period of an hour or more, could be transferred to the screen in a matter of minutes.

One of the difficulties which had to be overcome was caused by the climatic conditions. At a height of 16,000 feet the atmosphere was so dry that the slightest friction would produce a discharge of the deadly static electricity, and any such discharge taking place in the interior of the camera would of course be fatal to the film. Every movement of the film therefore had to be as free as possible.

The results are the finest ever secured on an expedition of this kind and "The Epic of Everest" film has proved a successful drawing attraction in the principal cities of Great Britain, France, Germany and the Scandinavian countries. With Captain Noel telling his personal story while the film is shown, the attraction surpasses anything of its kind.

The late Gen. Sir George Higginson, distinguished Crimean veteran, and the "Father of the Guards," died at his home in Marlow recently, in his hundredth and first year. Photo shows Gen. Higginson with his great-grandchildren Betty, Colin and Sandy MacKenzie, examining a gun which was at Balaclava, where the general fought.

Y.P.S. ENTERTAINED AT BAILIEBORO

Members Are Guests of President at Regular Meeting.

BAILIEBORO, Feb. 24.—The Y. P. S. of the United Church was entertained at the home of the President, F. Barnard, on Tuesday evening.

At the conclusion of the devotional services, which were taken by Stanley Johnston, a talk on world peace was ably given by Karl Lang.

At the close of the meeting a crokinole tournament was indulged in and a very exciting hour and a half was enjoyed. Geddes Harper and Miss Esther Lang won the tournament, while the consolation prizes were awarded to Karl Lang and Mrs. C. Dawson.

Lunch was served by the ladies of the league, and at the conclusion each group who had played crokinole together put on a stunt. The judges, who were Rev. Foley, Mrs. N. Thompson and Mr. John Porter, gave their decision in favor of group four, putting on the finest stunt. Group four was composed of Misses E. Wallace and E. Lang and Messrs. G. Harper and R. Barnard.

There were about forty members present. Among those were Mr. and Mrs. J. Jewison, Mr. and Mrs. N. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. W. Barnard, Mrs. R. Falls, Mrs. F. Jewison, Mrs. H. Barnard, Mrs. C. Dawson, Misses M. and L. Earl, E. Wallace, E. Lang, D. and M. Falls, M. Barnard, V. and I. Dawson, I. Thompson, E. Jewison, Messrs. E. White, N. Earl, P. Barnard, W. and K. Lang, S. Johnston, G. Successful Dance.

The South Monaghan United Farmers' young people held the most successful dance of the season on Wednesday evening. There was a splendid crowd present, many coming down from the Peterborough U.F.Y.P.O. to enjoy the dance.

Stewart's orchestra furnished the music, while a lucky number dance and a lemon dance were two of the chief features of the evening. The lemon dance was won by Mr. William Hutchison and Miss D. Palmer, while the lucky number dance was won by Mr. Walter Lord and Miss J. Pue.

Among those who were present were Mr. and Mrs. J. Isbister, Mr. and Mrs. R. Morrison, Misses E. Huggins, L. Huggins, E. Byers, M. Bonner, E. Johnston, C. Kinsmen, F. Tedford, L. Stutt (Orono), F. BANK MANAGER RECEIVES GIFT

James F. Freure Leaving Warkworth For New Position.

AT ESPANOLA.

NORHAM, Feb. 24.—James F. Fruere, who for the past seven years has been manager of the Royal Bank at Warkworth, and who leaves on Tuesday for his new position as manager of the bank at Espanola, New Ontario, was tendered an informal dinner on Friday evening by his friends in and around Warkworth.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred. H. Moore were hosts at a private farewell dinner given by them in honor of Mr. Fruere, at which he was presented with a beautiful diamond stickpin by about fifteen of his personal admirers. The following address was read by Dr. Herbert S. Allen, who also made the presentation, after which Father Ferguson, Dr. C. C. Armstrong, James Ross and others gave short addresses expressing regret at the removal of Mr. Fruere and wishing him every success in his new field:

"Dear Mr. Fruere:

"Duty is about to remove you from among those who for seven short years have learned to call you 'Jim'; from among those who have been pleased to feel that you have been, and will always be, a true and faithful friend; who have appreciated in the fullest measure your genial friendship, kindness and help, and who now wish you God-speed.

"As a token of the high regard in which we hold your friendship, we ask you to accept this tiepin. We wish you to know and feel that our friendship is as true, and will be as lasting, as the sparkle which issues from its depths. While we regret that the cold hand of business will soon remove you from our midst, we assure you that your absence will not erase the recollections of the good times we have had together, nor influence us to forget the many favors you have granted without hope of reward and the numerous sacrifices you have made, that someone might be the happier because you helped them carry their burdens.

"You will be greatly missed by those who placed the utmost faith in your advice concerning financial matters, by those who sought your unselfish aid in the arena of sport, by those who relied upon your ever-present smile and gentle repartee at social gatherings, as well as by those who placed the utmost confidence in your skill, ability and advice in fraternal circles. In fact, you will be missed by everyone with whom you come in contact, and while your removal is deeply regretted by your friends, their congratulations are heartily extended to you on your promotion, and to the officials of the Royal Bank of Canada for rewarding the services of a faithful servant. We congratulate the people of Espanola and vicinity, who will find you as sincere in their interests as you have been in the interests of those you leave behind.

"When you leave your circle you will carry with you a multitude of sincere wishes for health, happiness, prosperity and peace, and should you have an opportunity of returning to this community, which we hope may be frequently, you will find the hand of welcome and hospitality extended to greet you."

Mr. Fruere assured the company that he would prize most highly their valuable gift, and stated that he had enjoyed very much his stay in Warkworth and would always cherish a feeling of fondness for the residents of the community.

Mr. Fruere left for his new position on Tuesday.

Benjamin Buchanan then took charge of the gathering, and in a short address spoke of the regret with which the community had learned that Mr. Fruere was about to leave, a regret tempered only by the knowledge that he had been given a promotion. The speaker stated that Mr. Fruere had come to Warkworth almost seven years ago, and in a very short time had become one of the most popular and highly esteemed citizens in the community. From the first he had taken an active part in Masonic, educational and athletic work. He had been a Director and past President of the Agricultural Society and had been deeply interested in other community enterprises. In this way he had won a host of friends, who could not see him depart without expressing in a small but tangible way their appreciation of his services to the community. In behalf of the assembled company, Mr. Fruere was then asked to accept the gift of a valuable leather club bag.

Mr. Fruere feelingly expressed his thankfulness at this assurance of their esteem, and said that his stay in Warkworth has been a most pleasant one for him, and promised that Warkworth and his friends there would always hold a warm place in his memory. He then bespoke a kindly reception for his successor, J. E. Neil.

Mr. Buchanan then called upon W. Herbert Nelson, Reeve of Percy Township, who spoke of the very efficient way and courteous manner in which Mr. Fruere had conducted the business of the local bank.

Mrs. Curtis then served a dainty lunch.

Children less than one meter in height are admitted free at the Longchamps (Paris) race track.

ECZEMA BROKE OUT OVER BODY

Could Not Do Any Work. Healed by Cuticura.

"Eczema broke out over my hands, arms, feet and limbs and on my body. It appeared in pimples that itched something awful, and when I scratched, it caused the trouble to spread. My arms and limbs were covered with sore eruptions. Whenever my clothing rubbed it, it would burn like fire. I could not do any work.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment and sent for a free sample. I purchased one cake of Soap and one box of Ointment and within a month I was healed." (Signed) F. W. Simmons, Tawatinaw, Alta., Oct. 4, 1926.

HIS LIFE HUNG ON PUNCTUATION

NEWARK, N. J., Feb. 24.—A tiny punctuation mark in a transcript of a jury's verdict was the deciding factor between life and death for Salvatore Merra, convicted of murder. His counsel contended in an appeal to the Supreme Court that a punctuation mark in the verdict was a comma instead of a semi-colon. A comma would have made the verdict call for life imprisonment. The judge announced, however, that the transcript made by the court stenographer was neither a comma nor a semi-colon, but a period, showing that the jury meant for Merra to die.

HOUSE BURNED NEAR BETHANY

John Mealham, of Lifford, Loses Residence During Storm.

OLD POST OFFICE.

BETHANY, Feb. 24. — On Sunday evening between five and six o'clock, the residence of Jack Mealham, at Lifford, six miles north west of this village, was burned to the ground.

Mr. Mealham, who was unmarried, and lived alone, was at the stable doing his evening chores. Upon returning to the house he discovered that the place was full of smoke and that the stove pipes had parted. A fire was burning in the stove at the time. The house caught fire and although the neighbours gathered as quickly as the raging snow storm would allow, it was impossible to save the place. Some pieces of furniture were removed. The loss is estimated around $800 which was partly covered by insurance.

The house, which was a small frame structure, was an old Lifford land mark, being the Lifford post office in the years before the rural mail route started and was owned by Miss Jane Fowler, now deceased, who was postmistress, as was her father postmaster before her.

The Kruschen "dimeful" every day Will help you keep the 'flu away.

A-tish-oo!

Don't be afraid to sneeze.

Sneezing is one of nature's ways of getting rid of germs that find their way into the recesses of your nose, mouth, and throat. There they generate poisons which they distribute (by means of the body's common carrier, the blood) to other parts of your anatomy. It then depends upon the condition of your blood whether or not the poison finds out your weak spot, and an attack of 'flu, a twinge of gout, or a sharp touch of rheumatism, lumbago, or sciatica be the painful and disabling consequence.

Your First Line of Defence

If your blood be pure and virile there is not a germ in all bacteriology that has the power to harm you.

The Kruschen habit is your first line of defence against disease germs, because it enables nature to maintain a rich supply of pure and virile blood. The body's organs of elimination all work better and more regularly under the daily reminder of the Kruschen habit, and with these organs working well and regularly the purity and virility of the blood are ensured.

Kruschen Salts is a natural aperient and diuretic tonic — not a medicine but an "aid to Nature" in eliminating from the system waste material which poison and debilitates the blood.

Take as much Kruschen Salts as will lie on a 10-cent piece every morning in your breakfast cup of coffee or tea. This is your first safeguard against epidemics, etc., such as influenza — and the indispensable condition precedent to their successful treatment.

Tasteless in Coffee or Tea

Put as much in your breakfast cup as will lie on a 10 cent piece. It's the little daily dimeful that does it.

Kruschen Salts

Good Health for Half a Cent a Day

The dose of a dimeful taken every morning is found in practice just the right amount of a most invigorating daily tonic. The medicinal dose for persons suffering from pains of rheumatism, gout, lumbago or sciatica, or habitual constipation, with inactive liver, etc., is half to one teaspoonful in a tumbler of hot water before breakfast. Every druggist sells Kruschen. A 75c bottle lasts three months. This works out at half-a-cent a day for health and happiness. Get a bottle at your druggist's to-day and start to-morrow. It's the little daily dimeful that does it!

The 4 most important hours

When food must satisfy and "stand by" you

Most people have to do more than two-thirds of their most important work in the forenoon. To supply this energy, they need a breakfast that satisfies and will "stand by" them throughout the morning.

That is why health authorities urge good breakfasts—why the matchless flavour of Quaker Oats makes it the breakfast of millions of people. Its delicious taste awakens lazy appetites and thus promotes easy digestion. Its bulk and tender bran assist in the assimilation of other food and aid in one of nature's most important functions.

Quaker Oats is the most perfect of all cereal foods. It supplies the elements which build tissue and give energy, as well as the important vitamines and mineral salts. It contains 16% protein and 65% carbohydrates.

For better mornings, have Quaker Oats for breakfast. No other is "just as good", for no other has 50 years' experience in grain selection and milling behind it. See that the picture of the friendly Quaker is on the package.

Better than a mustard plaster

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

After the coroner had failed to break down Cherry's story in even a minor point, a dozen witnesses were examined in rapid succession.

The servants had nothing of importance to tell, or, if they had, they did not tell it. Their examination was a matter of form, and, disposed of as rapidly as possible. It was nearly one o'clock when Chris Wiley's name was called, and the audience and jury were becoming restive under the pangs of hunger.

"Guess we'd better save you until after lunch, Mr. Wiley," Dr. Murchison announced when Chris was about to be sworn. "Hearing will be resumed at two o'clock, which will give us all a chance to get a bite of lunch."

Cherry and her husband were taken by Farrel and Boyle, in plain clothes, to a downtown restaurant while Faith and her father and Bob followed in Bob's car.

"The thing we've got to face," Bob told Faith and her father, when their orders had been given, "is that circumstances are against Cherry. Her testimony makes it absurd to suspect Wiley—"

"But his car was within a few feet of the place where you saw those peculiar footprints," Faith cut in eagerly. "Cherry testified, and the testimony of the officers corroborate her, that Chris parked his car within a few feet of the porte cochere, which starts just past Mr. Cluny's bedroom window. His car must have been right by that terrace below the window."

"But he couldn't possibly have gotten out of the car, climbed up the pillars of the porte cochere, leaped to the drain pipe, climbed to the window and got the vase and killed Uncle Ralph while Cherry was speeding down the stairs. Besides, he had no motive—none in the world. That is, if Cherry is telling the truth," he lapsed into heavy-eyed brooding.

"He did have a motive," Faith whispered, with an anxious look about her. "If Cherry ever told him about Mr. Cluny's will—"

"His will! Good Lord! I'd forgotten all about that!" Bob whistled. "Just what were the terms of that will? Did Cherry tell you?"

"Only what I told you before" Faith leaned closer to him across the table. "Dad knows about it—Cherry told him, to prove how generous your uncle was."

"She'll never touch a penny of his money!" Jim Lane struck the table sharply. "Money! Money! I wish to God she'd never met a rich man in her life!"

"He was Bob's uncle, Dad, and he loved Cherry. He thought only of making her happy. He knew he was old, and he drafted a will weeks ago, a temporary will, just in case anything happened to him. I imagine he left her at least a hundred thousand dollars."

"A hundred thousand! Uncle Ralph was worth at least three millions, and I know he was sore at his children for the way they had opposed his marriage. I believe he would have left them the minimum; that would have kept them from contesting the will. I'll wager that will leaves her a million, at least. But what has that got to do with Wiley?" Bob demanded.

"Don't you see?" Faith frowned at his density. "If he were planning to marry Cherry, as we know he was, and if he knew about that will, he might be tempted beyond his strength—and kill Mr. Cluny on the impulse of the moment, to secure the money for Cherry, and consequently for himself."

Bob shook his head. "I don't believe Cherry would have been foolish enough to tell him or that Chris would have stuck his head into the noose, with no more motive than that. No, Faith, I believe it's a bigger mystery than that. I don't believe Chris Wiley killed him."

"Dad, you're not eating! You'll be sick, honey. You look dreadful now. And for mother's sake, you must keep up. We'll both go to see her after the inquest is over, and she mustn't suspect anything."

"Looks to me like you two youngsters are forgetting something," Jim Lane said heavily. "If they get hold of that will business at the inquest, it will furnish them with a motive against Cherry. God have mercy on us if that story gets out."

"Don't, Dad," Faith pleaded. "Besides, the story can't get out until the will is probated, can it, Bob?"

"Don't see how it can," Bob avoided her eyes and spoke with false confidence. "Anyhow, Cherry's got the coroner eating out of her hand, and every man on the jury is convinced she's the cutest and sweetest little thing that ever ran away to get married to a worthless scamp."

"You don't think Cherry'll be mentioned in the coroner's report, then?" Faith's voice quivered with joy.

"No, I don't," Bob reassured her stoutly. "If they don't hear about this will business, they won't be able to pin a motive on her. And she hasn't tried to lie about being there or the time she was there. She's freely admitted everything, even when it has been against her. That will have weight with the jury, I tell you. They'll think she has nothing to hide—and she hasn't."

"But Bob, everybody's wondering the same thing—if Cherry didn't do it, who did? There's not a shred of evidence to connect anyone else with the crime, and there's the time element, too. There literally wasn't time for anyone else to do it. You arrived within five minutes after Cherry had left. You didn't touch him, did you?"

"No. I testified that I didn't. I saw at once that he was dead. Of course Dr. Paxton made exhaustive tests when he got there. But it's pretty sure that he was struck down as soon as Cherry left the room—by someone lying in wait to do it, by someone who knew that Cherry would be accused."

"That's what I've been saying to myself over and over," Faith gasped. "But who, who? The man who made those queer footprints, or someone concealed in the house? Robbery was not the motive. Not a thing was touched."

When the inquest was resumed Chris Wiley took the witness chair. After preliminary questions, and after Chris had been allowed to tell his story of the elopement, an account which corroborated Cherry's story in all essential details, the coroner asked:

"Now, Mr. Wiley, while you were waiting for Miss Lane, who is now Mrs. Wiley, did you get out of your car?" It was a crucial question; it pointed directly toward Chris Wiley as a possible suspect, and every person in the room strained forward in eagerness to hear the answer.

"I did not get out of my car," Chris Wiley answered firmly.

"Did you see anyone during your wait, either entering the house, by any means whatever, or did you see anyone on the lawn?"

"I did not."

"Did you see Mr. Cluny through the open window of his room?"

"I did not."

"Did you ever quarrel with Mr. Cluny about Miss Cherry Lane or about anything else?"

"I did not. I made no effort whatever to dissuade him from marrying Miss Lane. I concentrated my efforts on her," Chris Wiley smiled slightly.

"That is all, Mr. Wiley, for the present. Call Mr. Charles Reilly Neff."

"Oh, Bob!" Faith whispered in an agony of dread. "He drew up Mr. Cluny's will! Will he tell, Bob? Will he tell?"

To-morrow: A motive for murder is pinned on Cherry.

It is evidently anticipated that Eve's "permanent wave" will be a permanent feature of her "crowning glory," for inventors have been busy designing "waving" apparatus. One new device dispenses with electrical heat. The hair on my lady's head is divided into squares, and the hair in each square is wound round a special curler. The curlers are inserted into heaters, made hot by steam generated by a small spool within them. This moist steam is quite harmless, and the resultant "wave" most alluring.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

This compose frock of two shades of green has a novel box-pleated skirt made of the darker shade of green with the lighter material showing between the pleats.

In the present age of fashion, buttons play an almost entirely ornamental role. Few coats actually button up. At most, there is a single button at the low waistline that does the trick of holding the coat in position. Sometimes there is an actual buttonhole but more often a soft loop of the material holds the right side of the coat to the button placed at the left. Many of the new spring coats make no pretense whatever at fastening, but hang straight down from the shoulders with the obvious intent of showing the frock beneath. A belt around the low waistline frequently holds the coat in place by means of an ornamental belt buckle.

Tailored jackets which are spoken of as among the smart things for spring, do have buttons placed in the conventional manner. There is usually a double-breasted rather low closing with two buttonholes and two purely ornamental buttons at the opposite side of the front. But frocks almost never depend on buttons to effect a closing and buttons are almost unknown to the maker of up-to-date lingerie.

So it is a very natural thing nowadays to go to the trimming counter in search of buttons, for most buttons are ornamental and nothing more. Bright-colored bone or composition buttons are often used in rows to give the needed note of color—sometimes in distinct contrast to the color of the frock, but more often a deeper shade of the color of which the frock is made. Thus many of the new flannel frocks in pastel shades have quite deep-colored buttons arranged at the front on the cuffs, the belt and on the pockets. Sometimes a row of these bright buttons is to be found at the back of the frock also.

Pairs of ornamental buttons are sometimes made into cuff links by means of a silk cord to form the link between. These may be placed in a pair of buttonholes at the wrist of a closely fitting sleeve. Sometimes a pair of such buttons linked with silk is placed at the neck to hold the collar together. From every indication buttons are to play an important role this spring, and if you happen to have some fine old buttons in your button box now is an excellent time to bring them to light. They may be just what you want to use on the little tailored jacket, or if there are four of them you may choose to make them into cuff links.

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

FRIDAY, FEBRUARY, 25, 1927.

Astrologers read this as a most unfavorable day for most important business matters and especially for financial deals of any sort.

Again the planetary government appears to menace whatever is connected with the past, so far as customs, points of view and codes of business are concerned.

Older persons may find this direction of the stars exceedingly trying to them, thwarting their best efforts and causing severe disappointments.

This is not a fortunate sway for real estate transactions or for mining enterprises, although later there is to be extraordinary activity in both.

It is well to postpone any sort of initiative in business, for the rule of the stars appears to indicate many unexpected difficulties.

While in foreign lands there may be much excitement over financial matters and sudden fluctuations in the stock markets the United States is to prosper greatly, it is foretold.

This is not an auspicious rule of the planets under which to invest in stocks and bonds.

All the indications appear to point to great profits in America through thrift and the elimination of waste.

There is a sign read as presaging national movements toward the conservation of resources and the wise administration of income.

The last week in this month has been designated by astrologers as especially threatening to Wales and Scotland where there may be many industrial accidents.

Uranus is believed to afflict Turkey and to threaten many internal as well as external troubles.

Neptune in evil sway appears to forecast "strange developments in governments upon the continent, great upheavals taking place."

Persons whose birthdate it is should be very careful regarding the investments they make.

Children born on this day may be too sensitive to public opinion, but able to win success through their talents. They may lack proper self confidence, however.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

By Mrs. S. L. Terrill, Wooler.

Say forty or fifty years ago, the obsession for indiscriminate decoration of everything was subsiding; there were not so many "flying little bits" of blue china on the walls, fence plaques, painted milking stools, wooden spoons, suspended by ridiculous ribbons, one ran less risk of dislodging a badly decorated drain-pipe posing as an umbrella stand, or upsetting a piece of clumsy pottery filled with sprawling peacock feathers "Art colors" as though implying that nature's colors were normally drab and dingy. And yet in certain drawing-rooms one still encountered some of the worst mid-Victorian features—gilt chairs, S-shaped seats, fringed crewel work, mantel hangings, ornate cabinets, surmounted by portentous mirrors, rickety whatnots, and tables which fell over if you looked at them, populated with menageries of minute china animals. Then the black horsehair covered chairs.

Dining rooms, contained massive mahogany sideboards, chairs very large, huge mirrors with gilt frames, above mantle-pieces where a marble clock reigned over orthodox ornaments.

Upstairs, things were equally transitional; dark mahogany suites, with muslin flounces and pink glaced calico.

Now—the dearth of domestic help has enlarged the number of labor-saving appliances and decreased the nick-nacks and fussy ornaments. The whole trend and impulse of our time is towards simplicity, economy, compactness and utility, combined with beauty. The difficulty of washing days at home, are met by the ample choice of curtains, chair covers, etc., in reversible or unfadeable materials; delightful to the eye, and likely to last a long time clean.

Sanitary ideas has expelled the great carpets which used to touch the walls; and we employ hard-wood floors, polished, and dusted with a floor brush.

Distempered walls are preferred to papered ones.

Admirable aluminum utensils are substituted for the heavy old iron pots and pans. Carpet sweepers and such-like aids, as electricity supplied us, not only with lighting, but helps for making cleanliness and for saving of time and labor.

Feather beds are regarded as a joke; light-weight bedspreads and charming down quilts have displaced the unwholesome old counterpanes of crotchet, and knit, which were heavy but not warm. Vallances have vanished. Single beds occupy less space and are infinitely healthier than double ones. Dining room furniture is very plain.

People may express themselves in their surroundings just as they please, and the house takes on the character of its inhabitants.

Taste and appreciation are on the up-grade and demand has created supply.

Altogether one thankfully acknowledges changes which are almost entirely for the better; it is not invariably so. I am not one of those complacent persons who fold their hands in purring satisfaction with the present; but I really do believe that beauty, simplicity, and health were never combined for domestic usages to better purpose than now—in nineteen-twenty seven.

GARNET WHEAT MEANS MILLIONS

Land Now Unsuitable Will Produce New Cereal.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24. Canadian Press. — A gain of millions of dollars to western wheat growers, with an extension of the wheat line farther north than ever before, and the possible cultivation of million of acres in certain districts through the discovery of Garnet wheat, is forecast in a bulletin on Garnet wheat, which has just been issued by L. H. Newman, chief Dominion cerealist.

The bulletin shows that Garnet will ripen from five to ten days earlier than even Marquis wheat, which means that the area on which wheat is grown will be extended very much farther north than ever before, and consequently many millions of acres more will be able to be cultivated.

MAJOR STEPHENS RESIGNS PRESIDENCY

LONDON, Feb. 24. — The sudden and unexpected resignation of Major George Washington Stephens of Montreal, from the presidency of the Saar governing commission is causing the greatest difficulty to League of Nations officials at Geneva, where the perplexing question of his successor has yet to be settled.

Major Stephens who according to the Daily Telegraph, "has earned a sterling opinion in every unprejudiced capital," will be a most difficult man to replace. The Germans are urging the appointment of a German - speaking president, the French are in favor of a Czecho-Slovakian, who of course would be a French nominee, while the British are of the opinion that Stephens' successor should be British, owing to the fact that Rault, . . . major's French predecessor, held the post for six years as compared to his one. It is understood that Major Stephens regarded the presidency of the commission as a thankless position because of the difficulty of maintaining an equal balance between the French and German members.

All Grains Lose Ground With Favorable Weather

CHICAGO, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—With corn and oats to-day touching new low prices for the season, wheat underwent an early setback. Favorable weather for growing the domestic winter wheat crop also was a bearish factor. Opening unchanged to ¼ cent off, wheat suffered a decline with July down 1 3-4 cent. Corn started unchanged to 3-4 cent lower, and subsequently showed more than 1 cent drop in some cases. Provisions were firmer.

Opening prices were: Wheat, May 130⅛, July 132 7-8. Corn, May 75 5-8, July 80¼. Oats, May 43 7-8, July 44 3-8.

Mine Stocks Recover From Recent Low Levels

TORONTO, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—A good recovery from the lower price levels of the past few days was evidenced on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, when trading was lighter in volume but stocks tended to move higher. McIntyre, Nipissing, and Teck Hughes all advanced substantially. McIntyre went up 21 cents at 26.95 and Nipissing advanced 13 at 9.58 while Teck Hughes climbed 15 cents to 6.50. Amulet also mover sharply upward, selling eight highter at 133 and Argonaut at 37 was a point higher. Laval Quebec eased slightly to 37 3-4.

Prices Move Irregularly On Resistance To Rise

NEW YORK, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press).—Operators for the rise encountered stiffer resistance in today's stock market, with the result that the price movement disclosed market irregularity.

United States Steel Common led a score of issues to new high ground, but did not succeed in breaking through its opening high of 162 3-8 in the first few hours of trading. Other issues to get into new high grounds were Corn Products Refining, Texas Gulf Sulphur, Freeport Texas, Westinghouse Airbrake, Philadelphia Company, Hudson and Manhattan, Bush Terminal, and Safety Cable. General Motors touched a new high for the year at 161.

Selling pressure was most effective against such issues as South Porto Rican Sugar, Loose Wiles Biscuit, Wilson Company Preferred, Coca-Cola, Montana Power, Burns Bros. "A", International Harvester, and Loew's, all off two to three points.

Distillery Stocks Share In General Heavy Activity

TORONTO, Feb. 24 (Canadian Press)—Unlisted Distillery stocks and the general list shared in the comparatively heavy trading on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning and a large number of moderately good gains were noted. British Columbia Fishing and Dominion Stores were the strongest spots on the list, Fishing closing at noon 1 1-4 points higher at 92 1-4 and Stores gaining 3 1-4 points at 74 1-4. Canadian Canners at 29 3-4 and Cosmos at 17 were each more than point higher and Gooderham and Worts, strongest of the distillery stocks, climbed 1 1-2 to 56 3-4. Seagram firmed 5-8 at 24 7-8 in heavy trading but Hiram Walker eased a quarter at 40 1-4. Another easier stock was Brazilian, which sold down a point at 119 3-4.

DUNSTAN RE-ELECTED.

OTTAWA, Feb. 24. (Canadian Press).—K. J. Dunstan, Toronto, was re-elected Grand First Principal of the Grand Chapter, Royal Arch Masons of Canada, here to-day. E. Smith, London, was elected Grand Second Principal and W. G. Price, Port Credit, Grand Third Principal.

CAMPAIGN OPENS AT TABERNACLE

Rev. E. B. Fitch, of Ottawa, Preaches on "Gateway Into Heaven."

"I have confidence enough in the Bible, the Word of God, to believe that if any person will believe it they will be saved," Rev. E. B. Fitch, the evangelist from Ottawa, said last evening in the first meeting of the evangelistic campaign, now being held in Bethany Tabernacle, Mr. Fitch put himself on record that he believed the Bible from cover to cover to be the word of God.

The subject of the message last evening was, "The Gateway Into Heaven," and the speaker spoke on it from three points. The need men are dead in sins, because they are born so. Man's greatest need is to be saved through Jesus. Meaning of salvation. Jesus dying on the cross is the only means of man's salvation. When he accepts that death old things pass away and all things become new. How produced. The speaker very simply showed from the Old Testament account of Moses lifting up the brazen serpent in the wilderness, that by looking and believing, the unfortunate Israelites were saved from snake bites, so also, by simply looking on faith to Jesus the uplifted man all can be saved from the sting of sin and death.

The chorus, under the leadership of Mr. Fitch, by its singing, added greatly to the meeting. There were nearly thirty on one end of the platform last evening. The chorus will increase as the meetings progress. An orchestra of twelve gave splendid help in the music of the services. The orchestra will play each evening from 7.45 to 8.00.

Mrs. Fitch presided at the piano and sang a beautiful solo, accompanied by Mrs. E. V. Warne. Mrs. Fitch speaks each afternoon at 3 o'clock.

The services begin each evening at 7.45 with the orchestra playing and the song services begin at 8.

There will be a half hour prayer meeting in the Sunday school room each evening beginning at 7.30.

Everyone is urged to attend.

STOMACH DISTRESS.

A Signal That the Blood is Thin and Watery.

A distinguished medical authority has said, "When a man's stomach goes wrong, he starts on the down grade." Indigestion and other forms of stomach trouble produce depression, often actual pain, and lead to a breakdown in health.

Probably the commonest cause of indigestion is weak, impoverished blood. If the blood loses its tone the action of the digestive organs is upset. Eating is generally followed by keen distress, flatulence and sourness, — palpitation and pain around the heart are often present. By rebuilding the blood you restore the normal activity of the disturbed organ and so banish the cause of indigestion.

To build up the blood there is nothing can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They actually increase the blood supply, making it rich and red. In this way they increase the appetite, strengthen the nerves, put color in the cheeks and drive away the feeling of weariness and depression.

You are not experimenting when you take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have proved their value in thousands of cases, some of them, perhaps, among your neighbors. They can do nothing but good. All medicine dealers sell these pills, or you can get them by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A little book, "What to Eat and How to Eat," will be sent free on request. It contains much useful information. Address The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CANADIAN FARMER TELLS HIS EXPERIENCE

"Les" Booth, Widely Known Ontario Farmer, and a Sick Man For 20 Years, Suffered Daily, Only Half Alive. Now Strong, Robust, Vigorous, Credits New Found Health To Tanlac.

Though popularly known as "Les", Mr. Booth's correct first name is George. His home is at 271 Perth St., Brockville. For the past three years he has enjoyed vigorous health but what he endured before then is best told in his own word. "For twenty years my arms, shoulders, back and hips, ached with rheumatism," said Mr. Booth. "Often I had to quit work entirely and I remember one bad spell that kept me in bed for six months.

"My case got to be so chronic that the help ran the farm. I was practically helpless. Even my wrists and hands would swell up so that I couldn't write my name. I dreaded bedtime, for I got no rest, but lay there in agony, waiting for morning. Nervous spells would seize me and I would tremble all over like a leaf. I couldn't get any benefit from my food and had to force myself to eat. My weight was far below normal.

"Three years ago I decided to give Tanlac a good trial, for nothing else had helped me. I could scarcely believe such results were possible as those Tanlac soon showed. The aching stopped, my appetite came back and I could eat heartily. My nights became more restful, too, and I slept soundly. I gained 16 pounds which I still retain, and I now work hard outdoors from 8 to 10 hours a day. I never have an ache. It's hardly believable! If folks want to know what Tanlac can do, tell them to write to Les Booth, or to come and see me. I'll tell e'm."

If your health is broken from overwork or neglect, profit from Mr. Booth's experience. Try Tanlac, nature's own body builder, made from roots, herbs and barks. Your druggist has it. Over 52 million bottles sold.

SPECIAL MEETINGS FOR YOUNG PEOPLE

Series of Services To Be Conducted By Staff Captain Ritchie.

A Young People's week-end series of services has been planned by Adjutant Frank Ham and the Young People's workers of the Salvation Army Temple. Fifteen meetings and sectional gatherings comprise the programme awaiting Staff Captain J. Ritchie, the Divisional Young People's Secretary of Toronto, who will conduct the services.

The outstanding events in the public gatherings will commence with the Saturday night service in the Simcoe street Temple. Staff Captain Ritchie will give a lantern lecture and the two subjects for this service will be a short picture sermon entitled, "Looking in the face of the Christ," in the second section of the meeting the "Story of the Fourth Wise Man," will be presented.

The Sunday afternoon family gathering, a largely attended meeting, will take the form of a programme of musical items. The senior musical combinations and the Young People's Band will play and the newly formed Young People's singing company will make its first public appearance. The staff-captain will commission the Young People's local officers for the year 1927 and will also enroll a number of junior soldiers.

Prior to the usual Sunday evening service, the staff captain will meet the corps cadet brigade and will immediately afterwards conduct a Young People's meeting at 6 p.m.

On Monday night, nearly every section of the Young People's work will be represented by various items of interest in the program arranged for the Young People's demonstration.

The Sunday schools at Brownton and Aylmer will be inspected and addressed by the Staff-Captain and Adjutant Ham.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bed time Story.

By Howard R. Garis

UNCLE WIGGILY AND THE RAIN TREE

Copyright, 1927, by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

(By Howard R. Garis.)

"Where is that thing I take pictures with?" asked Uncle Wiggily of his rabbit lady wife one morning after the little play in the Hollow Stump school, where Baby Bunty had taken the part of a Fairy Princess.

"Do you mean your camera?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy who was tying a rag on the end of her tail to use as a dusting brush.

"That's it—my camera!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggily. "I am going out and take some pictures of the ice trees. They are beautiful!"

As I told you in the story last night, Jack Frost froze a lot of rain on every tree, shrub and bush of Woodland so that each tiny twig as well as even the large branches seemed to be encased in jewels of ice. Some of these twigs had been used to decorate Baby Bunty and the other little rabbit girls in the school play. The ice-covered twigs looked like diamonds, rubies, sapphires and emeralds.

"Yes, I shall take some beautiful pictures of the ice trees," said Uncle Wiggily as he hopped from his hollow stump bungalow with his snapshot camera. The ice was still on the trees, for the sun had not been warm enough, since the day before, to melt the covering that Jack Frost had fastened on.

"May I come with you?" asked Scooter a little boy rabbit who did not have to go to school that day on account of knowing his lessons so well the day before.

"Come along," invited Uncle Wiggily, and the two rabbits hopped along, now and then taking long slides, for the ground was covered with frozen rain, just as were the trees and bushes.

Uncle Wiggily took a number of beautiful pictures with his camera. And in some of the pictures of the icy trees he let Scooter stand near them so the little rabbit boy had his picture taken also. Then Uncle Wiggily, taking Scooter by the paw, quickly hopped beneath a large oak tree which was so covered with ice on its twigs and branches that it looked as if made from crystal candy.

"What are you standing under this tree for, Daddicums?" asked Scooter of the rabbit gentleman.

"Hush! Don't speak so loudly!" warned Uncle Wiggily. "The Bob Cat is over there, slinking along under the bushes. He hasn't seen us yet, though I saw him. And I thought if we hid beneath this tree he would not know we were here and then he wouldn't try to nibble my ears."

"Oh, I hope he goes away!" murmured Scooter, putting his paws up to his ears. But it was a vain hope. All of a sudden the Bob Cat, who was slithering along on the ice, spied the two rabbits beneath the icy tree and came toward them.

"I see you!" gurgled the Bad Chap. "I am coming to get you!"

"Oh, please let me alone just this once!" begged Uncle Wiggily. "Look around at this beautiful scene," he went on, waving a paw toward the trees covered with frozen crystals. "It is like Fairyland! Doesn't such a sight as this make you feel wonderful inside?"

"All I feel inside me," snarled the Bob Cat, "is hunger. And your ears look very good to me. I'd rather look at your ears than at all the fairy trees in the world!"

"Alas! You are hopeless!" sadly sighed the bunny gentleman. "You have no soul for beauty!"

"But I have good eyes for your ears!" sneered the Bob Cat. He was slinking up to catch Uncle Wiggily, when, all of the sudden, the hot sun, which had been hidden beneath the clouds, came out and it was so warm that it began to melt the ice from the tree beneath which stood the two rabbits and the Bob Cat. Instead of being an ice tree it became a rain tree for the sun melted the ice on the branches into dripping rain. Down showered the drops on Uncle Wiggily and on Scooter and the Bob Cat.

The two rabbits didn't mind being wet, but the Bob Cat hated water. And he didn't know what was making the rain, being a stupid Bad Chap.

"I'm afraid there is magic here!" he snarled, shivering with fear. "There is no cloud in the sky, the sun is shining, yet it is dripping rain. I must hurry home after my umbrella and then I'll nibble your ears. Wait here for me!"

Away ran the Bob Cat, but did Uncle Wiggily and Scooter wait? Indeed they didn't! They hurried home too beneath dripping rain trees and bushes — rain caused by the sun melting the ice. But the Bob Cat, with his silly little tail, didn't know this. So the rabbit's ears were saved.

BAD STOMACH MADE HER ARMS YELLOW

"I had indigestion so bad that my hands and arms turned yellow, and if it had not been for Adlerika, I think I should have died. There is nothing better for indigestion."—Mrs. Mary Hannaford.

Adlerika gives the system a REAL cleansing and brings out old poisons which may have caused trouble for a long time. Unlike most medicines, its acts upon BOTH upper and lower bowel. Just one spoonful relieves GAS and takes away that full, bloated feeling so that you can eat better and sleep better. Even if bowels move daily, Adlerika brings out much additional poison which you never thought was in your system and which caused sour, gassy stomach, nervousness, sleeplessness, headache. No matter what you have tried for your stomach and bowels, Adlerika will surprise you. At leading druggists. In Peterboro at McDermid & Jury and other druggists.

SHORT STORY

GRIDDLE CAKES WIN

By A. W. Peach.

Bob looked at her with troubled eyes. "Well, it's come, Ellen." He twirled a letter in his hand.

She smiled at his gloomy face. "What has?"

He shook the letter. "Remember, I told you—when you marry me, you take Dad in the bargain; and, believe me, he is a fearful old crab."

"Why, dear, what a way to talk of your father!" she said a bit shocked.

"But that's what he is! I love him in spite of it, but I hate to tangle you up with him. He wants me to bring you out to the house, probably to decide whether you will make a fit wife for me or not. It's none of his business, but it's very much his way. Now, will you go? It's a big old gloomy house. Dad has lived there with old Ma Burton, his housekeeper, ever since mother's death. I hate to take you, yet I don't want to offend him. How do you feel about it."

"Why, of course, I'll go," she said laughing. "I'll beard the lion in his den if necessary but, Bob, I don't believe he is half as bad as you make out!"

"Huh!" he grunted a bit impolitely. "He led mother a wild dance, and he'll lead us one. You wait and see."

Ellen in the days following before their departure had her moments of serious doubt and worry. Suppose Bob's father should take a dislike to her? it would mean unhappiness for all of them. Ellen knew that the question of holding his father's favor in order to make sure of his father's property was not a main motive with Bob; he was independent of spirit and working hard, and she had grown up in a family where all had taken hold to make a home. The real reason for Bob's worry was his fear that the father he really loved would not care for the girl he loved.

"Well, there's nothing to do but go and be myself," Ellen advised herself. "If he's going to do any dancing, I'll dance with him."

It was a pleasant trip to the old village where Mr. Oakes had made his home; and Ellen, in spite of a bit of fear that broke through her happiness, enjoyed the journey. The blonde six-footer at her side always brought to her a sense of contentment and comfort, and all the miles and all the hours with him were happy ones.

When, hours later and a little weary, she came to the house set far back from the village street, it did look a bit dark and forbidding.

"Joyous looking place, isn't it? While mother was alive she made him have it painted, but now—nothing doing!" Bob said.

When they reached the door, it opened, and Ellen caught her breath, for the gray-headed man who appeared in it was bigger than Bob, and she had often felt that Bob was big enough.

"Well, here you are! Come in!" Mr. Oakes said shortly in a heavy voice.

Bob introduced her, and she looked far up into cold, commanding eyes in which there was no light of cordiality. Ellen shivered inside.

Then a quaint, kindly old lady advanced, and Ellen met "ma," Burton as Bob called her.

Then began a series of discoveries for Ellen. The house was in fearful shape—dusty in every corner; and the supper that night ill-prepared from the standards, at least, that had been set all her life for Ellen by her mother.

"Well," can you stand it?" Bob asked her later, when he had lured her out into the quiet village dusk for a stroll.

"I am not afraid of your father, dear, but what a looking house!"

He chuckled. "Right, but 'ma' is easy-going. It did not look that way when mother was alive. He's growing old, you know, and well, may be something went out of him when mother died."

"Mrs. Burton told me while we were gossiping that one of her sisters was very ill. Can't you fix it so she can get away and give me a chance at that house?"

He drew a long breath, his quick mind sensing her plan. "She'll go if I have to abduct her!"

How Bob worked it Ellen did not know, but the next day, not without some misgivings, she took charge. Bob enticed his father away to visit some distant property belonging to him, and Ellen "pitched in."

It was dusk before Bob and his father returned, but by that time she had the principal rooms in shape and supper prepared—with a bountiful supply of griddle-cakes which "ma" had said Mr. Oakes loved but which she did not have the knack of making to suit him.

She heard them in the living-room, then some one went into the library, then into the den on what was, she imagined a tour of inspection.

"Pooh! why be nervous?" she warned herself. "If it doesn't seem like home to him, it does to me; and the old house needed it."

When she called them to the supper, Mr. Oakes entered first, his strong old face showing no emotion and Bob, behind him, looked anxious though he winked at her.

When the griddle-cakes appeared, Mr. Oakes eyed them sourly as if with memories of griddle-cakes of the past. He tried one doubtfully, then another, and the scowl went—as did the cakes.

The climax came so quickly it took Ellen's breath. Mr. Oakes lifted his gray head, and he was smiling. "Now, you young fellow, let's talk things over. When are you going to be married?"

The text in the book reproduced above is from "History of North Atlantic Steam Navigation," by Henry Fry, published by Sampson, Low, Marsden & Co., London, 1896.

As early as 1833, Quebec built and sent out the first Atlantic steamship, the Royal William, which reached London from Quebec in twenty-five days. This was four years before any other ship succeeded in equalling this feat.

The men of the Maritimes had already won a reputation for good seamanship with their sailing vessels, and Montreal and Three Rivers had contributed their share of adventure on the sea.

The Allans, in the meantime, had established a trade between Glasgow, Liverpool, London and Montreal; and in 1852 built the steamships Canadian and Indian, of about 1700 tons gross, with engines of 350 h.p.

At the time of Confederation, the Allan Line, now incorporated in the Canadian Pacific Steamships, was running a regular and dependable service from Montreal and Quebec to the Old Country, and was the popular Canadian line of its time. The Scandinavian, pictured above, typical of the ships of that period, was built in 1870, of over 3000 tons, with 500 h.p. engines.

Such, in brief, were the beginnings of a trade which, through Canadian foresight and enterprise, now spans the world. Canada's reputation for fine seamanship has been maintained and enhanced by the Canadian Pacific, with its fleet of ocean and coastal steamships totalling 410,644 tons. The Empresses of the Atlantic and of the Pacific have become synonymous with safety, comfort and speed. On their Winter Cruises to various parts of the world, whole shiploads of passengers find them a delightful home for months at a time.

POWERFUL, PENETRATING ANTISEPTIC OIL HEALS ECZEMA AND OTHER SKIN DISEASES

Must Give Results in 7 Days or Money Back, Say's Bond's Drug Store, Who Will Gladly Return the Purchase Price If It Doesn't Help You.

Make up your mind today that you are going to give your skin a real chance to get well.

You've probably been like a lot of other people convinced that the only thing to use was an ointment or salve (some of them are very good) but in the big majority of cases these sticky salves simply clog the pores and the condition primarily remains the same.

Go to Bond's Drug Store or any other good druggist today and get and original bottle of Moone's Emerald Oil.

The very first application will give you relief and a few short treatments will thoroughly convince you that by sticking faithfully to it for a short while your skin troubles will be a thing of the past.

Don't expect a single bottle to do it all at once but one bottle we know will show you beyond all question that you have at last discovered the way to restore your skin to perfect health.

Remember that Moone's Emerald Oil is a clean, powerful, penetrating Antiseptic Oil that does not stain or leave a greasy residue and that it must give complet satisfaction or your money cheerfully refunded.

A LOVELY LIVING-ROOM

(By L. H. G.)

It was the cosiest, most cheerful and prettiest living-room, for a farm home, that I have ever seen. Its owner was a woman, having lived for many years in an old, ugly house, had planned her new home with great care.

It was a bungalow type, downstairs, just two large rooms, dining- and living-rooms, with a small lean-to kitchen. I was taken on a trip of inspection through the house. Every room was convenient, cosy and tastefully decorated. But it was the living-room which made the greatest appeal, so I shall try to describe it.

It comprised the entire southern half of the house and measured, perhaps, twenty by fourteen, in the centre of the south wall was a triple window, which extended a couple of feet past the rest of the wall, thus forming a little alcove which was used for flowers. On a bench or table, extending right across the window about eight feet, were some wonderful flowers. One particular specimen was a Christmas cactus with thirty-three blooms. It made a picture never to be forgotten by a flower lover. All the flowers were thrifty and luxuriant, the splendid southern exposure being ideal for them.

On the west end of the room was a fireplace, which would be a cheery spot in winter. On the mantel above stood a clock and a couple of bright glass vases. The north side of the room was partly taken up with folding doors leading to the dining-room. At the east end was a double or twin window, and near the wall was a davenport, which could be used for a bed when another room was needed for guests, or when there was illness in the home.

The walls were painted a deep, creamy yellow, the paint used being, of course, the flat paint. The woodwork was fir, which has such a beautiful natural grain. It was finished in golden tones. The floor was oak and highly polished.

There was a built-in bookcase with quite a number of volumes. The curtains were of bright yellow and grey tones with a splash of pink (a large rose) here and there. A writing-desk occupied one corner and there were big, comfy armchairs and rockers, mostly done in leather, for in a farm home something not easily soiled must be used, for this room was used every hour of the day by the family, not merely used when company came. My hostess told me that she had obtained a floor varnish which showed no marks of the rough farm boots of her husband and sons.

My wish was that every farm home could have such a living-room. What hours of rest and leisure could be spent in such surroundings!

FARM NEWS AND PROBLEMS

FARMING HAS BECOME AN INDUSTRY INVOLVING LARGER EXPENDITURES AND GREATER BUSINESS PRINCIPLES

Two Millions Invested in Implements in Peterborough County.

HELP IS SCARCE

With Modern Machinery Farm Acreage Cropped Has Increased.

According to the statistics issued by the Department of Agriculture, there are almost two and a half million dollars invested in the implements used on the farms within Peterborough County, while in the entire Province of Ontario the total value of such machinery reaches the huge figure of 164 million dollars.

Besides being an indication of the fact that farming has become a business involving large capital expenditure, these figures afford a clue to the explanation of what, at first sight, seems difficult to explain—that while the rural population of Ontario has declined slightly in recent years, and the number of agricultural workers of the province has varied little over a period of nearly 50 years—the volume of production, the acreage under tillage and the number of livestock have steadily increased year by year.

Acreage Increases.

A comparative study of the figures for 1925, the latest available, and those for 1882, the year in which the first organized effort was made to collect provincial statistics, reveals some interesting and somewhat unexpected facts. In 1882 the farmers of Ontario possessed implements of a total value of 37 million dollars—less than one-fourth of the sum represented by those in use to-day. After making every allowance for the difference in the values of money during the two periods, it is easy to realize the extent to which farmers have gone in for labor-saving machinery. In the earlier year, some 305,000 farm workers raised 137 million dollars' worth of field crops from seven and a quarter million acres of land in Ontario. In 1925, practically the same number of workers harvested crops representing 261½ million dollars from ten and one-third million acres, in addition to tending nearly twice as many cattle and swine, three times as many domestic fowls, and one hundred thousand more horses. The larger figures for 1925 were reached by annually rising steps in production, without any spectacular leap, and with no backward steps. Only the introduction of scientific machinery, specially designed for the purpose, could have enabled this vast addition to the amount of work accomplished without the aid of a greater force of human effort.

The most important advance was the invention of the self-binder. As might be expected, the first attempts to produce a mechanical auxiliary of this kind resulted in a heavy, cumbersome machine, difficult to handle and requiring four horses to draw. But improvements came speedily, with the result that the day came when the farmer, by the aid of the new implement, was able to do what had formerly required the labors of himself, driving the old-style reaper, and four other helpers on the harvest field. The mower came next, an invention of incalculable value in this province where hay is such an important crop.

From that point on the march of improved agriculture in Canada has been peculiarly rapid. In the early lifetime of not a few grizzled veterans now residing in Peterborough or neighboring townships, the inventory of the progressive farmer's implement items as recorded in auction sale bills was: One plough, one pair of harrows, one fanning mill, one wagon, one pair of bob-sleighs, one sulky rake, one cultivator, one combined reaper and mower, one scraper and other articles too numerous to mention—which included a few forks, hoes, a spade, and a scoop shovel. Such an outfit left a great margin of labor to be done by hand. Fortunately for many farmers of that recent, yet primitive era, some families contained many hands, and most farms were small, since much of the land was then uncleared.

The hand regime is now completely out of date. It was forced into the obsolete by modern invention by the scarcity of farm labor in recent years, and by the rapid clearance of land, bringing an immense area under crop. These forces, indeed, are still operative, to a minor extent, in Ontario, and a much greater extent in the West. Every year drains away the Ontario farmer's help, and the average agriculturist has had to equip himself with all the machinery his pocket-book and credit could stand. Not only necessity, but fashion and the natural desire to improve, has led the Canadian farmer to make a larger appropriation for implements.

Implements.

Ploughs, whose varieties are legion, have become specialized. In a not very far distant time, there were but two kinds, sod ploughs and general purpose. Afterwards came the plough with the wheel on the beam; still later, the plough with two wheels under the coulter, the gang-plow and the sulky plow. Drills are a comparatively modern feature. Hand-sowing by the Scriptural method has gone into oblivion with all its poetry. Cultivators have multiplied in variety and style. The primitive form was a one-horse affair, like the harrows and the scraper made at the village blacksmith's shop. The modern cultivator is a sort of specialized harrow with two wheels, three or four horses, and a seat for the driver. Hay forks have come into vogue: the Peterborough farmer who pitches off hay by hand is regarded as a Rip Van Winkle. Hay loaders are to be found on the best and largest farms. Manure spreaders have come into general use. Fanning mills have been revolutionized. The old yellow boy-killer was almost the size of a small threshing machine and cleaned about fifteen bushels an hour. The present fanning mill cleans nearly a hundred bushels an hour—and wears out no promising youths.

Threshers have begun to rival the self-binder for consolidation of specialties and turnover of work. A single

British Columbia Jersey Heifer Smashes Records

The senior two-year-old Jersey heifer Farley St. Mawes Retta, owned by the Dominion Experimental Station, Summerland, B.C., has just completed a record of 11,606 pounds of milk and 648.78 pounds of butter fat in 305 days, calving again inside 400 days, therefore fulfilling the requirements of the Canadian Record of Performance. This constitutes a world's record for her age and breed, and is the second time that this cow has broken a world's record, as she formerly held the record as a senior yearling. This announcement was made today by the Federal Department of Agriculture.

YOUNG INDUSTRY TAKE LEAD ON CANE PRODUCT

Beets Rule United States Sugar Production for 1926.

89 PER CENT.

Three Products From Beets, Sugar, Molasses and Beet Pulp.

American sugar now means beet sugar.

Today practically all sugar extracted from continental American crops is produced in 89 beet sugar factories. Less than 7 per cent comes from the old cane plantations of Louisiana, the last stronghold of the passing planter.

Recent estimates for the 1926-27 crop year show an output of 938,000 tons of refined sugar extracted from beets in the United States, as compared with a probable 67,850 tons from Louisiana cane, a loss of more than 51 per cent from Louisiana's production for the previous year of 139,330 tons.

In spite of beet crop difficulties, chiefly in California and Utah, the beet sugar estimate of 938,000 tons for this year represents an increase of 2.7 per cent over the 1925-26 sugar production of 913,000 tons.

Colorado Leads Industry.

Colorado, a faint dot on the beet map a quarter of a century ago, now leads the states of the union for the crop year 1926-27 with an estimated production of 350,000 tons of sugar, extracted from about 3,000,000 tons of sugar beets grown on 225,000 acres.

Michigan is second, according to estimates by the United States Department of Agriculture, with 175,000 tons of beet sugar, although Nebraska is forging toward second place with 160,000 tons of sugar. California and Utah, once vigorous contenders, have practically dropped out this crop year because of beet diseases.

Allocation of beet sugar factories is as follows: Colorado 16, Michigan 16, Utah 15, Idaho 7, Nebraska 6, California 5, Ohio 5, Wyoming 4, Wisconsin 4, Montana 3, Iowa 2 and other states 6, making 89 in all. Three new factories are being built in South Dakota, Montana and Nebraska.

The sugar story is comparatively simple. The beet plant combines air and water, through the magic of its leaves, into sugar which is stored in the root. The factories wash and slice the beets, extract the juice by a diffusion process, then purify and refine the juice to such a point that it can be boiled into crystals and spun through centrifugal machines into the white granulated sugar of commerce.

How Sugar Is Made.

There are three products of a beet sugar factory: first, sugar; second, molasses, the last discarded juice which has been worked over to such an extent that no further sugar can be extracted profitably; third, beet pulp. Molasses and pulp are excellent stock feed. Dried pulp from the inter-mountain factories goes as far east as Boston and south to Atlanta.

Utilization of molasses for purposes more profitable than feeding and producing alcohol is now being accomplished by the new refinery erected at Johnstown, Colo.

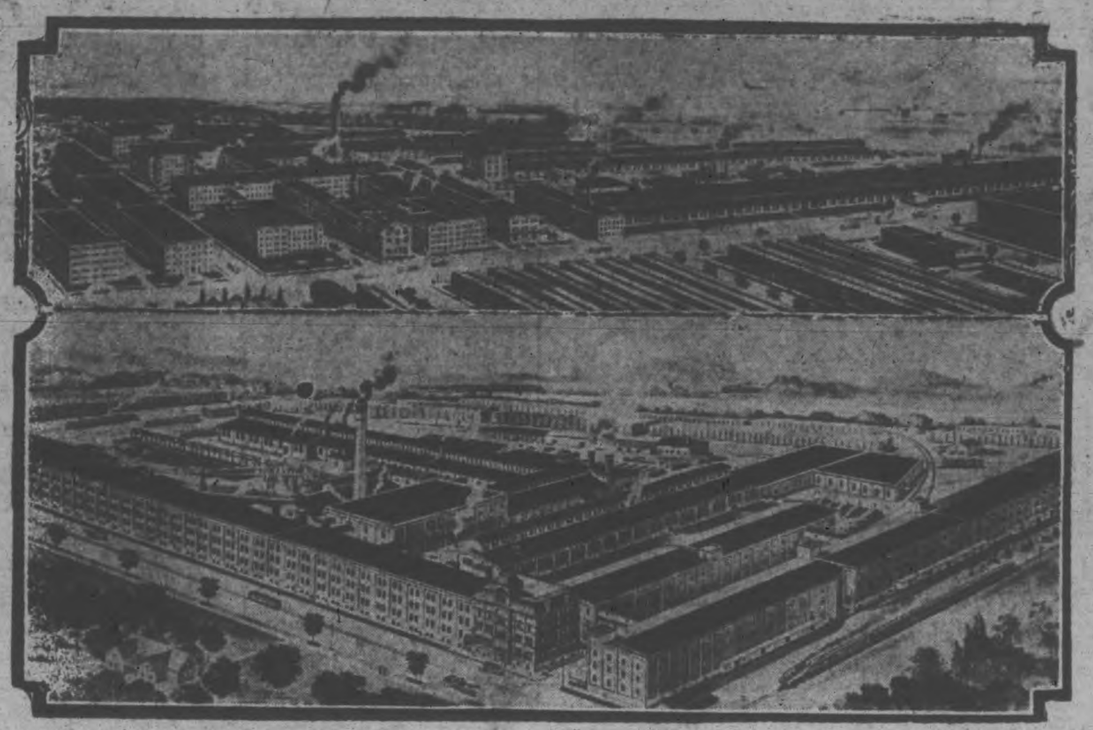
This factory, the only one of its kind in the world, recovers sugar profitably from molasses discarded from other plants. The opening of the Johnstown mill in 1926 was considered by sugar authorities one of the most significant steps of recent years in the industry. A similar plant is under construction at Lyman, Neb.

Government chemists and college research bureaus claim that there is no difference between beet and cane sugars for any purpose.

development, the blower, which carries the straw all over the stack, dispenses with fifty per cent of the original fork-labor.

The complete list of minor specialties now in common use on the Ontario farm will fill a small book. Canadian farming, in fact, has become as complicated as Canadian factory life—to each job its special machine or implement, making the farmer a practical machinist. Indeed, there is no labor-saving device known to scientific agriculture which is not made in Canada. And Canada, laboring to produce machinery suitable for its own agricultural needs, soon learned to meet similar demands from other countries; and to-day there are operating in the Dominion 67 factories, capitalized at 95 million dollars, paying annual wage-bills of nine million dollars to 7,500 employees, using raw material valued at 12 million dollars, to produce agricultural machinery, selling at home and abroad for 26 million dollars.

MASSEY-HARRIS FACTORIES



Control of these two big Massey-Harris plants in Toronto and Brantford is to remain in Canada as a result of the courageous and patriotic efforts of Thomas Bradshaw and J. H. Gundy and others to resist efforts that were being made by U.S.A. interests to gain control.

POOL MARKETING PLAN ACCEPTED BY ONT. FARMERS

Agriculturists Show Great Interest in New System Planned.

ONTARIO GRAIN POOL

This Organization Will Bring Farmers of Canada Closer Together.

Thousands of farmers in Southwestern Ontario, after frank and free discussion of the co-operative pool system of marketing grain crops, have accepted it. Starting with a bumper meeting on the afternoon of January 27, at Chatham, and covering different points in Essex, Kent, Elgin, Lambton, Middlesex and Huron counties, an enthusiasm was displayed which indicates a feeling against present marketing conditions, and in favor of the pool.

Speakers at these meetings included Colin H. Burnell of Winnipeg, President of the Manitoba Wheat Pool; H. A. Gilroy, of Alvinston, President of The United Farmer Co-operative, Limited; J. J. Morrison, Secretary of The United Farmers of Ontario, and others. At every meeting questions were asked by the farmers, showing their interest in the proposition. Elevator men also are interested, and have selected a committee to wait on the management of The United Farmers Co-operative Company, Limited, the primary object being to ascertain what arrangements can be made to handle pooled grain through local elevators.

Interesting experiences of the Manitoba Wheat Pool, and surprising success, were recounted and detailed by Mr. Burnell, who talked as a farmer to farmers. At first the members of the regular grain trade were inclined to laugh at their efforts to organize. In a short time, however, they were taken seriously, for many thousand farmers had signed a contract to deliver to the pool all their grain for five years. It was pointed out that the present membership is 138,000, and that last season 213,000,000 bushels of grain were handled by the pools in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Fifty-two per cent of the wheat crop went through the pools. The result was that control of export grain had now passed out of the hands of three large export companies that formerly controlled it. He positively stated that the operation of the pools had meant at least 25 cents a bushel more for the farmer on his wheat than he would have got had there been no pool, and he assured Ontario farmers that it would mean more money for them on their crops.

Greater attention to the marketing end of the farming industry was urged by Mr. Morrison, who spoke of experiences he had had as a young farmer, then as a foreman in a city enterprise, and later again as a farmer. He pointed out that men in all other callings were well organized, and that the farmer was the only one who had to ask, "What will you give me?" After referring to the success of the pools in Western Canada, and the egg pool in Ontario, he said he was convinced that an Ontario grain pool would be of great benefit to the farmers of Ontario.

President Gilroy saw in the growth of pool organizations an institution that would bring the farmers of Eastern and Western Canada closer together, and a movement that in the near future would be world wide. He was No. 1 to sign a contract—and President Burnell was witness. J. T. Arnew of Comber signed the second contract at the Chatham meeting. Others also insisted on signing up, although those in charge announced that they would prefer that they studied the contract carefully before signing their names.

County captains will be selected, and canvassers named, to complete the organization in the territory, in the near future.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

WAYS OF IMPROVING SOIL QUALITY

To the Agricultural Editor,
Dear Sir:—

In my latest letter I tried briefly to call the attention of the farmer to need of solving the soil problem. Now, the ways of improving the soil quality can be briefly summed up by the use of one or more of the following methods: rotation; green manuring; commercial fertilizers; stable manures.

Rules for Use in Planning Rotations

Alternate crops, requiring deep plowing, with crops doing well with shallow plowing.

Aim to have the land in a perennial legume or sod for several consecutive years.

Follow a leguminous crop with a non-leguminous crop.

Follow a winter growing crop with a summer crop, rather than fallow, if the crop and water are available.

Follow deep rooting crops with shallow rooting crops.

Have a succession of crops available for pasture purposes if stock feeds must be provided.

Avoid fallowing—better use a green manure crop.

In general, a good rotation includes one money crop, one clean-tilled crop, one hay crop, one legume crop.

Alternate occasionally with a clean cultivated crop to control weeds.

Green manure crops improve soil conditions. They accomplish several objects, but their main use is to return humus and nitrogen to the soil. For that purpose Canada field peas, soy beans or alfalfa are probably the most satisfactory.

Farmers have four alternatives in the fertilizer practice to meet the needs of a permanent system of crop production; they are—acid phosphate alone; acid phosphate supplemented with other standard fertilizing materials like nitrate of soda, sulphate of ammonia and muriate of potash; ready mixed commercial fertilizer and home mixed fertilizer.

The choice between the methods should, to a large extent, be based on their relative economy. Do many farmers know what a ton of manure is worth. Well, here is about its real commercial value: trials made on various experiment fields have shown that an average application of eight tons of manure once in four years has increased the yield of corn 10.5 bushels; oats 5.17 bushels; wheat 5.24 bushels; clover 937 lbs. It should not cost more than one dollar per ton to collect and spread manure over the field, so it is easy for any one to figure out the net profit for each ton applied. The full value of manure is not felt at first, but it leaves the soil in better condition, and its effect on later crops is very significant. This becomes very noticeable after the first two or three applications, since a liberal application of manure every four years will result in the permanent improvement of the soil.

In order to deliver the best results of manure it must be handled with judgment and on average land the stock raiser should try and scatter at least two tons per acre on his cultivated fields. It is necessary to see that all straw is run through the stables for bedding. This plan not only adds to the comfort of the stock, but the straw will act as an absorbent for the liquid manure. Keep the manure together; if this is not feasible, store to prevent leaching on sandy land. The reinforcing of the manure with both phosphates and potash is most profitable.

Thanking you,

I remain yours,
W. H. Merril.

Oak barrels and large stone jars make very satisfactory vessels in which to cure meat. Vinegar or pickle barrels are preferred to lard barrels because the latter usually contain rancid lard and are hard to clean and sterilize.

A second successful season is indicated for the beet sugar industry of Southern Alberta and the operations of 1926 have apparently served to firmly establish the industry as one of the territory's most valuable productive activities.

SWEDE TURNIPS MAKE HIGH SCORE

This Variety Has Proved to be Fine Turnip for Export.

THINNING TESTS

There has been a large amount of interest in the production of Swede turnips in Ontario in recent years. Not only for the production of feed for stock, but also for table use and particularly for export to the United States. The variety which has made the highest score as a shipping turnip, as determined in the experiments at the Ontario Agricultural college, is the Perfect Model, which has been grown at the college since 1915. In the co-operative experiments in 1924, in the average of nine successfully conducted tests, the Perfect Model surpassed the Bronze Top and the Superlative. In 1925 the Perfect Model held an intermediate position in yield of roots per acre, the highest yielder in the average of five successfully conducted tests being the Superlative (elephant type), and the lowest the Canadian Gem. In 1926 the Perfect Model once more held an intermediate position in yield per acre, being surpassed by Superlative by 24 tons per acre in the average of three successfully conducted tests. The Canadian Gem is a well-shaped root, and comes next to the Perfect Model in shape and quality for shipping, but is a smaller yielder per acre than this variety.

Thinning Test.

In 1926 a co-operative experiment was conducted for the first time in thinning swede turnips at different distances apart in the rows. In the average of five successfully conducted experiments yields from the different thinnings were as follows: 5 inches apart, 25.2 tons per acre; 8 inches apart, 23.5 tons per acre; 12 inches apart, 20.7 tons per acre. Experiments conducted at college over a period of several years in thinning mangels and swede turnips at different distances apart in the rows show that there is little to be gained from thinning these roots at a distance in the rows greater than 10 to 12 inches apart. Where roots are thinned at greater distances less yield per acre and poorer quality have invariably been the result.

CORN BORER CONFERENCE

A meeting of agricultural representatives and corn borer inspectors in southwestern Ontario will be held in London, January 27. Comprehensive reports as to the situation throughout the corn growing area of Western Ontario will be presented and the necessity of clean-up work in the spring fully discussed.

ONTARIO WHEAT POOL

Plans for a wheat pool will be discussed at a meeting in Chatham, Ontario, this week. Kent County is the leading wheat-producing area in the Province, hence the reason for holding the organization meeting in Chatham. A speaker will be present who is in close touch with the Western grain pool, according to word received from J. J. Morrison, Secretary of the U. F. O.

MAINE POTATOES

Of the total Maine potato crop of 1926, estimated at 36,830,000 bushels, 74.3 per cent will be available for shipment as table or seed stock, the New England crop reporting service says in a report. A million and a half bushels more than of the 1925 crop will thus be shipped, although the percentage of the crop is slightly lower.

THE 1926 WOOL CLIP

Final estimates for the wool clip of the Dominion for the year just closed place the total at close to eleven and a half million pounds. Of this amount around five million pounds were used locally, the bulk of the clip in Quebec and certain New Canadian settlements in the West.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

FARMERS FEAR HEAVY DAMAGE TO FALL WHEAT

Clover and Wheat Crops Are Menaced by a Covering of Ice.

NO FEED SHORTAGE

Some Parts of Ontario Field Threshing Continues in February.

Farmers throughout the greater part of old Ontario are beginning to be alarmed over the condition of fall wheat and clover. Fields have been covered with ice for some weeks now, according to reports received by the Ontario Department of Agriculture, and, while it is still too early to make any accurate prediction of losses, serious damage is feared. This unwelcome covering extends practically from Lake Erie and Lake Ontario to the southern boundaries of Grey, Simcoe and Victoria.

Live Stock in Good Shape.

Generally speaking, live stock are in excellent shape, and apparently no feed shortage is anticipated unless the opening of the grazing season is unduly prolonged, as it was a year ago. Even if home-grown feeds do run short, there is a large supply of mill feeds and concentrates available at fairly moderate prices, according to most reports. Many agricultural representatives speak of fewer cattle being fed, especially in Western Ontario, but all are unanimous in regard to their good condition.

Dairy Cattle Demand.

In Oxford County the demand for dairy cattle is increasing very rapidly, the local Live Stock Association reporting the sale of 50,000 worth of cattle since last June. Remarkable improvement in the quality of hogs is claimed by Hastings County. Of eight cars leaving that county in the past few days, 30 per cent graded selects. This improvement is attributed to the use of good boars supplied by the bacon-hog clubs.

Harvesting Continues.

Harvesting of the 1925 grain crop continues with less hardship than was the case when the work commenced during rainy October. The grain is being hauled in from the field on sleighs to the threshing engine, in Wentworth a field of barley threshed in the open on Feb 10 turned out some remarkably good feed. "Stood threshing," states the Halton representative, "in general."

No Seed Shortage.

Professor W. J. Squirrel's recent contention that there is no real scarcity of good seed oats is corroborated, except in Northern Ontario. Huron claims a slight surplus over likely needs of seed of good quality, though it is somewhat discolored. In the Sudbury district, however, it is estimated that 25,000 bushels will be needed, and in Kent, where farmers were unable to put in the usual acreage of fall wheat, there is an inquiry for spring-wheat seed. Throughout practically the whole Province farmers are planning on greatly extending the acreage of alfalfa, and, to some extent, sweet clover.

More Tobacco in Kent.

An increase of 50 per cent. in Kent's tobacco acreage is predicted, which will bring the total up to 9,000 Durham reports more interest in poultry-raising, notwithstanding the fact that it has a well-established poultry community around Port Hope already. Although still early, a few applications for help have been received in almost every Agricultural Representative's office in Ontario.

Open Weather Appreciated.

The open weather is being appreciated by orchardists in the Niagara Peninsula, where 50 per cent. more pruning has been done to date than was the case a year ago. So far, fruit buds have not been damaged.

Any dairyman keeping cows that are worth keeping can afford to feed them all the grain and concentrates they can make useof.

MARKETING TOUR BEING ORGANIZED TO BRITISH ISLES AND DENMARK

Canadian Farmers Will Study Conditions in Old Land.

INTEREST TAKEN

Agricultural Departments Gave Their Approval of Coming Trip.

Preliminary announcement of considerable importance to farmers and farmers' organizations in Canada was made recently by Dr. W. J. Black, Director of The Department of Colonization and Agriculture, Canadian National Railways, in outlining a proposed marketing tour for Canadian farmers to the Birish Isles and Denmark next winter. The tour which is the first of its kind to be organized in Canada, is being arranged to give farmers, representatives of farmers' organizations and of the agricultural departments throughout the Dominion an opportunity to study collectively farming methods and conditions of marketing and production in the old lands.

"Farmers and agricultural leaders in all sections of Canada" said Dr. Black, "are today interested in, and deeply concerned with the question of securing wider and better markets for their products, and in view of the success attending the co-operative marketing movement the time is now ripe to study overseas conditions, and the individual requirements of consumer and buyer.

"The Canadian farmers today are also deeply interested in the marketing question and many have expressed a desire to examine the conditions affecting the sale of Canadian farm products, as well as the methods used by other countries through their marketing organizations.

"In organizing this tour the Canadian National Railways believe they can render a special service to farmers and farmers' organizations in Canada because of the facilities they control for making arrangements in the British Isles and Denmark to enable farmers to enjoy the fullest possible opportunity for securing information at a minimum of cost. The department of colonization and agriculture is already developing the itinerary and has already made connection with boards of agriculture, farmers' unions and trade organizations covering all matters of interest to grain growers, stockmen, dairymen and fruit growers."

Dr. Black intimated that it could be taken for granted that the Federal and provincial departments of agriculture will give approval to the tour, and that it is quite likely that designated representatives will accompany the travellers in official capacity. This would allow of preliminary organization while on board ship in order to direct them towards the proper channels of information.

Cleaning Farmers' Grain New Work For Prisoners

"I believe that if penal institutions throughout the country would adopt a system of employing jail labor during the winter months in picking over farmers' seed grain, a great all-around benefit to the corps of Canada would result," Alonzo G. Dawson, Governor of the county jail here, commented today, with regard to his experiment of employing jail prisoners to pick over beans, instead of working on the customary "rock pile."

FARM TRAINING COLLEGE GIVES GOOD RESULTS

Eleven Students Already Sent to Different States of Australia.

WELL TRAINED

Each Man is Under Care of Well-Known Firm of Merchants.

(Canadian Press)

Highly encouraging results are reported to have attended the first session, which has just closed, of the Australian farms training college at Mundford in Norfolk, England. Eleven students have already been distributed among different states in the Commonwealth.

In the opinion of Principal Potts, who has had an extensive Australian experience, these young men, full of energy, resource and character, will prove the right type to make successful settlers. They are all eager to face the chief problem of their career, and full of confidence and courage.

Each student is sent out to Australia, under the care and guidance of a well-known firm of Australian merchants who have representatives and agencies in every leading town of the Commonwealth. Each student will have the advantage of this firm's influence and control after arrival. It is not intended that he will take up land immediately on reaching his destination. Each case will be dealt with on its merits, and a suitable post or training selected for such period as will enable the student to acquire sufficient local experience to develop a sense of responsibility, and become amply familiar with the working and marketing details of the particular branch of rural pursuit in which he desires to engage, before investing his capital.

SHRINKAGE ASSURED IN STOCK SHIPPING

Amount Lost Depends on Nature of Animals and Previous Feeding.

Every farmer or live stock man ships a number of cattle and hogs every year. These may be sold by the dollar or by the pound. Whichever way they are sold there is bound to be considerable shrinkage in weight from the time the animal leaves the farm until it reaches its destination. Some animals will shrink a good deal more than others, depending on their disposition and upon the feed previous to shipping. In case of cattle, feeding mixed hay and rolled or whole oats for twenty-four hours previous to shipping will result in less shrinkage than if alfalfa hay and some of the heavy grains are fed. It is claimed that cattle may shrink from three to four per cent. of their live weight during thirty hours of transit. The more succulent the feed up to the time of shipping, the greater the shrinkage.

Everyone wants to get as much weight on the animals as possible, and quite frequently they are fed all they will eat just before they are moved from the farm. They are then gotten to the shipping point in as short a time as possible, so that the shipper rather than the producer suffers the most from the shrinkage. There are instances where the shipper who bought by the pound would not be around when certain men whom he knew from experience would have their animals pretty well stuffed before leaving home. Possibly an hour after the man had arrived with these cattle the shipper would come strolling in and weigh up the bunch. It was one way he had of partially getting even with the man who was wanting to get a pretty fair price per pound for the last feed he put into the animal. As a rule, those who prepared their animals for shipping so as to minimize the shrinkage are the best off in the end.

COLD STORAGE PLANTS HELP SELLING CHEESE

Plan Would Aid Marketing Conditions, Says Chief Dairy Instructor.

CENTRAL PLANT

Belleville Co-operative Company Has Been a Great Success.

KINGSTON.—Asked if he had any suggestions to make for the improvement of the marketing of cheese, Mr. G. G. Publow, chief dairy instructor for Eastern Ontario, to-day stated that the establishment of a central cold storage plant would improve the marketing conditions. "I am more than ever convinced that there should be a central cold storage plant," said Mr. Publow.

Mr. Publow also stated that he thought if four were established in Eastern Ontario, it would improve the conditions greatly.

Some time ago the United Dairymen's Co-operative Company was formed in Bellebille, and from what can be learned the venture has proved very satisfactory. This company has followed out the policy of storage plants where the cheese are brought and graded. The company collects a fee of about 5 cents a box on all cheese, and the cheese are sold for the best price possible.

It is the opinion of many who have given the matter careful study, that the time has arrived when the farmers should build the cold storage plants themselves.

Due to the various factors entering into the export trade in butter from Canada, but chiefly to the strike conditions prevailing in Great Britain during the greater part of the year, Canadian exports of butter have amounted to only about one-third as much as was the case in 1925.

(By F. D. C.)

Two lucky goals, the first scored with Joe Dwyer serving a penalty and the second deflected into the nets in a scrimmage, represented the margin by which Varsity Grads defeated the Petes in the second game of the group series at Brock street rink last night.

These two markers, the only counters of a desperately fought, gruelling battle on soft ice, sent Connie Smythe's team into the senior finals by a score of 3 to 1 on the round.

The element of luck, and their own penalties, rather than any superiority of the Grads on the night's play, beat the Petes.

They drew ten penalties during the game as against four for the winners, and thus playing short-handed for nearly one third of the battle put a handicap on themselves that was a material factor in their downfall.

Particularly costly was the one-minute banishment earned by Joe Dwyer early in the game when he skated out of his net and butt-ended Trottier. The absence of the goaler gave the Grads a chance to drive home the first goal and it meant a lot under the ice conditions, particularly as Ranger went on a penalty-getting rampage immediately afterward that cost him four minutes in the cooler at a time when the Petes needed their full strength in action.

There were few goal-scoring opportunities.

The strategy of the game was doped out by the two teams was to use defensive rather than offensive tactics.

Both dropped most of their strength back to their own blue line and the game early resolved itself into a series of one-man attacks and long shots. The Grads got the jump when Porter's drive from outside the Petes' blue line whistled by Bert McLeod with the Peterboro defence man guarding the nets while Dwyer served his penalty. It was a particularly tough break as the Petes goaler's time was up and he was on his way back to his citadel when Porter's shot rattled the twine.

With an ace in the hole the Grads could afford to drop back and let the Petes do the worrying and their task of protecting their narrow margin was lightened by the series of penalties that left the homesters weakened for the greater part of the baalnce of the period.

The ice conditions grew steadily worse as the game progressed and when the Petes opened the throttle and went on the offensive in the second session, combination was practically impossible and stick-handling was a difficult proposition. They did the bulk of the attacking in the middle session but found it a hopeless task to work into a scoring position. And then as the period was drawing to a close Hudson's sloppy goal which some of the Petes claim was kicked into the net put the Varsity crew in possession of a lead that under the conditions was invincible.

A determined onslaught during the last twenty minutes, by the Petes, was met by a six-man defence and although Joe Sullivan was called upon to handle a lot of shots they were practically all from outside and meant nothing.

It was not a brilhant game of hockey, it could not be with the ice as it was and under the system adopted by both teams, but it was full of excitement and the tenseness of the struggle made up for the absence of the smart combination and clever puck-carrying that are usually associated with senior group finals.

With Colors Flying.

The Petes passed out of the picture with their colors flying. Going into the series with the Grads called to beat them by a flock of goals they surprised fandom by holding the much-boosted Varsity machine to a tie in Toronto and by giving them a real battle for the honors in the second game. To cut down the Grads goal scoring to three in 120 minutes of hockey was a feat in itself, and last night's result might have easily been reversed on the play for the Grads were not value for a two goal victory on their showing.

The smart work of Joe Sullivan in the nets, and the close checking of the Grad forwards were the best assets of the winners last night. The Petes did not get many close-in opportunities to test Sullivan, but he had a lot of drives to handle that might have got away from a less able net guardian. Trottier, Plaxton and Hudson were more conspicuous because of their effective work defensively than on the attack. Plaxton turned in a better game than on Monday night.

Like Sullivan, Dwyer had a lot of long shots to deal with and he made a good job of it, while McLeod and Rose checked effectively at all times and rushed until they were both ready to drop. Bogardis was the most effective of the advance guard, the little right wing player playing a whale of a game. The rest gave all they had and the whole crew never stopped trying until the final bell told them that so far as they were concerned the season was over.

First Period.

From the first face-off it was seen that defensive hockey was the order of the night. Neither team was inclined to take a chance and the first shots handled by Dwyer and Sullivan were from mid-ice. Ranger scored on a shot from the side but the play was called back because he kicked the puck. The Petes got an early break when Plaxton was fenced for tripping Ranger but the latter threw the advantage away immediately after by charging Hudson. It was even going with neither team having any edge at this stage. Plaxton tried to stickhandle through but was bowled over by a healthy body-check from Bert McLeod. Finally after Trottier had been checked in a dangerous rush Dwyer went out and jammed him, drawing a minute penalty.

McLeod went back between the posts and the Petes fought desperately to keep the Grads from getting a shot. Kane saved the situation momentarily by breaking away for a nice rush, but Varsity came back and McLeod stopped a shot from a scrimmage and the Petes cleared. However, Red Porter came down the centre ice channel and blazed a fast one past McLeod from well out just as Dwyer started back for his position.

Seven minutes of the game had gone so that the Grads had been held scoreless for fifty-nine minutes.

There were few chances to score during the balance of the period. Ranger drew his second penalty for cross-checking Red Porter, and then near the close of the session he got another, this time for tripping. Porter was chased right after and then Kane got the gate.

The Second Session

The result was that the second period started with the Petes playing four men against five. Nothing particularly dangerous developed while this situation existed. Defensive tactics on the part of the Grads and the softening of the ice made brilliant hockey impossible, and there was a lot of long-range shooting with Porter and McLeod as the rival marksmen. Bogardis was penalized for bodying Trottier toward the boards, the only penalty of the period. The Grades seemed satisfied to hold their one-goal lead and the Petes tried in vain to batter their way inside to sew up the game. Finally, just when it began to look like a scoreless period, Hudson after a mixup at the side of the Petes' net put Varsity two goals in front, the rubber going in off Dwyer's foot and Varsity's victory was cinched.

The Final Dash

The last period was featured by an almost continuous Peterboro offensive, the Grads frequently relieving the pressure by shooting the rubber down the rink. The Petes tried combination, they tried individual rushes and they tried long shots, but the Grads helped by the soft ice checked them closely and they could not grab off the goals needed to get up on even terms. Sullivan made some fine stops that helped to save the situation for the Grads. There were six penalties during the period, McLeod got the first for dumping Trottier and the latter followed for tripping Parker. Bogardis drew a minute for throwing his stick when Trottier was getting in close, and then Plaxton and Kane were sentenced for tripping. The last penalty of the session went to Ranger for chopping Hudson over the thumb making the left winger's fourth exile during the game.

You'd Be SURPRISED!

BY BILLY EVANS

WHEN Derrill Pratt, former American League star, attended University of Alabama, he also specialized in football and ranked as one of the best drop kickers in the south.

Perhaps that explains why Pratt played the leading role in one of the most unusual double plays ever made in the American League.

Detroit was playing the New York Americans at the Polo Grounds. Pratt was at second for New York while Peckinpaugh was stationed at short.

There was one out at the time and Detroit had started a rally that it seemed would decide the ball game.

The batsman hit a sizzling grounder to Pratt's right. There didn't seem to be a chance for him to make a play on the ball. As the ball was hit, Peckinpaugh moved over to cover second should there be a play at that base.

Pratt never did reach the ball with his hands, but he did so with his trusty right foot. When the ball appeared to have passed him it took a peculiar English and came into contact with the toe of Pratt's right shoe.

The result was a beautiful drop-kick that Peckinpaugh took out of the air shoulder high just as he touched second base. His throw to first easily beat the batsman, retiring the side and ending the rally.

It is the only incident on record where a football drop kick was brought into baseball for the purpose of staging a double play.

MENIE OUT OF TOWN LEAGUE

Loses To Clerks 5-4 in 30 Minute Overtime Struggle.

AT CAMPBELLFORD.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 24. — Menie passed out of the Town League picture at Covert's Arena on Tuesday night when they fell before the fast travelling Clerks 5 to 4 in a hectic 30-minute overtime struggle.

The country boys put up a gallant fight to remain in the running and were more outlucked than outplayed. They cut out a fast pace from the initial face-off and were leading 3 to 0 half-way through the first period, then the Clerks tightened up in their checking, but found it impossible to get away from the persistent back-checking of Menie, while the Clerks were equally persistent in their checking, and the puck carrier seldom had a chance to shoot while unchecked. The game was probably the most thrilling of the season, featured by brilliant individual efforts, close checking and a generous sprinkling of stiff body-checking, and it was a tired bunch of athletes that skated off the ice at the end of the 90 minutes' gruelling struggle.

Some of the players went the full route without relief, and there was only one change in the 30 minutes' overtime, Runions for McArthur for a few minutes when the regular Clerk centre was injured.

Shillinglaw, the big Menie defence man, played the best game he has ever shown. He was very hard to get by on the defence, and his many rushes to the Clerk end were always dangerous. The Clerks found him the hardest man on the Menie team to stop. Shillinglaw's performance was outstanding, followed closely by Rannie and Kerr, and Hay and Lynn held up their end in fine style. Wood, McArthur and Labrash were best for the Clerks; their individual efforts and back-checking were all that could be desired, but they failed to pass the puck.

If from the spectators' point of view Menie appeared to have the better of the argument, you must give the Clerks credit for their game uphill fight.

Three goals down in the middle of the first period and all appearances of defeat staring them in the face, they buckled down and kept plugging away to ultimate victory. McArthur got two of the goals back before the period closed, and Labrash evened the count shortly after the start of the second period on a brilliant dash down the boards. The teams battled away for the balance of the second period and all through the third on virtually even terms. Any shots that sifted through the defences were taken care of by the goalers. There was no score in the first ten minutes of overtime.

In the first half of the second over time Wood scored for the Clerks on a shot from the blue line that Owens didn't see. It was a lucky counter for the red, white and blue, but Menie were equally lucky to tie it up again. Fox came out of his net to stop Kerr and a scramble resulted in front of the Clerk cage. Rannie just got his stick on the rubber long enough to send a roller into the empty net.

Then they battled on, and when it looked like a drawn game, McArthur followed in his own shot, and with Owens lying on the ice, the clever Clerk centre lifted the rubber over the Menie goaler's body for the winning marker.

The line-up:

Clerks—Goal, Fox; r. defence, McMullen; l. defence, Atkinson; centre, McArthur; r. wing Labrash; l. wing, Wood; subs., D. Runions, Sloggett and Lee.

Menie—Goal, Ted Owens; r. defence, Shillinglaw; l. defence, Kerr; centre, Rannie; r. wing, Lynn; l. wing, Hay; subs., Coulter and W. Owens.

Referee—Chas. Holmes.

In an exhibition game preceding the League fixture, the local midget All Stars triumphed over Warkworth Juniors 8 to 5 in 10 minutes' overtime. The full time score was 5 all.

Warkworth, outweighing the local midgets by many pounds, and possessing plenty of speed, failed to make the most of their opportunities. Their attacks were of the individual variety, and quite often shooting from away out, while the Midgets flashed a fair amount of combination and worked in close before shooting. "Doug." Runions was the star offensively, netting the rubber six times, Hendy and Geo. Runions getting the other pair, and Hendy was great defensively. The Midget centre used a very effective sweep check and sailed into the biggest of the Warkworth bunch without fear or favor. All the Midgets gave a good account of themselves, and their performance is highly gratifying to the sponsors of the Midget series.

Dawkins and Sommers were the best for Warkworth.

The local management treated both teams to doughnuts and pop after the game.

The line-up:

Campbellford Midgets—Goal Hentonstall; r. defence, McPherson; l. defence, Lambett; centre, Hendy; r. wing, D. Runions; l. wing, G. Runions; subs., Wilks, Free and Stocker.

Warkworth—Goal, A. Duncan; r. defence, I. Duncan; l. defence, Dawkins; centre, Sommers; r. wing Nelson; l. wing, Booth; subs., Lain and Lonergan.

Referee—J. L. Phillips, Warkworth.

WINS CHAMPIONSHIP

When Miss Constance Wilson of the Toronto Skating Club, by a stellar performance won the Canadian figure skating championship in Montreal on Saturday, it was a surprise. The fact that she defeated Miss Cecil Eustace Smith who has held the title for the past two years and is also member of the Toronto Skating Club is causing much comment. Miss Cecil Smith was Canadian representative at the Olympic games in 1924.

MANITOBA DOG MUSHER WINS QUEBEC INTERNATIONAL DERBY

Beats All Previous Records By 54 Minutes and 35 Seconds.

SEPPALA SECOND.

Was Unable To Overcome Lead Gained By Victor on Tuesday.

QUEBEC, Feb. 24. Canadian Press —The youthful dog musher, Emil St. Goddard, from The Pas, drove seven fresh greyhound huskies down Grande Allee to the finish line yesterday through over a mile of cheering dog fans and recorded another international victory for Canada.

St. Goddard beat all previous records in the race by 54 minutes and 35 seconds. He nosed out Leonhard Seppala, the hero of the Nome, Alaska, serum epic, by 20 minutes and 20 seconds and passed his other 13 opponents as if they had never started.

Leonhard Seppala fought a game but losing battle yesterday. While he gained some 3 minutes and 30 seconds over St. Goddard yesterday, yet the lead of 24 minutes and 10 seconds held by St. Goddard on Tuesday, was too much to overcome.

Seppala upholds his reputation as a marvellous dog driver. He started final race yesterday with only six dogs in his team, while Emil, the victor, drove his regular seven, but to offset this, young St. Goddard was forced to ride upon his sleigh to a great extent throughout the day's race, owing to a sore leg. Therefore Seppala won the final heat of the classic. Every inch of the hilly course was disputed by George Chevrette, however, who was driving six greyhounds. While he gained several minutes at intervals along the trail yesterday, he had to be content with third place, twenty minutes behind Seppala.

The coming young Canadian musher, Paddy Nolan, dropped a little husky dog out of his team to-day, and finished fourth.

Summary.

OSHAWA BEATEN IN SEMI-FINALS

Victory of Jordan Team Surprise—Team Play Wins.

HALF HOUR OVERTIME.

TORONTO, Feb. 24—The grape growers of the Niagara Peninsula are sitting on top of the world this morning, while all Oshawa has gone into mourning.

The white-haired boys from the Motor City were on their way to the O.H.A. intermediate championship. The home town folks could not see anything else but the John Ross Robertson Cup and a chance to play in the Allan Cup eliminations.

But an unsung team from the village of Jordan has taken all the joy out of the Winter for the Motor City fans. The Farrells and Company from the winery district upset all calculations when they won the sudden-death game at the Arena Gardens last night, scoring the winning goal after 27 minutes and 34 seconds of overtime play, and will now meet London Battery in the finals.

Victory Deserved

It was a well-deserved victory for Jordan. As a matter of fact the Grape Growers should have won the game without any extra play. They outplayed Oshawa the greater part of the 60 minutes, and twice were in front, only to have their opponents snatch the game out of the fire.

There was only one minutes to play in the second period when Lott tied the score on a pass out from the side, the puck hitting the skate of a Jordan player and sliding over the line into the cage.

And after Jordan had again taken the lead half way through the final session Oshawa once more knotted the count on a shot by Kip Rowden from close to the blue line, the final bell going just after the puck had hit the goalkeeper's pads and caromed into the twine.

Jordan Just as Fast

Contrary to expectations Oshawa did not outskate their opponents, while they failed to show any benefits from more experience. Jordan could not shoot as hard or as accurately as their opponents, but they were the more finished hockey team. They played a great passing game, every man holding his position, and always up for a pass. Defensively, their checking barrage across mid-ice had Oshawa stopped and when the Motor City team did get through they were unable to consistently beat the Stone-Roy Farrell defence, both players using the body with telling effect, but the checking was clean.

DEMPSEY WANTS TO FIGHT TUNNEY

Ex-Champion Will Not Consider Bout With Maloney.

DENIES REPORTS.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Feb. 24—Gene Tunney, world's champion heavyweight, is the only opponent Jack Dempsey will consider if he returns to the ring.

That was the former champion's answer yesterday to reports that he was considering a bout with Jim Maloney, Boston heavyweight.

He said Gene Normile, who made the announcement that Dempsey might accept a $300,000 offer for the Maloney bout, was only a friend, and had no authority to speak for him, as his manager.

"Reports that I have received an offer of $300,000 to fight Maloney are pure hokum," the ex-champion said. "I have received no offer from either Fugazy or Rickard, to meet Maloney.

"My position is the same as it was two months ago. I said then that if I couldn't beat Gene Tunney, I couldn't beat anybody.

"I don't intend to enter any elimination tournament. I think my record entitles me to a bout with Tunney, and if he refuses to fight me, or if I find myself unable to get into first-class condition, then I will hang up the gloves for good.

"I have not completely recovered from the attack of blood poisoning I had several weeks ago. My specialist tells me that it will be at least two weeks before I can make any attempt to get into training.

"When I go into training, I will know whether I can get back into shape. If I can, I will fight Tunney —nobody else."

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

KITCHENER WINS FROM PRESTON

Overcome One Gaol Lead To Take Round By Two Goals.

SCORE OF GAME 4-1.

KITCHENER, Feb. 24.—By scoring a decisive 4 to 1 victory over the Preston Riversides here last night the Twin City Green Shirts won the championship of Group No. 1 of the senior O.H.A., 6 to 4, and with it the right to meet the Toronto University Grads in the final series of the senior O.H.A. The Riversides were beaten from bell to bell but they were in the hunt until well into third period, due to a bad gaolkeeping slip on the part of Fries, who let the softest goal of the year, a nasty bobbler, trickle through his hands and between his pads into the cage, tying up the game late in the first period after the Green Shirts had early knotted up the round by a battling goal.

The ice was the worst in this city in years, being watery from the start and in the last period there were big pools of water up on it and the two teams were half dead from exhaustion. Three thousand people jammed into the rink, filling every available corner, and they went wild with joy when the Green Shirts, after losing the lead by a heart-breaking goal, finally battled back into a tie on the round again and in the third period planted home the two counters that salted away the round.

CURLING NEWS

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—The preliminary and first rounds in the Ontario Junior Tankard competition for boys under 22 years of age was played yesterday at the Granite Club. Ten group winners are taking part in this curling event for Juniors for medals and a trophy donated by Thomas Rennie to encourage curling among the youths of this province. The games consist of eighteen ends.

The semi-finals will be played this morning and the finals this afternoon. The results of the preliminary and first rounds are as follows:

Preliminary Round

Unionville:		Oakwood:
E. Gohn	18	D. Armitage	12
St. Thomas:		Fergus:
W. Weir	20	J. Atkinson	14

First Round

Lindsay:		Allenford:
H. Balfour	20	D. Aiken	13
Barrie Thistle:		Thornhill
R. W. Duff	21	E. Cooper	17
Penetang:		Colborne:
C. Champion	22	F. Robinson	18

New Horseshoe Champion Acclaimed At Tournament

ST. PETERSBURG, Florida, Feb. 24. (United Press.) — As the last ringer clanged over the peg yesterday, a cheer from more than 2000 spectators acclaimed C. Davis of Columbus, O. to be the champion horseshoe pitcher of the world.

Davis wrested the title from Frank Jackson of Kellerton, Ia., in one of the most spectacular tournaments in the history of barnyard golf.

A FEW NOTES ON THE BIG GAME

The Petes at least gave the Wonder Team plenty to worry about for a couple of days.

* * *

On the play last night, a scoreless tie would have been about the proper result.

* * *

The saying is as old as hockey, that no player ever helped to win a game in the penalty box. The Petes were short-handed for eighteen minutes last night as against eight minutes in penalties for the Grads.

* * *

Nobody worked harder to bring victory to the Petes than Bert McLeod. His defensive work stood out while his long shots and dashes in for rebounds gave Varsity supporters heart failure more than once.

* * *

One goal scored with the Petes' goalie off, another kicked in during a scrimmage represent the margin by which Connie Smythe's team enters the finals. It wasn't much of an edge for a team that had been called upon to swamp the Petes.

* * *

Post-mortems are never pleasant affairs, but had the Petes taken the offensive the last ten minutes of the first game and started out last night on the attack, there are a lot of fans who believe the Grads would have been eliminated. The defensive system was a splendid card, but it was overplayed a little in both games.

* * *

Babe Bogardis' work in both games was outstanding. The lightest player on both teams, he was the Petes' best forward; got the only goal of the series, and was a tower of strength going both ways.

MEMBERS LIABLE FOR CLUB DEFICIT

Judge McGlade Gives Decision in Sixth Line U.F.O. Case.

His Honor Judge J. E. McGlade in trying the case of the U.F.O. Club, against certain members who were claimed to be in arrears for the payment of their share of the liabilities, has given judgment in favor of the club against Colonel T. J. Johnston and Robert Knox, and has found that they were entitled to share in the deficit of the club.

This case was a test case tried for the purpose of ascertaining whether or not members of the club were liable for losses that took place in the depreciation of the goods that were sold by the club.

Judgment carries with it costs in favor of the plaintiffs, who were Samuel Armstrong, George W. Fife, W. E. Wood and A. P. Donaldson, the executive members of the Sixth Line Club of Otonabee.

STUDENTS FIGHT AND WRECK HALL

Damage Amounting To $500 Done To Cataraqui Township Building.

CLASS BATTLE.

KINGSTON, Feb. 24.— Damage to the extent of $500 was done to the Township Hall at Cataraqui, according to estimates made by township officials, and two university students were admitted to the General hospital suffering from more or less serious injuries sustained in a free-for-all fight which took place in the hall at Cataraqui late Tuesday night. Reeve Aylesworth has announced that unless an offer of settlement is forthcoming immediately, steps will be taken to bring the offenders to justice.

Freshettes Call Encouragement.

The battle occurred when arts freshmen of Queen's University attempted to hold a sleigh drive and dance, contrary to student regulations for freshmen. Hardly had the party begun when sophomores, juniors and seniors arrived from Kingston, demanding that the freshmen disperse. The commands were disregarded. All the doors of the hall were barricaded on the inside, but windows were smashed and the seniors entered after a spirited tussle lasting 15 minutes, in which the freshettes yelled encouragement to the freshmen.

They fought valiantly, but finally, through press of numbers, they were subdued. Clothes-lines were procured and they were bound hand and foot and propped up against the walls.

Rescuing Party Trapped.

Then the science freshmen arrived on the scene from Kingston intent on rescuing their year mates in arts. They were likewise bound and added to the line against the wall. A council of war was then held by the sophomores and seniors, with the result that the freshmen were forced to walk back to Kingston, a distance of three miles. Girls were given the option of riding or walking, but most of them preferred to walk with their original escorts rather than switch their allegiance. During the fight chairs and other pieces of furniture were broken to pieces.

Principal Taylor is out of town, and a statement of the attitude of the university authorities could not be secured. Where similar cases have occurred in past years they have always been satisfactorily handled by the student courts, and it is probable that the matter will be settled through them.

PRICE COMMENTS UPON BELL CASE

Increase In Rates Too High, Says Attorney General.

TORONTO, Feb. 24.—(Canadian Press.)—"The province of Ontario opposed the increase in Bell Telephone rates and sent special counsel to attend all the hearings of the railway board during the investigation. The province felt, as was explained to the commission, that if there were taken into consideration the profits made by inter-locking companies, that it would not be necessary to make any increase to provide for a fair dividend for the stockholders," stated Hon. W. H. Price, attorney-general, yesterday morning, commenting on the decision of the Dominion board of railway commissioners allowing the company to increase rates.

"This was fully placed before the commission by counsel for Ontario and while the increase is not as high as the Bell Telephone company requested, it still seems to us, under the circumstances, to be too high."

ANOTHER YOUTH IS FOUND SHOT

School Boy Takes Own Life in Father's Manufacturing Plant.

BEEN DESPONDENT.

BRADDOCK, Pa., Feb. 24 (United Press) — A 19-year-old high school student was found dead in his father's barrel manufacturing plant here yesterday with a bullet wound in his head and revolver at his side.

The boy, Nathan P. Weissman, was said by Braddock police to have tried to commit suicide by taking poison a year ago, and they reported his death to the coroner at Pittsburg as suicide. Members of his family denied it.

Employees of the barrel plant heard the pistol report and found the boy.

Police said despondency probably caused the act.

WATCH THE KIDNEYS

Fatigue and that tired feeling is the result of poison in the blood. When the kidneys fail to remove this poison from the system it leads to backache, rheumatic pains and sometimes to that fatal ailment known as Bright's disease. When this condition exists, don't delay, go to your druggist and get a box of Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills and they will quickly correct the cause of your trouble.

Mr. Arthur Pinch of Smith Township states that Dr. Banta's Kidney and Rheumatic Pills give him more speedy relief than any other preparation that he had tried.

OBITUARY.

JAMES O'BRIEN.

The funeral of the late James O'Brien, whose death occurred on Saturday, Feb. 19th, took place on Wednesday morning from St. Mary's church. The deceased although not in rugged health, was ill only a short while and his death came as a shock to his friends. He followed the trade of carpenter, was of unassuming disposition, and had many friends. He was in his 77th year. He leaves to mourn his demise his widow, and one daughter, Mrs. Cook of Saskatoon, and five sons, William and Leo of Toronto, and Thomas, George and Leonard of Saskatoon, Sask.

High requiem mass was sung by Rev. Father Phelan and interment took place in the Roman Catholic cemetery.

The pallbearers were Messrs. S. Johnston, P. Corkery, R. Mahoney, J. Roach, T. Gracey and P. Keenan.

JOHN MONCRIEF

Mr. John Moncrief, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Moncrief, passed away suddenly at his late residence in North Monaghan, on Wednesday morning February 23, at the age of seventy-three.

The late Mr. Moncrief was born in Emily and has been a life-long resident of this vicinity, having retired from active life about seven years ago. He was a member of Trinity United Church.

Besides his sorrowing wife he leaves to mourn his loss, one daughter, Mrs. Hazel Beatty at home; two sons, Norman and Earl of North Monaghan, and seven grandchildren. Six brothers and sisters also survive him, Mrs. George Lockie of Kamloops, B.C., Mrs. Thomas Johnston of Otonabee, Mrs. Robert Morrison of this city, George and Richard of North Monaghan, and William A. of Chicago.

Funeral services, conducted by Rev. David Wren will be held from the late residence of the deceased, Charlotte Street West, on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock, and interment will be made in Little Lake Cemetery.

PERCY COWAN OF BOWMANVILLE SENTENCED AT COBOURG ASSIZES ON CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

Will Serve One Year and Eleven Months in County Jail.

ISSUES WARNING

Penalty Carries Determination to Discourage "Reckless Driving" on Highways.

COBOURG, Feb. 25.—Percy Cowan's apprehensions and prediction that "this will go hard with me" on the evening his automobile snuffed out the life of Ruby Phair, were bitterly realized yesterday in his sentence by Mr. Justice Lennox to imprisonment for one year and eleven months in the county jail here.

"They'll say I'm Cowan, the Bowmanville bootlegger, and because of that reputation this will go hard with me," he had said in Henry Phair's home on the Kingstone road in Darlington Township after Phair's 18-year-old daughter had been carried in lifeless a few minutes after she had set out for church about 7 p.m. on October 21 last and had walked a few rods along the paved highway.

The jury was out two hours and a half, and to their verdict they attached a "strong recommendation to mercy." They were unanimous virtually from the beginning of their deliberations, but did not hurry their agreement. Dinner was ordered for them when they retired at 12.30 p.m., Thursday, and "we took our time talking it over," one of the jurors told The Examiner.

If the Court's thinly veiled, rather obvious reference to the suspension of sentence on Thomas Leslie Diamond by Mr. Justice Logie at Peterborough recently in a slightly similar case had raised Cowan's hopes of escaping actual punishment, the penalty Mr. Justice Lennox imposed must have been a stunning surprise to him, and apparently it was, for he wilted in the corner of the prisoner's box as on Wednesday when cross-examined by T. L. Monahan, Crown Prosecutor, of Toronto. The sentence was also a severe jolt to the prisoner's counsel, D. A. J. Swanson, of Oshawa, whose silent reaction indicated that he was unprepared for a penalty of almost two years in jail.

A great deal of sympathy was expressed for Cowan, whose demeanor suggested a degree of culture not commonly associated with the obscure character of bootleggers. His lawyer said he was a college graduate. A Bowmanville doctor said he had been addicted to liquor. The jury manifestly accepted the Crown's accusation that he was under the influence of liquor while driving that night and did not notice the girl until his car was only a few feet from her.

Many others in the crowd that followed the trial declared their sympathy for the Phair family and their satisfaction with the Court's decision. Mr. Justice Lennox seemed to be taking pains to issue a serious warning to motorists, as he finally addressed the prisoner. His Lordship was stressing the rights of the public, including pedestrians, to safety on the highway, as outside in the sparkling sunshine a new automobile season was honking its arrival. The penalty carried a plain note of exemplariness, a reminder to the drivers of cars that in so far as his duty went he was determined to discourage "reckless scooting" about the country, as His Lordship expressed speeding, joyriding and the other grades of motor madness and pleasure.

His Charge to the Jury.

"If a person knows he is about to drive a dangerous thing, and an automobile is dangerous, if he renders himself less able to control the car than he otherwise would be, then that is a negligent act when he sets out," said His Lordship in his charge to the jury. "There has been no evidence that the prisoner was intoxicated, but there has been a good deal of evidence that he had been drinking and was under the influence of liquor when the accident occurred. There is specific punishment for driving a car while intoxicated. That is a separate offence.

"Mr. Swanson said to you that you must accept Cowan's word. There is no such rule as that. When a man goes into the witness box you do exceedingly well to approach what he says with caution. He must be an exceedingly good man who does not color his evidence a little. Mr. Swanson referred to the police testifying for the accused. Usually they are on the other side, but this is generally the observation that they are decidedly on one side or the other. I don't know the explanation of that."

His Lordship said it was not material whether the car was half off the pavement or not. "Was there

Italian Flag Best Seller To People Of United States

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J., Feb. 25. — United News. — Americans are prone to leave flag waving to the candidates for public office. Only one-tenth of one per cent. of the people of the United States display the National emblem on holidays, Joseph Martin told the delegates to the wholesale stationers' convention on Thursday.

When the harp on a green field was the flag of Ireland, the Irish were the most liberal flag purchasers, he said, but since the establishment of the Free State the Italian standard enjoys the largest sale in America.

LABOR ELECTED IN STOURBRIDGE

Backs Laborites' Claim That Government Has Lost Country's Confidence.

SIXTH SINCE 1924

LONDON, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press).—Labor's victory in the bye-election yesterday for the Stourbridge division of Worcestershire, which is in Premier Baldwin's own county, is held to possess more than ordinary significance as lending color to the claim of the Laborites that the Government has lost the country's confidence. Stourbridge is the sixth such Labor victory since the general elections of 1924.

W. Wellock, Laborite, polled 16,561 votes as against 13,461 for H. C. Hoghen, Conservative, and 5,935 for A. Glen Edwards, Liberal.

An interesting sidelight in the political situation is found in the Liberal press comment on the Russian note, charging the Government with sending a mild message in order to temporize and postpone the intended actual break in the relations between the two countries, until next year, when it would be possible to dissolve Parliament and appeal to the electors on the Russian rupture, which would be considered a more promising electioneering issue than anything in the Government's internal programme.

Four Out Of Five Have Corsets, Says a Vendor

NEW YORK, Feb. 25. United Press. — Although flappers may scorn them, corsets are still being worn by four out of five.

A popular notion that the modern girl had discarded the supporting stays her grandmother wore is disproved by the story of Mrs. Blanchor Green, who every year makes a tremendous profit selling corsets.

Mrs. Green is authority for the statement that more corsets are being sold.

BRITAIN AWAITS SOVIET REPLY

Protest Against Spreading of Propaganda Forwarded To Russian Capital.

ACTED PROPER.

LONDON, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press)—Great Britain's stern protest to Russia was forwarded to Moscow yesterday morning by M. Rosengolz, Soivet representative in London. The British Government has threatened to break off relations with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics if Russia does not mend her ways and cease permitting the spread of propaganda and denunciations against the British Empire.

The foreign office does not expect Russia to reply for a week or more, and among officials there is a feeling of futility with regard to any immediate definite results from the note. The general feeling, however, is that the government acted properly in administering a grave warning, so that if a break comes the Soviet Government cannot say it was not warned.

Ramsay MacDonald, the former Labor premier, in a statement today, said:

"The real question is whether this is a first step for eliminating grievances or the first step towards breaking off diplomatic relations. If the latter, I solemnly warn the government and the country that it is only going to lead to greater difficulties and to increase the liberty which mischief makers now have to damage Great Britain in every part of the world."

SHANGHAI STRIKE BROUGHT TO END

Following the decapitation of More Than One Hundred Agitators.

WORKERS RETURN.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25. Canadian Press. — Shanghai's political strike of 110,000 workers, was about ended last night, brought to a close by the decapitation of more than 100 agitators. They were executed by the soldiers of Marshal Sun Chuan Fung whose heavy swords were used to stop the spread of propaganda by the Nationalist government agents to aid the advance of the Nationalist troops from Hangchow.

Beheadings and shootings which the proclamation of Li Pao Chang, Sun's defence commissioner, admits were by his orders, without question and without trial, probably totalled within five days at least 100. Half of these were done in public where the victims were found, but it is believed that at least fifty Chinese were executed in prisons and within military enclosures.

Agents of the Commissioner were known to have penetrated the French Concession and kidnapped some 30 Nationalist agitators. A few kidnapings were reported to have taken place in the International settlement, but these were not confirmed.

Declare Truce.

The Chinese kidnapped from foreign territory were carried off to the military headquarters, and whether they were executed or not was not known. Simultaneously proclamations declared at least a truce in the political strike and sent throngs of workers back to their jobs. It was halted partly by terrorism and partly by lack of funds of its instigators and the strikers.

Li's proclamation cancelling his orders for execution of persons found delivering public speeches and distributing leaflets or possessing inflammatory literature, said:

"I am touched by the numerous executions by my subordinates. They were prompted thereto by many orders to execute on the spot without question and without trial. This order I now rescind."

The proclamation of the general labor union said that in response to appeals from the merchant body it had taken steps to end the strike for the time being, saying, however, that "this does not necessarily mean that the movement is over because we will continue our efforts to attain our ideals."

WILL SEEK FOR ABOLITION OF EXPORT HOUSES

Counsel to Present Recommendations Before Commission for Abolishment in B.C.

BASED ON FINDINGS

Will Ask That Licenses of Different Companies Not Be Renewed.

WINNIPEG, Man., Feb. 25.—(Canadian Press.)— Recommendations which, if concurred in by the Royal Customs Commission, will mean the abolition of the liquor export houses in British Columbia, will be made to-day by Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., counsel for the commission. Basing his recommendations on a large number of findings which he will ask the commission to make, Mr. Rowell will recommend the enactment of federal legislation which will render impossible the continuance of the export houses. He will ask that the licenses or bonds of the Consolidated Exporters Corporation, and all its branches, the Joseph Kennedy Company, Ltd., the Commercial Bonding Company, Ltd., the British Columbia Distillery and the British Columbia Brewery be not renewed.

In addition to this Mr. Rowell will ask the commission to recommend that the evidence as to violation of the criminal code by the above companies and their officials "be forwarded to the Attorney-General for the province of British Columbia and to the Minister of Justice for appropriate action." Other recommendations providing for collection of arrears of income and sales tax from the companies included in the auditor's statement, will be made.

Evidence Complete.

Notice that findings in the case of the British Columbia export houses would be made at Winnipeg was given by Mr. Rowell during the Vancouver sittings of the commission. Then he stated that opportunity would be given until the close of the sittings at Winnipeg for witnesses who were not available at Vancouver. Now, as far as is known, all the evidence is in, and J. W. Derfarris, of Vancouver, will be here to-day to argue on behalf of certain of the British Columbia liquor interests.

The findings and recommendations which the commission counsel will ask the commission to make, are as follows:

Findings.

That the companies exporting liquors from the Province of British Columbia violated the law in the following respects:

1—Made false declarations in reference to ex-warehouse and in transit shipments and procured false clearances outward.

2—Procured false bills of health, clearances inward, and false and fraudulent landing certificates and present such documents, or procured such documents to be presented, to the government officials who under the law should receive such documents.

3—Made false affidavits to procure the importation of American whiskies into Canada.

4—Procured the printing of false labels and attached such false labels to spirits bottled by them.

5—Forged United States' revenue stamps and caused those stamps to be attached to bottles containing liquor bottled by them.

6—Purported to sell goods for export, but failed to report such goods for export but in fact sold toms authorities.

7—Sold or purported to sell goods for export but in wact sold them for local and domestic consumption. This relates to the Joseph Kennedy Company, Limited.

8—Shipped liquor through the Provinces of Alberta, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and to places in the said provinces.

9—Promised the shipments of liquor by rail to the United States and procured or co-operated in the procuring of false way bills and other documents for the purpose of deceiving the railway authorities and the customs authorities, and failing to enter the said liquor for export.

10—Falsified books and records for the purpose of defrauding the revenue of Canada and enabling directors to defraud such revenue. This relates to Joseph Kennedy, Limited.

11—Falsely billed intoxicating liquors as "peaches" or other fruits, and shipped such liquors to purchasers in other provinces. This applies to Joseph Kennedy, Limited.

12—Fraudulently paid substantial sums of money to provincial government liquor board officials. This applies to the British Columbia Breweries, on behalf of itself, and the British Columbia Distilleries, and to Joseph Kennedy, Limited.

13—Destroyed the books and records in order to destroy the evidence of illegal and fraudulent acts

Parisians Make Uproar When Play Starts Late

PARIS, Feb. 25. Canadian Press. — Parisians are fussy people about their plays. They like them to start on time, and when a recent curtain ascended half an hour late, and the first words of the play were: "What time is it?" a member of the audience shouted "A quarter past nine." Pandemonium ensued and the play was further delayed.

TUNNEL BILL IS APPROVED

Subway Under Detroit River Considered By Commons Committee.

TO COST $12,000,000.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press).—A bill empowering the Detroit and Windsor Subway Company to construct a tunnel under the Detroit River between the two cities was before the Railway and Canals Committee of the House of Commons to-day, and while the committee was favorable to the bill, all the clauses had not been dealt with when it adjourned. The tunnel, it is estimated, will cost twelve million dollars.

AERIAL RIVER DRAINS LAKES

Total Evaporation Attains Flow of 384,000 Cubic Feet a Second, Says Engineer.

IN DIVERSION CASE.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press). — An invisible aerial river, composed of ascending vapors and equal in volume and flow to the St. Lawrence, was described in testimony before Charles E. Hughes to-day in connection with the petition of Wisconsin and other states seeking to restrain the Illinois sanitary district's illegal diversion of water from Lake Michigan. Discussing the effects of the ascending vapors on the levels of the Great Lakes, Leland C. Summer, consulting engineer, witness for the defendants, said the natural process of evaporation going on over the basin of the five Great Lakes and which ultimately converges into an aerial river, attains an average of 384,000 cubic feet per second during the maximum months.

REGINA APPLICATION HEARD BY COMMISSION

Board of Trade Seeks Reduction in Freight Rates.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 25 (Canadian Press) — The application of the Regina Board of Trade for a reduction of 15 per cent. in freight rates and for calculation of the rates on the actual mileage, was discussed before the Board of Railway Commissioners here yesterday. Isaac Pitblado, K.C., representing the Winnipeg Board of Trade, cross examined George Stephen, C. P. R. rate expert and attempted to show that the Regina proposal would have serious adverse results in many directions.

At present rates are based on a "constructive" or assumed mileage which reduces the mileage between Fort William and Winnipeg 130 miles for the purpose of rate making. A similar reduction is allowed between Vancouver and Glacier.

Mr. Pitblado claimed the Regina proposal would affect both eastbound and west-bound freight movements from Winnipeg and would hamper a large and growing business in fresh meats and packing house products.

Another point which Mr. Pitblado brought out was that the present traffic schedule was identical between Minneapolis and Duluth or Fort William and Winnipeg and the increasing of the rate between the two latter points would naturally and inevitably throw the traffic now carried on the Canadian lines into the hands of their United States competitors. In elaborating this point witness pointed out that competition for business was very keen, every important railway system in the United States having permanent offices in Winnipeg for the purpose of securing local trade.

3,000 REGULARS DEFEND BORDER OF SETTLEMENT

Volunteers Also Remain On Duty as Chinese Gather Near Shanghai.

BATTLE IMPENDING.

Defences Are Strengthened Along 20 Mile Front—Labor Situation Normal.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press). — Three thousand British regulars took up defence positions along the borders of the international settlement here tonight because of the situation created by the arrival of Chinese troops in increasing numbers in the city. A big battle between the Northern armies and the Cantonese impended at Sun Kiang with the fate of Shanghai hanging in the balance. Everything points to an early encounter.

With regulars in position, the volunteer defenders of the foreign settlements remained on the alert to aid in preventing native incursions as the opposing Chinese governments struggling for possesion of the city continued to concentrate armies south of here.

The British troops occupy a 20-mile line, part of it running into Chinese territory, surrounding the international settlement. The line is considered indispensable to the defence of the city.

Defences along both international and French settlements were strengthened anew with barbed wire entanglements and sand bags, while machine guns were mounted at startegic points.

No United States Marines have been landed since the defence plans do not call for the use of these in border service.

The Volunteers' Machine Gun Company was mobilized today and held in readiness, while British troops paraded two-inch motor howitzers along the Bund.

Chinese Fleet at Sea.

Officers of the Shantung forces said that the Northern Chinese battle squadron of sixteen ships already had left Thingtao and was due very shortly at Woosung anchorage, off Shanghai.

It was reported that a clash occurred yesterday north of Kassing between Nationalists and soldiers of the defeated Marshal Sun Chuan Fang. The Shanghai labor situation is virtually normal. Not more than eighteen thousand men are still striking. However, radical intimidation of workers continues. Leaflets were distributed among post office employees promising death to those who disobeyed the strike order as soon as the revolutionary army reaches Shanghai.

Half Mill Increase Over Rate For 1926 Is Found Necessary

Loss of $10,000 From Income Tax Among Items Responsible for Increased Levy on Taxpayers of Peterborough.

FOUR-HOUR SESSION IS NEEDED IN ORDER TO REACH THIS FIGURE

Attempt to Cut Rate to Last Year's Level Abandoned on Plea of Efficiency — Delay in Completing Storm Drains Urged.

Peterborough citizens will pay their 1927 taxes at a rate of 36.5 mills on the dollar. This figure, an increase of half a mill over 1926, was reached by the Finance Committee of the Council after four hours of wrestling with estimates, and the increase can be charged to the fact that the increased exemption from municipal income taxes, promised by the Premier and at present implemented by an Act of the Legislature, will cost Peterborough $10,000, or six-tenths of a mill.

Aldermen McIntyre and Hancock held out for last year's rate, urging that the people would appreciate the Council's attempt to keep the rate down even if it were impossible to show a surplus at the end of the year. They moved an amendment, that the rate be set at 36 mills by striking out $6,500 of the $10,000 included for surface drains, $1,000 from the estimate of the Mothers' Allowance Board requirements, and $1,000 from the miscellaneous account. If this could not be done, Alderman McIntyre declared, he would prefer that the item of $7,000 included for a new ladder truck for the Fire Department and struck out, be again included and the rate made 37 mills. This item was being left out, as the Aldermen decided that the purchase should be financed by the issue of debentures or in some other manner.

In opening the meeting, Chairman Ald. Phelan said that he and City Treasurer Frank Adams had gone over the figures and the estimates as tabled by the different committees and other bodies would make a rate of 36.74 necessary, after allowance for the loss of income tax. A cut of $14,000 would be necessary in order to get back to 36 mills. Half of this would be secured by buying the fire truck on debentures.

Items Added

When all the items had been checked over, there had been added $986.50 for the Police Department and $560 for the purchase of lots next the incinerator, while the Exnext the incinerator. These increases balanced against the $7,000 cut off, made the rate 36.6, and Aldermen Fife and Macdonald moved that it be struck there. Ald. Fife said that last year's Council had been returned, a tribute to the efficiency with which the work had been done, and the people had expected an increase in the tax rate. Even at that, the increase was only equal to the amount needed to counteract the loss from income taxes.

Ald. McIntyre disputed the statement that there was a loss of $10,000. He said that the assessment of the city had been increased, making the net difference in taxes $5,000, while there had been a surplus of $9,000 last year. Thus, he said, there was $4,000 more at the same rate. In reply, Ald. Fife pointed out that the operation of the sewage disposal plant would cost $6,000 more than last year, when it ran only part time, and that $3,200 was needed to pay for the Dobbin and Russell properties bought last year. He claimed that the citizens would know of the loss incurred and would believe that the efficiency of the city services was being impaired if the same rate was struck.

Drain Useless Till Complete

Ald. Fife attacked the proposal to strike off $6,500 from the estimate for storm drains. The amount left would be enough to build the drain at the DeLaval, and it would be necessary to leave the west end system incomplete and useless until next year. He was supported in this by Aldermen Macdonald and Stocker, who agreed that the drain was approaching the stage where it would be of some use.

Mayor Holloway's suggestion that a little paring would make a rate of 36.5 mills possible was accepted by Aldermen Fife and Macdonald and they agreed to change their motion. On the vote being taken, the amendment was supported only by the mover and seconder, Aldermen McIntyre and Hancock, and the motion carried.

When the item of $900 for the Manufacturers' Committee for advertising and other efforts to secure industries was passed, the statement was made that the amount spent would depend on what turned up,

GUARDING CITY AGAINST ATTACK OF DESERTERS

Foreign Resident at Shanghai Prepare For Possible Invasion.

PREVENT LOOTING.

Chang Tsun Chang Assumes Complete Control of Kiangsu Province.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 25.— (Canadian Press.) — Foreign residents were called to arms in Shanghai today to prevent possible invasion of their settlements by defeated and demoralized soldiers of Marshal Sun Chuang Fang, deposed ruler of this province of Kiangsu.

Volunteer companies of Americans, Portuguese and Japanese mounted guard to halt any irresponsible body of Chinese soldiers from pouring into the foreign districts and looting homes and business houses as was done a week ago at Hangchow by the same troops before they were forced from that city by the victorius invading Cantonese.

Train loads of Sun's troops arrived from Sungkiang, 28 miles south of Shanghai, where the army of 40,000 men was reported crumbling and falling back toward Shanghai. without waiting for the attack of the Cantonese, moving northward from Hangchow.

A race developed yesterday for possession of Shanghai between troops from Shantung Province under General Chang Tsun Chang and the army of the Nationalist government. Apparently the Shantungese won.

Chang Tsun Chang, once Sun's adversary in the field and recently his supposed ally in the alliance of northern war lords, assumed complete military control of Kiangsu Province, Sun Chuan Fang, only a few months ago war lord of 113,000,000 people of five eastern Chinese provinces, apparently has retired to private life, his whereabouts unknown— a great figure toppled by Cantonese military force and political propaganda, and the duplicity of his ally.

The Shantung troops are pouring into Shanghai to go south to meet the Cantonese enemy almost at Shanghai's gates. Three thousand arrived to-tay from Nanking, and 5,00 are expected daily for the next few days to build up the resisting force against an advancing army said to number 50,000.

The Cantonese are nearing Sungkiang by rail and water from Hangchow. Deserters from Sun's beaten army were halted in their flight toward Shanghai by the arriving Shantung troops. A clash took place so-night at Lunghua, six miles from this city. The Shantungese disarming the fleeing men of Sun.

While Japanese and American volunteers remained on duty all night to guard their concessions against invasion, the lights of some thirty foreign warships burned steadily as the men of war rode at ancor in the Whangpoo river before the city. More than 10,000 foreign soldiers were in the city ready for the call.

OLD MASTERS

When our two souls stand up erect and strong,
Face to face, silent, drawing nigher and nigher,
Until the lengthening wings break into fire
At either curved point—what bitter wrong
Can the earth do us, that we should not long
Be here contented? Think. In mounting higher,
The angels would press on us and aspire
To drop some golden orb of perfect song
Into our deep, dear silence. Let us stay
Rather on earth, Beloved—where the unfit
Contrarious moods of men recoil away
And isolate pure spirits, and permit
A place to stand and love in for a day,
With darkness and the death-hour rounding it.

HOUSE APPROVES FEDERAL SCHEME

Alberta Legislature Considers Amendment To Old Age Pension Bill.

ADOPT MOTION.

EDMONTON, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press)—Dividing along solid party lines with the Liberal, Labor and Conservative groups opposing the government, the Alberta legislature Wednesday adopted, by a vote of 41 to 16, Premier J. E. Brownlee's amendment to the old age pensions motion brought before the house by the Liberal leader, Joseph T. Shaw, Bow Valley, on Tuesday. The Brownlee amendment asked that old age pensions should be a federal matter and that the scheme should be Dominion-wide.

Mr. Shaw's motion asked the legislature, in view of the fact that an old age pension bill was before parliament, to pass legislation in harmony with and complementary to, the federal legislation now before the Ottawa house.

BURNED TANKER YIELDS BODIES

Remains of Two Found Aboard Oil Ship "Black Sea."

MEN SWIM ASHORE.

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Feb 25. — United Press. — Two unidentified bodies were found yesterday on the oil tanker Black Sea, whose cargo of 25,000 gallons of gasoline and refined oil went up in flames late on Wednesday, after an explosion while the ship was being filled at the Standard Oil refinery at Bayonne, N. J.

Other bodies may be found, but the starboard side of the vessel was still red hot when a police launch arrived yesterday, and search was impossible.

Company officials reported after the fire yesterday that the crew of 29 had been accounted for. At the time of the explosion there were some thirty additional laborers on the ship or the pier.

As soon as the ship caught fire it was moved out into the river and towed to the mud flats of Brooklyn. Nine of the crew, including the captain remained on board to fight the fire but were compelled by the heat to jump overboard. They were picked up by tugs.

SEA OF FIRE.

CAMDEN, N.J., Feb. 25. — The captain and mate of the oil tanker Socany, leaped into a virtual "sea of fire," caused by blazing oil on the surface of the Copper River here yesterday and swam 50 feet to safety uninjured.

Chris. Christiansen, the captain, and Ole Johnson are the survivors of the harrowing experience. They were alone on their ship.

The fire, one of the most extraordinary ever witnessed here, started on a lumber barge, and within a few minutes had spread over several hundred square feet of the river's oily surface.

WEDDING BELLS.

CRESSEY—BRILL.

OMEMEE, Feb. 25.—A very pretty winter wedding, of much interest to Omemee people, took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brill, 83 Fisher Street, North Bay, on Monday evening, February 7, when their daughter, Charlotte May, was united in marriage to Harry Cressey, a former Omemee boy. The bride was prettily attired in a coral peach georgette dress, trimmed with diamante and satin trimmings, and carried a shower bouquet of Ophelia roses and lily of the valley. Miss Beth Thompson acted as bridesmaid, and wore a georgette gown of robin's egg blue with silver and lace trimmings, and carried sweetheart roses. Dr. Irving T. Brill of Timmins, brother of the bride, assisted the groom.

During the signing of the register, Mr. William Leighton sang 'All Joy be Thine," accompanied by Miss Jean Rankin at the piano.

A dainty buffet luncheon was served to about fifty guests, the bride's table being tastefully decorated with tulle streamers and roses. Toasts were proposed by Mr. G. B. Alford, Mr. John Small, Dr. Brandon, Mr. McCluskey, Dr. Brill and the father of the bride.

The happy couple left on the 10.40 train for Toronto and eastern points, the bride travelling in a blonde georgette dress trimmed with pleating and gold embroidery, over which she wore a seal coat and rose hat trimmed with gold.

Mr. and Mrs. Cressey were the guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Corneil, who took occasion to entertain a number of friends at a dinner party on Tuesday evening in their honor. The table was centred with a tempting wedding cake, while streamers of rose with matching candles and myriads of hearts adorned the snowy cloth. Added to the table decoration was a huge red Valentine, from which each guest drew a favor to which was attached a humorous quotation.

A toast to the bride was proposed by Rev. E. W. Rowland, and ably responded to by the groom, and a very pleasant evening was enjoyed in music.

PERCY COWAN OF BOWMANVILLE

anything in this case that made it unavoidable that this death should occur? Cowan says he didn't see the girl until he was 4 or 5 feet away. In arriving at your verdict, don't let sympathy for the parents influence you in finding him guilty."

Sentence of the Court.

To His Lordship's formal question, "Have you anything to say why the sentence of this court should not be passed upon you?" Cowan answered "No."

Mr. Swanson—The prisoner has been ill, My Lord, and has suffered more perhaps than a man who might have been sent to jail. This was his first offence. He has had a good record. He is a married man with two children. I hope you can see your way clear to imposing a suspended sentence.

His Lordship shook his head.

"You have had an eminently fair trial," he said to Cowan, "and you had a charge to the jury as favorable as it could possibly be. If the jury had considered you not guilty it would not have been any source of regret to me. It would have relieved me from a very serious duty. I have no doubt at all that the verdict of the jury was eminently just.

"About the question of liquor it is not for me to say which side was true. I have a strong opinion that drink was at the bottom of this, and I am not at all convinced you did not have something to drink on this occasion.

"It must always be a serious trouble to you all your life that you caused the death of this girl, assuming that you are a man of good character. You do not look like a man of criminal intent. Bootlegging does not enter into my consideration one way or another. It is not considered as heinous an offence as it ought to be.

"What concerns us is the death of this girl on a public highway, where I know there is liability to accidents, and for the safety of the public there must be a rigid amount of care exercised by everyone driving a motor vehicle.

"It is said you have a wife and two children, but you had them before this accident. We often hear that appeal to sympathy, and it seems there's almost a case in which there is not a plea for a poor old mother or somebody else who was not thought of until some one has offended against the law."

His Lordship said he had experienced great difficulty in deciding what punishment he should inflict. There must be a public example, especially before the minds of those who are reckless, and who go "scooting" about the country, regardless of everybody. There should be no uncertainty as to what is done when the death of a person is caused in such cases.

"I know there was a case at Peterboro recently in which suspended sentence was given. The man who caused the death in that case was in this court-room two days ago. I don't know why sentence was suspended in his case, and I don't question at all that in the instance it was correct. I should be glad if I could see my way clear to do the same with you, but I can't forget that these people who helped settle this country have lost a daughter whose memory will be a grief to them the balance of their lives.

"The sentence upon you for the offence of which you have been found guilty is that you be imprisoned in the county jail for a period of twenty-three months, one year and eleven months."

The Crown's Summary.

Mr. Monahan told the jury that Ruby Phair had a perfect right to be walking along the highway on the Thursday night she started out to church, and it was Cowan's duty to operate his automobile in a manner that would not result in a menace to anyone else legally using the road. She had gone only a few rods from her home when she was run down, and instantly killed. Brown the bus driver, was able to see the girl. He watched the car as it approached him, and at the same time moved over to his own edge of the road to give Cowan ample room.

"Barnett, an occupant of the bus, saw the girl plainly. These two saw her. Why didn't Cowan see her. He admitted that beyond 75 feet he would be able to see her. Then if he were lookin', why didn't he see her? Was it because he was talking to his friend Christie? I do not say he was intoxicated, but we have strong evidence that he was under the influence of liquor. Was it that he was unable to see her because of that condition? He admits that a man who had been drinking would be less likely to be able to notice an object ahead of him."

Mr. Monahan said that surely the best judge of a man's condition, mentally or otherwise, is a physician.

"You wouldn't call in a lawyer to decide whether a man was under the influence of liquor or not. In this case we have the evidence of Dr. Bird and Dr. Hoig, and one of them is Mr. Swanson's family physician. The Crown does not charge that Cowan was intoxicated, but we do say that he was under the influence of liquor and in the words of these two doctors he wasn't in fit condition to drive a car. They found that opinion because of Cowan's swaying, his statements, and the smell of liquor from him.

The Defence Plea.

Mr. Swanson said a conviction should not be ma If Cowan acted as a normal a reas ble man would act. He had driven a car for more than 20 years and all the experience of that time a behind his driving on the night of the accident. Everything he did, counsel argued, was what a reasonable man would do to avoid striking the girl as soon as he saw her danger.

"Liquor has been interjected into this case," Mr. Swanson said. "If you believe Cowan had a drink or two, is a matter for you to decide, or whether he had drunk to the point that he was a menace to the public. You are not trying Cowan as a bootlegger, any more than if he were a fisherman or laborer. What we have to determine is whether by his negligence he was responsible for the death of the girl. What his business was does not enter into it. I remind you that Chief Jarvis and Constable Hall did not smell liquor on Cowan, and they were both close to him."

Mr. Swanson reviewed the testimony of the witnesses in detail especially with regard to statements bearing on signs of liquor. "The two doctors called by the Crown are honest and honorable men, but they are as likely to be mistaken as you and I are. I suggest to you that when it was seen and said that this man was Cowan the bootlegger, it was thereby suggested in the minds of these doctors that he had been drinking. You know that is a common experience—I say that these doctors then imagined Cowan had been drinking."

Mr. Swanson emphasized the fact that the prisoner had never before been in any court trouble. "You saw he was a man of considerable culture —a gentleman of mind, not so much of appearance, and I contend you must accept his word when he says he did not have a drop of liquor that day. He is innocent until he is found guilty, and he is innocent before you now. If you do not accept his word you stamp him as a liar and perjurer."

SHIPS COLLIDE IN DENSE FOG

Girl Killed As Result of Collision on Chesapeake Bay.

NARROW ESCAPES.

BALTIMORE, M.D., Feb. 25. — (Canadian Press).—Death darted a cold hand into a dripping fog blanket on the bosom of the Chesapeake early to-day, but of the more than 200 lives at which it snatched, only one was taken, Miss Virginia Starkey, of Baltimore, a passenger in a forward cabin of the Chesapeake Bay Line steamer City of Annapolis, which sank after collision with its sister ship, City of Richmond, was missing when passenger lists were checked here. The ship's records showed 100 persons aboard, 47 passengers and 53 of the crew. Ninety-nine were found safely on the decks of the City of Richmond after the City of Annapolis sank.

The palatial liners, which nightly saluted each other 100 miles down the bay on the route between Baltimore and West Point, Virginia, loomed from the fog like specters Thursday morning. The whistle notes which ordinarily wafted courteous greetings swelled to bellowings of disaster. The ships met not quite head-on, at an angle which sent the bow of the City of Annapolis glancing off, and drove the knife-like prow of the City of Richmond fifteen feet into her sister's port side, just forward of the forward gang plank.

Stove In Side.

Miss Starkey occupied cabin 79, directly in the path of the City of Richmond's rending prow. Another passenger, Marshall Lee, of Baltimore, awoke to find the City of Richmond's prow in his state-room and the cabin filling with water and steam. He escaped with a wrenched back.

Rives Fleming, president of the Cameron Stove Company of Richmond, Va., who occupied cabin 78 on the City of Annapolis, told of his bed being crumpled by the City of Richmond's invading hulk a few minutes after he had left it. He said cabin 79, which adjoined his, appeared totally crushed. Fleming's life was saved by a glance from the porthole when the sirens awoke him. He saw the hulk of the City of Richmond bearing down, and rushed across the room before the vessels crashed. His cabin door was jammed shut but panels were knocked out and a ship's officer pulled him free.

A woman's screams, which continued for five minutes, were heard by George Stieff, of Baltimore. He ran on deck to find the ships "jammed in a knot together."

Statements of both Captain Welling and Captain G. C. Clayton of the City of Annapolis, made when they reached Baltimore, were substantially alike. Both said the other had appeared suddenly from the dense fog. Both had sirens sounding and both attempted to reverse their engines, but it was too late.

HALF MILL INCREASE OVER RATE FOR 1926

and Ald. Denne expressed the hope that something would turn up, even if the appropriation were exceeded. "There's not much there to make anything turn up," was Ald. Greene's comment.

Police Estimates

Criticism of the administration of Chief Newhall was voiced by Ald. Stocker when the Police Department estimates were considered. He said that the Chief was making a convenience of the city by hiring a man on the force in the winter time and using him for his own garden in summer. The item of $300 as salary for the Chairman he also considered unnecessary saying that it meant $30 each for ten short meetings. Two hundred dollars was not needed for the convention, according to Ald. Stocker, because it did not cost a man and his wife anything to go, as the railways and other agencies "franked him through." He said that the aldermen did not know how long the chief worked, as he was away at his convention for some weeks and down the river for a time every summer.

Inability of the Council to do more than grant the whole amount asked for or to cut it without specifying what items were to be left off was conceded by Ald. Stocker, who said that previous councils had secured this right. He bemoaned the lack of an "unmuzzled press" to deal with such matters, and also the lack of backbone of the Council.

The increase in the police estimates was made up largely of an item of $600 for half payment of insurance on the force, and $200 additional for Police Matron Adjutant Amy Wood. Mayor Holloway said that if these items were struck out the chief could get along on $25,000 but that he would recommend that they be included. Ald. McIntyre favored accepting the Mayor's recommendation, and Ald. Stocker said it would be money well spent.

Miscellaneous Grants

Among the special grants passed was one of $300 for the Peterborough Hockey Club. Another, put on the list for the first time at the suggestion of Ald. Ackerman, was $100 for the Humane Society. When this was passed Ald. McIntyre pressed for an increase in the grant to the Sick Children's Hospital from $25 to $100, saying $100 for dogs and $25 for children seemed out of proportion. Mayor Holloway said "These are our own dogs," and pointed out that any patients sent to the hospital would have to be paid for either by their parents or by the city.

An item of $500 for improving James Stevenson Park was questioned by Ald. McIntyre. He proposed that the houses could be left there for another year, saying that the present would be a poor time to try to sell them. Ald. Cotton answered that the money would then be needed to repair them, setting out the bad state of the roofs. Ald. Hancock sounded a note of optimism when he said that if people continued to come to Peterborough as they had in the past two weeks all the houses would be needed.

Ald. Cotton said that the Council had gone over the park and decided on a scheme of improvement, and now at the first meeting an attempt was being made to throw it out. Ald. McIntyre asked what they would do for money and said it could be left until next year. Ald. Greene said, in reply to this, "As long as you're on the Council we will have the same fight over the estimates.

Detailed figures will be given in The Examiner tomorrow.

EXHUME BODY FOR INQUEST

Post Mortem Held on Indian From the Saugeen Reserve.

DIED AFTER QUARREL.

SOUTHAMPTON, Ont., Feb. 25 —The body of David Thompson, the Saugeen Indian, aged 65, whose death on the Reserve here on Dec. 2nd last is being investigated by the Crown authorities, was exhumed at the Indian cemetery yesterday afternoon. The body was later brought to Southampton, where a post-mortem was conduced by Dr. C. J. Laird, of Southampton, and Dr. C. C. Belyea of Port Elgin. A coroner's jury was impanelled and, after viewing the body the inquest was adjourned until Wednesday, March 9, when a full report of the medical examination will be presented to the jury.

Thompson's death occurred just three days after a quarrel with another Indian, while they were cutting wood in a bush at a place near here known as the Scotch Settlement, and there are certain grounds for suspicion that injuries he may have received at the time may have had something to do with his death. It is understood that the post-mortem reevaled that the man had been in a fairly healthy state at the time of his death, yet it could not be found that he had suffered inter nal injuries that would cause his death. There were other things, however, which could not be given out for publication until the inquest was held.

An Introduction of Captain Noel

Folks, meet Captain John B. Noel, F.R.G.S., explorer-lecturer, who will give his cinema-illustrated lecture at St. Paul's Church tonight.

As long ago as 1913, the urge to explore unknown and dangerous places made itself felt in Captain John Noel. In that year he made a perilous journey in disguise to Tibet and succeeded in approaching nearer to Everest than any white man had hitherto done. He later received the Cuthbert Peak grant of the Royal Geographical Society for exploration in Tibet and in the Mazandaran forests of the Caspian Provinces of Persia. He retired from the regular army in 1920 and was appointed photographic officer of the 1921 and of the three subsequent Mount Everest Expeditions; upon each of which hazardous journeys he won for himself not only high public praise, but also the unstinted admiration of his fellow-explorers. To quote Lieutenant-Colonel E. F. Norton in his record, "The Fight for Everest, 1924": "Noel was absolutely indefatigable in his efforts to recover every phase of the daily life and of the achievements of the Expedition. . . He was usually off ahead of the main party in the morning and was the last to arrive in camp in the evening." Elsewhere Lieut.-Colonel Norton records how once, when returning from an exceptionally tiring ascent, the party was met by Capt. Noel some distance from camp, carrying a most welcome supply of hot soup. "Noel had a peculiar genius for coming out strong at times like this."

By failure to make export entries of liquor exported and by making false entries of the destination of shipments of liquor, the exporting companies prevented the government of Canada from discharging its obligation under the anti-smuggling treaty with the United States.

Statue Too White; Given Bath Of Tea

LONDON, Feb. 25.—(Canadian Press.) — The recently unveiled statue of Joseph Chamberlain in the lobby of the House of Commons is so pure and white that it has been given a bath of tea to tone it down. The bath proving ineffective, it will be doused with caffeine.

CASTLETON MAN GETS NEW TRIAL

Morgan Hall To Stand Trial at Cobourg Fall Assizes.

TWO CHARGES

COBOURG, Feb. 25. — The new trial of Morgan Hall of Castleton which was ordered a week ago at Osgoode Hall by the First Appellate Division has been traversed to the Fall Assizes. Hall was yesterday admitted to bail of $1,500 in two sureties, $1,000 by George Thompson of Cobourg and $500 by Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gall.

The appeal was granted from the sentence by Mr. Justice Logie here last fall to three years in the penitentiary at Kingston on Hall's conviction by a jury on a serious offence. The principal witness at the former trial was Lily Forster, 25 years of age. The Appeal Court's decision stated that there was misdirection of the jury and failure to place the defence fully and fairly before the jury. Hall now faces two charges, the original one and another in which the charge is modified and reduced.

GLAND OPERATION IS A TOTAL LOSS

Absolutely No Use To Profession, United States Decides.

(By Gerald P. McLean, United Press Staff Correspondent.)

CLEVELAND, O., Feb. 25.—The leading American physicians were united yesterday in agreeing that the much-discussed monkey gland operation has turned out to be a total loss to the medical profession.

What was reputed to be the "inside story" on a treatment that was once hailed as an up-to-date fountain of youth reached the ears of doctors who are getting the "low-down" on their business at the annual convention in Cleveland of the American College of Physicians.

London society women, it was understood, have become victims to the rejuvenation fad in large numbers, and their conduct has become increasingly simian in tendency. They play apish tricks and declare a preference for nuts, raw vegetables and similar monkey foods, the gossip goes.

Dr. William A. Ackroyd, Binghamton, N.Y., heard the scandal and uttered an emphatic, "I told you so."

"It's just as clear as sunlight," Dr. Ackroyd said. "My observation has been that the skittish old parties who get a set of ape glands act like two-year-olds simply because six weeks' peace and rest in a hospital will put any man on his feet again. Another thing, they really believe they are going to lose 30 years at one blow—and that helps, too."

Dr. W. N. Craig, St. Louis, Mo. told one.

"I understand that operations were performed on six members of an exclusive club in St. Louis," he said. "After their release from the hospital they were brought back to their elegant quarters and put in bed. The next morning club members found all six roosting in the trees outside the window. And, would you believe it," he added, "those men have eaten nothing but cocoanuts and a few bananas."

SESSION OVER BEFORE EASTER

Parliament Expected To Prorogue About April 14.

OTTAWA, Feb. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Prorogation of parliament by Easter is now forecast in parliamentary circles. Easter falls this year on April 17 and rumor is that prorogation may take place about Thursday, April 14.

Shot Gun And Mop Form Apparatus For Suicide

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Feb. 25.—(Canadian Press).—Sitting in the front window of his former home late Wednesday, Frank T. Hidde, 45, awaited the coming of his wife and children. Opposite him on another chair he had propped up a shot gun and his hand held a mop. As Mrs. Hidde and her daughters stepped from an automobile in front of the house he touched the trigger of the gun with the mop handle and the entire charge from the weapon entered his heart.

Lyrics Of Life

(By Douglas Malloch.)

FROST PICTURES

I know what all the pictures mean
God paints upon the window-pane.
He always paints a tropic scene
When winter whistles up the lane
Or down the street—gigantic trees,
And lovely palms, and things like these.

The window's full of graceful leaves
And covered with the prettiest ferns.
Although the winter whines and grieves,
Summer that very night returns
A little while upon the glass
With southern flow'rs and tropic grass.

It's just to remind us children all,
And grown-ups, too, when winter's here
To think of summer. Snows may fall
And winds seem cold and days seem drear,
But God has written on the pane
That Summer will soon be here again.

SAVING OF CHINA NECESSARY SAYS MISSION DOCTOR

Salvation of Orient and of Whole World Depends On It.

TELLS OF WORK.

Dr. Fraser Smith Gives Interesting Talk in Marmora Church.

MARMORA, Feb. 25.—"We must save China to save the Orient, to save Canada, and to save the whole world", was the striking statement which concluded a very telling address given in the United church on Tuesday evening by Dr. Fraser Smith, veteran returned medical missionary from Honan, China. Bolshevism is determined, he declared, to have China, then the Orient, and then the whole world. China was never in a more chaotic condition than now. Never were there such hordes of military men carrying destruction, pillage, and death to thousands of her people as China saw today.

Dr. Smith agreed with another speaker who had said that it was a race to the finish between chaos and Christ. Leaders of various groups were employing war in seeking ascendancy and missionaries were greatly emperilled thereby.

At the outset of his address, he declared that the world was not better than it is today because the church of Christ had failed to do her duty in witnessing. She was less missionary and more self centred. "The time may come", he warned his hearers, "when the dark ages may be repeated."

Dr. Smith proceeded to give a few word pictures of his work in Honan, after quoting words of the late Dr. Hudson Taylor, "If your missionaries succeed in entering Honan, it will be only as they go forward on their knees." Honan, he said, was one of the most hostile provinces in China. Mr. and Mrs. Goforth were the first to go into Honan from the church which sent them. They were at once aware of the density of the population. They found a village there for every farmhouse standing on a hundred acres here in Canada. Seven people out of every ten need a doctor's help in that land.

Dr. Smith then gave instances of the treatments given by Chinese doctors who believe all disease to be caused by the indwelling of bad spirits. The poverty of the masses was described and the politeness with which they impart the unpleasant to the foreigner. The speaker mentioned that he and his companion had to travel around for two years before they could get a place in which to reside. Medical work was the greatest thing in the way of overcoming prejudices against the missionaries. Dr. Smith gave interesting details of this work which was carried on in the yards of their peculiar inns. The Chinees take medicine by the bowlful and not by the spoonful. With regard to conversions, it was mentioned that whereas it took ten years to get ten adult members of the church in Honan, today after thirty years of work, six thousand members and ten thousand catechumens are to be numbered there. Dr. Smith was introduced to the small gathering present by Rev. C. J. Beckly in a very apt speech following opening exercises. A collection was taken to defray expenses.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 25. — The Northumberland Regimental Band will give another band concert in the Regent theatre on Sunday evening at 8.30 p.m.

Miss Ruth Plumpton, who has been in Toronto for the past two weeks, is home. Miss Plumpton leaves on the first of March for Colborne, where she has accepted a position.

Miss Muriel Mills entertained a number of her friends at her home on Tuesday evening.

Miss Marion Haig and Miss Nellie Haig entertained about forty of their friends on Tuesday evening at Miss Nellie Haig's home on Inkerman street. The evening was spent in contests and dancing and the hostesses served a very dainty lunch.

The death occurred in Toronto on Feb. 22nd, at her late residence, 17 Spadina Road, of Mrs. Edmund G. Burke. The late Mrs. Burke was a former resident of town, her husband at one time owning and managing the Northumberland paper mill here.

STUDENTS MUST PAY FOR PRANK

Cataraqui Reeve Will Sue Unless $500 Is Paid To-day.

WILL PUSH CASE.

KINGSTON, Ont., Feb. 25.—W. R. Aylesworth, Reeve of the Township of Kingston, has instructed the student body of Queen's University, who took part in the rumpus in the township hall, Cataraqui, on Tuesday evening, that unless there is a settlement for the damage amounting to $500 by this morning at 10 o'clock, it is his intention to institute proceedings.

The Kingston Township Reeve yesterday had a conference at the court house with Dr. W. E. McNeill, registrar of Queen's University. The meeting lasted for about one-half hour.

That the case would be proceeded with even if a settlement for damages is made, was the information given yesterday by Mr. T. J. Rigney, Crown Attorney, who intimated that he intended to push the case if the necessary charges were made and the evidence secured.

BAPTIST PASTOR LEAVING TOWN

Rev. E. D. Ford Going To Southampton—S. A. Officer Leaves Campbellford.

FAREWELL DINNER.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 25—Rev. Edmund D. Ford and Mrs. Ford and family leave next week for Southampton where Mr. Ford has accepted the pastorate of the Baptist Church. Rev. Mr. Ford came to Campbellford, Dec. 1st, 1924, and is leaving after a successful pastorate of over two years.

On Sunday morning Mr. Ford will conduct a baptismal service and in the evening the theme of his sermon will be: "The Fork in the Road."

Since coming to Campbellford, Mr. and Mrs. Ford have made a large number of friends who regret their departure, and wish them every good wish in their new home.

Farewell to Officer

A large number of officers and friends of the Salvation Army gathered in the Army Hall on Wednesday evening to tender a farewell supper to Lieut. Matthews who is transferred to Haliburton. The tables were all nicely decorated and a bountiful supper was served by the convenors, Mrs. Clarke, Mrs. Collard and Mrs. Bennett. Several old soldiers of the corps spoke with feelings of regret at the Lieutenant's departure and wished him every success and promotion in his work. Lieutenant Matthews replied in a few well chosen words, thanking them all for their many deeds of kindness and assuring all that he would never forget his pleasant associations in Campbellford.

Lieut. Hallam of Haliburton is here to assist Captain Wright.

Rev. James Grier, pastor of St. Andrew's Church, has been confined to his home for the past week.

ST. JOHN'S LEAGUE

Citizenship Department Has Charge of Good Programme.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 25. — The Young People of St. John's United Church held their weekly meeting on Monday evening. The President, Mr. G. F. Phillips, presided over the opening part of the meeting, after which Mr. Craighead, the convenor of the citizenship department, had charge of the following programme: Scripture lesson by Miss Hazel Bibby; reading, Miss Irene Dunk; instrumental solo, Miss Irene Stephens; vocal solos, Mr. Howard Shapter, and Mr. A. Hazell.

Mr. J. H. Bell gave an interesting talk on "Courage," which was much appreciated by all. Mr. A. Hazell led in comunity singing. The orchestra, consisting of Ronald Hazell, Billie and Ronald Richardson, gave several selections. The Hudson car is still in the lead for attendance.

CHURCH CONCLUDES SUCCESSFUL YEAR

LAKEFIELD, Feb. 24. — The Lakefield Presbyterian church has concluded a very successful year with Rev. Mr. Ross as its minister, inducted on August 15th last. Services are being held morning and evening in the Queen street theatre and at the beginning of this year a Sunday school was opened with four teachers and twenty scholars. A. Fairbairn and P. White are the elders, the former being the representative elder and Messrs. J. M. Simpson, Robert Garbutt, J. W. Ridpath and Robert Duff comprise the Board of Management. There are twenty-five families and fifty individuals. The weekly envelope is used successfully. The amount of money raised during the year for all purposes was $1,486.00. The W. M.S. raised $125 and the amount of $4.50 was paid the Synod and Presbytery funds. The congregation is free of debt and is greatly encouraged by the results of the year's work.

Mr. Kenneth E. Fletcher of Saskatoon, Sask., is visiting relatives in the village and vicinity. This is his first trip east and he has enjoyed visiting the province which was formerly the home of his parents, and making the acquaintance of many relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Crawford entertained a number of friends on Friday evening in his honor and a delightful evening was spent in progressive euchre, music and conversation. Prizes for euchre were won by Miss Willa Darling and Mr. R. J. Lennox.

...DEFENDER OF CIVIL LIBERTY... STRENGTHENER OF LOYALTY ... PILLAR AND STAY OF DEMOCRATIC GOVERNMENT.

IT MEANS MILLIONS.

The final report as to the qualities of Garnet wheat just issued by L. H. Newman, Chief Dominion Cerealist at the Ottawa Experimental Farm, is one of the most important announcements in years.

It means the saving of many millions of dollars to the wheat-growers of the West, and rolls back the cereal belt many miles nothward, opening up new territory of millions of acres for cultivation.

The new variety of wheat, according to Mr. Newman, will ripen from five to ten days earlier than even the Marquis wheat, making it possible to harvest the crop that much earlier and avoid frosts, while at the same time the wheat can be grown in more northern sections than any other variety.

The Garnet wheat has been thoroughly tested, and the official report leaves no doubt as to success.

It is difficult to estimate the addition to the national wealth that is represented by this discovery, but measured in terms of dollars it will be enormous.

ROWDY STUDENTS.

It looks as if a course in courtesy could profitably be added to the curriculum of Queen's University.

The conduct of older students of that institution of learning in breaking up a dance held by members of the arts freshmen, doing much damage to the hall in which the affair was being held and compelling the girls in attendance to choose between riding back to Kingston with them or walking three miles through the slush, smacks more of hooliganism than of the culture that there is a right to expect from college students.

According to the municipal authorities at Cataraqui, where the disturbance took place, $500 damage was done to the Town Hall as a result of the fight that developed between the two factions.

If anything of that nature was done by youths outside the college atmosphere there would be censure from all sides, and the fact that the rioting was carried on by students should not cause any reluctance on the part of the authorities to punish those most responsible for the deplorable affair.

CALLING ON THE LASH.

Magistrate Brunton, of Toronto, in sentencing three young men convicted of robbery with violence to short terms in jail but adding lashes to the sentence, is adopting a method of punishment that is regarded by many people as a more effective deterrent than are long sentences.

It is of interest to note that at the Cobourg Assizes this week Mr. Justice Lennox expressed his firm belief that the lash was necessary in many cases, and that such a form of punishment was most effective.

The average criminal dreads the "cat-o'-nine-tails" much more than he does a long sentence, and the knowledge that the lash is likely to be substituted for the greater portion of the usual prison term is likely to give many would-be holdup men reason to adopt some other less hazardous and more legitimate method of obtaining money.

Magistrate Brunton himself, speaking of cases of robbery with violence, declares his intention of putting a deterrent to crimes of this nature.

"I am not a believer in long terms of imprisonment," he said, in passing sentence, "but believe that with a more general application of the 'cat-o'-nine-tails' these crimes can be stamped out."

GOOD BUSINESS.

The Dominion Government, in extending the free entry permits of United States tourists into Canada to sixty days, is taking a step that should be of material benefit in further developing the tourist traffic.

The extension will be a convenience to many visitors, who are likely as a result to lengthen their stay on this side of the border, with consequent general benefit.

Anything that tends to bring in more tourists or to keep them here longer is good business.

So far as Canada is concerned, the revenue derived from the tourist traffic has come to be a very large addition each year to the country's wealth, and there is no reason why the number of visitors should not continue to increase as road conditions are improved and more motor cars are put into commission.

As a recent Government pamphlet puts it, the world's annual tourist business is in the "billion-dollar" class, and is one of the grants of competitive world trade.

Canada's recreational resources are a lodestone which each year draw millions of visitors to this country, and they form a varied source of wealth which annually adds a large and rapidly growing item to the national income.

TAX REDUCTION OR DEBT REDUCTION?

The Dominion Government has been fortunate, in that buoyancy of revenue followed its tax reductions of last session. Internal prosperity and business activity has kept high the returns from the sales tax, income tax, excise tax and other sources of revenue. A big increase in imports has made an important difference in the customs receipts. Railway traffic has been heavy, and the deficit on National Railway operations is cut down. There should be a handsome surplus in the fiscal year which ends next month. But the estimates just presented, for expenditure next year, show an increase.

The present administration is on record as favoring tax reduction, though now that it is securely established in office it may not go so far as it did in the pre-election session. And the country as a whole is very much in favor of tax reduction. In fact, taken altogether the recommendations that have been made would pretty well wipe out the entire Dominion taxation. Between abolition of the income tax, and reduction or abolition of the customs, duties and of the stamp taxes, there would be little left. Whatever step is taken is, therefore, sure to please some and offend others. That is in the nature of government.

But there is a real body of opinion in Canada that favors caution in making such reductions. We cannot always have prosperity and buoyant revenues. And very little reduction has as yet been effected in the Dominion debt. We did not pay our war costs as we went along—that would have been scarcely possible—but instead, we borrowed money and levied new taxes to carry the debt. While the growth of the country is gradually reducing the burden on each one, the safest plan is to keep taxation sufficiently high to assure an annual surplus available for debt reduction.—Monetary Times.

REDUCING THE NATIONAL DEBT.

One of the most interesting and encouraging passages in Mr. Robb's Budget speech dealt with the national debt.

In the four fiscal years ending March 31, 1927, the reduction effected in the net debt will have been $95,000,000, of which the present fiscal year accounts for $31,000,000.

The process of debt redemption has been most satisfactory in the past twelve months. On Oct. 1, 1926, and Nov. 15, 1926, the two-year 4 per cent. notes amounting to $35,000,000 and $8,000,000, respectively, a total of $43,000,000, matured and were redeemed. The result will be the saving of an annual interest charge of $1,720,000. The whole $43,000,000 was retired without a fresh loan. At the close of the fiscal year 1925-26 the Treasury had on hand assets in cash of $27,068,121.38. This sum, with the surplus accruing in 1926-27, enabled it to meet the two maturing loans.

On Nov. 15, 1927, the three-year 4 per cent. notes, amounting to $8,000,000, will mature. The Finance Minister hopes to redeem them in cash, thus saving $320,000 in annual interest. On Nov. 1, 1927, the 5 1-2 per cent. renewal loan of 1922, amounting to $29,068,400, will also mature. It is expected that at least a portion will be redeemed in cash. The remainder, if any, will be redeemed by the flotation of a new loan at a reduced rate of interest.

On Dec. 1, 1927, a portion of the 1917 Victory Loan, 5 1-2 per cent., tax free, amounting to $63,437,250, will mature. This loan will be redeemed by the flotation of a new loan, also at a lower interest rate, effecting an annual saving of $1,000,000.

Thus the burden of the national debt is being lightened in two ways—by the retirement of debt out of cash surpluses and by refunding at reduced interest charges.—London Advertiser.

NATIONAL SELF-CRITICISM.

It is startling to an outsider to find the Saturday Evening Post complaining of an inferiority complex in an increasing number of Americans. The popular and conventional idea is that Americans are boastful and self-sufficient to a fault. But it is always a good thing to be shaken out of any conventional rut, so the Post's opinion is worth considering. The writer says that the Americans of whom it complains accept automatically foreign opinion in every difference between the United States and another country. 'To these men and women America is always wrong—wrong at home and abroad. If we mix in the affairs of Latin America we are cunningly planning to start a war for the oil interests. If we do not mix in the affairs of Europe we have lost our soul."

It is interesting also to find the Post holding up to the United States the example of Great Britain as a country where Lords and Commons alike are for the Empire first, last and all the time. "They exclaim as a great American once exclaimed, 'Our country, right or wrong.' But in their eyes it is always right." This surely is an erroneous description. There has always been in Great Britain a great deal of criticism of the foreign policy of the British Government. There was, for instance, a very strong body of public opinion in Great Britain which took the side of the Americans in the revolutionary war. There were many British sympathizers with the French revolution though the governing classes held the opposite sentiment. There was strong opposition in England to the Crimean war with Russia, to the early war with China, and to the Boer war.

It is true that in these cases the protest was that of a minority, and the country as a whole was swept by war sentiment. That must always be expected once war is declared, and the fighting spirit is aroused. The war spirit in a similar manner swept away all opposition to the war with Spain, if there was any opposition. James Russell Lowell's protest against the war with Mexico was unavailing. In no country was suppression of pacifist sentiment carried further than in the United States during the late war in Europe.

But we may take the Post's article as recognizing a growing spirit of criticism. We perceive it in domestic affairs in such books as Sinclair Lewis' "Main Street" and "Babbitt," and in foreign affairs in the protests against the attitude of the Government of the United States in relations with Latin American Governmentse. It is a tendency not to be regretted. A check is needed, not only upon capitalists selfishly interested in war, but upon jingoes who are always ready to shout for war, without regard to right or wrong, or who cannot understand that a Government may be wrong in taking action leading to war just as it may be wrong in any domestic affair. There is not much danger of such criticism going too far, because the critic is usually unpopular, and must have remarkable moral courage to face the public opinion which brands him as lacking in patriotism.

In domestic matters also criticism is wholesome, if it arouses people to a sense of their defects and tends toward improvement. This is a very different thing from what is known as an inferiority complex, which meekly accepts an inferior national status as natural, inevitable and permanent. In new countries especially we ought to be constantly looking forward, regarding the achievements of the past as ground gained for fresh effort. This ought to be the dominant note of our own celebration of the jubilee anniversary of Confederation.—London Advertiser.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Budget debate in the House of Commons is expected to terminate soon. The end cannot come too quickly.

Hon. Mr. Raney's bill to prevent campaign fund subscriptions is likely to be given a quick burial. Neither of the old parties like it.

It is said that Mr. Hanna's salary as Chairman of the Government Control Board is to be $25,000 a year. He will be strong financially at any rate.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—With only three carloads of fresh arrivals, there was a good clean-up of the balance of the week's livestock offerings at steady to firm prices. The only exception was in the bull section, where a few of the big heavy fellows were hard to place, neither the local packers nor the export buyers caring to handle them. In the late trading Wednesday several lots of choice heavy steers sold at good prices, one load, 1,450-lb. steers, selling at $7.90.

In the hog section packers' bids are steady at $10.75 f.o.b. for week-end loadings.

Choice finished butcher steers, handy weights, 950 to 1,000 lbs., steady to firm at $7 to $7.25. Good medium butcher steers going at $6.50 to $6.75. Extra choice heavy beef steers, $7.50 to $7.75.

Good market for fat butcher cows, with a shade firmer feeling at $5 to $5.50, and a few special at around $6.

Calves steady at $12 to $14.

Sheep and lambs steady. Lambs $13 to $13.25.

Hogs remain steady with last week on basis of $10.75 f.o.b. and $11.65 off cars.

GOT HER FEET WET CAUGHT BAD COLD

Mrs. Ernest Hall, Cardinal, Ont., writes:—"Last winter I got my feet wet and I caught a terrible cold. I took different kinds of medicine, but none did me any good and I seemed to be getting worse all the time.

One day I was reading about what your medicine had done for others, so thought I would get a bottle. After I had taken a few doses I found it was helping me, so I took a few bottles and was completely restored to health. I cannot praise too highly, as I believe that if it were not for it I would be an invalid today."

Price 25c. a bottle, large family size 60c.; put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press).—Fresh breaks in grain values yesterday were partly overcome by later good rallies. Corn and oats both reached new low price records for the season. Further liquidating sales of corn acted as an early bear factor in all the cereal pits, but subsequently notice was taken of better export buying of wheat and of lessening of receipts of corn.

Wheat closed unsettled, 1-8 to 3-4c net lower; corn 1-8 to 1-2c off; oats 1-4 to 3-8c down, and provisions at 2 to 27 cents advance.

Rallies in corn and oats were associated to some extent with a better eastern demand for corn shipments from here. Country offerings of corn to arrive were generally small.

Provisions owed their advance chiefly to upturns in the value of hogs and of cottonseed ail.

CHICAGO CATTLE

CHICAGO, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press).—Cattle 11,000; bulk heavy steers $8.00 to $12.00; extreme top $12.75; best long yearlings $11.70; bulk fat steers $8.75 to $11.25; common light steers to killers downward to $8.00; bulls strong; most medium bulls $6.00 to $6.50; vealers $10.00 to $12.00 to packers.

Hogs, 32,000; top $11.90 paid for 140 to 160 pounders; bulk desirable light hogs, $11.60 to $11.85; most medium weight butchers $11.45 to $11.65; bulk 250 to 300 pound weights $11.35 to $11.45; bulk packing sows $10.25 to $10.50; most better grade pigs $11.50 to $11.75.

Sheep 15,000; choice handy weights to shippers and small killers $14.40; desirable lambs mostly $13.75 to $14.25; heavy lambs $13.50 to $13.85; slipped lambs $11.50 to $12.25; fat ewes $8.00 to $9.00; top feeding and shearing lambs $13.50.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press).—The only foreign business done on the Montreal grain market esterday was the sale of odd loads of low grade barley and oats to the United Kingdom.

The trade in the domestic market was also slow, but prices for American corn and Canadian Western oats were unchanged.

The flour market was without any new feature to note, the demand for Spring and Winter wheat grades being of a limited character and prices were unchanged.

The demand for all lines of millfeed showed an improvement and the undertone was firm. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet and the feeling was easy.

There were no further developments in the local egg situation, but the undertone was easy at the decline in prices noted and the prospects are that they may go still lower in the near future. The receipts were 1,494 cases.

The volume of business transacted in potatoes was small, and the feeling was easier, but there was no further change in prices. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were sold at $1.60 to $1.65 per bag of 90 pounds, while Quebec White potatoes sold at $1.10 to $1.15 per bag of 90 pounds in bulk, ex-track, and New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.05 to $1.10 per bag of 80 pounds, ex-store.

The demand for butter was confined to small lots, but the undertone was firm and prices were unchanged. New Zealand finest creamery butter was quoted at 41 3-4c to 42c. The receipts were 2,872 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade but values were unchanged. The receipts were 70 boxes.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

(By C. N. Lurie.)

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

(By the McClure Syndicate, Inc.)

"A FRIEND OF MINE"

Although it is questioned sometimes that the expression, "a friend of mine," and other similar expressions, are correct English, they are considered correct, and good idiomatic English, by the authorities.

What would you use in place of "a friend of mine?" Would you say "a friend to me" or "my friend?" Neither of these has the force and expressiveness of "a friend of mine." "Mine," says the dictionary, means "of or belonging to me," and one dictionary quotes Thackeray, English novelist, as writing, "That unhappy sister of mine."

Commenting on this use of "mine," one writer on good English says that in this case, as in many others, "most of us are content to regard usage as the best warrant for good English." And usage certainly supports "a friend of mine."

WISE AND OTHERWISE

The king of England has invented a new buttonhole, says a dispatch. A strip of elastic across the lapel to hold a flower. We thought most of the kings nowadays carried their lilies in their hands, but this new announcement is important if true.

The kings could organize a union of buttonhole artisans. Mussolini would lend the organization King Victor Emmanuel, who could paint them.

King George could specialize in some kind of buttonhole which the prince could fasten to a button on his steed.

King Ferdinant could help out with a durable buttonhole for Marie, hers being badly worn by the thumbs of American publicity haters.

The kings could convene annually and play "Who's got the button?" The monarchs have the buttonholes but the dictators certainly have the buttons.

A Thought For To-day

THE AVERAGE MAN.

How much money are you spending for mental improvement as compared with the amount of cash you "lay out" for personal pleasure?

The "average man" buys two, perhaps three, books a year, takes three or four magazines, reads one or two papers, and right about here is where the "average man" stops spending for his intellect.

The "average man" spends one, two, or three thousand dollars a year for shows, gasoline, and outings, and you know these are for personal pleasure. This same man probably spends not more than $25 or $35 on his mental machinery.

It figurgs out about this way—60 to 1.

In this country there are thousands of the "average man", but you belong to another class. Of course you do.

You understand that a man will never rise higher and remain there until he is capable of holdiing the position.

My suggestion to the "average man" (not you) is this: Go right on spending sixty to one and you will have about one chance in sixty for making more money than the "average man."

Keep right on putting sixty times as much in your fun as you do in your forehead and you will continue to wonder why some men are so successful.

FIFTEEN MILLION CHILDREN WITH BAD HABITS

The United States Children's Bureau has recently given out some startling figures about the physical unfitness of children in the public schools. It is estimated that of the 22,000,000 school children in the United States, 19,000,000 suffer from some physical defect. The Bureau makes the statement that fully 15,000,000 of these children have troubles which might be prevented by proper living habits.

Some effort is being made in most schools in the country to teach better rules of personal hygiene. Children are taught the value of brushing the teeth, and in some schools the classes are put through regular exercises in tooth brush technique. This is of some value. In many public institutions of learning the children are sent home if their hands and face are not clean, and the bugaboo of the germ peril is constantly impressed upon their plastic minds. Even this teaching may be productive of some good.

The great need, however, is to introduce into the curriculum of every school a study of scientific dietetics, and physical culture. There is practically no disorder of childhood, which could not be prevented or cured if educators would seriously take up the study of these important subjects, and transmit the result of their researches to the children in regular courses the same as arithmetic and spelling. Our children are mostly taught subjects which will enable them to earn a living and almost nothing about how to live. If educators do not know that there is a definite science to physical education, they are at least a century behind the times. There is no need at the present time for a child to live so haphazardly that he develops a crooked spine. He can be taught how to eat to supply the proper materials for bone construction, and also the right exercises to take to develop strong spinal muscles. There is a science to the cultivation of the physical which is more definite than anything taught in the schools to improve the mental, unless it be mathematics, which is said to be the only true science.

If children are taught food science along with the other studies, they unconsciously place the proper value on this study as they do upon art, literature and languages. Their whole life will in this way be influenced far more than it will by any of the other subjects which are all good for study, if the child has enough time!

Health should be the first consideration in any course of study, as it leads to a wealth of happiness, which cannot be secured in any way except by the acquisition of deeply rooted habits which will unconsciously persist throughout life.

All parents should insist upon the addition to the public school curriculum of more study of habits for health. If you will all get together in this movement, we will have in the next quarter of a century the finest, healthiest civilization the world has ever produced.

A RAT ACT

By Dr. Frank Crane.

A recent law in England, called the "Rat Act," makes it a fineable offence for a householder to "harbor" rats or mice.

Some scientists carried on a series of experiments to determine whether rodents carry diseases to any great distance.

Indestructible tags were fastened to the legs of captured rats and their migrations traced.

A few months later one was captured over one hundred and fifty miles away. Others had traveled more than fifty miles during that time.

The destruction of all rodents would be a step to stamping out plagues. They form a sort of underground railway for the transportation of deadly disease microbes from place to place.

Besides microbe-carrying proclivities, the rats and mice in the United States are credited with being the cause of over four hundred million dollars loss each year.

Rodents are a common enemy and with their extermination everyone would benefit.

England, more thickly populated than America, is beginning to treat the problem seriously.

Besides the Rat Act, it has established several rat-catching firms. One of these killed more than 60,000 rats last year.

One of her scientists puts forth a new plan which he seriously says he advocates. It is to capture rats in wire traps and let all the males go and kill all the females.

In a few years, he says, such a process would reduce the females until the males would all kill each other off fighting for wives.

The only rat-killing proposal that attracted much attention in these broad United States was one made in a state legislature a few years ago.

It was for a state "Rat Killing Day" to be held anhually. Editors all over the country gave space to the proposal. This was not because they took the idea seriously, but because the legislator who brought up the bill to kill the rats was named Ratt.

Sport as a Religion

By Sir Phillip Gibbs

There is some danger in England of so glorifying sport that it is becoming a kind of religion which we are all expected to worship.

Our national heroes are not men who serve their country by intellectual qualities and noble character, adding to its store of knowledge or beauty as scientists, artists, and scholars, but professional football players, tennis or golf champions, jockeys and athletes.

The worship of sport in all its forms is encouraged and elevated into a matter of faith by our public schools. It is, in fact, regarded as heresy, almost as blasphemy, against the religion of sport for any boy or man to suggest mildly that life may have other interests than regulation games, and that some minds may legitimately prefer an afternoon with a good book, or some hobby-like science, wood carving, water-color sketching, fishing, or butterfly collecting.

Not to play football is to let down the honor of the school. Not to know the names of the professional champions is to acknowledge an ignorance more shameful than any lack of knowledge in history, geography, or English literature of which a smattering is enough provided a boy can do well in athletics.

Aren't we going rather too far in this glorification of games?

I am not one of those who despise sport or have no interest in games. On the contrary I am inclined to waste a lot of time in playing about with a little round ball, whether it is on the tennis court, the billiard table, or the ping-pong board.

But it does seem to me that we are making ourselves rather ridiculous and tending to avoid much more serious and valuable interests of life by this adulation of brawn and muscle, this exaggerated reverence for a quick eye and a deft hand, this almost religious belief that there is something in sport—any kind of sport—which makes for nobility of character.

If that were really so, American baseball players, German university students, professional football players in this country, and the racing crowds that go to Epsom and Newmarket ought to be the noblest specimens of humanity in good nature, the spirit of fair play, and Christian idealism. Suzanne Lenglen ought to be the most beautiful type of womanhood. Our golf pros ought to be the leaders of the nation in times of political crisis.

It is possible, and indeed probable, that all these people have many excellent qualities, but sport alone is not enough to carry a nation to the goal of human happiness, or to create perfection in an individual.

The character of our people has undoubtedly been influenced by its love of games. But that sense of fair play with which we pride ourselves, justly to some extent, was, I believe, learned on the village green rather than in a vast football crowd watching professional gladiators.

At the present time one would imagine to hear some people talk that, with the coming of fine weather, the whole nation is delivering itself up to a festival of sport and that we are all going to be very happy and jolly if we can rush away from the drudgery of work to watch professional or semi-professional athletes perform for our entertainment.

It gives a false impression to foreign nations who imagine we don't take life seriously and that all our talk about unemployment, bad trade, and high taxation is mere propaganda with but little basis of reality. This sport is a kind of dope to prevent us from thinking and facing hard facts. It is a myth carefully cultivated as a soothing balm to the mind of the people. It is also pandering to national vanity, encouraged to think that there can be nothing wrong with us as long as there are great crowds at the Derby, beautiful women at Ascot, lovely frocks on a sunny day at Maidenhead, and jolly good sportsmen everywhere.

It is good to play the game. I believe in it. It would be a bad day for this country if we lost our interest in sport, and especially that form of sport which is played on a village green, in suburban back gardens, on the common where the grass wears thin, on a tennis court behind a row of suburban houses, on a golf course, which the city man can reach on a Saturday afternoon, and in the playgrounds of our public schools.

It blows the cobwebs out of our eyes, keeps our nerves steady, and our tempers sweet, and is the best cure for the drudgeries of life.

But the worship of professionalism is a bad sign of the times, and when sport becomes a tyranny, as in the case of compulsory games, the spirit goes out of it.

Sport is not a religion. It is a healthy amusement. When it becomes the purpose of life instead of a recreation, it is a weakness rather than a strength, a folly rather than a virtue.

Unfortunately, and alas, men must work before they play, and a school that puts its games before its studies, as some of our schools are doing, is not producing men who will be able to compete with the intelligence and knowledge of other counties who take a more serious view of life.

It is this elevation of sport into a national religion which is producing a kind of levity in the public mind so that they are indifferent to grave issues, careless of perils ahead, content to live in a fool's paradise so long as they can take a chance on a horse, or watch a cup-tie match, or get excited over some professional game.

Let us at least acknowledge that the sportsman, however fine his qualities, however wide the pattern of his tweed, however long his cigars, is not necessarily the noblest work of God and that there are other types of manhood—the doctor, the artist, the scientist, the scholar, the singer, who are as much worthy of public recognition.

SIMPLE REMEDY FOR BAD STOMACH GIVES QUICK RELIEF

No Need of Strong Medicines or Diet —Famous but Simple Old English Recipe Keeps Stomach in Fine Condition, Banishes After-Eating Distress

If you are a victim of Stomach Troubles—Gas, Sourness, Pain or Bloating—you may have quick and certain relief by following this simple advice.

Don't take strong medicines, artificial digestants or pull down your system by following unnecessary starvation diets.

Never hurry your meals or overeat of anything, but within reason most folks may eat what they like—if they will keep their stomach sweet clean and active and free from the souring acids that hinder or paralyze the work of digestion.

And the best and easiest way to do this is to follow every meal with a small amount of pure Bisurated Magnesia—a pleasant, harmless and inexpensive form of Magnesia that promptly neutralizes acidity and keeps your stomach sweet and clean.

A week's trial of Bisurated Magnesia, which may be obtained from any druggist "at small cost", will easily convince you of the great value of this old English recipe.

TWO PATROLS IN DELORO TROOP

Boys Now on Way in Tests For Class Badges.

OUTDOOR WORK

MARMORA, Feb. 25 — Deloro Boy Scouts Troop now consists of two patrols, the Bulls, under Patrol leader Norman Smith and the Rams under Patrol leader Michael Callery. Scoutmaster S. B. Cheeseman has been working hard with the boys with the result that ten are now ready for their Tenderfoot examination and six of these have progressed well on the way towards the tests for the Second class badge. Monday evenings are given over to the Scouts at Deloro Hall while Saturday afternoon sees the boys patrolling the fields for the outdoor portin of their work. The advent of warm weather will see a system of week-end camps inaugurated, planned to facilitate the teaching of the principles of woodcraft and scouting which form the foundation upon which the whole structure of the Boy Scout endeavour has been raised. Deloro is thus attached to this world wide organization founded in 1908 by Sir Robert Baden-Powell as a supplemental to previous exisiting organizations concerned with the welfare of boys.

W. I. MEETING.

February Meeting Held at Mrs. Andrew Brown's at Roseneath.

ROSENEATH, Feb. 25. — The Women's Institute held their February meeting at the home of Mrs. Andrew Brown and was extra well attended by the members and ten visitors from the Fenella branch. The president, Mrs. Lily Turner, conducted the meeting, which opened in the regular way with singing "The Maple Leaf," followed by the reading of the minutes by the secretary, Mrs. M. Davey. Moved by Mrs. O. Varcoe, seconded by Mrs. Lottie Nichol, that they be adopted as read. The business was then discussed, including the March meeting to be held in the Town Hall with a programme and lunch provided by the members, and that it would be an open meeting to the members and their friends. Moved by Mrs. D. Brisbin, seconded by Mrs. G. Mouncey, that Mesdames L. Turner, L. Nichol, M. Davey and O. Varcoe be the committee in charge of the March meeting.

The programme consisted of a reading by Miss Elva Sandercock, reading by Miss Jessie Johnston. Mrs. S. Leach, president of Fenella branch, spoke a few moments on the work of their branch and was eager to secure every name possible for the quilt they are making. Mrs. Lottie Nichol favored the gathering with a very humorous reading, entitled "Rube on the Telephone."

A vote of thanks was tendered to the hostess and lunch committee.

The meeting closed with singing the National Anthem. A delicious lunch was served and a social half-hour spent.

W. M. S. Meeting.

The regular meeting of the W.M.S. was held at Centenery Church. Mrs. W. J. Jibb, Fenella, presided, owing to the absence of the president, Mrs. (Rev.) Wilding. The meeting opened with singing a hymn, "Throw out the Life Line," followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. "Pass me not, O Gentle Saviour," was then sung, and the W. M. watchword was repeated in unison.

The secretary called the roll, when each member responded with a verse of Scripture.

Mrs. Arthurs read the Scripture lesson, 1st Corinthians, 1 to 13. A leaflet was read by Mrs. W. Roberts, entitled "If we keep in memory, which was good."

The devotional leaflet was read by Miss Jessie Smith.

Mrs. (Rev.) Lovelace read the first leaflet from the new study book, entitled "New Days in Old India," telling of the false beliefs practiced in India and the worship of idols. Mrs. Turner read number 2, describing the evangelism in India. Only those in and near by the towns hear of Jesus. Even the singing of a hymn will bring some one out to hear what the song means, and many are reached in this simple way.

The main feature in the business transactions was to obtain a speaker for special services at Easter. A committee was appointed to prepare a programme, Mrs. Davey, Mrs. D. Brisbin and Mrs. A. Brown from Roseneath; Miss H. Arthurs and Miss J. Smith from Centenery, Mrs. James Curtis, Mrs. W. J. Jibb and Mrs. A. Nill of Fenella.

A duet was then rendered by the Misses Smith.

The birthday offering amounted to $11.76.

The meeting then closed by prayer. The ladies of Centenery served a dainty lunch and a social chat among the gathering. Mr. Covert kindly took a sleighload of fifeeen ladies from the village, which was a creat to many of them.

Personals.

Mr. Charlton Grigg is home from Guelph to visit his parents who are ill. His father, Mr. Charles Grigg, is home from the hospital, Cobourg, and doing very favorably.

While Mr. John George was taking straw from the stack, a huge piece broke and fell with him. The icy and frozen straw threw him against the barn, causing him very painful injuries. Although confined to the house, he is doing nicely.

Mr. Elton Turner has returned after a few days in Toronto.

Mrs. (Rev.) Wilding is suffering a sore knee, having fell on the icy walk.

There was no service in the village on Sunday owing to the pastor, Rev. J. N. Lovelace, being unable to take charge.

Mr. Charles Brown is improving the interior of his store by having it newly painted. Mr. Sam. Houghtain of Harwood is doing the work.

Car Skids Across Track To Gorge Edge

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont., Feb. 25.—Four persons experienced the thrills of Niagara Falls in a way they would not like repeated, at 10.30 last night, when the taxi in which they were riding slipped on the wet pavement, jumped two sets of car tracks and crashed on its side on the brink of the Niagara gorge, with one wheel hanging over the side.

A rock that jutted out from the side of the bank held the taxi from falling into the river, 165 feet below.

Other than suffering from shock, no one was seriously injured. The taxi was pulled clear by a radial car.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL

HOUSE PETERS IN "PRISONERS OF THE STORM"

Another of the popular stories from the pen of James Oliver Curwood has been filmed for the silver sheet, in "Prisoners of the Storm," with House Peters in the stellar role of Buck Malone, the miner who becomes enchained in a net of suspicious circumstances and in a quest for gold which leads him through many stirring adventures. It is one of the tales of the rude Northland which calls for dramatic and powerful handling, and the cast is a very good one.

Buck Malone is involved in a murder charge of his erstwhile partner, the Frenchman, LeGrand, and then falls in love with Joan LeGrand, who believes him guilty. He is captured by a North-West Mounted policeman, and is being brought to answer to the charge when the entire party is trapped in a mountain cabin by an avalanche. It is in the thrilling scenes which surround this portion of the picture, showing the hero moving the avalanche of snow, by dynamite, and at the same time revealing the real criminal, that the interest of the story centres, and the title explains itself.

There is an interesting section of "The Collegians" serial picture accompanying this programme.

AT THE REGENT

LIMEHOUSE THRILLER.

Limehouse, which gave the public that popular song, "Limehouse Blues," and brought success and fame to Thomas Burke for his "Limehouse Nights," gave Rin-Tin-Tin an exciting and thrilling locale for his latest Warner Bros. production. "While London Sleeps," which opened yesterday at the Regent Theatre, takes Rinty from the mountain wilds and the snow country, into the crooked, shadowy streets of London's underworld where crime and daring keep Scotland Yard harassed and busy.

"While London Sleeps," written and directed by Walter Morosco, is the melodramatic story of a master-criminal, his dog, his beast-like assistant, the girl they kidnap, and the man whom she loves. In breath-taking sequences, you are rushed from the mansions of the mighty to the dens of the lowly; from the hands of justice to the dives of those who evade it; and all the time Rinty fights and loves with intense devotion and loyalty.

Helene Costello plays the girl who is kidnapped and Walter Merrill, a newcomer to the screen, her sweetheart; both giving excellent portrayals of young love and high courage. John Patrick is perfect as the crook who "squeals" on the gang; and George Kotsonaros makes a terrifying ape-man. As London Letter, the leader of the gang, Otto Mattiesen has an opportunity to do some powerful work, and makes the most of that opportunity. Dewitt Jennings is well occupied with the role of Inspector Burke of Scotland Yard.

"While London Sleeps" is one of the biggest thrillers of any recent screen production — and should not be missed.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING

No Other Form of Publicity Assures Such Gratifying Results

Some years ago a publishing house of New York City conceived the idea of confining its business wholly to publishing educational works. The problem which confronted the company was the same old question of distributing its books through channels that would reach the largest number of readers.

After advertising in magazines and similar periodicals, which did not result in the returns that were expected, a plan for an educational campaign through daily newspapers was proposed. Being assured of the cooperation of a number of metropolitan dailies toward the carrying out of such a proposal for the benefit of newspaper readers, the plan was adopted.

As evidence of the pulling power of newspaper publicity, the fact is now submitted that millions of dictionaries were distributed through these newspapers during the past few years. Even a million would seem to be a great number, yet literally millions of readers of daily newspapers have taken advantage of the educational offer since this plan was put into operation.

Realizing that the rapid march of progress during the past few years has brought a vast number of new words into our language, the publishers took the lead and started in to compile an entirely new dictionary. It is now ready, and as an assurance that only the new volume will get into the hands of newspaper readers, the publishers have abandoned the printing plates which were formerly used and will offer only the new volume.

All of the old dictionaries should now go into the discard. Here is an entirely new one—enlarged vocabulary— modern— accurate— authoritative; clear type, self-pronouncing; flexible textile leather grained binding, soft and pliable, making it easier to handle; stamped in gold, red edges; durable and complete in every detail of modern book making.

Distributed only through newspaper advertising on the well known coupon plan, one can well afford to throw away every old dictionary and get this useful new volume. The first coupon is printed elsewhere in this issue, and millions of readers of daily newspapers throughout the country will now start to clip coupons—again demonstrating the pulling power of daily newspaper advertising.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE

CXII—Parachutes Save Many Lives.

by MAX HAHN

THE GREAT USEFULNESS OF BALLOONS HAS DEPENDED LARGELY ON THE PARACHUTE, WHICH HAS BEEN THE MEANS OF SAVING THOUSANDS OF LIVES. M. GARNERIN OF FRANCE FIRST SUGGESTED THAT EVERY BALLOONIST SHOULD CARRY A PARACHUTE FOR SAFETY.

BUT WHY DO BALLOONS RISE? SCIENCE EXPLAINS THAT HEAT CAUSES AIR TO EXPAND AND THAT CONSEQUENTLY A CUBIC FOOT OF HOT AIR WEIGHS LESS THAN A CUBIC FOOT OF COLD AIR. THUS A HOT AIR BALLOON WILL RISE BECAUSE THE BALLOON, HOT AIR AND PASSENGERS ARE LIGHTER THAN THE COLD AIR THEY DISPLACE.

BALLOONS PLAYED AN IMPORTANT PART IN THE WORLD WAR. ALLIED OBSERVERS LEARNED MANY SECRETS OF THE LOCATION OF ENEMY GUNS AND THE MOVEMENTS OF ENEMY ARMIES FROM THEIR GRANDSTAND SEATS IN CAPTIVE BALLOONS. © McClure Newspaper Syndicate

BALLOONS ALSO HAVE BEEN EXCEEDINGLY USEFUL IN THE STUDY OF THE WEATHER. ALTHOUGH THE RECORD FOR A PASSENGER ASCENSION IS LESS THAN SEVEN MILES, A BALLOON WITHOUT PASSENGERS HAS ASCENDED MORE THAN 23 MILES.

MONTHLY MEETING CONSERVATIVE CLUB

Took Form of Box Social in Ward's Hall at Stirling.

STIRLING, Feb. 25.—The Women's Conservative Club held their monthly meeting in Ward's hall last Wednesday evening. It took the form of a box social. There were over 70 present. Mrs. Alger, the president, had charge of the meeting. An interesting program was given. Mrs. W. S. Martin read a sketch of the life of D. B. Hannah, chairman of the commissioners who are to operate the new government control liquor bill. A chorus by Mesdames Westcott, E. Morton, J. Whitehead, and Misses Smith, McGuire, Freda Matthews, and Dorothy Alger. Mrs. A. F. MacDonnell gave her "official" version of "current events", causing endless amusement. She also gave two humorous readings entitled "Needle and Thread" and the "Troubles of Biddy Malone". Community singing followed. The president then called upon the following for short addresses: Messrs. J. S. Morton, Thomas Montgomery, C. B. McGuire and W. S. Martin, all of whom complimented the ladies upon their efforts in having organized the club.

Miss D. Alger sang as a solo "The Telephone Girl" being joined in the chorus by others. Mrs. (Dr.) Potts sang in a pleasing manner "A Perfect Day." Attention was then diverted to the contents of the boxes of good things provided by the ladies, closing a very pleasing and profitable evening's entertainment.

Horticultural Society.

At a meeting of the executive of the Horticultural Society held Tuesday evening in the agricultural rooms, the president, Mr. J. B. Belshaw, gave a report of the Provincial convention held in Toronto recently at which he was a delegate. The canvasers for members reported having obtained 92 names. A committee was appointed to order the garden and flower seeds, and later another committee will order the shrubs.

Snow Hinders Traffic.

The storm of Saturday night and Sunday being the worst of the winter, tied up the traffic on the north and south roads. None of the mail couriers ventured on their trips on Monday.

Mr. Hiram Dafoe, foreman of county roads in this district, came from his home, 8th Line Rawdon, by way of Harold, on Monday afternoon and opened up a track 12 feet wide from there to the village, thence out the Ridge road and north via Minto to the 8th Line, Rawdon. This service was greatly appreciated by those who had to travel these roads. The Belleville road has not been opened for motor trafifc since the storm.

Personals.

Mr. Ed Baker is confined to his home through illness.

Mr. Jackson Moore is able to be out again after a severe illness.

Mr. Thomas Montgomery, Reeve, is in Toronto on business.

Mr. and Mrs. James Montgomery spent the week end in Campbellford with their son, Duncan.

Miss Bronson of the agricultural office was a vieitor over Sunday at her home in Madoc.

Mr. Curry of the "Intelligencer", Belleville, spent Sunday in town with friends.

Mr. E. Sandercock is moving into his new home over his store and Mr. William Fitchett is moving his household effects from his late home at Madoc Junction to the house Mr. Sandercock is vacating.

Mr. Frank Sarles has moved into the village, having purchased the farm at the south end of Henry street from Mr. George Heagle, who has been busy lately moving his effects to the farm he purchased from Mr. Stiles near Wellman's Corners.

Mrs. F. A. MacDonnell entertained a number at dinner and bridge on Wednesday evening.

Miss Lillian Dixon spent the week end in town with Miss Helen MacDonnell.

A number of the ladies of St. Andrew's Presbyterian church met at the home of Mrs. Simmons on Saturday night and surprised her by bringing a beautiful rocking chair as a post nuptial gift.

PONTYPOOL NEWS

PONTYPOOL, Feb. 25.—Owing to the bad condition of the roads Mr. W. Hall's auction sale was postponed until Thursday, Feb. 24.

Sunday visitors were: Mr. and Mrs. Roy Kellet and son, Gordon of Oshawa at Mr. John Kellet's; Mr. Cecil Bellman of Bowmanville at Mr. Robert Payne's; Miss Kathleen Ferguson of Lindsay at Mr. David Ferguson's, and Miss F. L. May of Toronto at the home of her sister, Mrs. Willis Whiteside.

Miss Ida Payne of Bowmanville spent the week end with her parents.

Among those from here who attended the dance at Lotus on Friday evening were Messrs. L. Wannan, J. Payne, J. Trick, L. Aldread, A. Masters and S. Wright.

The Ladies' Aid at Lotus is holding a pie social on March 10. The main item of the programme is a debate, "Resolved, that country life is preferable to city life". The affirmative is to be taken by the Yelverton Ladies and the negative to be taken by the Lotus Ladies.

Mrs. George Welder has been confined to her home with a severe cold.

Women's Safety

FINN FOUND DEAD; SUICIDE SUSPECTED

Was in Good Spirits an Hour Before Being Found.

KIRKLAND LAKE, Ont., Feb. 25.—John Crook, 25, a Finn, was found dead in a woodshed behind the Finnish Club, where he lived, with a bullet hole in his head, a rifle under his body, and to all appearances a suicide victim. He had been playing cribbage an hour before his body was found and had appeared, during the game, to be in his usual spirits.

Crook had been unemployed for the last month, but had not been despondent, according to his friends.

EGG PRODUCERS' ANNUAL MEETING

Millbrook Association Has Had Very Successful Year.

ADDRESS GIVEN.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 25.—The annual meeting of the Millbrook Produce Association was held in the council chamber on Tuesday, at 2 p.m., the president, Mr. Wilfrid Elson, occupying the chair.

Gratifying reports of the year's activities were received, the only regrettable feature of the gathering being the small number in attendance. With a membership of 200, a considerable increase over that of the initial year, 1925, the directors felt that at least fifty per cent should have sufficient interest to be present at the annual meeting.

The sales' manager, Mr. M. McDowell, reported having sent out 200 cards to which about 50 replies had been received, every one of which was distinctly favorable to continuing the organization.

After preliminary business had been dealt with, the year's report was presented by Mr. McDowell as follows:

Number of members, 200; number of dozen eggs shipped, 57,124; gross value, $18,418.62; cash paid members, $16,609.45; gross profits, $1,809.17.

During a discussion of the advisability of the Association putting eggs in storage for sale purposes when production is slack, Mr. McDowell stated that there was a net profit of $40.00 last year over and above the market prices at that time. Personally he did not think that there would ever be much margin of profit if the eggs were stored with the U.F.O. in Toronto because of overhead expenses; last year the local association stored about 45 cases in Peterboro and sold them at the profit already mentioned.

F. H. Buker, of Brockville, District Poultry Promoter for Eastern Ontario, was present and addressed the meeting.

Mr. Buker, in the course of his very interesting remarks, gave some definite information regarding the World's Poultry Congress to be held at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, July 27 to August 4, of this year, outlining the advantages accruing to the poultry producers, and to the country in general. This is the third World's Congress to be held, and Canada is fortunate in being hostess for delegates from all over the world, who will come to her capital city for the event.

High Consumption Here.

Canada is the first country in the world to adhere to a definite standard for eggs, and has developed a home market as no other country has done. A comparison of figures as to consumption of eggs per capita showed the Dominion leading with 313, Belgium 213, United States 180, France 133, Germany 117, England and Wales 110, Denmark 75.

While the development of a home market is of supreme importance, emphasis on export is necessary also to take care of any surplus. The exhibits at the World's Congress will be of an educational character, and will show the wonderful possibilities in building up the home market.

Questioned why Canada should consume more eggs per capita than Denmark, for example, the speaker stated frankly that he himself was still looking for an answer to that problem. Possibly living conditions here are better; then Denmark has no large consuming centres like Toronto, or Montreal; fish are cheaper in Denmark than here and this again may have a bearing on the question.

"What would happen if England and Wales built up a home consumption of eggs equal to that of Belgium, for instance? If they do there need be no fear in this generation as to what the future of the poultry industry may be. "I know of nothing so consistently remunerative as the poultry industry is; there is no wide margin of fluctuation in prices, and I consider it compares favorably with any other industry."

Advantages of Association.

Emphasizing the advantages of the local association from other than the merely marketing aspect, Mr. Baker spoke of the helpfulness the members might obtain by discussing together such features as incubation, proper feeding, breeding, and housing, diseases, etc., instancing recent education meetings held at Port Hope with sixty in attendance, and urging that Millbrook become a close second in showing interest of this kind.

While the Millbrook Association has an outstanding record in marketing eggs, exceeding the old established Welcome Association at Port Hope by 1 cent per dozen last year, it falls down in the marketing of poultry; both together are an ideal condition. Napanee has a community hatchery with a capacity of 36,000 eggs; the farmers supply the eggs and pay for the hatching—500 and over 4 cents per chick; under 500, 5 cents. The full capacity is used each season in serving customers. But Napanee pays no attention to the marketing of eggs.

"There is not enough general understanding of the proper time to ship poultry, nor of the proper kind for this purpose; it is pitiful to see the mistakes when cratefuls of fowl are brought to local stations for shipment; laying fowl because their appearance is not so good, are shipped, and the fat, smooth-feathered birds, which are non-layers, and which would bring the best market price because of weight and condition, are retained. Education along the line of stock culling is imperative. Does it pay, is the fundamental question to put poultry raising on the best foundation, and ensure its growth."

In the Record of Performance tests, it was stated, Manitoba hens beat those of Ontario, while the world's record last year went to a hen in British Columbia which produced 315 eggs in 365 days.

The following officers were re-elected for 1927: Messrs. Wesley Wood, L. J. Hutchison, R. J. McKnight, E. R. Armstrong, W. Elson, L. W. Smith, R. S. Staples.

A lively discussion regarding holding a poultry fair locally next fall brought out the fact that 510 tons of dressed poultry were disposed of at 15 poultry fairs held in the fall of 1926, with a total cash turnover through the banks of $300,900.00.

The comparative failure of the poultry fair held at Peterboro last fall was attributed to the fact that that city has too good a local market, with a poultry sale all the year round; and, too, the producers had not a correct understanding of what the requirements of the fair really were. Poultry producers round Napanee covers a large territory, but have comparatively small flocks; yet 28 tons of dressed poultry were sold at the poultry fair, with a cash turnover of $178,359.00.

Three other fairs mentioned were Westport, 40 tons sold, cash $26,009.00; Lyndhurst 75 tons, cash $51,000.00; Athens 37 tons, cash $22,000.00.

Figures supplied by Mr. Buker, for comparison with those of the local association were:

Welcome (Port Hope): Number of dozen sold, 55,284; selling price, 31.1; net, 27.88.

Lansdowne: Number of dozen sold, 40,234; selling price, 29.97; net, 27.7.

Springbrook: Number of dozen sold, 21,469; selling price, 30.1; net 27.6.

Trenton: Number of dozen sold, 47,908; selling price, 29.83; net, 27.26.

Following the public meeting the directors held their annual meeting when officers re-elected for 1927 were: President, W. Elson; vice-president, R. J. McKnight; secretary, L. W. Smith; sales' manager, M. McDowell; auditor, A. H. Barnes.

On motion it was decided to pay the $5.00 membership fee for the World's Poultry Congress, a delegate to be appointed at a later meeting. Associations, or individual members, paying the fee will receive a bound copy of all the addresses given at the Congress. At most of the recent Association annual meetings, Mr. Buker reported that this fee has been paid.

As this Association is entering upon its third year since organization, and during the twelve months just closed the membership has largely increased, the officers felt justified in looking for decided expansion, and that very definite improvement could reasonably be counted upon to take place during 1927.

Norwood Association.

The Norwood Producers' Association held its annual meeting on Tuesday, February 15, when the financial report was presented as follows:

Number of members, 86; number of dozen shipped, 40,004; gross value, $11,768.06; cash advanced, $10,805.60; gross profits, $1,263.48; manager's commission, $400.06; net dividend returned, $863.40; average selling price, 29 3-8c; average net to members 28 3-8c; average net dividend 2 1-8c per dozen.

Mr. Bert Squire was re-elected sales' manager for 1927.

Havelock Association.

The Havelock Association met on Wednesday, February 16, when the financial report showed the following figures:

Number of members, 64; number of dozen shipped, 14,123; gross value, $4,028.18; cash advanced, $3,406.60; gross profits, $421.58; manager's commission, $141.23; net dividend returned, $283.36; average selling price, 29½c; average net to members, 28 12c; net profit per dozen, 2c.

This Circle was reorganized one year ago, and has adopted the most approved method of handling eggs, and engaged experienced salesmanship in the person of Mr. Fred Squire. The association is on a sound foundation at present, and promises to prove a real money maker to the producers of this district.

DO YOU COUGH?

Guelph, Ont.—"I caught a severe cold and could not seem to get rid of it. It just clung to me and finally settled in my bronchial tubes causing me a lot of trouble. The cough would be more severe at night than during the day, causing sleeplessness. I finally decided I would try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and by the time I had taken one bottle I was entirely relieved of the bronchial trouble—my cough disappeared and I have had no trouble with a cough since. I do not think a person can take anything better for bronchial weakness or deep-seated coughs than the 'Golden Medical Discovery'."—Miss Mary Duggan, 170 Ontario St.

Uncle Wiggily

To-day's Bedtime Story.

By Howard R. Garis

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

'UNCLE WIGGILY'S TOOTH BRUSH

"Well, it's gone!" solemnly announced the rabbit gentleman as he came downstairs in his hollow stump bungalow one morning after the forty 'leven little bunnies had hopped to school.

"What's gone?" asked his wife who was getting ready to go down town shopping at the eight and nine-cent store to buy a new dress for the piano. "You don't mean to tell me your pocketbook is gone and that I can't have any money to go shopping? Don't say that?"

"No, I won't say that, for it isn't true," answered Mr. Longears with a jolly laugh. "I mean my toothbrush is gone and I shall have to get another."

"Did any of the children take your toothbrush to sweep the snow from the path?" asked Nurse Jane Fuzzy Wuzzy, for it was snowing rather hard.

"No, my old toothbrush just wore out," Uncle Wiggily said. "Like a bald headed man, all the bristles came out of my brush. I will hop to the drug store and get a new one. For if I keep my teeth cleaned I will not have an ache, as Baby Bunty had the other night, and I won't have to go to the dentist Bear's office so often. I'll get me a new brush."

"And while you're out I wish you'd buy me some red pepper, as hot as you can get it," spoke the muskrat lady housekeeper. "I am going to make some pickled geraniums and I need red pepper."

"You shall have it," promised the bunny.

"Be careful you don't get any red pepper on your new toothbrush," warned his wife as she hopped on ahead, "or you'll burn your mouth!"

"Oh, I'll be careful," answered Uncle Wiggily, little knowing what was going to happen very shortly, which means in a little while in case you didn't bring your dictionaries with you.

So Uncle Wiggily hopped one way and his lady rabbit wife hopped the other way. Not that they were no longer friends, but you see Uncle Wiggily had to go one way to reach a drug store to buy a toothbrush and his wife had to go the other way to buy some applesauce for the sewing machine or whatever it was. It doesn't really make any difference in this story for it's all about Mr. Longears.

Well, Uncle Wiggily bought his toothbrush with a green handle, so he could pick it out in the dark bathroom and not get it mixed with his wife's, and then the rabbit gentleman hopped to the grocery and bought a box of the hottest red pepper to be had. Then he hopped back to his bungalow for he wanted to brush his teeth.

All of a sudden, out from behind a barrel, jumped the Fuzzy Fox. Now if you ask me why the barrel happened to be there I can't tell you. But if you ask me why the Fox leaped out I can tell you and I shall. The Fox wanted to nibble Uncle Wiggily's ears.

How do I know that? Because the Fox said so. Yes, sir, that Fox just spoke up and said, real pert like:

"I'm going to nibble your ears, Uncle Wiggily!"

"Oh, please don't!" begged the bunny gentleman.

"Yes I shall!" sneered the Fox. Then Uncle Wiggily thought of a trick he might play and he said to the Fox, said he:

"Have you cleaned your teeth this morning?"

"Cleaned my teeth? No! Why

Out jumped the Fuzzy Fox.

should I clean my teeth when I haven't yet eaten anything?" asked the Fox. I'll clean them after I nibble your ears!"

"No!" cried brave Uncle Wiggily. "Your teeth must be cleaned before you nibble me!" The Fox tried to excuse himself, saying he had no brush, but Uncle Wiggily exclaimed: "I have a brush and, what is more, some nice red toothpowder. Open your mouth! I'll clean your teeth!"

Before he quite knew what he was doing, the Fox opened his mouth. Mr. Longears sprinkled hot red pepper on his new toothbrush and began to scrub the teeth of the Fox and then—

"Oh, wow! Scowzie wow! Trolley cars! Jitney buses! Give me a transfer!" howled the Fox, turning three somersaults one after the other. "Oh, how my mouth burns!"

"That comes of not cleaning your teeth regularly!" laughed the bunny. "Here! You may have my brush! I'm going to buy another!" He flung the red peppery brush after the Fox who ran away and then Mr. Longears got himself a new brush and took the red pepper to Nurse Jane.

So it all happened for the best, and if the breakfast orange doesn't hide under the oatmeal dish when the knife and fork are trying to broadcast a concert for the goldfish, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's paper guns.

Why? is it that motion picture fans are so partial to

SHORT STORY

THEY TWO

(By Dorothy Douglas.)

Maureen decided to apply for the rather unique two-week position which she felt quite capable of filling during her vacation from the shop in which she worked.

Mrs. Drayton-Drayton of Dunmore Hall wanted a young girl of good appearance who could pose as one of her guests for the house party she was forming. The girl must be able to sing a little, dance, golf, tennis, and in all ways help to entertain the party and keep things moving in a jolly way. Mrs. Drayton-Drayton wanted her house party in her mountain camp to be in every way a complete success. Also, the hostess had another little scheme of her own which she hoped to carry to a successful issue, but she was keeping this, along with her crop of lovely gray hair, under her bonnet.

She liked Maureen the moment she looked into the girl's rather fathomless amber eyes.

And Maureen liked the lady by whom she was being interviewed—she was so motherly and human, notwithstanding the hyphenated name. "It was foisted upon me by the none too heavily lamented husband I had," she had often said. "Mr. Drayton-Drayton was a genuine prig, and if my son follows in his father's footsteps and becomes the dilettante he promises, I will disown him."

These sentiments she confided in part to Maureen. "The good in him is being crowded out by the brainless crowd that circle about. I don't think the girl he is halfway in love with has enough moral fiber to push her own perambulator. Now, I want you to flutter into our midst, as it were, and sort of deflect the present heart interests.

"In a sketchy way," continued Mrs. Drayton-Drayton, "I had decided it would be a good move for you to sort of intrigue the interest of Lord Stanley Twittle, who will be one of the house party and thereby keep my son entirely in the dark as to our real plot."

Maureen laughed and colored. "You flatter me," she said shyly. "You're supposing I have a rather widespread appeal."

"I have eyes," laughed Bob's mother, "and I may tell you now, my dear, that I could gladly welcome you either as Lord Twittle's wife or my son's and—preferably my son's." She appreciated the soft blush as much as a young man might have done. "And now, can you meet me at Good's to-morrow morning and let me buy you a trunkful of lovely frocks?"

"Oh, you're too sweet!" cried Maureen and found herself pressing a kiss on Mrs. Drayton-Drayton's warm cheek.

His mother's arm had slipped about the girl's shoulders when Bob burst into the room. It was a most propitious moment.

"I'm sorry, mother, I thought the room was empty." He stood gazing wonderingly at the treasure his mother was fondling.

Mrs. Drayton-Drayton hastily summoned her wits.

"Bob dear, this is Maureen Vance of whom you have perhaps heard me speak. Maureen, this is my son, Bob." And while the two were shaking hands she continued glibly, "Maureen is the daughter of my old school chum, Marie Vance. She's come over from Philadelphia and I've persuaded her to stop over for our house party."

"Good!" said Bob and meant it.

When Maureen had pleaded an engagement and gone, Bob turned expectantly toward his mother. His eyes plainly accused her of having held back something lovely that she might have shown him before.

"Isn't she a dear? Marie has sent her over to me to see if I can sort of interest her—she's inclined to throw herself away on some penniless writer in Philadelphia.

"I think she'd make an adorable Lady Twittle, and I feel quite certain that our brainless, dancing jazz crowd won't appeal much to her."

Bob dived for a cigarette, lit it and puffed furiously for a moment or two. A second later he went over and sat on the arm of the big chair that ensconced his mother.

"Do you love me, mother?" he asked boyishly.

"Of course I do," she said with deep affection.

"Then don't you let that girl meet our bunch until I ——"

"My dear boy, Maureen wouldn't look at you—she's far too broad-minded and serious to take the slightest interest in your vapid mode of life—that type of girl wants a real man who has a definite purpose in life—not a Drayton-Drayton." She smiled inwardly but her words were very clear cut. "Besides, Bob, you know you've led Irene a pretty close chase—she's a sweet girl and one of your own set—it wouldn't be fair to her."

"Mother! You know very well I've not committed myself in any way with Irene, and if you let Lord Stan meet that girl she'll fall for him straight away and he for her." Bob stooped down and kissed his mother's cheek on about the same spot as Maureen had done a few minutes before. "Be a good sport mother, and let me have a try first. I'd give up the whole blinking crowd if a girl like that would have me—You and she would soon scatter all the kinks from my brain and make me—well dear—make me my own mother's son."

Mrs. Drayton-Drayton choked down something in her throat and looked up into her son's serious eyes. Then she smiled.

Out in the sunshine Maureen too played with a smile. She knew intuitively that Bob would not marry Irene.

"RATHER DO WITHOUT A MILLION—"

Says Canadian going to England.

Before Mr. Michol, of Winnipeg, made a trip to Liverpool, England, he wrote inquiring if he could be sure of getting Kellogg's ALL-BRAN during his stay there. If not, he proposed to go as far as carrying enough with him to cover his entire trip.

If he had to choose between a million dollars and ALL-BRAN, Mr. Michol stated in his letter, he would "much rather do without the million." Like thousands of other Canadians, Mr. Michol realizes that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a necessity to health.

Many people do not know they have constipation, and accept fatigue and depression as a part of life until they try Kellogg's ALL-BRAN; then they, too, would rather "do without a million" than lose their new energy and keenness of enjoyment.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is guaranteed to relieve constipation. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily; in chronic cases that amount with each meal. Try delicious recipes on package.

Made in London, Canada, and sold at all dealers.

GIRL SUICIDES WHEN REPROVED FOR LATE HOURS

Drinks Lysol and Dies in Spite of Doctors' Efforts.

FOUND ON STREET.

Toronto Man Shoots Himself in Hotel in Hamilton.

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—Angry at being reproved by her parents for staying out too late at night, Marie Callan, aged 16, of 26 Berkshire Avenue, last night swallowed an overdose of lysol. She was found lying on the sidewalk opposite 92 Berkshire Avenue, unconscious, by A. Hutchins, 26 Bloor Street West. He called a doctor, who, after rendering first aid to the girl, ordered her removal to St. Michael's Hospital. At first the girl's condition was not regarded as serious. The usual measures were taken to relieve her of the poison, but she failed to rally from the shock. The body was removed to the Morgue.

Hutchins, who is a salesman, was passing along the street when he noticed the girl lying on the sidewalk. He carried her into the nearest house, and called the doctor and the police. Detective Clarke and P.C.'s Waghorne and Waters, of Pape Avenue Station, repaired there, and on investigating, learned of the trouble between parents and daughter. As no bottle was found on or beside the girl, it is thought that she took the poison while in her home, and ran out into the street, where she collapsed.

Ends Life in Hotel

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 25—Roy M. Hansler, 52 Geoffrey Street, Toronto, shot himself through the head in a local hotel yesterday afternoon and died in a few minutes. Hansler was married and had one child. He was about 35 years of age and was a salesman, it was stated. There was no reason or motive for the act, so far as local authorities could learn. Found in the room was a note addressed to Dr. McCallup, Toronto, asking that he notify his relatives. Detective Buckett, who is in charge of the case, spoke to the Toronto doctor over the telephone last night and he will arrive in the morning. The body was taken to the Morgue in the meantime. Dr. McCallum stated that Hansler was an overseas man, and it is believed that a nervous condition was responsible for the shooting.

After engaging a room, Hansler requested that a boy visit him in 15 minutes. The instructions were carried out, and when the door was opened Hansler was found seated in a chair, blood flowing down his face. In his right hand he clutched a 32-calibre revolver, which he used to end his life. The police were immediately called, and the man was still alive, when Detective Buckett arrived, but he expired in a very few minutes. Coroner Dr. McIlwraith was summoned and decided an inquest unnecessary. There was a considerable amount of blood on the clothing and chair, indicating that Hansler shot himself shortly after he entered the room. It was after 5 o'clock when he came to the hotel, officials stated.

Chronic Head Colds

A Simple Method of Prevention

Nasal catarrh is not only disagreeable and offensive, but it will lead to serious trouble.

That inflamed condition of the mucous membranes of the air passages of the head, nose and throat may spread to the point where it is incurable and a danger to life.

Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes are composed of medicinal herbs, flowers and berries. The warm smoke vapor is inhaled into the affected air passages and will go where sprays, douches and salves cannot reach. They contain no tobacco or cubebs, and being harmless, are used by children, as well as adults.

If you suffer from any catarrhal trouble, plain nasal catarrh, catarrhal deafness, hoarseness, asthma, hay fever, bronchial irritations, or are subject to frequent colds, get from any druggist a pocket-size package of Dr. Blosser's Cigarettes, and prove for yourself their pleasant, beneficial effects.

TO KEEP PAINT FROM PEELING.

While there are a number of reasons for the peeling of paint, you can be almost certain that it will not occur if no moisture is present at the time of painting, either in the wood, on the surface, or inside the house; if the surface is free from grease and dirt; if knots and sap streaks are sealed with shellac; and if there is a liberal amount of linseed oil and turpentine in the paint, especially in the priming coat.—Popular Science Monthly.

Last night, twenty-four of the members of the staffs of the Grafton Company and the Robert Neill Company held a banquet in Hooper's Grill Room. Ladies' teams from both stores have engaged in bowling contests during the winter, and the losers, the Grafton ladies' tendered the banquet of the Neill Company's lady bowlers and their friends, last evening. A prize was also presented to the winners. It is understood that the Grafton Company's staff is going to make a renewed effort to capture the bowling crown from the other store.

Mr. A. J. Reynolds, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was in Lindsay last evening, addressing the Lindsay Council of the Knights of Columbus.

Mrs. W. E. Leal of Deloro, a former resident of the city, is spending a few days with Mrs. Head, Stewart street.

Miss Maud Young entertained the members of the Ladies' Guild of All Saints' church, also the members of the Brownton Guild, at the home of her brother, Mr. J. L. Young, Rubidge street, last night. A very pleasant social time was spent by the guests, with an evening of music, followed by the service of dainty refreshments.

A very interesting and unusual event was commemorated quietly in the city last Sunday, when Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, of 600 Water street, celebrated the sixty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day. The pastor of their church, Rev. Mr. Todd, remarked on the occasion during church service last Sunday, and many friends paid their respects during the day to the aged bride and bridegroom, the former being in her eighty-second year, and the later in his eighty-eighth year of life. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. R. J. Kidd, of Toronto, was in the city for the anniversary, and their son, Mr. H. P. Kennedy, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, sent them a basket of sixty-five roses. Telegrams were received from friends in Edmonton, Calgary, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago, also several telephone messages from Toronto.

Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, Hunter street, entertained a number of her friends last evening at a miscellaneous shower given in honor of Mrs. Percy S. Dallin (nee Florence Saunders) whose marriage took place recently.

A very pleasant afternoon tea, with bridge in the evening, was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Ed. Conroy, Reid street, under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League. The guests were received by Mrs. Conroy and Mrs. John Lynch, president of the society, assisted by Miss Norah Shevlin, and were ushered into the tea room by Mrs. W. O'Brien and Mrs. M. Henry. Little Isabel Duffus made a charming small attendant at the door. Mrs. F. LaPlante and Mrs. Frank Lynch had charge of the tea room, which was very attractive with its cosy grate fire and table arranged with Irish crochet linens, large silver basket of yellow daffodils, individual silver bud vases and yellow candles in silver candlesticks. Tea was poured by Mrs. M. LaPlante and Mrs. P. Heffernan, assisted by the Misses Marcelle McNulty, Lucille Doris, Jean Duffus and Jean White. During the afternoon, a musical programme, in charge of Miss Geraldine Colins, was given, with songs by Miss Bertha Hill, accompanied by Miss Gwen Donley, and piano solo numbers by Miss Lucile Doris, and Miss Eleanor Grisdale. In the evening, six tables of bridge were played, the prize going to Mrs. M. Henry.

Sergeant (Mrs.) J. H. Bettes, of the Salvation Army, who does a great deal of work among the Oriental citizens of Peterborough, has just received for distribution ninety-five copies of an English-Canton dictionary, the gift of a friend in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Wilford and baby daughter, of Lindsay, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Conway, in Ashburnham.

Mrs. Percy Hooper is in Toronto, attending the Mendelssohn concert series being given this week in Massey Hall, when the Beethoven Centenary year is being commemorated in the programmes rendered by the choir.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Charles Reilly Neff, junior member of the law firm of Cluny and Neff, was a middle-aged man who looked more like a gentleman prizefighter than a lawyer. Faith knew that he had almost as many court victories to his credit as had his more famous partner, Ralph Cluny. The two men had been not only partners in their profession, but the closest of friends in private life.

The first significant question that Coroner Murchison asked was like a bombshell in that breathlessly quiet room:

"Did you recently assist the deceased, Mr. Ralph Cluny, in the drafting of his last will and testament?"

"I did."

"Without asking you at this time to produce a copy of that document, Mr. Neff, I am going to ask you if Miss Cherry Lane, who is now Mrs. Christopher Wiley, will materially benefit through the terms of that will?"

"Miss Lane was named as one of the chief beneficiaries under the document drawn up in our offices one month ago to-day," Mr. Neff answered loudly and clearly.

A score of people gasped audibly. A reporter looked at his watch, and almost ran from the room. Faith felt as if she were going to faint.

"Is the bequest to Miss Lane contingent upon her marriage with the deceased?" the coroner asked quietly.

"It is not. The clause regarding Miss Lane specifies that, upon the event of the death of the testator, before his marriage to her on November 25, 1926, Miss Lane is to inherit unconditionally."

District Attorney Banning, an absorbed spectator of the entire drama of the inquest, nodded with approval. He was to hold a few trump cards.

Both Jim Lane and Junior were questioned, but perfuntorily, since it was quite evident that they knew nothing whatever about the death of the aged lawyer.

A note from Dr. Atkins, briefly outlining Mrs. Lane's serious illness and telling of her removal to a hospital, was read by the coroner when her name was called. Faith, sensitive to every reaction from the densely packed audience, knew that her mother's dangerous illness won still more sympathy for the girl who had already been indicted by public opinion.

Alexander Cluny and his son, Ralph, were called, and testified that they had been with the murdered lawyer in his home early on Thanksgiving Day, and that he had been in unusually good spirits. Both testified that they knew of no enemy who could have desired the death of Ralph Cluny.

At four o'clock the coroner abruptly announced that he had concluded his investigation. The six men of the jury retired with Dr. Murchison, to the library of the Cluny house for deliberation.

"But, Bob," Faith drew her sweetheart into a corner of the drawing-room. "They didn't pay the slightest attention to those footprints you discovered. Why? Why didn't you make the coroner get them into the report?"

"Why, darling, I have no power to make the coroner do anything," Bob smiled at her, but his eyes were dark with trouble. "I told you Morehouse had made light of them, was sure they had been made by a cop cruising around the grounds, looking for clues. I'm sorry, dear. I wish I could have done something. Shall we wait here for the jury's verdict, or go to see your mother?"

"Let's wait," Faith begged. "I couldn't act naturally before mother while I'm so racked with suspense. Maybe they won't take long."

Since Cherry was not under official arrest—she had given herself up and had come back voluntarily for questioning—she was permitted to join Faith and her father in the drawing room.

"Reckon I'd better get along to the hospital to see your ma," Jim Lane said awkwardly, after he had kissed Cherry in a pathetic attempt to show her that he was "on her side" and had forgiven her.

"Hospital?" Cherry cried, her pale cheeks going even whiter than the day's horrors had made them. "Oh, Faith, is she worse? Is she going to die? Have I killed her? Oh, I'll kill myself if I have!" Her little hands clung to Faith; sheer terror sharpened her voice to a thin, high wail.

"Don't, honey," Faith whispered, one eye on the attentive detectives at the door. "She doesn't know anything about Mr. Cluny's—death. She only knows that you eloped with Chris at the last minute. Dr. Atkins took that means of safeguarding her from hearing of the—the tragedy and of making it certain that she wouldn't be called on to testify. She doesn't know you've returned; she thinks you're on your honeymoon."

"You thought of that, Faith," Cherry raised awed, adoring golden eyes to her sister's. "You think of everything, darling. I wonder what the Lane family would have done without you these last few years. I—I'm just beginning to appreciate you, Faith. And you haven't scolded me, made me feel like a criminal for marrying Chris. Oh, I'd give anything in the world to be back where I was just three short months ago! Just Cherry Lane, a stenographer who had never dreamed of marrying a rich man. Oh, I've been a fool, Faith, a conceited, headstrong little fool! I wonder that you don't hate me!"

"I've always loved you more than anyone else, Cherry," Faith said very quietly, but her voice trembled. "Bob's scowling at me for saying that, honey," she laughed shakily. "You see, Cherry, Bob insists on telling the world that we're engaged. He wants the right to stand with the Lanes, if there's any trouble. Not that we think there will be," she added quickly.

"I knew you were in love with each other, of course," Cherry flung up her head and smiled gallantly through her tears. "I'm awfully glad. I'll try to be a better sister than I was a sweetheart, Bob. I treated you rotten, but I guess I've paid for a lot of my sins today."

"I'm afraid it's going to take me a little while longer to forgive you for letting Uncle Ralph down," Bob told her without a smile, his blue eyes very serious.

Cherry's small, childish face had become drawn and pinched and very white while he talked, but she took his indictment bravely, unflinchingly.

It was a little less than an hour after the coroner had withdrawn with his jury of six men when a stir in the hall indicated that the men were coming back into the drawing room, where the sheeted body of Ralph Cluny on an improvised bier waited, in the impassivity of death, for vengeance.

When the room was filled with witnesses, reporters, detectives and relatives of the dead man, and the coroner had taken his place at the long table, a hush fell upon the crowd.

Dr. Murchison rose, his face inscrutable, to make his report.

TOMORROW: Cherry's arrest.

MOTHER! HELP YOUR WEAK, FRAIL CHILD

He needs every bit of strength and energy to grow up and face the world and to combat the diseases that all children encounter.

McCoy's Cod Liver Extract Tablets have helped thousands of little ones—many of them in worse shape than your little loved one.

Rich in health building vitamines and a combination of strength and flesh builders that do help the ailing child in just a few days.

They put on weight, too. You can get 60 McCoy's Tablets for 60 cents at McDermid & Jury, Boyd's Drug Store, McDermid Drug Co. or any druggist anywhere. Try them for 30 days and if you are not joyfully satisfied with results get your money back. Demand McCoy's—they are sugar coated and children love to take them instead of the fishy tasting, stomach upsetting Cod Liver liquids.

Badly digested food, acidity of the stomach, and sluggish liver cause headaches. Seigel's Syrup will remove these causes. Any drug store.

DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL

This frock of rose wool jersey is trimmed with thirty-two buttons of a deeper shade of rose placed at the front of the bodice, on the cuffs, pockets and belt.

Since skirts cannot very well grow any shorter and still be worthy the name of skirts they will apparently have to grow longer. To be sure, they might get shorter and shorter and come to be called by some other name—hip ruffles, waist frills, kiltlets, or something of that sort. Then we should have to wear tights or bloomers beneath and gradually the ruffle or frill would become less and less important until it disappeared or remained only as a little rudimentary trimming, like the buttons on the back of men's evening clothes that remain although men have long ceased to button back the skirts of their coats.

Skirts might gradually vanish in that way—for anything seems to be impossible in fashions—but there doesn't seem to be any reason to think that they are going to do anything of the sort. At present it seems quite likely that they will remain almost where they are—that is just about as long or as short as they are—one season a very little longer and another season a very little shorter for quite a time. There really does not seem to be any reason why the length should materially change. They are perfectly comfortable and sensible and from our present point of view entirely modest.

Increase in the width of the short skirts is a turn of fashion that has no doubt saved the short skirt from an untimely end. The short, tight skirt is a very difficult thing to wear and it is usually ugly. The short wrap-around skirt is as uncomfortable to wear as it is to behold. Skirts so tight that they ride up when the wearer sits down are of themselves ugly enough, but the ugliest thing about them is the pulling down gesture that is bound to go with them. You cannot strike a natural, graceful posture when you are fearful all the time lest your skirts ride half way up to your hips.

Dressmakers have been really most ingenious in devising pleated and paneled skirts that actually contain sufficient width for comfort and grace and maintain at the same time an apparently straight line. To be sure, there are draped skirts and picturesque skirts that are frankly bouffant, but for the most part the new skirts are embellished by pleatings and insets that give width without adding an actual flare to the silhouette.

Miss Mildred Hetherington, a pupil of Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, has been successful in passing with honors the Midwinter examinations of the Toronto Conservatory of Music in Intermediate Piano.

• • •

Miss May Perry, of Toronto, is spending the week end at her home here.

• • •

Mr. and Mrs. B. Jinks, 344 Simcoe street, are to-day celebrating an anniversary of their wedding.

• • •

Mr. John Trombley, Charlotte street, who recently underwent a serious operation in St. Michael's Hospital, Toronto, returned home last evening, and is convaleacing satisfactorily.

• • •

The Women's Missionary Society of Knox Church held a very successful afternoon tea at the Manse yesterday afternoon, with an attendance of over one hundred ladies. The guests were received by Mrs. Wm. McDonald and Mrs. A. McKenzie, and were ushered into the tea room by Mrs. R. Johnston. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. Ego and Miss Jean Menzies, assisted by Mesdames Roy Lang, H. Baptie, H. Clegg, E. Betson, W. Carter, F. Drake. The tea room, which was in charge of Mrs. F. Gray, was prettily arranged, the table being centred with a silver basket of red carnations, and tall silver candlesticks holding red candles. During the afternoon, a group of the C.G.I.T. girls of the church gave two vocal numbers and Miss Kathleen McDonald played several piano selections.

• • •

Mrs. W. A. Logan is in Toronto, attending the concerts given by the Mendelssohn Choir on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

• • •

"Danny" Simons, who has been spending some time at his home here, has gone to Chicago to accept a theatrical engagement.

Last night, twenty-four of the members of the staffs of the Grafton Company and the Robert Neill Company held a banquet in Hooper's Grill Room. Ladies' teams from both stores have engaged in bowling contests during the winter, and the losers, the Grafton ladies' tendered the banquet of the Neill Company's lady bowlers and their friends, last evening. A prize was also presented to the winners. It is understood that the Grafton Company's staff is going to make a renewed effort to capture the bowling crown from the other store.

Mr. A. J. Reynolds, manager of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was in Lindsay last evening, addressing the Lindsay Council of the Knights of Columbus.

Mrs. W. E. Leal of Deloro, a former resident of the city, is spending a few days with Mrs. Head, Stewart street.

Miss Maud Young entertained the members of the Ladies' Guild of All Saints' church, also the members of the Brownton Guild, at the home of her brother, Mr. J. L. Young, Rubidge street, last night. A very pleasant social time was spent by the guests, with an evening of music, followed by the service of dainty refreshments.

A very interesting and unusual event was commemorated quietly in the city last Sunday, when Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Kennedy, of 600 Water street, celebrated the sixty-fifth anniversary of their wedding day. The pastor of their church, Rev. Mr. Todd, remarked on the occasion during church service last Sunday, and many friends paid their respects during the day to the aged bride and bridegroom, the former being in her eighty-second year, and the later in his eighty-eighth year of life. A daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. R. J. Kidd, of Toronto, was in the city for the anniversary, and their son, Mr. H. P. Kennedy, of Toronto, formerly of Peterborough, sent them a basket of sixty-five roses. Telegrams were received from friends in Edmonton, Calgary, Philadelphia, New York and Chicago, also several telephone messages from Toronto.

Mrs. W. A. Greenslade, Hunter street, entertained a number of her friends last evening at a miscellaneous shower given in honor of Mrs. Percy S. Dallin (nee Florence Saunders) whose marriage took place recently.

A very pleasant afternoon tea, with bridge in the evening, was held yesterday at the home of Mrs. Ed. Conroy, Reid street, under the auspices of the Catholic Women's League. The guests were received by Mrs. Conroy and Mrs. John Lynch, president of the society, assisted by Miss Norah Shevlin, and were ushered into the tea room by Mrs. W. O'Brien and Mrs. M. Henry. Little Isabel Duffus made a charming small attendant at the door. Mrs. F. LaPlante and Mrs. Frank Lynch had charge of the tea room, which was very attractive with its cosy grate fire and table arranged with Irish crochet linens, large silver basket of yellow daffodils, individual silver bud vases and yellow candles in silver candlesticks. Tea was poured by Mrs. M. LaPlante and Mrs. P. Heffernan, assisted by the Misses Marcelle McNulty, Lucille Doris, Jean Duffus and Jean White. During the afternoon, a musical programme, in charge of Miss Geraldine Colins, was given, with songs by Miss Bertha Hill, accompanied by Miss Gwen Donley, and piano solo numbers by Miss Lucile Doris, and Miss Eleanor Grisdale. In the evening, six tables of bridge were played, the prize going to Mrs. M. Henry.

Sergeant (Mrs.) J. H. Bettes, of the Salvation Army, who does a great deal of work among the Oriental citizens of Peterborough, has just received for distribution ninety-five copies of an English-Canton dictionary, the gift of a friend in the city.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Wilford and baby daughter, of Lindsay, are guests of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Conway, in Ashburnham.

Mrs. Percy Hooper is in Toronto, attending the Mendelssohn concert series being given this week in Massey Hall, when the Beethoven Centenary year is being commemorated in the programmes rendered by the choir.

Judge McGlade, of Cobourg, is in the city to-day, conducting a hearing in the Judge's Chambers.

Listen!

Have you heard about Peps? Peps is a scientific preparation put up in pastille form, which provides an entirely new and effective treatment for coughs, colds, chest and throat troubles.

Peps contain certain medicinal ingredients, which, when placed upon the tongue, immediately turn into vapor, and are breathed down the air passages to the lungs. On their journey, they soothe the inflamed and irritated membranes of the bronchial tubes, the delicate walls of the air passages, and finally enter and carry relief and healing to the lungs.

While no liquid or solid can get to the lungs and air passages, these Peps fumes get there direct, and healing commences.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Making The Community Christian

Text: Galatians 5: 13-25.

For, brethren, ye have been called unto liberty; only use not liberty for an occasion to the flesh, but by love serve on another.

For all the law is fulfilled in one word, even in this, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.

But if ye bite and devour one another, take heed that ye be not consumed one another.

This I say then, Walk in the Spirit, and ye shall not fulfill the lust of the flesh.

For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh: and these are contrary the one to the other; so that ye cannot do the things that ye would.

But if ye be led by the Spirit, ye are not under the law.

Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness.

Envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God.

But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith.

Meekness, temperance: against such there is no law.

And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections.

If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit.

The International Uniform Sunday School Lesson for Feb. 27. Making the Community Christian. Galatians 5: 13-25.

BY WM. E. GILROY, D.D.
Editor of The Congregationalist.

The lessons thus far this year have dealt with making individuals Christian and making homes Christian.

If we could make individuals and homes Christian, we should have gone far toward making the community Christian—not all the way, of course, for there are problems of social life that have to be worked out by expert leadership and by good will, in accordance with social and economic law and with sound political ideals.

It is a mistake to suppose that we can establish a Christian society merely by making the individuals in society Christian; that is a necessary foundation, but upon that foundation we must build intelligently and well. The disposition of the members of a family to desire a home, and to live congenially in the home, will not in itself construct a home. There must be arrangement and planning. The home builder needs the help of the architect.

It is true that the beauty of home life in its spiritual relationships may make a hut preferable to a palace, but a people content to live in huts would never have an ideal home life.

Too Much Efficiency.

"Efficiency" is an over-worked word today. Often it is almost entirely materialistic in its consideration. But true efficiency is a very intimate and proper relationship to spiritual life.

There is considerable warrant for the protest that some have made against Charles Kingsley's counsel to a young girl, "Be good, sweet maid, and let who will be clever." It is unduly handicapping goodness to suggest that goodness and cleverness can be safely separated. The world needs a great deal more goodness, but it needs goodness associated with efficiency and cleverness, if we are to work out the world's problems wisely and effectually, and thus build up Christian communities.

Probably it was this that Paul had in mind when he admonished the early Christians to "work out their own salvation with fear and trembling." In the same way the Christian in society must build upon the foundation of good will and righteous living the structure of the new society. Here, also, it is God that worketh in men to will and to do of his good pleasure.

A Lover of Freedom.

Our lesson applies these principles in the realm of certain personal and social relationships. Paul was a great lover of freedom. He recognized that there could be no sound life either for the individual or for society where freedom was absent; but he perceived also that society is made up of men and women of different temperaments and capacities. Some exercise their freedom entirely without the subtle temptations with which others are assailed. Some are strong where others are weak.

What should be the attitude of men under these circumstances? Should the strong lay all the emphasis upon their freedom, disregarding the struggles and needs of their weaker brethren, or should freedom be made an occasion of making our lives helpful and influential in right directions? For the solution of this problem Paul had only one word—Love.

Is there any other solution today? Can there be any sound society where men lack consideration for their neighbors, where they fail to understand and sympathize with one another? Not the Jewish law alone, but the whole law of life, is fulfilled in this word Love.

Paul's commentary upon his own text is very striking. He interprets the meaning of love in concrete terms by contrasting what he calls the life of the spirit with the lust of the flesh. Here is where all men of high-mindedness and zeal for righteousness come to the testing point.

Plenty of Freedom.

There are certain things in life against which there is no law, certain things in the realm of which men may have all the freedom they care to exercise. How strange it is that when men talk freedom they often mean freedom to do things that are at least questionable, while they show very little concern about freedom in the performance of things that are inherently good.

DR. SINCLAIR GIVES ADDRESS

Kiwanis Club Hear About the Auxiliary Classes in Ontario.

AT LUNCHEON.

The committee on Vocational guidance had charge of the Kiwanis luncheon today at noon and the special speaker was Dr. S. B. Sinclair inspector of Auxiliary classes for Ontario.

Dr. J. J. Craig introduced the speaker of the day. "In 1914 the legislature passed the auxiliary class act and appointed Dr. Sinclair as chief organizer and inspector. With two classes in 1914 there are 132 to-day and 104 of these are vocational classes. The pupils who attend these classes are about 60 per cent normal or normal enough to be not sent to an institution," said Dr. Craig.

"The world from the earliest time has always been in request of happiness and the greatest thing that education has done and can do is to give people a real practical knowledge of the work they are doing so that they will find happiness in life." Henry Ford has made a study of his employees and every man has the job that suits him; there are blindmen who are busily engaged and happy earning as much money as other employees. "If we could train our people to find their proper calling in life we would reduce the number of misfits and bring great gladness to the world."

The boy who has entered vocational activity not only does good for the world but his life will be filled with happiness."

Dr. Sinclair then told about a father who had a boy of 14 coming to him and saying, "he did not know what to make of his boy." There are five angles to study a boy from as to his aptitude in future life. First, language. A boy may have great aiblity to study various languages and thus make a teacher or great interpreter, or he may be of a logical nature and would make a good scientist, or he may like mechanics and understands engines, or he may make a painter, a poet, a sculptor, or he may be of the social nature who is a hail fellow well met. This type is a born politician and leader of men.

How Can He Find Out ?

"The best way," said Dr. Sinclair, "is to have the boy study himself, or secondly the father by general observations, can see what the boy is best fitted for. There are many standardized tests to-day whereby the mentality of a boy or girl can be found out, but the one used principally is the Stanford-Binet test, whereby a child of a certain age should remember a certain number of digits. Children of ten years should be able to repeat six digits after hearing them once, the ordinary man on the street should be able to repeat seven digits, and a man with superior intelligence should be able to repeat eight digits.

A person changes very little in mentality after the age of 16, but his knowledge and experience increases. A boy of 60 per cent. mentality may be taken and his training will likely take longer to learn, but when he has learned his trade he will be just a little better than the average person.

In Toronto today there is a school of 350 boys and 300 girls. The boys are taught trades such as shoemaking, metal working, and baking; while the girls are taught sewing, cooking, millinery, and other vocations.

Inspector Mowat was a guest at the luncheon; Jack Smith was the special soloist, and John Chadwick was the booster.

HOCKEY PLAY-OFFS IN PETERBOROUGH

Hastings County Triple Tie Will Be Played Here on Wednesday and Friday Nights Next.

In the Hastings County Hockey League a triple tie has resulted in the playing so far this season, Stirling, Marmora and Tweed having won and lost the same number of games.

Mr. Bill Jackson was at Stirling last evening, and arranged for the play-off games in Peterborough.

The first play-off game will be in Brock Street Rink on Wednesday night between Stirling and Marmora, and the winners will play Tweed on Friday night, the 4th of March.

On the Tweed team are four brothers, who play very good hockey; on the Marmora team Wood, formerly of Peterborough, is a member; also Neil and McWilliams who played for Havelock O.H.A. team this year.

The three teams have the same calibre of hockey as the Intermediate O.H.A. teams play.

The teams in the several towns intend making arrangements for special trains, and Peterborough will be able to see several good games of hockey with lots of enthusiasm being displayed by supporters from the different places.

JUBILEE MEETING AT LEGION HALL

Public Meeting To Plan Celebration To Be Held on Monday Night.

Owing to the desire of the members of the Canadian Legion to co-operate, and the necessity of holding the meeting in a larger place than the Council Chambers, the public meeting called to consider plans for a local celebration of Canada's Diamond Jubilee will be held in the Legion Hall on Monday evening at 8.00 o'clock. The regular meeting of the Legion, planned for the same night, will be held at 7.00 instead of 8.00.

This meeting is called by His Worship Mayor Holloway to arrange a suitable observance here of this important date in Canada's history, and the attendance of a large number of citizens, with representatives from various clubs and societies, is requested in order that a good start may be made.

It is announced that the C.N.R. offices in Toronto will be moved on March 1, from Toronto street, to their former home at the northwest corner of King and Yonge streets. The offices were moved to allow erection of the proposed building on the site to proceed. ABOVE is shown for the first time an architect's drawing of the actual building which was very nearly erected there. It was to be 26 stories and two basements high, and was to have a tower in addition of 10 stories, making in all 36 stories. The building would have cost $2,000,000, and the C.N.R. property $1,250,000 and that of the Home Bank $500,000, a total cost of $3,750,000. The frontage on King street would have been 104 feet, and that on Yonge street 90 feet. The whole building was to have been built of Manitoba stone. The elevator system was planned for the centre, so that all four sides would have had ample light. Sooner or later it is expected that some such building will be erected on this site. The renovation of the old building, for the return of the railway, is now well under way.

Member Suggests Medal To Commemorate Jubilee

OTTAWA, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press).—"In view of the educational and inspirational value thereof, has the Government considered the advisability of issuing to the school children of Canada a medal or other suitable memento to commemorate the diamond jubilee celebration of the birthday of our Dominion?" is the question placed on the order paper of the House of Commons by A. B. Thompson (Conservative, Simcoe East).

MURDERS RELATIVES.

THE MARKETS

Trading Continues Heavy Upward Tendency Slackens

TORONTO, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press). — Trading continued very heavy on the Toronto Stock Exchange this morning, but some slackening of the late upward tendency was shown, although stocks generally continued firm. Strong spots were Canadian Canners and Cosmos, newly active stocks, and Massey Harris, which again took the leadership. Massey Harris touched 99½ and was 2 1-8 points higher at the noon close of 99 1-8. Canners firmed 2¼ at 82½, and Cosmos gained 1 3-8 at 18 3-8. Seagram, almost as active as Massey Harris, made only net advance of an eighth at 25¾, while Hiram Walker softened 5-8 at 40, and Gooderham and Worts was down a full point at 57. Another weaker stock was Industrial Alcohol, down one at 27.

Few Stocks Stand Out On To-day's Standard

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—(Canadian Press.)—Few firm stocks stood out in the depressing list on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning. The tendency of prices was either slightly lower or unchanged, and very few issues recorded gains. One of these was Laval Quebec, which advanced two at 40 and another, Potter Doal, also two higher at 48. Chaput Hughes firmed 1 1-2 at 8 1-2. Losses were nowhere large. Argonaut eased two at 35 and Nipissing was down 15 at 955. Amulet lost two at 130, but Area eased only fractionally to 37 1-2, while Teck Hughes sold ten cents lower at 6.60.

Green Bugs In Oklahoma Causes July Wheat To Move

CHICAGO, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press) — Large exports from the southern hemisphere gave an early downward trend to wheat to-day. On the other hand, however, word that green bugs had appeared in Oklahoma, led to some buying of July wheat. Starting at 1-8 to 5-8c off, wheat rallied but then dropped lower than before. Corn, oats and provisions were firmer, corn opening at 1-8 cent to 5-8 cent advance but reacting somewhat.

Opening prices were: wheat, May 138 7-8; July 132 1-8. Corn, May 75 3-4, July 80 3-4. Oats, May 43 3-4, July 44 3-8.

Market Characterized By Mixed Price Movements

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press) — Mixed price movements, reflecting the play of opposing speculative forces, again characterized to-day's stock market, but the undertone generally was firm. The presidential veto of the McNary Haugen bill was favorably commented upon by several brokerage houses, but was without apparent effect on stock speculation. Calling of about $10,000,000 in loans, incidental to month end demand for funds, sent the call money rate from four to four and a half per cent. and had tendency to stimulate profit taking in recent strong spots.

Oils displayed fairly firm undertone in the face of cut in gasoline prices by the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey. Steels were slow to respond to reported stiffening of pig iron prices, United States Steel Common moving within narrow radius from yesterday's final figure. Baldwin, Allied Chemical and American Smelting also were in rather free supply. General Motors was run up several points on the report that Chevrolet production had exceeded that of Ford for the first time this month.

Sound Security

THE first form of security was probably that of a first mortgage on real estate. The best real estate is that which is improved and centrally located on main thoroughfares in large cities.

The best first mortgage, therefore, is one secured by this class of real estate.

We have on hand several blocks of First Mortgage Bonds as above described and which yield from 6½ to 7%.

Something New for Bridge Fans

Here is interesting news for the bridge fans. The Examiner has arranged something brand new for you—a bridge contest.

A plan has been worked out that will teach you how to play better bridge, provide you and your friends with some unusual entertainment and at the same time enable you to compete for a list of prizes that will be offered.

Once each week until further notice The Examiner will print a bridge hand. The object of the contest will be to play it in the most scientific way and tell how you did it in an article of not more than 100 words. The winners and the correct solution, as determined by Ellis O. Jones, a recognized bridge expert, will be printed a week later with the list of prize winners a new hand to be worked out the following week.

CHESS CHAMPION RETAINS CROWN

Vanquished Most Formidable Rival in Fifth Round of Tournament.

SCORE INCREASED

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press)—Scoring his most notable triumph of the week, Jose R. Capablanca, of Havana, world titleholder, vanquished his most formidable rival, Dr. Alexander Alekhine of Paris, in the fifth round of the International Chess Masters' tournament.

Capablanca's score was increased to 3 1-2 points and there is a possibility that he may gain another point in the adjourned game with Dr. Vidmar, of Jugoslavia, to be played off to-day.

Aaron Nimzowitsch, of Copenhagen, moved into second place by winning from Dr. Vidmar, who resigned after 20 moves.

Playing a steady game against Rudolf Spielmann, of Vienna, Frank J. Marshall, the United States champion, secured a draw in 36 moves.

Spielmann resigned his adjourned game from the second round to Dr. Alekhine without further play.

The standings:

	Won	Lost
Capablanca	3½	½
Nimzowitsch .. .	2½	1½
Dr. Alexhine	2	2
Spielman..	1½	2½
Dr. Vidmar	1½	2½
Marshall..	1	3

HE FINISHES RACE WITH BROKEN LEG

State Runner Comes in Third in Race Despite Injury.

EAST LANSING, Mich., Feb. 25.—That Lewis Hackney, Michigan State half miler, ran the greater part of the 1,000-yard run in the State A. A. U. championships Saturday with a "broken leg" was revealed here yesterday, when X-ray photographs showed that the fibia, or small bone, of his left leg was fractured. The runner broke the bone when he stumbled on a curve of the indoor track, but he finished the race, taking third place.

Hackney was the favorite to win the run, and was running well under record time until he broke the bone in his leg. At this point in the race spectators noticed that the long-legged State runner faltered and lost considerable ground. They could also see that he was in great pain. But it was not until yesterday that the exact nature of his injury was made known.

CURLING NEWS

KEENE BONSPIEL

KEENE, Feb. 25.—The fourth annual local bonspiel of the Keene Curling Club, held Tuesday and Wednesday, was another huge success, despite the mild weather. The finals of the Manley Cup and the Dr. Walsh Shield will be played at some future date, when the weather gets colder. The curlers had some tough slugging on Wednesday; the semi-finals in each competition being played in water, and it was just a case of who got their stones up in the rings.

At five o'clock on Wednesday, following the semi-final games, the ladies served a sumptuous banquet in the Town Hall. This was a fitting climax to a great two days' meet of friendly rivalry.

There were two extra end games played in the bonspiel and many of the games were nip and tuck all the way.

To the President, Henry Weir, and Vice-President, Charlie Mather, the Bonspiel Committee, S. Comrie, C. Mather and H. Renwick and especially the genial secretary-treasurer, G. S. Taylor, a great deal of credit is due.

The ladies' committee and all the ladies, of course, came in for a great deal of praise, for without them the bonspiel would not be the success it is.

A dance followed the banquet to wind up a perfect two days' fun.

LARGE ENTRY LIST IN SKI TOURNAMENT

Vermont Sportsmen to Take part in Canadian Amateur Championships.

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 25 (Canadian Press). — A large entry list for the big ski event of the season, the Canadian Amateur championships, is assured. Rolf Monsen and his team from the Brattleboro Hill in Vermont are here and so is Alf. Holverson and his team from the Housen City; Hans Hansen, of the Minneapolis club, an Alympic man who has jumped in Montreal before has decided to take part in this meet rather than go on to Chicago. Along with the big list of Ottawa and Montreal entries, these American entries give assurance of the keenest competition.

Especial interest is added this year since for the first time the all-round ski championships trophy, the Sir Henry Thornton cup, is to be awarded to the winner of the combined events in jumping and running.

OMEMEE BEEF RING SUCCESSFUL YEAR

Same Officers Elected To Carry On—Young People Meet.

OMEMEE, Feb. 25.—Long years ago the farmers depended on the pork barrel, which was filled in the early spring, to be their main source of supply for the summer's meat, but times have changed. For years past, a beef ring has been in operation in this locality and has given satisfactory results.

This organization is composed of twenty men who in turn each week provide a beef for twenty weeks, or originally did so, but as large families are becoming almost a rarity very few there are who want a full share and one is only too willing to divide his share of from 20 to 27 lbs. with his neighbors. Last year the ring comprised forty members, some shares having been distributed among three families. Very little expense is connected with the organization, apart from the wage paid to the butcher and the secretary.

The heaviest beef contributed last year weighed 540 lbs., and the lightest 340 making the average weight for the season 4.23 lbs. The animal is supposed to weigh 400 lbs. and to those farmers whose beef is overweight a cash amount is returned made up by the farmers whose animal does not come up to the standard.

Perfect satisfaction was expressed by the members who organized for another season with the same officers: President, D. Weir; secretary, O. G. Williamson; butcher, S. D. Vaughan.

The young people of Trinity United church were "At Home" in the Sunday school room of the church, on Monday evening when they entertained the Anglican Young People's Association.

In the absence of the president, Mr. F. G. Sandy, M.P.P., Miss Lila Parsons had charge of the meeting which opened with the singing of a familiar hymn, followed by prayer by Rev. Mr. Weir of Christ church, after which the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. On behalf of the League members, Rev. E. W. Rowland extended a welcome to the visiting Society which was responded to in a neat speech by Mr. Horace Hill, president of the Anglican group. A pleasing piano selection was brilliantly rendered by Miss Evelyn Rea, after which Mr. Patrick, teacher at Lang's school, gave a humorous reading. Community singing was then indulged in with Mrs. Rowland as pianist and Rev. E. W. Rowland, as director, and many old time favorites were heartily rendered by the young folk.

A musical promenade was the means of mixing the crowd up generally so that conversation with everyone present was indulged in.

The young men were then allowed to go fishing, each being supplied with a line to which a ticket was attached. These were thrown over a tall screen on the other side of which were grouped the young ladies. The one securing the ticket first proved to be a partner to the fisherman, in a contest which followed. The winners were Miss E. Curry and Mr. Will Weir.

Refreshments followed, after which brief speeches were made by Rev. Mr. Weir, Messrs. Horace Hill, Allan Adams, and G. Bradley.

ST. ANDREW'S Y.P.S.

Interesting Meeting Held By Young People of Campbellford Church.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 25. — The meeting of St. Andrew's Y.P.S. opened by the singing of "All the Way, My Saviour Leads Me." Mr. Thomas Campbell presided over the meeting. The Scripture lesson from Isaiah 62, 6-12, was read in unison, led by the president. A piano duet was rendered by Miss Jean Anderson and Mr. R. Collison.

The topic was given very ably by Miss Edna Dunham. It was based on "Our Duty as Christian Citizens," and was well explained.

The ladies of St. Andrew's Church whose initials were E, F, G, H, I, J, K and L held a very entertaining social evening in the Sunday School rooms on Tuesday evening. In the absence of the pastor, Rev. Mr. Grier, who is ill, Dr. O. C. Watson was chairman. His opening remarks were words of welcome to all present, and each number on the programme was intermingled with his ever-ready wit. The programme was as follows:

Violin Solo—Kenneth Collison accompanied by Arthur Collison, piano. Encore.

Monologue, Mr. R. J. Elliott, accompanist, Mr. W. Pearson, "The Village by the Sea. Encore, "Somebody's Waiting for Me."

CANADIENS WIN FROM TORONTO

Aggressiveness Enables Montreal Team To Come From Behind.

OTHER N.H.L. GAMES.

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—The aggressive attack of the Canadiens enabled them to twice come from behind to tie the score against the Maple Leafs at the Arena last night and they had enough left to continue on to get another goal and hold the desperate attacks of the locals in check during the last eight minutes of the game and as a result the Flying Frenchmen skated off the ice with a 3 to 2 victory, it being their fourth successive win over the locals this season. The game was one of the fastest of the season although the play was rather ragged in the second and third period, due mainly to the sticky condition of the ice which caused the rubber to roll or stop short. This upset many promising efforts at combination by both teams, but on the whole appeared to lessen the effectiveness of the Leafs more than it did the Habitants.

Although not able to show their best, owing to Bill Carson not having completely recovered from the injury to his arm, and Keeling being ill with tonsilitis, the Leafs' front line gave ample demonstration that they have arrived and had they had sufficient relief men the tale might have been different. Keeling got out of a sick bed to play but he was forced to retire during the second period and was not allowed to leave the dressing-room until after the game. With both he and Carson unfit for rugged duty the Irish were compelled to rearrange their team in the third period, Day going up to left wing and Brydge to the defence. After six minutes' play Day drove one into the net from a sharp angle after taking a pass from Bailey, and then he dropped back to the defence.

Maroons 2, Detroit 0

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 25.—Two goals by Bill Phillips were plenty to give Montreal Maroons a National Hockey League victory over Detroit last night. The Cougars seemed quite minus the scoring punch after the first few minutes and gained a goose-egg.

The locals flashed some handsome defence in the second period, but then went to pieces. This made the game dull. Montreal, with goal mostly unthreatened, waited for excellent opportunities to make scoring efforts.

The first goal came in the second period on a combination play with Carson entitled to as much honor as Phillips. Carson took the puck down and passed it to Phillips when the latter was in ideal position.

For the other goal, in the third period, Phillips moved around the Cougar net until he tricked Holmes out of position.

Ottawa 1, Rangers 0

NEW YORK, Feb. 25.—A brilliant rush down the right boards and a sizzling shot into the top corner of the net from the stick of Hector Kilrea ended a thrilling National Hockey League game here last night and gave the Ottawa Senators a 1 to 0 victory over the New York Rangers. The goal was scored after 5 minutes and 35 seconds of overtime. The Rangers had the best of the play in the overtime period, and were attacking hard when the Ottawa right winger secured the puck at centre ice, circled Leo Bourgeault and let the rubber fly like a bullet under Goalkeeper Chabot's arm.

LINDSAY WINS BOYS' TANKARD

Scugog Town Shows Usual Aptitude in Capturing Curling Honors.

CUP'S FIRST HOME.

TORONTO, Feb. 25.—The Thomas Rennie Trophy, emblematic of the Ontario junior tankard, will find its first home in Lindsay, the boys from the East winning the semi-final and final on Granite ice yesterday. The Lindsay lads first disposed of St. Thomas, then won the deciding match over Pentang. The Rennie Trophy was presented to the winners by the donor, Thomas Rennie, who highly complimented the boys on their victory in the first junior competition for provincial curling honors. Gold medals were also given to the winners, while the losers in the final round were awarded silver medals. Results:

PAPERS DIFFER IN OPINIONS ON NOTE TO RUSSIA

Mail Says Protest Will Make Blood of Every Briton Tingle.

SCORNS OPPONENTS.

Express Asks What Remedy Is There For Russian Hatred.

LONDON, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press).—Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail and Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express, perhaps the two most widely read newspapers in the country, are in almost direct disagreement on the note of warning addressed by Britain to the Russian Soviet Government, concerning its propagandist activities. The Mail pours scorn on "our rabbit government," declaring that the protest by Sir Austen Chamberlain "will make the blood of every self-respecting Briton tingle." It continues that those differing from this viewpoint are "anaemic creatures, myopic beings wringing their old maidenly hands, flabby friends of the Soviet in our midst."

On the other hand The Express, while admitting that Bolshevist hatred of this country is actively encouraged by the country's enemies, asks what is the remedy: "War? The question is its own answer. Breaking of the trade agreement with Russia? This is a manufacturing country."

The Express adds that the Soviet leaders are desperate men, "knowing that they are playing a losing game, having gambled and lost on Bolshevism, but they are the head of the government, and Russian internal government is no affair of ours. The British note was couched in terms of dignity. Let us wait with equal dignity to see what the response will be."

NICKLE SETTLES DAMAGE AWARD

Former Attorney General Arranges For Payment By Students.

SAID TO BE $250.

KINGSTON, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press)—W. F. Nickle, former Attorney General of Ontario, representing the student body of Queen's University to-day had a conference with W. R. Aylesworth, reeve of the Township of Kingston, with the result that a settlement was arranged in connection with the damage done to the township hall at Cataraqui on Tuesday by some of the students from the university. While the amount of the settlement is not stated it is understood to be in the neighborhood of about two hundred and fifty dollars.

COOLIDGE VETOES FARM RELIEF BILL

Says Measure Discriminates Against Basic Products of Agriculture.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—(Canadian Press.)— President Coolidge vetoed the McNary Haugen Farm Relief Bill. The President said in a special message to the Senate that he had declined to approve the bill because the "measure discriminates definitely against the products which make up what has been universally considered a programme of safe farming."

OBITUARY.

BESSIE WALTON.

On Friday, February 25th, 1927, at her residence, 228 McDonnel Street, there passed away, after a lingering illness, Bessie, youngest daughter of the late John and Jane Walton, of Peterborough.

Funeral Monday, February 28th, 1927, at two p.m., to Little Lake Cemetery.

WALTER E. JACKSON.

Mr. and Mrs. James Jackson have returned from Deroit ,Mich., where they were attending the funeral of Mr. Jackson's brother, Walter E. Jackson, of that city, and formerly of Peterborough.

The late Walter Jackson, although he left Peterborough some twenty years ago, is still remembered by many residents as one of the outstanding athletes developed here. He was a speed skater of renown, and a splendid runner and jumper. His collection of prizes won in various athletic competitions, including no fewer than sixty nine gold and silver cups and trophies. One of his greatest exploits was the winning of the Canadian mile skating champion.hip from Maguire of Montreal. He won several championship skating races in New York and only four years ago was successful in a race in Detroit. To his credit, too, were a number of jumping and running events in England.

Surviving relatives are a widow and one son in Detroit, a sister, Mrs. James Kane of New York City and four brothers, James, William and Archie of Peterboro, and Andrew of Toronto.

Many friends of the well known athlete have learned with deep sorrow of his passing away.

He was fifty one years of age.

MANY ALARMS WERE RECEIVED IN PAST YEAR

1926 Proves Record Year in Number of Calls Turned In.

FIRE LOSS $76,448.

Number of Actual Fires About Same as Four Previous Years.

The year 1926 was a record year as to the number of fire alarms in the city of Peterborough. Four hundred and sixty-five calls were turned in, this being 90 more than in 1925 and 29 more than the previous record. Fifty-two of these fires were of a more or less serious nature, causing a loss of $76,448.20.

Chimney fires were the most numerous, there being 231; that is, almost half the calls turned in were for fires of this nature Ten out of the city alarms were responded to during the year. Fifteen of the alarms answered were grass fires, 12 were caused by short circuits 7 by sparks from chimneys, 6 from cigarettes and cigars, 71 were second alarms, and 16 were false.

During the year there were only thirty box alarms and 333 were day calls. Wednesday was the day of the week when the most alarms were turned in, with Thursday and Saturday running a close second and third. February was the month with the most calls, with May second and January third. During the whole month of September 11 alarms were turned in, with a loss of $13.52.

The total insurance carried by the owners of the buildings where there were fires was $872,460.00. December was the month with the greatest fire loss. In January there was no loss, $57.00 in August, $23,166.07 in May, and $44,274.74 in December.

Of the fifty-two fires, twenty-two of them were in dwelling-houses, seven in factories, four in stores and three in automobiles, with the rest in various kinds of buildings. Thirty-four of the buildings in which there were fires were brick and twelve were frame. The greatest number of fires broke out about the time the day and night shift was changing. Box 17 at the corner of Park and Townsend Streets and box 57 at the corner of Armour Road and Hazlett Streets were the ones from which the most box alarms came. The section of the city north of Edinburgh Street was the one where there were the fewest fires.

Twenty-three thousand one hundred and fifty feet of hose was laid at the various fires, 1,231 gallons of chemicals were used, and the motor trucks travelled 1,040 miles.

During the year the department had 13 calls for the pulmotor and 2,340 inspections were made. Many improvements were made, including the addition of 1,000 feet of 2½-inch hose, 300 feet of chemical hose, and 2 Foamite tanks. The hall was painted inside by the City Trust, the firemen doing the work, and about March 15th a 1,000-gallon triple combination pumper is expected to arrive.

In Chief Gimblett's report which was submitted to the Fire, Water and Light Committee of the City Council he recommends that a six-cyclinder ladder truck be purchased and the horses disposed of. The ladder wagon at present is the only part of the fire-fighting apparatus that is not motorized. He recommends that the Council establish a pension fund for the members of the department; that 1,000 feet of 2½-inch hose be purchased to keep the supply up to the standard and to replace the hose which has to be discarded every year, and that the City Trust be asked to paint the outside of the Fire Hall.

BOY COMPETES UNDER HANDICAP

Paddy Nolan's Mother Lies Dying As He Takes Part in Race.

QUEBEC DERBY.

QUEBEC, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press). — "Paddy" Nolan, fifteen-year-old boy, who finished fourth in the International Dog Derby here recently against the world's most famous dog "mushers," made the 120-mile three-day course under a terrific handicap, it became known to-day. "Paddy's" mother was seriously ill during the course of the meet, and the driver was forced to compete under the strain of knowing that his mother might die at any time. Following each day's forty-mile grind, the boy handed the dogs over to friends and rushed home. Mrs. Nolan, however, clung tenaciously to the strain of life until the competition was over, and died yesterday.

CHILEAN PRESIDENT USES STERN MEANS

Adds 100 To List of Supposed Communists To Be Deported.

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 25. — (Canadian Press.)—Stern methods are being continued by Premier Ibanez to wipe out communism from Chile and to eliminate opposition to the government. A number of persons were added yesterday to a list of more than one hundred previously arrested or ordered to leave the country. Although the list is being kept secret it is known to be made up mostly of communist congressmen and labor leaders in various parts of the country. Three communist newspapers have been shut down.

CAPT. JOHN NOEL GIVES ADDRESS ON EVEREST FILM

Under Auspices of Kiwanis Club in St. Paul's Church.

HAZARDOUS TRIP.

Tells of Ill-Fated Attack on "Roof of World."

Tremendous in conception and wonderful in achievement, both as a record of a great event and a masterpiece of photographic art, the film of the ill-fated attack on "The roof of the world" shown in St. Paul's Church last night under the auspices of the Kiwanis Club fulfilled the highest expectations of the large number who had gathered to hear Captain John Noel tell the tragic story.

Due to poor train connections the film was delayed almost an hour, but the audience listening to the story from the lips of a man who had helped to make it and told in a simple matter of fact fashion that brought home in no uncertain manner the hazardous nature of the expedition, were more than repaid for their wait. Captain Noel was introduced to the audience by J. J. Turner.

During the interval Martin B. Chenhall, A.R.C.O., rendered a series of organ solos that earned repeated applause, as also did two solos sang by John Smith in his usual brilliant fashion.

Descriptive Talk.

Starting his picture at the Plains of Bengal, Captain Noel showed his audience a series of beautiful pictures which included every flower, plant and tree known to mankind taken in a climate ranging from the tropical to the temperate. Pictures of the natives and their customs were also shown as the party travelled toward their destination. Ancient monastries which no white man had ever set eyes on before, built on regular precipices, were pictured in their native grandeur. Travelling over hostile Tibet, traversing valleys, snowfields and glaciers and finally finishing practically at the top of Mount Everest itself, the highest mountain in the world. He told a story of indomitable courage and heroic endurance, of battles fought with the elements, intense cold and rarified atmosphere and zero gales sweeping across the snow fields at a hundred miles an hour, but failing to deter the little band from their goal. One of the first tasks undertaken was the establishment of depots, at intervals of one day's journey up the mountain side. The site chosen for the first depot was on the East Rongbuk Glacier at 17,000 feet; the second, frozen lake camp, was at 19,500 feet; the third was Snowfield camp, situated at 21,000 feet above the sea level. This is the greatest height at which a camp has ever been built and occupied by men.

At these depots stocks of food and other necessities were laid in and parties of porters stationed.

Never Returned.

The film led up to the tragic climax, when in 1924 two members of the gallant party, Mallory and Irvine, carrying oxygen cylinders, without which it was thought impossible to live at such an altitude, succeeded in climbing to within 800 feet of the summit and disappeared from their companions' view, passing upward to their unknown fate.

The unsuccessful search for their bodies was vividly portrayed by Captain Noel in telling of the reluctance to come down, knowing that when they turned their faces toward home that they were leaving their two brave companions behind, sacrifices to the tremendous forces of nature, which they had attempted to conquer.

Lipton Takes Time Off From Racing For Business

LONDON, Feb. 25 (United Press)—Sir Thomas Lipton will take time off from his new attempt to win the America Cup to retain active management of Thomas L. Lipton, Ltd., his American business, the sportsman told the United Press today.

Sir Thomas is retiring from Lipton's Ltd., his English business.

"My retirement from active control of Lipton's Limited, does not change my position with the American Company, which is my own property, and in which I will continue to have control and to manage actively," he said.

"Tell my good American friends I am still going strong and am interested in their welfare."

Viscount Astor, Who Would Seat the Peeresses Likens House Of Lords As To An Aged Golf Club

LONDON, Feb. 26 (A.P.).—The true motive for disqualifying peeresses in their own right heretofore from sitting in the House of Lords are, according to Viscount Astor:

"The House of Lords is regarded as a sort of male sanctuary and not as an assembly making laws for 40,000,000 people, of whom more than half are women, but rather as a golf club with an exclusive membership of retired Colonels."

Viscount Astor, who proposes to bring in a bill at this session enabling fourteen peeresses in their own right to sit in the House, spoke at a dinner given last night by the Women's Election Committee in honor of these peeresses. Several of them are abroad, but Viscountess Rhondda and Baroness Ravensdale, granddaughter of the late Levi Z. Leiter of Chicago, were present.

Lord Astor said the House of Lords was the only public body which had not recognized that women had rights. The presence of women there would make the Lords more representative and stimulate social legislation. He declared it was dishonoring the crown by enabling it to disregard sex in the future when creating legislators.

High School Girl, 16 Drinks Carbolic Acid

CENTREVILE, Ia., Feb. 26.—Denna Reich, 16 year old high school girl of Moravia, Iowa, committed suicide last night by drinking carbolic acid, it was learned yesterday.

Her mother, a widow, could give no reason for the act. She said her daughter had had no love affairs, was in perfect health and was a model student.

Miss Reich was active in school and church affairs in Moravia. She was a junior student in the high school.

DAIRY SUPPLIES ARE PLENTIFUL

Large Offering In the Indoor Section of Farmers' Market.

MEAT OFFERED.

Time flew fast at the farmers' market this morning. The town clock which looks down on the big open square had stopped some time during the night and the black hands went round with lightning-like swiftness when it started to go again, about half-past eleven o'clock this morning.

The steady fall of snow dampened spirits as well as produce on the open market. Patient horses stood for long hours in the slush and mud and the carts were covered with dripping moisture. Meat carcases and apples, with a few bags of potatoes, were the main offerings. Beef was selling at 11 and 13 cents a pound, pork at 18 and 20, and mutton at 15 cents a pound. Apples were priced at 40 cents a peck for the cooking variety, with Spies at 75 cents and Russets at 60 cents. Potatoes were $1.90 and $2 a bag.

Water slopped on the stairs going up to the basket section and there was a crowd around the stove, in which a fire burned. Over in the corner, a small white Pom, the last of a trio that had been offered for sale at $10 to $15 apiece, scrambled in and out of a little basket, the centre of admiring interest for passers-by.

Dairy supplies were plentiful. Butter was generally priced at 45 to 48 cents a pound, and eggs at 45 cents a dozen. Chickens were 32 to 35 cents a pound, and geese 25 cents.

STORM WRECKS 'PHONE SYSTEM

Hundreds of Poles Blown Down in Maine To-day.

DAMAGE $1,000,000.

PORTLAND, Maine, Feb. 26.—(Canadian Press).—Damage estimated by telephone company officials at close to $1,000,000 was done to telephone lines in Maine by a driving south-east snowstorm which struck here to-day. Hundreds of poles were down in this vicinity, any it was believed this condition prevailed generally throughout this section of the State. All telephonic communication to the north and east was cut off.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Two seamen died from exposure to-day after the barge 'Luther Hooper' had foundered, two miles north-east of the black buoy at Point Judith. Three others were taken to Newport Hospital.

CHANG'S TROOPS TRY TO INVADE FOREIGN AREAS

Fire Revolvers When Halted By Police, But Retreat From Volunteers.

"HARD BOILED."

Reinforcements For Shanghai Defence Are Unruly and Well Armed.

LONDON, Feb. 26 (United Press).—Unruly troops of the army of Chang ChungChang tried to enter the foreign settlement in Shanghai, threatening police and firing their revolvers into the air when they were halted, said a dispatch to The London Daily Mail today.

Two companies of volunteer troops appeared in the settlement, preventing a serious disturbance, the dispatch said. The Shanghai railway station, where Chang's soldiers congregated on their way to Sun Kiang, and where British Punjab troops are on guard, is a constant danger point, the dispatch added. It described the Chang fighters as being "hard boiled," and said they were armed with automatic pistols and rifles.

TOWNSHIP BOARD IS OPPOSED HERE

Member For Peterborough County Expresses Opinion of Constituents.

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—(Special.)—Rural sentiment in Peterborough County is overwhelmingly, almost unanimously, opposed to Premier Ferguson's bill to provide Township Boards of Public school trustees, said Mr. Anderson, the county member, when questioned on the subject yesterday. The outstanding defects in the present rural school system are clearly recognized—the waste resulting from the maintenance of a large number of schools with a very small attendance, the inequalities in school taxation within the townships, and the necessity of providing adequate facilities for education beyond the High school Entrance stage.

Mr. Ferguson's solution of the problem suggests that in a township of not less than three and not more than ten sections, each section should be formed into a school area which would elect one member to the board and that the election of members of the township board should be carried out in the same way and at the same time and place, under the same officers as the election of the municipal council. Upon this township board would devolve the same duties and powers with respect to the schools of the rural municipality as are bestowed on urban boards with respect to the schools in an urban municipality. Alternative proposals may be made shortly in the effort to point the way out of the difficulty, says Mr. Anderson.

U. S. CONDITIONS BECOME WORSE GOOD IN CANADA

Speaker at Washington Compares Outlook Between Two Countries.

FAILURES INCREASE.

Sees People of Dominion Enjoying Time of Prosperity.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press).—While conditions in the United States have been growing continually worse, they are improving in Canada, declared Chairman Oldfield, of the Democratic congressional committee, in a speech in the House. He was referring to claims of the Republican leaders as to a reign of prosperity in the U.S.

"If the policies in force in this country are so benign, so wise, so conducive to prosperity, why is it that commercial conditions here grow worse as they grow better across the northern border?" demanded Mr. Oldfield.

Failures.

Mr. Oldfield said that in 1926 there had been 21,773 commercial failures in the United States, as compared with 8,881 in 1920, the last Democratic year.

The remarks of Mr. Oldfield dwelt in part on the effects of the high tariffs of the U.S. in increasing prices to farmers and other consumers.

PASTOR CALLED FOR ST. JAMES'

Rev. J. H. Dudgeon, of Port Credit Asked To Come Here.

HAS ACCEPTED.

At a recent meeting of the Official Board of St. James' church, by unanimous standing vote of the Board, a call was extended to Rev. J. H. Dudgeon, minister of First United church, Port Credit, to the pastorate of St. James' United church, Peterborough.

Rev. Mr. Dudgeon spent a Sunday recently at St. James' church, and the congregation was greatly pleased with his sermons, and with his work for the day. He has had a very successful pastorate at Port Credit, and comes to St. James' with the highest recommendation. It was largely through his efforts that the new Memorial Hall, costing over sixty thousand dollars, and which is used as a Sunday school hall and community centre, was built.

Rev. Mr. Dudgeon has signified his acceptance of the invitation and will begin his pastorate here the first of July.

Rev. J. D. Richardson, M.A., the present minister of St. James', who is completing his fourth year as pastor, has accepted the unanimous invitation to First United church, Port Credit, and will leave here at the end of June. Port Credit offers a splendid opportunity for a pastorate as it is in the suburban area of Toronto, and is one of the fast growing, choice residential districts of the city.

THEN HE QUIT.

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 26. — In ten minutes at the Casino here, Jules Regnier won 255,000 francs (about $10,000). A thousand dollars a minute for ten minutes is said to be a record.

New South Wales Shelves Family Endowment Bill

SYDNEY, N.S.W., Feb. 26.—(Canadian Press Cable, via Reuter's). — The Legislative Council of New South Wales has shelved the Government's bill for family endowment, by referring the measure to a select committee, this having the effect of postponing action indefinitely. The scheme was passed by the lower House, the Legislative Assembly, and would collect seven millions a year from employers by imposition of a tax on employers, based on the wages bills of employers. The money would be used to grant five shillings weekly for every child, under 14 years old, whose parents are receiving not more than a stated amount of wages or other income.

The bill naturally has aroused active protest by employers, one firm having threatened to withdraw operations to Victoria State if the bill was passed.

NORTH PACIFIC HALIBUT FLEET BATTLES STORM

Gale Sweeps Out of North and Endangers Hundreds of Lives.

LINER IN DANGER.

Huge Waves and Rocky Coasts Provide Double Peril.

SEWARD, Alaska, Feb. 26. Canadian Press. — With the lives of nearly a thousand men at stake, the world's largest halibut fishing fleet to-day battled doggedly against destruction as a gale and snowstorm of unusual fury swept fiercely across the North Pacific and threatened to wipe out everything in its path.

Sweeping even into Seward's well protected harbor the gale tore small vessels from their moorings and tossed them about the Bay. The passenger liner Admiral, Wilson, in imminent danger of being battered to pieces against the docks here, sought safety at anchor in the outer harbor.

Boats in Great Peril.

The stricken halibut boats faced a double peril. Many of them were fishing several hundred miles at sea. Should they choose to attempt riding at anchor until the storm abate they would be in constant danger of being capsized by mountainous waves sweeping over their boats. Efforts to reach a protected cove would also hold the risk of being dashed to bits on the rocky shore.

The hurricane, coming straight out of the north, was said to be the worst experienced in this area in years.

Manned mostly by sturdy Scandinavian seamen, the halibut boats are well accustomed to gales which often lash the jagged Alaskan coasts, but seldom have they seen such a storm as tossed them helplessly about the sea to-day.

The halibut vessels are powered by gasoline or semi-Diesel engines and are from twenty to a hundred and twenty feet long. The average crew is about four, although some of the vessels carry as many as twenty fishermen.

Storm Increasing.

Indications that the storm menacing the boats will increase in violence were given to-day in reports to the United States Weather Bureau here. An area of unusually low barometer pressure was moving northward across the gulf, the officials of the Bureau said.

As a result of the storm, virtually the entire halibut fishing industry of the Pacific Coast, representing an investment of three million dollars, is at a standstill.

Due to the northward movement of halibut at this season of the year, the coast fleet was concentrated within a few hundrde miles off Seward when the storm arose.

TWO COUNTIES ASK FOR FARM

Peterborough and Hastings Delegations Wait on Hon. J. S. Martin.

OTHER REQUESTS.

TORONTO, Feb. 26 (Special)—A deputation from Hastings County which set out yesterday to interview the Hon. J. S. Martin, Minister of Agriculture, on the question of securing an agricultural and experimental farm for Hastings County was forestalled by a similar party on a like errand from Peterborough County Council headed by Bert Middleton, Warden of the County, and accompanied by the local members of the Legislature, W. H. Bradburn and W. A. Anderson.

Mr. Bradburn introduced the deputation which laid before Mr. Martin the claims of Peterborough County as the site for the proposed Government Farm for Central Ontario. Mr. Martin promised to give careful consideration to the points that had been raised.

Later in the day, members of the Hastings deputation presented their side of the case before the Minister.

Both Mr. Bradburn and Mr. Anderson are strongly of the opinion that Peterborough County has paramount claims as the proper location for the farm. Mr. Anderson thinks that the farming of Peterborough County is possibly more diversified than that of its rival and that it is therefore the logical site.

Among other recommendations which were made to various departments by the Hastings visitors were two of interest to Peterborough residents. The Hon. G. S. Henry was urged to approve the construction of a highway from Peterborough to Foxboro via Norwood, Havelock, Marmora and Stirling, while the adoption of a more active system of reforestation in Central Ontario was urged upon then Hon. W. Finlayson, Minister of Lands and Forests. The Ministers concerned promised to give careful thought to the matters to which the deputation referred.

Ex-College Students Confess To $1,190 Hold-Up Robbed Theatre To Support Chicago Night Life

GARY, Ind., Feb. 26 (A.P.).—Two former college students who deserted school for the bright lights of Chicago's night life, and who confessed to a daring hold-up Thursday night of a motion picture theatre here last night, said they were sons of well-to-do families of Elgin, Ill.

The youths raided the new $1,000,000 Palace Theatre and shoved the manager and several ushers into an office so quietly that the audience was unaware of what was taking place. They robbed them leisurely, then escaped in an automobile with $1,900. They were arrested at Valparaiso, Ind., and the money was recovered.

After a day spent in efforts to conceal their identities and thus shield their families, the youths last night identfied themselves Henry Atkinson, 21, son of an Elgin physician, and George E. Webb, also 21, son of an Elgin real estate man. Atkinson, it was learned, was a former student in a college at Waynesburg, Pa., and Webb formerly was a student in a school at Austin, Texas.

The young men said they went to Chicago to obtain work because they were attracted by the night clubs there. Atkinson had been trying to sell advertising while Webb said he had worked in a real estate office.

RUSSIANS MAKE STRONG PROTEST AGAINST NOTE

Many Meetings Pass Resolutions Urging Vigorous Reply.

OFFICIALS SILENT.

Response To British Message Not Expected For Several Days.

MOSCOW, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press).—Almost as if at signal, meetings of Soviet factory workers, Red soldiers, Government employees, local Soviets, and members of the Communist party are being held through the country in protest against the British note charging the Soviet Government with anti-British propaganda. These meetings urged the Government to send a vigorous reply to the British Foreign Secretary, whose communication is characterized as unwarranted interference in the internal affairs of the Soviet Union.

Meanwhile Soviet newspapers continue discreet moderation in their editorials, and Foreign Office officials remain silent. Indications are that the Soviet reply will not be ready before the end of next week.

R.C.M.P. Corporal Guards Canada's Legation In States

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (United Press).—A unit of the armed forces of the British Empire has quietly marched into Washington.

He is Corporal Lamont of the Mounted Police, that force immortalized in song, story, and picture, and he is adding a touch of color to the Capital's diplomatic life, for he is assigned to guard duty at the Canadian Legation.

The corporal lends an air of individualism to the newest Legation of the Washington colony, presided over by Minister Massey.

GRAND OFFICERS VISIT ENCAMPMENTS

Local I.O.O.F. Branches Hold Banquet in Honor of Visitors.

A very enjoyable evening was spent in the I.O.O.F. Hall on Wednesday, February 24th, 1927, when Hiawatha and Mount Hebron Encampments tendered a hearty reception to their Grand Patriarch, Rev. Mr. Hubbard of London, and Grand Scribe C. S. Park of Toronto. After the introduction of the Grand Officers, the Patriarchal degree was conferred by Guiding Star Encampment of Lindsay in a very creditable manner. After the Grand Patriarch had given a short address the members were invited into the banquet hall, and after the members had partaken of the many good things provided, short addresses were given by the Grand Patriarch, Grand Scribe, and District Deputy F. S. Thomas of Lindsay. The community singing between the speeches, accompanied by Bro. Smith's orchestra, was very much enjoyed.

Chile Will Deport Bolshevist Leaders

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 26.—The Chilean government yesterday was reported to have ordered a ship to be ready today to take on board political and labor leaders, arrested and ordered deported in the campaign to crush bolshevism and communism within this country.

The ship's destination was unknown.

BRITISH SAILORS HELD FOR TRIAL

Captain and Crew of Steamer Face Charge of Smuggling Whiskey.

AT PHILADELPHIA.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press).—Charged with smuggling a half million dollar cargo of whisky into this country, J. H. Macdonald, master of the British steamship "Clackamas," and thirty-three members of his crew were held in heavy bail for court to-day, after a hearing which lasted from midnight until two o'clock this morning.

Much of the hearing was taken up by a story of piracy, rum-running, mutiny, and smuggling by M. Long, wireless operator on the vessel, who said he had turned informer because "they did not do the right thing." Long said he had been held a prisoner since the ship arrived here on February 18, and that he had managed to escape yesterday and notified Government officials, who arrested Captain Macdonald and his crew.

ARGUE FINDINGS OF EXPORT PLAN BEFORE PROBE

Proceedings Resolved Themselves Into Legal Battle Over Rowell's Recommendations.

ABOLISH TRADE.

Counsels Give Argument With Submission Point By Point.

WINNIPEG, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press). — Proceedings before the Royal Customs Commission yesterday resolved themselves into a legal battle over the findings and recommendations which Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., has presented in regard to British Columbia breweries, distilleries and liquor export houses. Following argument of the Commission counsel in favor of the findings and recommendations which he asked the Commission to make, J. W. Deb. Farris, representing the British Columbia Distilleries, the British Columbia Breweries, and the Joseph Kennedy Company, liquor export house, was heard. He, in turn, was followed by R. A. Bonner, K.C., appearing on behalf of the consolidated exporters of British Columbia and allied organizations, who argued briefly. The major part of Mr. Bonner's argument consisted in the reading of a letter from C. S. Arnold and F. R. Anderson, counsel for the Consolidated Exporters, in which Mr. Rowell's submission was dealt with point by point. At the conclusion of the argument, Chief Commissioner J. T. Brown stated that the matter presented would be taken into consideration by the Commission.

The recommendations which Mr. Rowell asks the Commission to make are sweeping. If approved by the Commission and given the sanction of Parliament where legislation is required to implement them, they will make the abolition of liquor houses in British Columbia. Renewal of licenses to the British Columbia Distillery and the British Columbia Brewery will be denied, as well as to the Commercial Bonding Company, Joseph Kennedy, Limited, and the Consolidated Exporters of British Columbia, if the recommendations are carried out.

Covers Findings

The argument presented by Mr. Farris covered most of the fifteen findings which Mr. Rowell asks of the Commission. He objected, in opening, to the way in which, he claimed, all the British Columbia companies which had anything to do with liquor were lumped together in certain of the submissions. With regard to the British Columbia Breweries and Distilleries, there was he said, almost a complete absence of evidence against them which would give rise to the points emphasized by Mr. Rowell in his list of findings. He admitted that there was some evidence to the effect that the distilleries had participated in shipments of liquor by sea, but this was the only feature which brought them within the scope of the findings.

Mr. Farrow claimed that counterfeit United States revenue stamps were not used by the Joseph Kennedy Company. He admitted that the evidence showed there had been an effort to dress up bottles of Canadian liquor so as to look like the American product, but there was no effort to pulicate an American stamp with intent to defraud the Government. Consequently, there had been no violation of the Criminal code in this respect. Evidence, he declared, did not support the finding that the Kennedy Company had destroyed books and records to conceal fradulent and illegal acts, nor was there ground for stating that officers of this company had "absconded" in order to evade appearing before the Commission.

Each Company Separate

Each company in which the Reifels were interested must stand separate and distinct as far as the evidence was concerned, said Mr. Farris. He said that he had received a telegram from a reputable firm of Montreal lawyers protesting against charges being made against the British Columbia Breweries and Distilleries excepting as the evidence directly involved them. This telegram was sent on behalf of the debenture holders of these organizations.

Chief Commissioner Brown assured Mr. Farris that the Commission agreed that each company must be held separate and distinct, and that neither was there evidence that any officer of the Consolidated Exporters had ever attempted to import American whiskey into Canada again, according to the submission, none of the Consolidated Exporters Companies had forged U. S. revenue stamps or caused these stamps to be affixed to bottles containing liquor. There was nothing in the evidence to show that they had caused liquor

LABOR VICTORY ALARMS TORIES IN OLD COUNTRY

British Conservatives Criticize Baldwin on Growing Swing of Labor.

LABORITES ELATED.

Believe Labor Will Sweep Industrial Constituencies in Next Election.

LONDON, Feb. 26.—The result of the Stourbridge election, in which W. Wellock, Laborite, defeated H. G. Hogbin, Conservative, by 3,100 votes, his election being again for Labor, has let loose a flood of criticism against the Government from its own supporters and many members are demanding that Premier Baldwin should arrest the growing swing of Labor by framing a popular policy.

The victory of their candidate has naturally elated the Laborites, and there is no doubt in the minds of its members that Labor will sweep the industrial constituencies in the next election, though not the agricultural areas, which have been divided between the Tories and Liberals, and Labor leaders are confident that the candidates will be elected in sufficiently large numbers to enable them to form a Government.

Steady Progress.

When the result of the election in Stourbridge was announced in the House of Commons Thursday, it inspired spirited cheers from the Labor benches, in view of the fact that it provided another proof of the popularity of Labor throughout the midlands and the north, in which districts the party has been making steady progress. Ramsay MacDonold, the Labor leader, expressed astonishment at the largeness of the majority for Wellock, adding that he considered it pretty conclusive evidence that the Conservatives are fast losing ground, and that the country generally has lost confidence in the present administration, while the Daily Herald, Labor's organ, expressed itself in much the same vein, declaring that the sooner Premier Baldwin and his colleagues made way for a Labor Government, the sooner would the country benefit.

Danger Signal.

As a rule, bye-elections are not taken too seriously, because they often end in "freak results," but the overwhelming victory for Labor at Stourbridge is being held up as a danger signal, and there is no doubt that it is causing the Government grave concern. The demand for the removal of some of the present ministers is growing and it is believed that important political developments will take place in a short time.

FORMER PREMIER MAY VISIT STATES

J. Ramsay MacDonald Is Considering Trip to America in April.

LONDON, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press). — J. Ramsay MacDonald, former Prime Minister, is considering visiting the United States in April.

Mr. MacDonald, according to his secretary, has wanted for a long time to make the trip, having received many invitations from friends. It is not likely that the visit could be a long one. He would like to make it around Easter. He thinks the sea voyage would benefit his health.

Mr. MacDonald went to Africa last October and spent some time in the Southern Sahara on account of a recurrence of bronchial trouble.

OLD MASTERS

When the hounds of spring are on winter's traces,
The mother of months in meadow or plain
Fills the shadows and windy places
With lisp of leaves and ripple of rain;
And the brown bright nightingale amorous
Is half assuaged for Itylus,
For the Thracian ships and the foreign faces,
The tongueless vigil, and all the pain.

Come with bows bent and with empty quivering of quivers,
Maiden most perfect, lady of light,
With a noise of winds and many rivers,
With a clamor of waters, and with might;
Bind on thy sandals, oh thou most fleet,
Over the splendor and speed of thy feet;
For the faint east quickens, the wan west shivers,
Round the feet of the day and the feet of the night.

—Algernon Charles Swinburne: Chorus from "Atalanta in Calydon."

Use Cigarette Covers As Phoney Bus Tickets

HULL, Que., Feb. 26 (Canadian Press).—D. Lalonde's attempt to save money landed him in police court yesterday, charged with using counterfeit tickets as fare while riding on the 'bus line from here to his work at the Gatineau Mills.

Lalonde was struck by the likeness of the 'bus company's tickets to the cover of a packet of cigarette papers. He proceeded to cut the paper into the shape of the tickets and, according to the company, is alleged to have used the "curios" to an amount of about $10 of the original tickets.

After pleading guilty he was remanded for trial.

SUICIDE ATTEMPT FOLOWS ARREST

Thessalon Man Faces Serious Charges on Discharge From Hospital.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 26.—Henry Edward Davey of Thessalon, who attempted to take his life by cutting his throat with a rezor after his arrest on a serious charge early in the month, was released from the hospital at Blind River yesterday and appeared in court with attempted suicide added to the other charges.

The charge against Davey grew out of an investigation conducted by Constable Cote into Davey's home conditions. When the constable had completed his investigation in Thessalon, he wired to Police Constable Andrew Labbe of Blind River to arrest Davey when he left the Blind River Hospital and bring him on the train as far as Thessalon.

Davey was ready to leave the hospital Friday, Feb. 11. Following his discharge from that institution he was placed under arrest, and spent the night in the Blind River jail.

On the morning of the following day, when preparations were being made to take him to Thessalon, Davey asked the Chief for permission to secure the balance of his clothes, which, he said, he had left in the hospital. The two returned to the hospital. Davey packed his clothes, went into the washroom and slit his windpipe with a razor, which he had probably taken from his clothes in the hospital. He was rushed to the Soo after receiving medical attention.

Two more arrests in connection with this case have been made by Provincial Constable Andrew Cote of Blind River and Provincial Constable E. W. Keen of the Soo. Peter Dunn of Thessalon was taken into custody at McFadden's Camp, No. 19, and faces a serious charge preferred on behalf of a girl under 14 years of age, said to be Davey's daughter. He was remanded in custody until next Wednesday. John Harvey, also of Thessalon, was arrested in that town on a charge said to be similar to that brought against Dunn. He was remanded until next Wednesday, and was released from custody on $7,500 bail.

ARGUE FINDINGS

to be shipped into Alberta, Saskatchewan, or Manitoba.

Fund Contributions

With regard to Mr. Rowell's submission that the liquor companies had made large contributions to campaign funds, the lawyers for the Consolidated Exporters wrote as follows: "We are under the impression that even you (Mr. Rowell) were not aware of the fact, until January of the present year, that it was contrary to the provisions of the Election Act for a corporation to make contributions for political purposes." There was no evidence to show that any of these contributions were made upon a promise of any political party. There was no evidence of the "absconding" of witnesses, said the submission, and the books of the Consolidated Exporters were destroyed in the ordinary course of business. The submission was signed by C. S. Arnold, and F. R. Anderson, counsel for the Consolidated Exporters, the Canada-Mexican Shipping Company, and the Commercial Bonding Company.

In rebuttal, Mr. Rowell took the ground that his argument had not been successfully challenged. He pointed out that it had been impossible to secure the evidence of certain witnesses, notably G. W. Norgan, of the Consolidated Exporters, because he had left Canada even though he must have known that he was required to appear. "Absconded" he said, was the technical term to apply to this. Mr. Rowell dealt with the points which had been raised by Mr. Farris taking the ground that both he and counsel for the Consolidated Exporters were mistaken in claiming that no evidence existed on which to base many of the findings.

The Commission adjourned until Monday.

COLLEGE TRAINED.

ITHACA, N. Y., Feb. 26.—During the past eight years, students of the New York College of Home Economics have cared for 11 babies and had only one day of sickness among them in all that time. The children are temporarily adopted by classes studying baby care. The one day of sickness that spoils an otherwise perfect record was the investigation of a begonia plant by a boy who ate most of the leaves.

TROOPS GUARD BORDER LINE

Fighting Men of Three Countries Prepare For Possible Invasion.

NAVY READY.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 26. Canadian Press. — Thousands of the regulars —fighting men of Great Britain Italy and France—paced a twenty mile line of barbed wire, sandbags and machine guns to check any attempted entrance into the foreign settlements of Shanghai by warring factions in China's upheaval.

On board ship ready to move into the line if needed, were 2400 United States marines and bluejackets.

Washington had ordered that they be landed when necessary to protect United States lives and property, and not before.

Behind the line of foreign troops, which surrounded the international settlement and French concession and reached some distance into native Shanghai, were 8000 foreigners, possessing property valued at $16,000,000 gold.

The day passed quietly enough, a rain that made a quagmire of the country curtailed the movements of the Chinese troops around the defence line and lessened the activities of armies concentrating for the struggle to determine possession of Shanghai and Kiangsu province.

Shantungese troops from the north continued to arrive, however, to reinforce the demoralized forces of the defeated Marshal Sun Chuan Fang against the threatened advance of the Cantonese.

Foreign soldiers and marines formed the defence in response to the request of the municipal council to the consuls of foreign powers to aid in the defence of the city. Three thousand British troops took up their positions along the line. With them went marines of France and Italy.

Strengthen Enforcements.

The international settlement boundaries had been freshly strengthened with barbed wire, and the French had wired their entire boundary which joins the native boundary of Shanghai.

The diplomatic body, stirred to action by the shelling of the French settlement by poor marksmen of a Chinese gunboat shooting at an arsenal a mile away, issued an offical warning to leaders of the contending Chinese armies that foreign authorities would be constrained to take measures to protect foreign life if the Chinese did not cease endangering it.

The stern admonition of the foreign consuls said that "in the course of party strife, the authorities of the international settlement have scrupulously abstained from favoring any of the conflicting parties," and that the Chinese were expected to treat foreign life and property with respect.

BOY IS KILLED FIXING AERIAL

Radio Wire Lying Across High Tension Wire Electrocutes Him.

AT WINDSOR.

WINDSOR, Feb. 26. — An all-night search for 17 year old William Mumford, 808 Langlois avenue, Windsor, ended yesterday in an alley at the rear of his home, where he was found electrocuted by his radio aerial. The aerial lay across high tension feed wires of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and the boy's body was beneath it with severe burns on the hands.

As a result of his death, Windsor executives of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission and the Bell Telephone Company of Canada agreed that all aerials attached to their poles in the Border Cities must come down at once. Employees were sent out to see that the general order was obeyed by all radio owners.

The boy told his sister at 7 o'clock Thursday night that he was going out to fix his aerial. He did not return. Telephone calls and visits to the homes of friends and relatives failed to bring any trace of him. The body was discovered by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Mumford. No inquest has been ordered. Hydro officials said the feed wire crossed by the aerial carried 4000 volts. The Mumford youth was employed at Bowles Lunch Room on Grand River Avenue, Detroit.

CAMPBELLFORD NEWS.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 26. — Mr. Arthur Free has returned home from a three weeks' visit with friends in Wooler. His many friends will be pleased to know he is much improved in health.

Major J. M. Bygott entertained a number of gentleman friends at a bridge party at his home on Thursday evening.

Stuart Anderson entertained about seventy young friends in the Parish Hall on Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Cole entertained a large number of friends at their home on Weddington Street on Thursday evening. The evening was spent in progressive euchre, the following winning prizes:

Gentlemen's—Mr. T. E. Hall and Mr. Mason. Ladies' — Mrs. W. Dorie, Mrs. Mason, Mrs. E. E. Hall and Mrs. C. Palliser.

The hostess served a very dainty lunch, after which dancing was enjoyed by all.

Beggar Takes $300 Weekly: Wife Wintering In Florida

NEW YORK, Feb. 25 (Canadian Press).—Horton Malone, legless beggar, who in dress clothes has been going to parties from his hotel suite in a three thousand dollar car, while his wife has been wintering in Florida, is to spend a month in the workhouse. A detective who watched the substantial pity bestowed on him as he pushed himself into crowds on a little rolling platform, figured he was taking about three hundred dollars a week.

JAIL BUILDER IS ITS FIRST INMATE

LIBERTY, Mo., Feb. 26. — The most disgusted man in town is William Dunn, concrete boss and steel worker. He built the county's new $50,000 jail and was the first prisoner in it. Dunn supervised all the concrete and steel work and planned to celebrate with the rest of the town when it was opened. But he started out with a bottle of liquor, got into a fight and landed behind the bars which he had so securely placed a few days before.

STORM PREVENTS SUNDAY SERVICES

Warsaw Stage Unable To Make Round Trip—W. I. Meeting.

WARSAW, Feb. 25. — The first big storm of the season took place on Sunday. Quite a number got out to the United Church and Presbyterian Sunday schools in the morning. Only a few were at the Bethel service. Zion was not attempted, and there was no preaching service in any of the Warsaw churches.

On Monday morning men got out breaking roads. It was nearly eleven o'clock before the stage reached Douro, and it did not return from Peterboro on Monday. The roads running north and south are the worst.

The sale of the late Elgi. Sneider's effects took place on Feb. 19th. Much of the furniture brought good prices; some small tables went for less than half a dollar; a bed brought one dollar, and an extension table three dollars. Most other things went well. The car brought over three hundred dollars. Though not a new one it had been well cared for. The house, which is one of the oldest in the village, was not sold.

The meeting of the Women's Institute was quite a success. A good number was present.

Dr. Munro's orchestra rendered several selections. The three Armenian boys sang two of their national hymns. A few of the young people gave quite an amusing dialogue. W. Anderson recited "Davie and Goliar," F. Crowe recited "How we Hunted the Mouse," and "Pay the Bill." H. Batten sang "To Know that they miss me at home," and "I cannot sing the Old Songs."

The feature of the evening was Dr. Munro's paper on "Preventative Medicine." He explained that it was one which he had heard broadcast and that doctors give papers rather than addresses. The doctor is a very clear and rapid reader; every word in the paper counted. Everyone, even the youngest present listened with absolute attention which showed how interesting Dr. Munro made his subject. At the close though he spoke of his subject being dry, he was most heartily applauded. He had certainly made his subject very interesting.

He spoke of the doctor's work being to show how to keep well, as well as to cure when ill. When preventable diseases are a thing of the past there will still be broken bones, an certain illnesses which really cannot be avoided.

As yet there is no law compelling people to be treated for preventable diseases, but there is a law to keep them from mixing with others. If people do not care for themselves, they must consider the rights of others.

There once was the idea that people had to have certain diseases and they might as well be exposed and be done with them. This idea was entirely wrong. Not every person is in a condition to contract disease, even if exposed

Diphtheria is absolutely preventable; not only may it be prevented but a doctor can tell whether or not a person would contract it if exposed and not protected,

The types of small pox are not nearly as bad now as at one time because of better sanitary conditions.

Quarantine was begun in 1825 which was a big step towards preventing communicable disease. The first board of health was in 1848. It is all for the good of humanity.

The economic loss in the United States in 1926, through sickness, was two and a half billion dollars. It is the duty of the state to preserve the health of the people.

The art of medicine took root in the sympathy of one man for another. The medical profession does much for sympathy's sake, and the doctor asked if those present had ever heard of a doctor suing anyone for his pay? Even in the dark ages there was pity.

The causes of diseases were unknown, therefore little could be done. Little by little, the truth of disease is becoming known, and because it is the disease may often be prevented.

Preventative measures only began about 50 years ago.

Moses was a great sanitarian. The Books of Leviticus and Numbers lay down laws of sanitation.

The prison system was once most unsanitary. There was a time when little children toiled long hours in factories. Now it is a thing of the past. Certain laws of cleanliness and health must be observed. Garbage must be cleared away in cities. There must be a safe water supply. There are hospitals and clinics, lectures and printed matter all bearing on health. The healthier a person is the more immune to disease. There are antitoxins to prevent nearly all communicable diseases, and if need be they may be had free. The government thinks enough of the children's health to arrange to have them treated free.

The first antitoxin used was vaccine for small pox, and that really came about because a girl happened to say that she had had cow-pox from her cow and would not have small-pox. Dr. Jenner got the idea and vaccination to prevent small-pox was the result. If small-pox could be prevented why not other diseases? Gradually the bacilli of different diseases were found and then a serum that would render a person immune. In the Spanish American war the death rate from typhoid fever was very heavy. In the late war, after the first year or so, it was almost unknown. Antitoxins were used regularly.

The special subject in the First Aid Class on Monday, was the making and rolling of bandages, making and sterilizing dressings, making of ordinary patients' beds, lifting patients into bed, and out of bed; raising them up in bed, and a method of using nine pillows to keep a patient in the upright position, absolutely comfortable.

NEGATIVE WINS U.F.O. DEBATE

Young People From South Monaghan Defeat Indian River.

ARGUE POLITICS.

At the regular meeting of the Peterborough County Branch of the United Farm Young People of Ontario, held last evening in the Foresters' Hall, an interesting debate was waged between members of the club from South Monaghan and Indian River. This debate is one of a series being held this winter in a contest for two silver cups, one presented by the Kiwanis Club, the other a County cup.

Last evening, the debate was contested on the resolution; "That group government should replace party politics," the afirmative side being taken by Cecil Hope and Miss Tedford of Indian River, and the negative, which won the judgment, by Miss Fern Telford and Roy Rutherford, of South Monaghan. Mr. B. E. Park acted as judge for the debate.

ST. JOHN'S LADIES.

Ladies' Aid Holds Regular Meeting With Good Attendance.

CAMPBELLFORD, Feb. 26—The Ladies' Aid of St. John's Church held its monthly meeting on Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. C. H. Davidson with an attendance of 24. Mrs. Elliott led in prayer and Mrs. Hammond read the Scripture lesson which was taken from Proverbs 7th chapter. The Secretary and Treasurer read their reports which were approved. After the business was disposed of the following programme was enjoyed by all: Readings by Miss L. G. Young and Mrs. J. H. Bell, and a duett by Mrs. C. W. Turner and Mrs. T. Free. Mrs. Hammond closed the meeting with prayer.

Mrs. Davidson then served a dainty lunch for which a hearty vote of thanks was tendered. The march meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. John Gay, Rear street.

OBITUARY.

MAXWELL ANDERSON.

BURNBRAEE, Feb. 26. — There passed away on Wednesday evening, after a short illness, one of the oldest residents of Burnbrae, in the person of Maxwell Anderson. The deceased was born 82 years ago on the farm on which he has lived ever since, the son of the late Peter Anderson and Agnes Henderson, who were among the pioneers of Seymour Township, coming from Aberdeen, Scotland. Of their large family only one son, Alexander, of Marmora, survives.

The late Mr. Anderson was always prominent in the religious life of the community, and for forty years was a member of the session of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Burnbrae. When that congregation withdrew from Union, he resigned his office and transferred his membership to St. John's United Church, Campbellford, where he has been a faithful attendant during the past two years. Taking a great interest in Sabbath school work, he, for mny years, taught the boys' class in the Burnbrae Sunday School. His interest followed these boys into after life, while many of them have in the last few weeks expressed their deep appreciation of the splendid influence he had over their lives.

The funeral service was held on Friday afternoon at 1.30, with interment in the family plot at Burnbrae Cemetery, and service in the church conducted by the Rev. Wesley Elliott of St. John's Church, Campbellford, assisted by the Rev. D. A. McKenzie and the Rev. C. D. Daniel. Mr. Albert Hazell of Campbellford rendered a beautiful solo during the service.

There remain to mourn the loss of a kind and loving father, one daughter, Mrs. Andrew Milne, of Men, and one son, George, on the homestead. One brother, Alexander of Marmora, survives.

The pall-bearers were all nephews of the deceased; Messrs. Ed. Anderson, Max. Anderson, Eldon Anderson, Lindsay Watson, Allan Watson, and P. B. Nelson.

Those attending from a distance were Mr. and Mrs. Alex. Anderson, Marmora; Mr. and Mrs. John George, Millbrook; and Mr. K. D. Anderson of Peterboro.

Penny Bank Is Looted While School Board Meets

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Feb. 25. — While the Public School Board was in session in the board room of the Central School yesterday, sneak-thieves broke into the school, robbed the vault in the secretary's office, directly below the board room, of over $20 penny bank money, and escaped. The police were called, but were unable to find any clue.

DESCRIBES AIMS OF CHORAL TOUR

Dean of Windsor Delivers Address at Ottawa Women's Club.

TEACH SINGING.

OTTAWA, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press).—"We did not come to teach Canada to sing. She can do that for herself. There is a great deal of good music in Canada. One of your choirs is world known."

So declared the Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor, Dr. A. V. Baillie, in telling the Ottawa Women's Canadian Club of the musical qualities and endeavors of the choristers of Windsor Castle chapel and of Westminster Abbey who are touring Canada with him. "We have come," he said, "for a particular educational purpose and also to express the fact of the real sense of brotherhood towards this Dominion which is in our hearts. One of the pleasant aspects of our tour is that it has brought us in touch with a great deal of life in Canada and deepened and strengthened the affection on both sides."

U. S. NOT OPPOSING BRITAIN'S ACTION

President Coolidge Not Interfering Despatching of a Cruiser to Nicaragua.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press).—President Coolidge sees no reason arising from traditional United States policy for interposing objection to the British action in sending a cruiser to Nicaragua for moral effect and protection of British lives and property in that country.

At the White House it was said that the President understood that British and Italian nationals, as well as Americans, had sustained property loss due to civil war disturbances in Nicaraguan cities. No details of this damage were disclosed.

The President feels, however, that in circumstances the movement of a British war vessel to Nicaragua is an ordinary precaution to be taken by any government, although unusual in Latin-American countries so far as European powers are concerned.

A sharp distinction was drawn between the despatch of a warship to act as a place of refuge for foreign nationals or to evacuate them, if necessary, and any proposal by a European power to land naval forces to enforce debt collections or other settlements of that character. The Washington Government has always opposed landing operations in Latin-America of that nature, but has been advised, it was pointed out, that the British Government does not contemplate landing men in Nicaragua.

While damage to foreign property, presumably in the recent Liberal-Conservative fighting at Chinandago, was not estimated in the White House discussion, a communication from President Diaz, made public yesterday by the Nicaraguan Legation, said that the claims of foreigners and Nicaraguans for property damages during the course of the present civil strife would amount to from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000. The Diaz proposals for new treaty relations with the United States had in view financial readjustments under United States advisers as the basis for obtaining loans in the United States to make good this liability as well as for other purposes.

Washington officials gave no indication yesterday of their attitude toward the Diaz treaty programme which is on its way by mail from Managua.

GAELIE COLLEGE BEING PLANNED

New University in Highlands to be Built With U. S. Money.

SUPPORT PROMISED

NEW YORK, Feb. 26.—Plans for a Gaelic university to be erected in the Highlands of Scotland with $10,000,000 of United States money, which have been quietly going forward for a year and a half, were made known yesterday by Angus Robertson, president of the Highland Association of Scotland, who sailed Friday after a two months' visit here in the interest of the projected institution, and by Dr. A. S. MacKenzie, secretary of the American Iona Society, the organization which has undertaken to raise the required funds.

While both men declared that final plans for raising the funds and erecting the university were not yet definitely formulated and that final announcements could not be made at the present time, they consented to outline the project which, they said, had been favorably commented on by President Coolidge, which had the backing of Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia, and other influential men in education and finance.

Mr. Robertson, it was learned, was granted an audience by President Coolidge on Wednesday. He quoted the President as expressing keen personal interest in the project both as a further link between English speaking peoples and as a means of perpetuating Gaelic culture. The President had told him, he said, that his interest was the stronger because his maternal grandmother was a Scotswoman.

COOLIDGE SIGNS SEED LOAN BILL

Authorizes Use of $5,000,000 For Loans To Western Farmers.

$300 TO EACH.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press).—The Norbeck-Johnson seed loan bill was signed late yesterday by President Coolidge.

The measure, which now becomes effective, authorizes use of $5,000,000 for grain seed loans to farmers in Montana, North and South Dakota suffering from drought; $2,500,000 for fertilizer in drought areas of Georgia, South Carolina and Western Alabama, and $600,000 to rehabilitate sugar cane fields and orchards in Louisiana and Florida.

It stipulates that no farmer can borrow more than $300.

SHOT BY GUNMEN.

Hired Assassins Kill One and Injure Two at Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—One man was shot and two others were wounded when gunmen opened fire from a sedan on a group standing at the entrance of the Club Cadix, a night club, early yesterday.

John Brickett, 35, said by police to be a gambler, was killed, and Michael Duffy, 37, proprietor of the Cadix, was believed dying with four bullet wounds in his body. Earl Brown, doorman of the club, was shot in the leg.

BOOKS TO BUNNIES.

ST. MARYS, Kan., Feb. 26. — With twelve other alumni, Ray Graham, millionaire motor car manufacturer of Detroit and President of St. Mary's College Alumni Association, dropped in to visit his alma mater. He organized a rabbit hunt and the entire school dropped its books for the day to participate. Graham gave away $600 in prizes.

MUSINGS AT A MANSE WINDOW

WERE I asked to select one of the most suggestive passages in the New Testament, I should have no hesitation in selecting the first four verses in the eleventh chapter of the Gospel according to St. Luke. I have turned to them again and again and have never failed to find something enrichingly suggestive in them. And, it is my profound conviction that, if I should live to be as old as Methuselah, and went to them as often as there might be days in my life, they would never fail to do what they have never yet failed to do, I have gone to them feeling tired and have gone away from them with every tired feeling taken away. When discouraged and despondent, in turning to them, I have had my courage revived and every vestige of despondency dispelled.

If, like the disciples, feeling our ignorance, we go to the Master and say, "Lord, teach us to pray,"—like the disciples—we too shall receive at His lips such instruction that wisdom will take the place of ignorance, and we shall enter into the secret of bringing things to pass by the ministry of prayer.

* * *

AND it came to pass that as he was praying in a certain place when he ceased one of his disciples said unto him Lord teach us to pray as John also taught his disciples.

And he said unto them When ye pray say Our Father which art in heaven Hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done as in heaven so in earth.

Give us day by day our daily bread.

And forgive us our sins; for we also forgive every one that is indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation; but deliver us from evil.

LIFE'S CONJUNCTIONS

In your reading of the Word of God, take care of the little words—the conjunctions and the prepositions! Your danger will lie in the thought that you are so familiar with them that you may be permitted to treat them with a certain respectable kind of contempt. And the moment you allow yourself to take that attitude to anything you have shut the door against nothing further it may have to give.

There stands between each day and the day preceding or succeeding it either an 'and' or a 'but.' Much will depend on whether it is an 'and' or a 'but.' You are the determining factor as to which it will be. Usually, if life is working out according to Divine specifications, it will be an 'and.' On the other hand, when you are at cross-purposes with God, it will mostly be a 'but.' In any case, life has its conjunctions which are just as necessary to living as such things are to language. To know the grammar of living is even more important than to know the grammar of language. Perhaps there are those who will not agree with me in making such an assertion, but that does not necessarily prove me to be wrong. The part played by conjunctions in the business of living is both interesting and instructive.

LIFE'S ONWARD MARCH

"And it came to pass . . ."

There is no such thing as standing still in the business of living. Something or other is always coming to pass even if at times we seem to be unconscious of the fact. And to a great extent—almost the whole extent—it depends upon ourselves as to whether it is to be an 'and' or a 'but' which comes between the things which are passed and the things which are coming to pass. Therefore, to change the figure, take care of the present sowing if you want to avoid disappointments and heartaches in the future reaping. What you are to-day will largely determine what you are going to be to-morrow. Get a move on while you are still able to move! Don't forget that if you have any definite goal in view, and expect to reach it, you must hasten while your shoes are good! Those who loiter are lost! Between youth and more mature years see that you are more justified in using an 'and' than a 'but.' It seems to me that there can be no greater cause for sadness at the close of a long life than the thought that owing to our own folly life has more need for a 'but' than an 'and.'

In all the onward march of your life keep your eye upon the grammar of living and your ear tuned to Heaven's music. It will help you when the load is heavy, the day dreary, and the road seems lonesome and long.

WHAT COUNTS

"He was praying."

Do you think that if the Master felt the need of prayer and found a place for it in His busy life that we can afford to forget or crowd it out of our lives? I need no other argument in favor of prayer than the fact that Jesus believed in it and felt it necessary. And if we be wise we shall certainly give it a large place in our lives, no matter how crowded with other things these lives may be.

I never read that the disciples at any time said, "Lord, teach us to preach," although it is said that never man spake as He spake. But when He prayed there was something about His praying that compelled one disciple, at least, to say, "Lord, teach us to pray."

When I think of what has been called His High Priestly Prayer, as set forth in the seventeenth chapter of St. John, and compare it with my own feeble utterances, in some small measure, I realize how little I know of the one thing that really counts in the business of living. Let our daily petition be, as we sit at the feet of Christ in the school of prayer, "Lord, teach us to pray." Not, "Teach us how to pray," but, "Just teach us to pray."

CHOICE PLACES

"A certain place."

We are not told where that place was. Perhaps it is just as well. We are so materialistic and so easily impressed by the seen that we are apt to attach too much importance to a place. It is more important to remember what the place signifies than to know where the place is. Whether it was on some hill-side, in some valley, or upon the plain, does not matter. Possibly it was some place where He had often been before and that for the same purpose as He was there then.

There is a wealth of meaning in the phrase as it is to be found elsewhere: "where prayer was wont to be made." In such a place memories will crowd in upon us of what has been already accomplished by prayer. Faith will be greatly strengthened as past experiences make their contribution to present endeavor. The philosophy of prayer may be too deep for us to fathom, but the place of prayer ought to be easy for all of us to reach.

Have "a certain place," and you will not have to wonder where you should go in order to get alone with God in prayer. It may be some upper room, associated with which are the most hallowed memories; or it may be out somewhere under the canopy of heaven; but to you it will be a choice spot, and the place where you have definite business dealings with the unseen, which will bring things to pass in the seen.

THE DISCIPLES' PRAYER

In response to the disciple's request Jesus uttered what is now called "The Lord's Prayer." Strictly speaking it should be called "The Disciples' Prayer." The real Lord's Prayer is to be found in the seventeenth chapter of the Gospel according to St. John. There the Lord is praying! Here, He is setting something forth as a pattern to the disciples.

The more you study it as it set forth in various parts of the New Testament the more impressed you will be with its comprehensiveness. But to that we may come another day.

* * *

I shall close with a few words which once fell from the pen of S. D. Gordon. He says in effect that the greatest thing any one can do for God and for man is to pray. It is not the only thing. But it is the chief thing. The great people of the earth to-day are the people who pray. By this, we don't mean those who talk about prayer; nor those who say they believe in prayer; nor yet those who can explain about prayer; but those who take time and pray. They put prayer first, and group the other items in life's schedule around and after prayer.

Prayer opens a whole world to a man's activities. He can as really be touching hearts for God in China and India and Africa as though he were there. It is our privilege to go aside to-day, shut the door, and as really spend half-an-hour in China for God and China as though we were there in person. Is that true? If it be true, surely you and I must get to 'a certain place' far more frequently than we have been doing.

—Allan Fairbairn.

A Leader's Lament

THE age is weak in spiritual achievements, as is every questioning age. A warrior does not strike hard while uncertain about his footing. Paltry results attend the great organized churches, though reinforced by the promised Spirit and the Saviour's intercession. Look into the life of the average Christian. How little peace, contentment, joy, and hope are there. How slight his hold upon the power of intercession! How restless, easily startled and alarmed he is! How weak the temperament of prayer! How vivid the display of spiritual poverty. Hear the cry of discouraged ministers over unfilled pews, and loneliness in the prayer-room. Oh, to hear the cry again: "Lord, teach us to pray."

A Pen Picture

HERE is a fine house, well furnished, with everything around that betokens the wealth and position of its owner. But just as death knocks equally at the door of the cabin and the castle, so does disease. Here in this fine dwelling, within reach of the sea breezes, is an elderly man tossing about in great pain upon his bed; no remedies seem to give him relief—indeed, that illness carries off many victims. Is there no doctor near at hand? Yes, there is one in the house, but no one seems to think of bringing him into the sick room. Instead of fetching the medical man, they mention the sad case to a guest who has been spending the last day or two in this mansion. He interviews the patient, and, strange to say, his treatment, which includes no medicine of any kind, is perfectly adapted to the case, and is crowned with complete success.

Children's Corner — TELL US A STORY

HAVE you ever heard of the bell that rings under the sea? This bell is rung by electricity under the sea to warn of rocks in foggy weather. The ship has a wonderful microphone inside its hull on either side; this microphone collects the ringing of the bell and magnifies the sound. A wire connects each microphone with the receiver of the telephone in the wheelhouse of the ship. The captain at once turns his ship until he hears the bell equally well from each microphone, and when he points his ship toward the bell, his chart marks the position of the bell, and he knows where he is in the thickest fog.

In many ways, as we sail over the Sea of Time, we are like the ship that is in danger of striking some rock in the fog. But if we know the Bible we shall discover that it plays the part of the bell that rings under the waves. It tells the right way and warns us of the wrong way. Get to know it to be wise. Obey its teaching and you will be both safe and satisfied.

What Think Ye of Christ?

FIND us a better answer to the questionings of our spirits than Christ has furnished! Shew us a better ideal of manhood than He has given! Bring us a better testimony to the life beyond the grave than he has brought. For four thousand years the world tried in vain to return to God, and now that He has come Himself to be the way, we will not give Him up again for any negation.

CHURCHES AND CHURCHMEN

By I. SEEWELL

Priest and Politician.

SOME very strong language and plain speaking has been indulged in by James Thomas Heflin of Alabama of the United States Senate, when he said: "Monsignor Belford is a villainous and scurrilous little Catholic puppy in the State of New York, who edits or writes for a little sheet called The Mentor, and who suggests that a thug be hired to waylay and attack me. I could pinch his brains out between my thumb and forefinger."

Monsignor John L. Belford is a priest, not undistinguished. He is sixty-six years of age, a Doctor both of Divinity and Philosophy. This is his reply to the politician:

"Heflin: I have just read the Congressional Record of January 28th, I am glad my shaft struck home! It pierced your thick hide. It made you squeal. You say I have no brains. Let us take the Binet test. If I do not beat you I will give you a prize. You have no right to a seat in the Senate. You know it. The disenfranchised negroes know it. Brag about your size! Why, we have bigger hogs right here on Long Island! And some of them have more sense!"

The priest denied advocating thugging of Senator Heflin. Said he: "I facetiously remarked that apparently the only thing to do with a fellow like that is to have a couple of men take him out somewhere and roll him in the mud. He must be made to look ridiculous. The Senator, however, hasn't sense enough to realize that the suggestion was a facetious one."

Is the Gloomy Dean High or Broad?

DEAN INGE has offered the pulpit of St. Paul's to doctors to speak on health subjects, at least once a year. If some people don't give any more heed to what may be said on such subjects than they give to spiritual matters the doctors might be better employed elsewhere.

Japan and the Salvation Army.

ON THE occasion of the recent visit of the head of the Salvation Army to Japan, every street car transfer in Tokyo, a million of them, had printed on its reverse, "Welcome General Booth." The day he arrived in Tokyo, notice of the meeting to be held in Hibiya Park was also stamped on these transfers. Probably this had much to do with the fact that ten thousand people foregathered at the park. Over the speakers' platform was a large motto in Japanese, "Christ for the world, and the world for Christ.' At every meeting, fervent appeals were made by the General to the people to yield themselves to Christ.

Martyrs in Russia.

ERNEST GORDON tells of an advertisement in the Christian Century informing its readers that Darwin "made hell a joke and heaven a dream." And then he goes on to say that the Russian Bolshevist is certainly making a bad dream of the socialist heaven; but hell is no joke. In Professor Glubokovski's phrase, it has turned Russia into a vast Neronic Colosseum. Professor Hjalmer Holmquist, a very competent Swedish historian, has described its doings in a monograph entitled, "The Russian Church under Bolshevist control." More than four thousand priests and bishops have been martyred. When the metropolitan, Vladimir of Kieff, was murdered, together with twenty other bishops and a hundred priests, the executioners cut off arms and legs before shooting. Many were buried alive. Archbishop Andronicus of Perm had his hands cut off and his eyes gouged out, was then carried around the streets and finally drowned in the river. Bishop Ambrosius was tied to the tail of a wild horse and dragged to his death. Bishop Isidore of Samara was impaled. Bishop Plato was drenched in winter time and left to freeze into a statue of ice. When the masses of Petrograd gathered to defend the much-loved Bishop Benjamin, the streets were swept by machine guns.

The head of the Russian secret police has to his credit the butchery of 815,000 peasants, 192,355 workmen, and 300,000 intellectuals. This by conservative estimate. In honor of the exploits of this mass-murderer his friends deposited on his coffin a wreath of revolvers.

The Ass Still Speaks.

YES! the ass still speaks! The only difference being that it is a preacher who speaks like an ass instead of an ass speaking like a preacher. Perhaps I should offer an apology to the ass! Dr. John Haynes Holmes, minister of the Community Church in New York is quoted as saying that the Christian God is dying. For God no longer commands the honest respect of men and women! Science has demolished belief in him as a creator, ruler of the universe, and friend of man. His name is chiefly valuable now to fill in cross-word puzzles, and the like. The only God there is, is humanity.

A President Speaks.

DR. TREXLER, President of the Lutheran Synod of New York and New England says, "The youth of our times, with its apparently limitless energy to expend on wild parties, will not be attracted by an anemic church or a pale Christ. But youth will heed a church that appeals to the imagination and that furnishes some high calling worthy of the tremendous vitality of young men and women. The Church should be strong enough to attract and hold the youth of to-day."

Mankind are always happier for having been happy. So that if you make them happy now, you make them happy twenty years hence by the memory of it.

—Sydney Smith.

Would you remain always young, and would you carry all joy and buoyancy of youth into your maturer years? Then have care concerning but one thing—how you live in your thought world.

. . . VOICE OF THE LOWLY AND OPPRESSED . . . ADVOCATE OF THE FRIENDLESS . . . RIGHTER OF PUBLIC AND PRIVATE WRONGS.

AUTOMOBILE FERRY SERVICE.

The statement that there is a probability of an automobile ferry service being established this summer between Cobourg, Ont., and Rochester, N. Y., is of much interest to this district.

Such a service has been advocated by the Trent Waterway Development Association, the Peterborough Chamber of Commerce and other organizations for a number of years, and it is gratifying to learn that at last there is a likelihood of the necessary arrangements being made.

The transportation of motor cars via ferry over Lake Ontario would be a benefit to Peterborough in two ways; it would mean that the number of motor tourists coming into this district would be largely increased, and it would be a great convenience to the many local motorists who visit the eastern part of the United States.

The request that all local motorists who have reason to think that they might avail themselves of the service should declare themselves so that the information may be tabulated and sent on to the Provincial association, should be acted upon as it is desirable that definite knowledge on this point should be available.

THE PRESS AND ALD. STOCKER.

Ald. Walter Stocker's babbling, at the meeting of the city's Finance Committee, about the need of "an unmuzzled" press in Peterborough comes with little grace from that worthy.

The fact that The Examiner has given space to Ald. Stocker's charges against the Police Department is in itself sufficient proof that the Alderman was as much off the mark as he usually is when he accused this paper of being muzzled.

There are occasions when a muzzle is not such a bad thing, and there would be little difficulty in securing the price of one by popular subscription if the public could be assured that it would be employed effectively in taking Ald. Stocker "off the air."

Ald. Stocker's value as a member of the Council would be greatly increased if he could be equipped with a silencer; unfortunately, however, the radio control bill does not cover the variety of broadcasting at which he is so adept.

THE NEW HIGHWAY.

The fact that the Ontario Government has in view the designation at an early date of another west-to-east Provincial highway, paralleling the present Windsor-Montreal highway, is of great importance locally, inasmuch as the new Provincial road would pass through Peterborough and besides being of great convenience to local people, would prove the means of increasing the number of visitors.

The need of such a highway serving the interior of the Province, as the Kingston road does the sections along the lake, has been frequently stressed, and it promises to become a reality much more speedily than was expected.

The western end of the route has already been planned.

It will start at Sarnia and pass through London, Kitchener, Stratford, Guelph and Brantford, then through Brampton on to Yonge street, and then across to Brooklin.

The Sarnia-Brantford section is practically completed, and this year, it is announced, the Brampton-Brooklin section will be included in the system.

A trunk line of this nature will mean much to Peterborough and should lead to a greater influx of motor tourists.

THE RED CROSS.

The annual meeting of the Ontario division of the Canadian Red Cross Society held yesterday indicates that the organization is carrying on a very extensive and useful work in Ontario.

Particularly of interest to the people of this district was the section of the annual report dealing with the outpost work, in which reference was made to the establishment of an outpost hospital at Apsley.

In this connection the report says:

"No less has been the effort in Apsley, a small village of 100 people situated in Peterborough County, separated from rail and water and without the advantages of hospital or nursing care. Following the survey made in October, the Reeve and clergymen gathered together the public-spirited citizens, a mere handful, and decided to purchase a five-room cottage in the course of construction at a cost of $1,200.00. Only those who have knowledge of that sparsely settled district can estimate the effort expended and the sacrifices made in raising the initial payment of $600.00 which enabled them to accept the offer made by the Red Cross. Apsley Red Cross Outpost Committee, now incorporated and holding property, has reason to feel proud and well repaid."

THE GARDEN CALLS.

The first seed catalogue signalizes the advent of the gardening season. Even if the thaws of February, uncovering the brown earth to the first mild sun, should prove to be short-lived, there remains the certainty that spring is near. The rust on the spade and the hoe and the pruning-shears will not be allowed to accumulate much longer, and the barrow and the lawn-mower will soon be shifted to make way for storm windows.

Even after civilization became so specialized that it was no longer necessary for man to cultivate his own patch of foodstuffs, gardening persisted from choice. There has been always recreation and health in these contacts with the soil, prettily symbolized by the Greek fable of Antaeus, who renewed his strength when he touched the earth, and gardening has been practiced as a hobby down through the centuries. We read of an earlier king of England and his passion for cultivation of tulips, and of a Roman philosopher whose favorite retreat for reflection was his private cabbage patch. Two hundred years ago a magazine, published in Fleet street and devoted chiefly to furthering the interests of horticulture, sang the praises of gardening in terms that have much the same application today. J. Lockie Wilson, in an address to the convention of the Ontario Horticultural Association a few days ago, quoted some interesting extracts, of which the following is a part:

"If a man want an appetite to his victuals, the smell of the earth new turned up, by digging by a spade, will procure it, and if he be inclined to a consumption it will recover him. Gentlewomen, if the ground be not too wet, may do themselves much good by kneeling on a cushion and weeding. And thus both sexes might keep themselves from idleness and evil company, which sometimes prove the ruin of many people."

All signs point to early outdoor activity. One of the best indications is the shrinking coal pile in the cellar. Each day the man with the shovel has to make a longer reach, thus flexing his muscles and unconsciously getting into training for the coming assault upon the soil of the garden.—London Advertiser.

ABOUT IMMIGRATION.

Figures recently made public at Ottawa indicate very clearly that the tide of emigration has once more turned in the direction of Canada, the senior Dominion in the Commonwealth comprising the Empire, and predictions are rife that the present year will witness a return to the immigration statistics which were issued in the years before the war.

There is, however, this difference between the conditions of today and those of fifteen years ago: the men, women and children who are severing old ties and throwing in their lot with this young and vigorous country are in a measure selected and are being directed only into those channels of activity in which it is believed that opportunity awaits them. When emigration to Canada was at its height, restriction, if authorized, was not always enforced, and the consequence was that this country was rapidly in danger of acquiring a polyglot and undesirable population such as that which has led to much misgiving in the United States and made restrictive legislation in that Republic almost a necessity. Nowadays, work upon the land and in domestic service are the occupations which are being stressed with results that cannot fail to be gratifying to all Canadians anxious to see population increasing and, consequently, per capita taxation declining.

There is a further difference. In the old days immigrants were not only accepted indiscriminately, or nearly so, but they were led to believe that dollar bills grew by the roadside in this favored country and might be plucked by every passerby without effort. The inevitable followed. People who were induced to cross the Atlantic under the impression that here was a cross between El Dorado and Arcadia, that here they might amass a fortune overnight and lose no perspiration in doing so, and that poverty, toil and hardship were unknown, rapidly became disillusioned, abandoned a task for which they were unfitted, often both by temperament and physique, and returned to the Old Land, there to spread bad tidings about Canada and the Canadians. In this way a great deal of harm was done, quite unintentionally, to the cause and the Dominion suffered in public estimation, particularly amongst those who were both gullible and uninformed. The very people whom the Dominion was desirous of attracting felt themselves unequal to the experience of homesteading and, if they persevered in their intention of seeking a new home, went elsewhere in the Empire where it was reputed that less rigorous conditions prevailed. The effect of this policy still lingers and there are many Britishers of the right type who are anxious to emigrate, yet who are timid about taking up residence in a country of which they have heard such evil report. The new and better policy is to lay all cards upon the table, to tell the intending emigrant that if he wishes to succeed in Canada he must work and work hard. Furthermore, he must expect to endure some trials and to find conditions greatly at variance from those to which he has been accustomed. It is in such a way that newcomers are nowadays being attracted to Canada. This country is being put forward as a challenge to their courage and resourcefulness and there are few who will deny that we are now obtaining a better class of settler than was previously the case and that a sturdier and better Canadian manhood is in process of development as the result of the influsions that are taking place. The only danger is that the picture which is being placed before intending emigrants may become as black as the older one was bright and that they become unduly alarmed. It is all very well to speak about Canada being "a big, cold, hard country," but there are certain attractions and advantages which might be stressed in equal measure, without any harm being done, and the emigrant will thus be the better prepared for the conditions which he will meet. As long, however, as those in charge of immigration activities continue to present both sides of the picture and to tell the men and women whom they meet in the pursuit of their duties that all is not a "bed of roses" in Canada, they will continue to attract those elements which must always be well received in this country and go to make up a population fitted to the task with which it is faced.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Ontario Budget has been variously described as a sunshine Budget and a booze Budget. You can take your choice.

Monday's meeting to arrange for Peterborough's part in the celebration of Canada's jubilee should be largely attended.

The success of the Jordan team is proof that all the hockey talent is not developed in the larger centres.

Compulsory voting is advocated by W. E. Sinclair, the Ontario Liberal leader. Certainly something is needed to secure a larger expression of public opinion.

Premier Ferguson says that he favours better roadways on the back sidelines. If his Government makes progress along that line it will increase its popularity in rural Ontario.

CATTLE, GRAIN AND PRODUCE

Peterboro—Toronto—Montreal Winnipeg.

TORONTO LIVESTOCK

TORONTO, Feb. 26 — The most welcome news affecting the cattle raising industry received for a long time was the announcement this week that the ocean rates on export cattle had been reduced from $20 per head, the old rate, to a new rate of $15 per head. A further reduction of ten per cent. from the $15 rate will be allowed on light store cattle.

The excessively high freight rate of $20 per head for ocean passage has long been held by cattle producers and exporters to be the chief hindrance to an expansion of the cattle export trade. The agitation for a reduction in the rate has been carried on for a long time. Members of the federal parliament have been elected on the issue, and from east to west the cry has been raised for lower rates as the panacea for almost all the ills affecting the cattle raising and shipping industry.

Now that the long hoped for reduction has been made, there does not appear to be the enthusiasm that might have been expected in view of all the noise and fuss preceding it. Perhaps this is only human, and is no exception to the rule in mundane affairs. It is admitted, however, that the immediate benefits will go to the producers. The shippers may come in for theirs later on when conditions are more normal in the Old Country and shipments from Canada increase. In the meantime the cattle raising industry, particularly in the west, will be encouraged and stimulatedd by the success so far of the lower rates campaign.

Trade on the local market this week has been generally of a most satisfactory character. Prices have been well maintained, and for special types of cattle showing some slight increases.

Export buyers took 335 cattle from off the market. They were mostly light-weight steers from 1,150 to 1,250 lbs. for Glasgow, and sold here for $7.25 to $7.75, with the bulk around $7.50. They report orders next week for heavy steers for Liverpool and light steers and heavy heifers for Manchester; in all about 600 head.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Que., Feb. 26 (Canadian Press) — The export trade in Canadian grain on the Montreal market continued dull yesterday, there being practically no demand from any source.

Owing to the renewed strength in the Chicago future market for corn to-day, local prices for cash corn here were marked up two cents per bushel, which tended to check the demand. Car lots of No. 2 yellow were quoted at 92c, No. 3 yellow at 91c, No. 4 yellow at 87c, and cool sweet corn at 84c per bushel, ex-store. The market for Canadian Western Oats was also firmer at an advance of 1-2c bushel.

A firmer feeling prevailed in the spring wheat flour market, but there was no change in prices. The demand continued of a limited character.

There was no change in winter wheat flour for which the demand was quiet.

An active trade was done in all lines of millfeed and the undertone was firm. There was no improvement in the demand for rolled oats and the market was quiet but steady.

Owing to the continued liberal supplies of fresh eggs coming forward from the United States, the undertone to the local market was again easy and prices for five and ten case lots to growers and other dealers were shaded one cent per dozen. The market was moderately active. The receipts were 1,140 cases.

Business in potatoes continued of a limited character owing to the mild weather prevailing but prices were unchanged. Car lots of Prince Edward Island Green Mountains were quoted at $1.60 to $1.65 per bag of ninety pounds; Quebec white stock at $1.10 to $1.15 per bag of ninety pounds in bulk, ex-track, and New Brunswick Green Mountains at $1.05 to $1.10 per bag of eighty pounds, ex-store.

The butter market was moderately active and firm. Sales of New Zealand finest creamery butter were made at 41 3-4c to 42c per pound. The receipts were 662 packages.

Extreme dullness again marked the cheese trade but prices were unchanged. The receipts were 81 boxes.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press)—Active buying and higher prices in all the grain pits yesterday promptly followed news that President Coolidge had vetoed the McNary-Haugen farm bill. Wheat closed firm att-2 to 1 1-4c net advance; corn 1 5-8 to 2 1-8c up; oats showing 1 to 1 3-8c gain, and provisionse varying from two cents decline to a rise of 10 cents.

The maximum upward jerk, resulting chiefly from the veto, was as much as 2 1-4c a bushel in the price of wheat and of 2 7-8c in corn from the day's lowest price level. In wheat especially the trend should be downward prior to the announcement of the veto. Large exports of wheat from the Southern Hemisphere were a bearish factor, Australian and Argentine shipments for the week totaling more than 10,000,000 bushels. On the other hand, reports that green bugs had appeared in Oklahoma led to some buying, but the effect of the Oklahoma news was transient.

Better shipping demand from the east helped to strengthen the corn market. It was noticeable also that country offerings of corn to arrive were small, even on the advance. Oats ascended with corn.

Provisions averaged higher, responsive to the course of grain.

Socks worn by babies should have a compartment for the big toe, just as mittens have for the thumb, says a doctor.

ORCHARDS AND OLD MEN

(By Dr. Frank Crane.)

Contrary to the general idea, it is youth that values time most.

Youth wants immediate returns. It doesn't want to wait. It wants to hurry things up. Utopia must arrive year after next at the latest. It wants immediate success, immediate productivity. Ten years seems an age.

It is the older man who ventures most frequently upon long-time projects.

The owner of a large orchard was interviewed upon the possibilities for success in his line.

When he explained that it takes about ten years for a new orchard to become productive, the reporter ventured that only young men could be interested. For others, the time would seem too long.

"That is where you are wrong," he was told. "It is the old men who plant orchards. When a man is in his twenties, ten years seems a long time. He is looking for quick returns. I am forty-five and just beginning to learn that it doesn't take ten years long to roll around. Time isn't such a factor to me any more."

Projects that take years to bear fruit are the only ones that do the world much good.

A (usually) reliable gage of the worth of a thing is the time it takes to achieve it.

The crop that springs up in a night dies while a tiny tree-twig is sprouting; the fruit-fly that becomes a great-grandfather in an hour passes away with the ticking of minutes.

It was said of a certain famous writer that he worked as if "he had eternity to finish in."

Time and perfection are ever at odds, and to choose the immediate is to choose the inferior.

Where time is constantly a factor, steady climbing becomes frantic clambering to the detriment of the work at hand.

When a man ceases to hurry he does his best work.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

(By C. N. Lurie.)

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

(By the McClure Syndicate, Inc.)

"ALMOST INSTANTLY KILLED"

"You say that a boy while crossing Park Avenue, the Bronx, 'was almost instantly killed by an automobile'," writes a correspondent of the New York Times: "The words, 'almost instantly killed' do not seem to convey any precise idea. Was the boy actually killed, but killed after a lapse of time so brief as not to be calculable? Or did he escape unscathed, after imminent danger of immediate death?

"I do not mean to quibble, and for the life of me I cannot find an expression to substitute. But it has always seemed to be a little loose to qualify in any way a thought which is exclusive of degrees.

"Should we say 'almost miraculous'? Either a happening is miraculous or it is not. May we say 'almost instantly'? Either the event is instant or itis not. Shall we say that we are 'almost right' in this viewpoint? Or is it that we are either right or wrong?"

The newspaper admits that it was wrong to use the expression "almost instantly killed." It heads the letter with the single word, "Wrong." If it meant to say that the boy was killed after a very brief lapse of time, it should have said, "The boy was killed almost instantly." If it meant that he escaped death, it should have said so.

VOICE OF PEOPLE

Dear Mr. Editor of The Examiner:

A lot of us girls had a good laugh at the mention in your paper about beauty being a transient thing.

So is the writer of the sermon. So is everything, but when it comes to telling people to be good and never mind being beautiful we thought of all the guys in the world who always went dopey on beauty.

Is that writer a returned missionary from Abuska or some such place. I suppose he is.

Why beauty is the whole business of the world. Anybody with any sense knows that beauty is celebrated.

It was all right though, it was a good joke and we laughted hearty. Even grandma did. Now give us one on beautiful teeth and hair, and jewels, and just get out and tell girls to their faces and see them laugh and boys too.

It's ridiculous all right.

SCARCITY OF WORK.

There is usually a position waiting for the man who is capable and ambitious. Scarcity of work is often scarcity of ambitious enthusiasm.

If you would be happy be useful. Make yourself necessary to something, to someone; the plan of life provides that you should give before you can receive, that is if you are to be truly happy.

"IT'S THE HUMIDITY"

In the summertime, one is not liable to be troubled very much with the heat, unless the air is moist. If the air is dry, there will be greater elimination from the body, as the dry air takes up the poisonous vapors more readily than does moist air. Elimination through the pores is thus retarded if the air is full of moisture and one sweats more easily; whereas, if the air is dry, sweat does not form but the poisons and water pass off in the form of gases.

If the air is dry, very little discomfort is felt, even though the thermometer registers 100°, but if the sun is shining brightly and the air is full of moisture, a great deal of discomfort is felt with the thermometer not over 80°.

There is a great advantage in drinking large quantities of water during the hot weather, as this gives the body more pure fluid to use in expelling the impurities through the pores.

The foods to be used during the summer months should consist mostly of succulent and non-starchy vegetables, which are the vital substances necessary to repair and build cell structure. Proteins, vitamines and organic minerals are converted into tissue without developing much heat in the body. Fruits should also be used for their water and also for their acids and vitamines.

Sweet drinks of all kinds should be carefully avoided. A single ice-cream soda contains as many calories as a whole meal of meat, vegetables and fruit.

During the summer months, great care should be used in the selection of clothing, which is light in color and loose in weave, and should be worn loosely in order to permit of free circulation of the air. It is a well-known fact that white clothes reflect the sun's rays, while dark clothing absorbs them.

Clothing made of vegetable fiber, such as linen and cotton, permits the air to pass in and out more freely. The weave should be loose, as clothing with a fine weave will not allow the body to throw off heat and perspiration.

There is a great deal of controversy as to whether a warm or cold bath should be taken in hot weather. Lying in a tub of cold water is certainly refreshing on a hot day, and the body temperature can be reduced temporarily in this manner, but lasting results will come from taking quite a warm shower, following by a cooler one. This stimulates the skin and increases its functioning. As the chief business of the skin is to regulate the heat of the body, a hot and cold bath tends to develop a healthier condition of the muscles controlling the pores and, therefore, the skin is more able to regulate the bodily heat.

It is a good plan on a hot day to put on some heavy clothing and take a walk of about a mile or two. This will induce a copious perspiration, and a cold shower bath taken after the walk will be the most enjoyable one you have ever taken. Do not stay under the cold shower for longer than three minutes, and lie down for a few moments afterwards.

THANKS!

AND A PROMISE

Every industry is ultimately made or unmade by public opinion.

Witness the raising of Chrysler by public approval in three years time from 27th place to 4th place among exhibitors in the National Automobile Shows.

Twenty-three long-established motor cars supplanted because the public found greater value in Chrysler.

By the spontaneous action of public opinion Chrysler engineering and manufacturing principles were crowded up into fourth place.

In business at least democracy works,—and all things are possible to the independent manufacturer functioning at the head of his own independent company, unhampered by old traditions or obsolete equipment, and giving brains, experience and new ideas full swing in development and achievement.

The amazing advance of Chrysler in public esteem has rocked the automobile industry from top to bottom.

At first the attempted competitive explanation of Chrysler was that it was a new and probably a one-year car.

Now the wish to give the public cars like Chrysler has become almost a rout and a panic of emulation and imitation.

Mr. Chrysler and his organization appreciate the leadership awarded to them and realize its responsibilities. They will keep faith with the public which has shown faith in them.

NEW EQUIPMENT BOUGHT BY C.N.R.

Type For Use on Principal Trains.

NEW COACHES.

MONTREAL, Feb. 26.—(Special).—Extensive orders for equipment have been placed by the Canadian National Railways, including locomotives, sleeping cars, dining cars, observation cars, passenger coaches and various types of cars for freight service, all of which will be placed in commission during the early summer to cope with the peak of holiday travel and to provide increased grain transportation facilities for the season's harvest.

It is probable that the strongest appeal to the public is made by engines, all mankind possessing a fascination for machinery. It will be recalled that when the 6,000 engine first made its appearance it received a warm welcome in every city and community, and at Montreal and Toronto thousands of interested individuals swarmed into the stations to inspect the new leviathan. Judging from that experience, there should be great interest evinced when the public will have an opportunity of viewing the 6,100 class because this new type represents an advance over the 6,000 class and will be the largest and most powerful type in Canada.

The 6,100 class is known as the Mountain type, the name being due to the fact that the original design was planned to meet conditions in the mountains. These engines are also designated "4-8-4," this being a reference to the wheel arrangement. These new locomotives will be used between Montreal and Sarnia in passenger and manifest freight service, the latter being an important feature on the Canadian National Railways. Of the 6,100 class 40 will be built in Canada, while an additional 12 will be built in the United States and used in similar service between Sarnia and Chicago on the Grand Trunk Western Lines. A modified 6,000 class, four in number, have been ordered for the Central Vermont lines, and will draw The Washingtonian and The Montrealer on the Montreal-Washington run. In addition to the passenger locomotives, 10 switching engines have been ordered for service in the United States, making a total of 66 passenger and switching engines added to the motive power resources of the system.

The new rolling stock should have a direct appeal to housewives, new features in the dining cars being of particular interest. New diners to the number of 12 have been ordered and will be ready for the summer season. They will be two feet longer than the present type, being 84 feet 4 1-2 inches over buffers. This space will be added to the kitchen and pantries, and the seating capacity will remain unchanged, but the increased facilities, due to greater accommodation in the kitchen, will expedite service. These are all-steel cars with the interior in African mahogany and dark green ceiling, making a handsome and attractive diner. Improvements in lighting and in ventilation make these cars the last word in Canadian service.

The 20 sleepers, also all-steel, follow the conventional lines and possess every feature necessary for the convenience of travelling patrons.

There will be improvements and refinements in the five compartment--observation - library - buffet cars designed for Western service. These are of the "Fort" type so designated because each car is named after a fort which played some part in Canadian history. With the addition of the new order, the Canadian National Railways will possess 30 "Fort" cars.

The new observation end cars will be two feet longer than the present type, being 75 feet 6 inches over buffer. The cars will include a comfortable observation end, four compartments, a drawing room and a buffet. The drawing room will be placed in the centre of the car. A half partition in the observation section forms an alcove in which the writing desk is placed and also permits of a built-in radio cabinet. There will be radio headphones at each seat and also in the compartments and drawing room. The interior finish will be in African mahogany.

While the new freight equipment may not possess such a direct appeal to the public, travelling and otherwise, it plays a highly important part in transportation. One order calls for 1,000 box cars and these represent the new trend in service. They are known as 60-ton cars, being 40 feet in length by 8 feet 6 inches in height and will carry 2,000 bushels of grain. To appreciate this point it must be remembered that the first cars used in hauling the Western crop carried 800 bushels and this capacity has been gradually increased. These cars will be used largely in bulk grain territory, but they are also coming into general use on main lines where steel is heavy and motive power plentiful, the long train of greater capacity being the economic ambition of railroad men.

Another order called for automobile cars, 1,000 being built in the United States for service over lines in that country, and 700 in Canada. These cars are 40 feet long, 10 feet high and 8 feet wide and can take three tiers of smaller automobiles. The importance of this industry will be realized when it is stated that in the spring season when deliveries are being called for the Canadian National Railways has in service 350 to 400 automobile cars each day in the manufacturing area. Some of the automobile cars have end doors so that they can be loaded with busses which could not be swung through the side entrances.

One other order given to a Canadian plant is for 200 freight refrigerator cars. These are largely capacity cars and will be used chiefly for packing house products from Winnipeg and Toronto plants. They are equipped with brine tanks and provide the most adequate form of railway refrigeration.

Altogether these orders will have a wide effect, not only in improving service on the Canadian National Railways, but because of the large amount of work provided at various plants.

WORTHY

The average man doesn't pretend to be an expert on motor cars. His business is something else. That doesn't mean that he can't safely buy a used car. It does mean that he should buy of someone whose knowledge and honesty he can trust. We believe that our customers have found us worthy of their confidence.

SCENE FROM "MARE NOSTRUM" (OUR SEA) WHICH OPENS AT THE CAPITOL ON MONDAY.

THEATRE

AT THE CAPITOL

MARE NOSTRUM.

The premiere of Rex Ingram's new photoplay, "Mare Nostrum" filmed abroad on the exact locations named in Blasco Ibanez's novel aroused a furore of critical appreciation from the distinguished first-night audience at the Criterion Theatre in New York. Reviewers vied with each other the next day in lavish praise of the marvelous scenic backgrounds and tragic intensity of these utilized by Ingram in filming "Mare Nostrum."

Since then the success of the picture has been remarkable. Week after week "Mare Nostrum" has strengthened its hold on Broadway theatre-goers. It is now in its fifth big month. These reviews indicate why:

New York American.

"Rex Ingram has produced a magnificent picture, both powerful and poetic.

"Blasco Ibanez wrote, and Rex Ingram has filmed a story of love, many loves. There is the love of the sailor for the sea, love that is in the blood, that cannot be forgotten. There is love of the father for his son, the child of whom he dreams. And there is the love of a man for a woman. These three have been woven into a story which moves with the calm, inevitable sweep of the sea itself. The first half is slow, serene. Then it bursts into a storm of drama.

"Antonio Moreno and Alice Terry head a splendid cast. No one could have been finer than Miss Terry as the reluctant spy. She brings to a difficult part a rare grace and sympathy. Moreno is handsome and dashing in a strong characterization.

"'Mare Nostrum' has something for almost everyone, those who like drama, poetry, spectacle, characterization or beauty of setting. It has them all, with a strong plot to hold them all together. This is decidedly another Metro-Goldywn production that everyone should see."—Eileen Creelman.

New York World.

"This semi-fantastic story of the Mediterranean lends itself to individual pictures of great charm. These pictures, these exquisitely photographed scenes of the beauties of the sea at its most picturesque and at its most furious, have been molded into enchanting, at times thrilling, episodes of human existence over and beneath its blooming billows.

"Mr. Ingram knows where to set his machine and at what time to shoot. In Naples, in Marseilles, in the valley before Vesuvius he came away with ripping views.

"Episodes of mythology, the execution that torpedoing of steamships provided thrills sufficient to introduce a hushed and terrified moment now and again over the first night assemblage." — Quinn Martin.

Motion Picture News.

"Mare Nostrum, which opened an indefinite engagement at the Criterion theatre, New York, Tuesday evening, is grim, stark tragedy that goes on to its uncompromising end, recalling if not reviving the hates of war and picturizing in startling vividness the ruthlessness of German U-boat warfare.

"From a producton and acting standpoint, nothing that has been produced can surpass it, even Mr. Ingram's own immortal 'Four Horsemen', with which the picture must inevitably be compared. A carefully selected cast, all but three of which are foreign, give characterizations that stand out like cameos."—J. S. Dickerson.

Life.

"'Mare Nostrum' in my estimation, is the best of Ingram's productions since 'The Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse'.....Mr. Ingram has imparted to this story a great deal of legitimate beauty and a surprising degree of dramatic strength. 'Mare Nostrum' is always interesting to watch; at times, it generates an emphaitc thrill.

"Much of this is due, undoubtedly, to the fine work of the cast, which includes Alice Terry, Antonio Moreno, and some local talent recruited by Mr. Ingram in Europe. Every role, from the principal characters down to the lowliest members of mobs, is played with a fine fervor, giving a quality of collective emotionalism to the film."—Robert E. Sherwood.

PRISCILLA DEAN HAS NARROW ESCAPE WHILE FILMING "THE SPEEDING VENUS"

Dynamic Star Suffers Sprained Ankle in Racing To Safety When Auto Man Killer Speeds Along Road.

Taking her life literally in her hands, Priscilla Dean, starring in "The Speeding Venus," while supplying thrills and action for her current vehicle, narrowly escaped death but suffered a sprained ankle.

To avoid being struck by an automobile being driven at breakneck speed on the highway where the Metropolitan company was at work, Miss Dean ran to her car which was standing in the road, stepped on the running board and slipped and fell heavily in the road-way. Because of her injury, work for the day was practically abandoned.

Quick thinking on the part and quick action—rolling under the car — brought about the sprain that saved her life. For the speeding automobile dashed past, and about a mile father on crashed into a pedestrian, killing him instantly. The machine then disappeared.

"The Speeding Venus," which comes to the Regent Theatre next Monday, is Miss Dean's surprise picture. It's a great film romance. Robert Frazer and Dale Fuller are featured and head a competent supporting cast.

MONKEYS ON SPREE.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Feb. 26. —Two tiny monkeys escaped from a beach zoo here and raided a cafe. The restaurant was closed when they entered. First they staged a duel with all the eggs they could find, then they sprayed the room with flour. By the time they had filled all the pitchers and sugar bowls with onions, and stacked all the flower vases on the kitchen range, a policeman arrived. The pair refused to surrender until their keeper lured them with bananas.

OUTLINE OF SCIENCE CXIII—Improving the Steam Engine. by MAX HAHN

WHILE YET A BOY, JAMES WATT WAS FASCINATED BY A BOILING TEA KETTLE IN HIS HOME IN SCOTLAND. IT AMUSED HIM TO SEE THAT STEAM FORCED THE LID UP WHEN HE COVERED THE SPOUT WITH A SPOON.

THE TEA KETTLE EXPERIMENT INCREASED WATT'S INTEREST IN STEAM ENGINES AND A FEW YEARS LATER WHEN ASKED TO REPAIR A STEAM ENGINE HE MADE MANY IMPROVEMENTS. STEAM ENGINES WERE NOT IN GENERAL USE IN 1770.

WATT'S BRILLIANT MIND SOON POINTED OUT THE WAY TO MAKE A STEAM ENGINE DO MORE WORK WITHOUT WASTING MUCH FUEL. HE DID AWAY WITH THE COOLING OF THE CYLINDER.

WATT'S DISCOVERY THAT STEAM COULD BE USED IN TURN ON ONE SIDE OF A PISTON AND THEN ON THE OTHER LED FAME TO CROWN HIM AS THE CHIEF IMPROVER OF THE STEAM ENGINE.

SOUTH

South deals—Bid and play each hand on its own merit, and as though the others were not exposed.

RULES OF THE BRIDGE CONTEST

1.—Each week until further notice a different deal of bridge hands will be printed as above. These hands have been conceived by bridge experts and the bidding and play has been worked out by Ellis O. Jones, author of "Scientific Bidding," and a recognized bridge authority. The object of the contest is to bid and play the hands as they should be played in a regular game, with only the dummy in sight, to secure the highest possible number of points from each deal. The bidding and play has been carefully worked out by Mr. Jones and his solution, now on file in The Examiner office, will be used to determine the winner. The prize will go to the contestant who works out the bidding and play of each card just as Mr. Jones has done.

2.—In addition, each contestant must write an article of not more than 100 words explaining some particular point in the bidding or play of the hand. If several contestants submit exactly the same solution Mr. Jones has worked out, the prize will go to the one submitting the best article and the neatest solution.

3.—Each contestant should tabulate the bidding and play in the blank form at the right or on a separate piece of paper drawn up in a similar form.

4.—All contestants must have their solution in The Examiner office by 12 midnight. March 3.

5.—The contest is open to every reader of The Examiner, except employees of this paper and their immediate families.

6.—A contestant may submit as many solutions as desired, but all must be in accordance with the rules.

7.—No one is required to buy a copy of this paper to compete. Copies of the paper may be examined at The Examiner office.

8.—As a condition of entry all contestants must agree to abide by the decisions and awards of the Contest Editors.

Here is the first hand in The Examiner's new weekly bridge contest.

Before you try to bid and play the hand in the most scientific manner and in order to get the greatest number of points, be sure to read all the instructions very carefully.

The hand was conceived by Ellis O. Jones, author of "Scientific Bidding" and a recognized bridge authority. He has bid it and played it in the manner that he considers best. Your problem will be to bid it and play it in exactly the same manner that Mr. Jones has done. In addition, you must write an article of not more than 100 words telling what you consider the fine points of the play.

The prize will go to the contestant who bids and plays it exactly as Mr. Jones has done and who writes the best short article on the play. A copy of Mr. Jones' solution is now in the hands of the judges of the contest.

The prize is a Double Pack of Congress Bridge Cards, assorted scenic backs.

All solutions must be in the hands of the Bridge Contest Editor by not later than midnight, Thursday, March 3.

The Examiner believes this unique contest will provide you with a lot of entertainment and improve your bridge at the same time. Call your friends in and work out the bidding and the play together if you desire. The contest will add novelty to any bridge party that the lady of the house may be giving

The correct solution and the name of the prize winner will be printed in The Examiner one week from today. On that date also will appear a hand for next week's contest.

Although it is believed the rules are concise and clear, the Bridge Contest Editor will endeavor to answer any questions that may arise in your mind. It is not necessary to buy a copy of The Examiner to compete in the contest, as a file of the paper may be examined at The Examiner office.

HOW TO FILL OUT THE BLANKS

Fill in each play in every trick in the squares above, just as you think each card should be played. Name the cards in this manner, for example: S—4 for the four spot of spades; H—K for the king of hearts; D—J for the jack of diamonds, and C—Q for the queen of clubs, etc. Do not use the letter K (Knave) for J (Jack). Indicate which hand leads in every trick by placing an (L) in parenthesis after the play. Thus if you believe in the first hand in the play North would lead the six of diamonds. East would play the king, South the ace and West the three-spot, you would put D—A under South and opposite Trick No. 1 in the squares above, D—3 under West, D—6 (L) under North and D—K under East. Then in one of the last two columns mark an X under which two partners won the trick.

RECEIVES HONOR FOR FIRE RESCUE

C.N.R. Painter Applied First Aid at Laurier Palace Fire.

CERTIFICATE GIVEN

MONTREAL, Feb. 26.—An echo of the Laurier Palace Theatre fire was heard at the annual meeting of the Canadian National Railways Council, St. John Ambulance Association, when Joseph E. Gagne, a painter in the St. Lambert shops of the Montreal and Southern Counties Railway, received a Meritorious First Aid certificate in recognition of his work in aiding victims of that tragedy.

In a letter from Dr. A. Landry, it was stated that the efforts of Mr. Gagne had resulted in at least four persons being saved through the prompt and intelligent application of First Aid principles. Mr. Gagne received his training in the classes organized by the department of Safety and First Aid, Canadian National Railways, in all parts of the system and throughout subsidiary companies.

D. E. Galloway, Assistant Vice-President of the system, in making the presentation of the certificate, commented on the fact that Mr. Gagne had on previous occasions rendered first aid, in one instance, his compression of a severed artery had saved a man's life.

The annual meeting of the council was held in the board room at the head office, McGill Street, W. D. Robb, vice-president of the System and president of the council, was in chair. In the course of his remarks, Mr. Robb paid tribute to the sympathy and co-operation of Sir Henry Thornton, the president, and other executive officers, particularly S. J. Hungerford, vice-president in charge of operation, who had done so much to promote this form of welfare work.

In presenting the annual report, F. A. Bourne, the honorary secretary, stated that the organization was in a flourishing condition and rapidly approaching the objective of the president, which is that at no point on the System could an emergency arise without there being present an employee capable of rendering efficient first aid. The report also drew attention to the fact that the Montizambert Trophy, emblematic of the Men's First Aid Championship of Canada is now held by Team No. 1, Fort Rouge Shops, Winnipeg.

The election of officers resulted as follows: Patron, Sir Henry W. Thornton, K.B.E.; President, W. D. Robb; Vice-President, Messrs. Gerard Ruel, S. J. Hungerford, A. T. Weldon, D. C. Grant, R. C. Vaughan and D. E. Galloway; Regional Vice-Presidents, Messrs. C. G. Bowker, A. E. Warren, W. U. Appleton, and W. A. Kingsland.

Honorary Treasurer; Honorary Secretary, F. A. Bourne; Representatives to General Council at Ottawa, S. J. Hungerford and Dr. H. B. Carmichael.

The play entitled "Home Ties" given under the auspices of the Young People's Union, was to have been presented at Reaboro on Wednesday evening but owing to two of the characters, Evelyn Bland and Cecil Kennedy, being ill the play had to be postponed.

The junior hockey team went to Lindsay on Saturday to battle with a team of that town. They met defeat by one goal, the score being 3-2 in favor of Lindsay.

Hockey fans were delighted when it became known that Port Hope intermediates were coming to play the locals on Monday evening. The rooters were on hand but there wasn't much to cheer over. The locals were handicapped for want of their regular goal tender, S Tripp, who was unable to play. However a few good shots were stopped by H. Overholt and L. Adams, who acted in that capacity. The result of the game was a win for the visitors to the tune of 13-7.

On Tuesday evening two sleigh loads of people fourneyed to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Parker at Orange Corners. Mr. and Parker entertained about eighty of their friends at a birthday party in honor of Mrs. Parker's sister, Mrs. W. E. Finley of Cadillac, Sask. The evening was spent in cards and dancing.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS ARE OF GREAT VALUE

To All Mothers Having Young Children in the Home.

No other medicine is of such aid to mothers of young children as is Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are the very best medicine a mother can give her little ones during the dreaded teething time because they regulate the stomach and bowels and thus drive out constipation and indigestion; prevent colic and diarrhoea and break up colds and simple fevers.

Concerning Baby's Own Tablets, Mrs. John A. Patterson, Scotch Village, N.S., says:—"I have six children, and all the medicine they ever get is Babys Own Tablets. I would use nothing else for them and can strongly recommend the Tablets to all other mothers."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

STILL SEEK FOR MODERN VIKING

Nothing Ever Heard From Imitator of Lief Erickson.

SEARCH USELESS.

The arrival from Norway of the Viking ship, "Lief Erickson," which was exhibited at the Sesquicentennial in Philadelphia in commemoration of the voyage of Lief the Lucky to America, has aroused new interest in the fate of that other "Lief Erickson" and her valiant commander, William Nutting.

Lost at sea! Swallowed completely, without leaving sign or trace to suggest the story. Not one survivor, not a spar nor a boat. Not a word. Just the silence of the sea. And the fate of the ship and all aboard for ever remains a mystery.

William M. Nutting, New York editor and sportsman, had studied the explorations of Lief Erickson on the North American continent 500 years before the landing of Columbus. Thrilled by the spirit of adventure of those Viking sailors, he conceived the idea of sailing his small ship over the Viking trail—Norway, Iceland, Greenland, Labrador—previously followed by the Viking discoverer after whom he named his boat. With three companions he sailed from Bergen in July, 1924. His craft was a forty-two-foot auxiliary with a twelve-horsepower motor, of the type used by Norwegian fishermen in winter patrol work.

Reaching Iceland without mishap, Nutting made his departure for Greenland on August 10. He had planned to touch on the east coast of Greenland, but reports of an unusual amount of ice there caused him to change his mind. He landed, instead, on the west coast, whence he sailed on September 9 for Labrador. With that date the story of the sturdy little ship and its daring crew ends.

Has the "Lief Erickson" met the fate of the Erebus, the Jeanette, the Terror, the Fury and of the many other ships claimed by the frozen clutches of the Viking trail? Or is she locked in some icy port, unable to put out and complete her dangerous journey? More than two years have passed and seamen are still speculating, says the February "Popular Science Monthly." The U. S. Navy scout cruiser, "Trenton," searched the northern waste for weeks. Radio messages were sent to all the Hudson's Bay Company's posts in Labrador and the vicinity in the hope that some word from the crew might return. Later, in a last desperate effort, the "Dana," a Danish scientific ship, cruised along the coast of Greenland in a hunt for the vanished boat. The voyage was fruitless.

Seamen offer many explanations of what might have happened; nor do they it impossible that some trace may yet be found. That the "Lief" was swamped is unlikely, for she was designed to withstand any sea, and was manned by a most able crew. That the vessel was crushed in the ice floes is also held improbable; there was little ice in the course which she ultimately pursued. Fire is the most likely theory; in her hold the "Lief" carried hundreds of feet of film.

The true story will perhaps remain a mystery for all time. Yet within the year, or the week, the discovery of a frozen hulk, the finding of an abandoned camp, may tell the tale. It is not without the realms of possibility that Nutting himself will return some day, with his fearless crew, to relate his exploits.

TRUE STORIES ABOUT LIFE INSURANCE By A REPRESENTATIVE of the MUTUAL LIFE

The Man Who Refused

I WANTED him to take out a $50.00 Mutual Monthly Income Policy as a Christmas present for his wife. He refused. Instead, he borrowed $1,200 on the $7,000 Ordinary Life Policy he already held and took a trip to his old home in Scotland with his wife.

Returning to Canada, he died suddenly just as the boat was entering the harbor.

His Insurance money is now reduced to $2,400, earning interest of $120 a year. His widow is, at present, holding the position of a housekeeper, but, daily, she scans the papers in hope of finding something better.

Why not ask a Mutual Representative to explain our Monthly Income Policy? Or write direct to this Office.

THE new sliding seats, operating so smoothly at the touch of a lever—eliminate completely the only disadvantage heretofore associated with coach models, and give you "sedan" ease of access and egress at "coach" price. The seats slide forward and backward by a specially constructed mechanism and enable passengers to enter or leave the rear compartment without front-seat passengers leaving their seats.

This most convenient refinement is now included as standard equipment on the Chevrolet Coach—together with the innumerable other features of the Most Beautiful Chevrolet in Chevrolet History:—new, beautiful Fisher bodies with double bracing; new, modish Duco colors; new radiator design; new bullet-type head-lamps and cowl-lamps; new, full-crown fenders; new, cowl-located ignition and steering lock; new gasoline tank with gauge; new AC air cleaner; new AC oil filter, and a host of others.

All the places named on this map, except Ichang, are mission stations in China of the United Church of Canada. They are in the province of Szechwan and most of them are 2,000 miles from the coast. The missionaries' line of communication is down the Yangtse valley and if trouble develops at Hankow or Shanghai, far down the stream, as is not unlikely, their position would become one of considerable danger. Gunboats cannot get upstream to Chengtu but might reach points between Ichang and Chungking. One party of about 20 missionaries left for the coast a few days ago. Other parties of about 30 are expected to leave shortly, some of them going overland by chair from Chengtu to Wanhsien, where foreign war ships may be able to give protection. But so far the United Church has no news of a general evacuation by the missionaries who, with their families, number two hundred.

How ocean going ships will climb 326 feet from Lake Ontario to Lake Erie. The above map-diagrams provide a comparison between the old and the new Welland canals and indicate how the 25 locks on the canal now being used will give place to seven locks on the canal that is in course of construction. The new canal will go straight up the Niagara escarpment instead of going up in a semi-circle. The diagrams cover only that part of the canal nearest Lake Ontario—an 8-mile stretch. The rest of the distance to Lake Erie is 18 miles. The old locks are 270 feet long and 45 feet wide, with 14 feet of water. The new locks will be 827 feet long, 80 feet wide and 27 feet deep. At present it takes between 15 and 18 hours to pass from lake to lake. When the deeper canal is operating, which should be three years hence, the time will be reduced to 8 hours. Locks 4, 5 and 6, which cut into the cliff, are twin locks, so that ships can go up and down at the same time. It will take only eight minutes to fill or empty one of the big new locks. The new Welland canal required the excavation of nine million cubic yards of rock and 48 million cubic yards of earth. It will cost about 115 million dollars. It runs from Port Weller to Thorold while the old one runs from Port Dalhousie to Thorold.

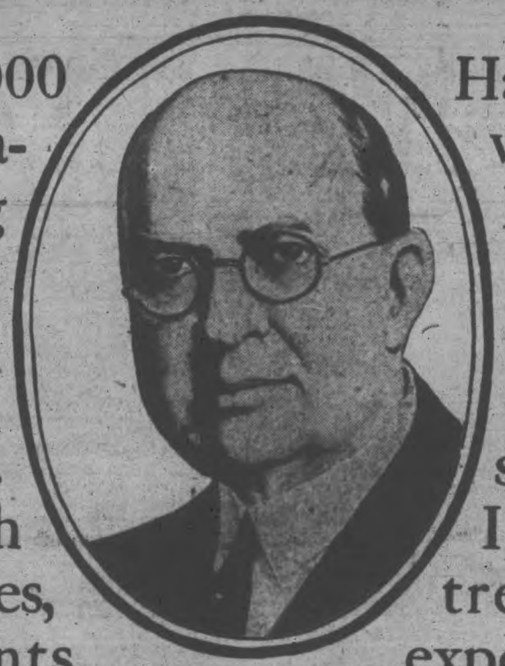
WANTED! 15,000 Sufferers From

DEAFNESS

Head Noises or Nasal Catarrh

I want the names of 15,000 people who are suffering from catarrhal deafness, dullness of hearing or head noises. I have an original home treatment for these distressing conditions which I want you to try without cost or expense. I suffered for many years with catarrh, deafness and head noises, tried many different treatments. Had two surgical operations all of which failed to give permanent relief. I began experimenting on myself and finally found a treatment which completely healed my catarrh, restored my hearing and stopped the terrible head noises. I want you to try this splendid treatment entirely at my own expense.



DR. W. O. COFFEE
NOTED DEAFNESS AND CATARRH SPECIALIST

15,000 Treatments This Month

I am proud of my treatment and so anxious to help others suffering with deafness, head noises or catarrh that I will have packed and ready for shipment 15,000 demonstration treatments which I will give away in the next 30 days absolutely free. I want to prove that my original home treatment will give relief from catarrhal deafness, head noises or nasal catarrh. The results are quick and convincing.

You feel the difference the first day. This treatment costs you nothing whatever. Simply send coupon or write and say that you are suffering with deafness or head noises or catarrh. I will gladly send the free treatment. It is the best treatment I have ever found in over 40 years' practice as an eye, ear, nose and throat specialist. I want every sufferer with deafness, dullness of hearing, head noises or catarrh to try it free.

Don't Neglect Deafness or Catarrh!

Catarrhal Deafness, Head Noises, and Nasal Catarrh generally grow worse when neglected. Authorities claim that ninety per cent of all deafness is primarily caused by catarrh of the head and air passages. Others state that nasal catarrh often causes indigestion, rheumatism, catarrh of the stomach, and many other diseased conditions. If you suffer from partial deafness or nasal catarrh, do not neglect this condition. There are thousands, who are now practically stone deaf, whose hearing could no doubt have been saved had the right measures been taken in time. I have personally restored hearing in hundreds of cases, where the patients were so deaf they could hear nothing. I want to prove the value of my treatment to you entirely at my own risk and expense. I will gladly send it without cost. Just fill out and mail the coupon.

TRY THIS FREE!

I don't ask you to send one penny for this treatment. I send it free to you prepaid without cost. I am doing this to quickly introduce my original home treatment to sufferers of catarrhal deafness, head noises or catarrh. I believe I treat more cases of deafness, head noises and catarrh than any physician in the United States. I know this treatment is the best I have ever used. Send your name and address today. State whether you have deafness or head noises or just have catarrh. This notice may not appear again so mail the coupon at once.

Profit by the Experience of Those Who Know

Feeling Fine

"I am feeling fine. I suffered from head noises, could hardly hear before I began your treatment. Now I feel well."—Joe M. of Lawrence, Mass.

Helps Her

"It has helped me. I am not troubled with head noises, and my hearing is as good as ever."—Mrs. J. B., Chicago, Ill.

Brought Back Hearing

"Your treatment has brought back my hearing. I can hear now about as good as I ever did. I want to thank you."—Mr. E. M., Houston, Texas.

Relieved in 3 Days

"I received your treatment for my catarrhal deafness and in three days' time after I began to use the treatment, my hearing commenced to come back and I feel wonderfully improved. My age is 71 years."—D. H. C., Ashland, Ala.

Hears As Well As Any One

"I can hear just as good as any one. I have no noises in my head and no dropping in my throat. My hearing was very bad to start on. You can use this letter."—Mr. R. M. of Boulder, Colo.

Hearing Improved

"I was afflicted with the disease catarrh for ten years, had doctored with local doctors, but found no relief until I started your treatment. I had a discharge from my nose and head. Became quite deaf, but now I can hear, and my head has quit aching. I feel like a new woman. You can use this testimonial if you choose."—Mrs. C. B., Ansly, Ala.

Most Wonderful Treatment

"I received your treatment and began using it. I am here to tell you that it is the most wonderful treatment I have ever tried. I have had roaring in my head. I had the worst shortness of breath, cramps and aching in every inch of me. I feel so much better. I can see and hear better, can talk better and feel better all around."—Mrs. Ethel G., Lythia, Fla.

Now Hears Well

J. C. P. says: "I have suffered with nasal catarrh for seven or eight years, had terrible noises in my head. My hearing was seriously afflicted. It was necessary for people to speak very loud for me to hear them. I gave your treatment a trial and assure you I do not regret it, as my hearing has been restored so I can hear ordinary talk and the head noises are among the things of the past. I am 86 years old."

WOMEN LAZY SAYS OLD LADY

Mrs. John Staples, 91, Born Near Here, Comments on Times.

WELL AND STRONG.

The Toronto "Star" publishes the following account of local interest, as the aged lady referred to, now living in Toronto, was born near this city:

"Mother of twelve children and one of the last survivors of the pioneer days in Ontario is Mrs. John Staples, 54 Branston avenue.

Mrs. Staples, who is well preserved at 91 years of age, chatted and discussed the current topics of the day with The Star yesterday; expressing her disapproval of the clothes and general bearing of the young girls of today as quite shocking as compared to the more sober habits and sincere pursuits of theed and played but, judging from her vivid descriptions of these times, mostly worked. She wove and spun; baked and cooked; and even help.d was and shear sheep with her own hands. Also, she modestly admitted, she was fairly handy with a gun.

Mrs. Staples raised a family of twelve; seven boys and five girls, seven of whom are still living. Her husband predeceased her by forty years and although her years are few below the hundred mark, she still travels about, dividing her time between her daughter, Mrs. Wailing, where she is at present staying, and the old haunts of tender reminiscences of by-gone glories around Peterboro and Apsley."

young ladies of her day.

"There are no big families nowadays", she said. "The women today are too lazy to raise them."

Although nearly a centenarian, Mrs. Staples does needlework of surprising skill and beauty. Three silk patch work quilts composed of a variegation of cleverly blended coloring were admired by her visitors and the mysteries of their composition explained by the charming hostess.

Born 91 years ago in Smithtown, near Peterboro, Ont., of parents who were among the first hardy settlers of that part of the province, Mrs. Staples was brought up in the atmosphere of romance and hard work that was the primary association of those days. When twenty years old she married and followed her husband north to still more sequestered lands in the vicinity of Apsley, where even to this day the last vestiges of pioneer modes of life have not been driven out by the onward sweep of modern times.

Here, to the glamor of primeval sweeps of rustling maples and the frowning imperturbality of the silent rocks, Mrs. Staples lived, work-

REGULAR SESSION OF CAVAN COUNCIL

All Members Present at Meeting Held in Millbrook.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 26.—Cavan Council met in regular session last Wednesday at 1.30 o'clock, the members all present, the Reeve in the chair.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and on motion of Dep.-Reeve Hooton and Councillor Hunter were adopted. Communications read were:

From the Department of Public Highways acknowledging the receipt of the forms completed, showing the work and expenditure carried out on the township roads in 1926.

From the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Port Hope, giving statement of the receipts and expenditures of the school fairs in 1926.

From the Ontario Goods Roads Association stating that the annual convention would be held on Feb. 23-24-25.

A deputation composed of Messrs H. Tate, G. L. Fair and L. W. Smith waited on the Council asking for a grant for the Winter Horse Show.

Hooton-McKnight: That the usual grant of $30 be given to the Horse Show. Carried.

Hooton-Finney: That the Road Superintendent be sent to the annual conference of the County and Township Road Superintendents. Carried.

The auditors' report was read and on motion of Deputy Reeve Hooton and Councillor Hunter was received and the Clerk instructed to get 100 copies printed.

Deputy Reeve Hooton introduced a by-law to provide for expenditure on roads in the township in the year 1927.

Hunter-Finney: That the by-law be read a first time. Carried.

Finney-McKnight: That the by-law be read a second time and that the Council go in to a committee of the whole for the consideration of the same. Carried.

The Reeve reported the by-law read a second time with the blanks filled in.

WILL INVESTIGATE SISTER'S MURDER

Dispute Arose in Chinese Restaurant Over Payment of Bill.

SYDNEY, N.S., Feb. 26 (Canadian Press).—Gordon McNeil of Iona, N.S., a former officer of the 25th Battalion, has gone to Detroit, Mich., to interview the authorities concerning the death of his sister, Mrs. Regis Kelley, 33, who was murdered by a Chinaman in that city a few days ago.

According to information furnished relatives here, Mrs. Kelley, with her sister-in-law, Miss Katherine Kelley, were lunching in a restaurant, and on the way out a dispute arose over the bill, whereupon the Chinaman at the cash register drew a pistol, shot and killed Mrs. Kelley, tried to shoot her companion, and turned the gun upon himself as the police arrived.

The murdered girl is a native of Iona, a daughter of the late Captain J. P. McNeil of the 94th Battalion. Her stepmother and numerous relatives reside at Iona and in neighboring districts. She leaves a husband and one young daughter.

ACROSS many a chess-board, old friendships have been strengthened—new friendships formed—with the aid of mellow OLD CHUM.

There is no contentment more soothing than the contentment of a good pipe; and smokers know that the words OLD CHUM mean just that. They know that OLD CHUM is a classic in tobacco—a satisfying, understanding and sympathetic companion.

After smoking OLD CHUM for years and years, many men there are who say that Canada's most popular pipe tobacco still holds all records for smiles to the mile.

And the thousands of OLD CHUM admirers save the "Poker Hands" now packed in every package and tin and exchange them for valuable presents.

If you smoke OLD CHUM, you know all this. If you do not smoke OLD CHUM, you have yet to know the joys of genuine smoking contentment.

Twelve Years OF DEPENDABILITY

It was Dodge Brothers distinction, twelve years ago, to create a more dependable car in its price class than previously had been known.

This enviable leadership Dodge Brothers have rigidly maintained.

Wherever difficult conditions try the souls of men and the stamina of motor cars, you will find Dodge Brothers product foremost in favor.

You will find also that six, eight and even ten years of service are not exceptional for the car; that frequently it delivers mileage running well into six figures; and that maintenance cost is remarkably low throughout its long and useful life.

These facts powerfully witness Dodge Brothers success in constantly bettering a product that was exceptional even at the start.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action, it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SAINT and SINNER

By ANNE AUSTIN

Those last words of Coroner Murchison's report reverberated in the utterly still room, echoed and re-echoed in Faith's overcharged heart. "—at the hands of person or persons unknown." Unknown! Unknown!

"Bob!" Faith cried the one word in a strangling voice which seemed roaringly loud in her own ears but which was little more than a whisper.

Bob put his arm about her and helped her to rise. Cherry broke from the circle of Chris' arm, and darted toward her sister, her eyes glowing, her cheeks suddenly warm with color.

"I knew they'd believe me!" she gasped, as she flung herself upon her sister, her little hands moving like fluttering white moths over Faith's tear-wet face.

The room was suddenly in seething confusion, breaking up gradually into small groups. Reporters fought to be the first to reach Cherry; flashlights exploded, cameras clicked to record Cherry laughing and crying hysterically in her sister's arms.

Bob Hathaway, standing beside Faith, tried to warn Cherry in a low voice that the coroner's report meant almost nothing, that he had expected the verdict, that the district attorney could not, duty bound as he was to investigate thoroughly the muderer of Ralph Cluny, ignore the damning evidence against Cherry which had that day been presented to the coroner's jury.

"Let's get away, Faith. I'm dying to see Muggy. Do you think she'll be very angry with me about Chris? Shall I take him along?"

"I don't think Chris had better go——" Faith began deprecatingly, when she was interrupted by a broad-shouldered man, shoving his way ruthlessly through reporters, cameramen and curious spectators of the joyous reunion of the sisters.

"Excuse me, Mrs. Wiley, I'm Devlin, deputy district attorney. I have a warrant for your arrest——"

"My arrest!" Cherry tore herself from Faith's arms. "Why—why—the coroner said, 'person or persons unknown'! Didn't he, Faith, didn't he, Bob? You can't arrest me! I didn't do anything! Faith!" Even in that moment of stark terror she did not call upon her husband who stood less than three feet away.

"I'm sorry, Mrs. Wiley—orders from the district attorney. He ordered the warrant to be issued an hour ago. I'll have to take you with me, I'm afraid."

"I won't stand for having my wife tortured like this——" began Chris, angrily.

"Afraid you can't do much about it, Mr. Wiley," the man, Devlin, said, bluntly, anger flushing his heavy cheeks. "I got another warrant here for your arrest, as a material witness. My orders are to bring both of you into police headquarters. So come along without making a fuss about it, both of you."

"What—are you going—to do—with me?" Cherry's stiff, colorless lips formed the words with painful slowness.

"The district attorney will have to tell you that."

"Makes me so mad," Mrs. Lane sat up in her hospital bed and glared at the nurse who was arranging the flowers Faith had brought. "won't let me see a newspaper. Faith treating me like I was a baby. Reckon I ain't as sick as all that, and if they don't let me see what the papers said about Cherry's wedding, I'm going to walk right out of this jail they call a hospital and buy a paper for myself."

"Dr. Atkins has forbidden us to show you the papers, Mother," Faith explained patiently for the third or fourth time. "The papers are full of—of the injustice to Mr. Cluny and—and all like that. Dr. Atkins has positively forbidden you to read what they say, because it will make you angry, and cause your heart to misbehave. Look, Mother, aren't the flowers lovely? Bob bought them for you."

Mrs. Lane lay back on her pillows, closing her eyes upon the vase of roses which Faith was offering with trembling hands. "I want to see Cherry," she moaned. "You tell her that her Muggy ain't mad at her—you tell her when you write, you hear me, Faith? Tell her to come home."

"I'll tell her, Muggy—when I write," Faith promised, her voice husky with tears she did not dare shed.

"What you and Bob looking so glum about?" Mrs. Lane demanded, suddenly opening her eyes wide at them. "You'd think, to look at you two, that somebody'd died. You ain't keeping nothing from me, are you?" Suspicion sharpened her voice. "Cherry's married to Chris Wiley, all right, ain't she? They ain't saying she run off with him without marrying him?"

"No, mother. They were married near Minturn last night—in Marlboro county, you know. Chris had been carrying a license about with him for three or four months."

"He overpersuaded her, that's what he done," Mrs. Lane sighed. "But I ain't mad at her. Reckon she was right not to want to marry a dried-up old man like Ralph Cluny."

"Now, Mrs. Lane," the soft-spoken professionally cheerful young nurse rustled to the bedside, "time for visitors to leave, my dear."

Faith and Bob rose, immensely grateful. Jim Lane, his body more bowed and broken than ever, shuffled with them to the door, after all three of them had kissed Mrs. Lane good-bye, with falsely cheerful predictions about her speedy recovery.

Three blocks from the hospital—newsboys were barred from the hospital zone—extras were being carried by excited small boys, darting in and out of traffic with the agility of monkeys.

"Extry! Extry! Read all about the big murder Flapper bride in jail!"

"I can't stand it, Bob," Faith moaned, as the car jerked forward again. Dad, Bob, you've got to do something. Cherry's in jail! In jail! Don't you know it will kill her?"

"Reckon there ain't nothing we can do," Jim Lane said heavily, but put his arm with awkward tenderness about his daughter's shoulders. "Bob's hired that Stephen Churchill, said to be one of the smartest lawyers in the state——"

"Can't he get her out, Bob?"

"I'm afraid not, darling," Bob confessed. "Not when it's a charge—of murder. They'll hold her for the grand jury. The state doesn't permit bail in murder cases, honey. All we can hope for now is that the grand jury will refuse to indict, on the grounds of insufficient evidence."

HOROSCOPE

The Stars Incline, but do not Compel.

(Copyright, 1927, McClure Syndicate.)

SUNDAY, FEBRUARY 27, 1927.

Astrologers read this as a day ruled by kindly stars, an ideal time for rest and religious observances.

There is a sign read as most favorable to the aged, making for serenity of mind and ease of body.

The clergy should benefit from this planetary government which foreshadows many really great philanthropic enterprises.

Many persons are to return to the churches, and there may be a great wave of spiritual consciousness, accompanied unfortunately by a revival of sectarian prejudices and intense fanaticism.

This should be an auspicious rule under which to seek counsel and to ask advice of persons who hold power of any sort.

The rule encourages wise planning of future business enterprises and should be stimulating and encouraging.

There is a most favorable direction of the stars today to all who seek public favor. Lawyers and educators as well as ministers of the gospel should benefit.

While selfishness will continue to increase and egotism to become even more common than it has been, this day's planetary sway seems to presage less offensive methods of manifesting personality then have been common recently.

A London astrologer declares that in California and especially in Los Angeles, Washington and Nevada demonstrations from the people will take place in the course of protest against the reign of crime.

Political activity looking toward the next national campaign will become far-reaching at this time, it is foretold.

Persons whose birthdate it is should have a year that is lucky in many ways. They should pay attention to health.

Children born on this day probably will be precise, orderly and always trustworthy. These subjects of Pisces make successful bankers or corporation lawyers. Girls will become good housekeepers.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1927.

Good and evil planetary influences contend today, according to astrology. The afternoon hours are held more favorable than those of the morning.

This is read as a lucky day to start out on a journey and it should be especially favorable to travel in the air.

Again the stars presage inventions of the most amazing sort and the seers declare that they will change life as much as the telephone and radio have altered past customs.

In the realm of science there are to be many discoveries in what has been called the occult world. Many mysteries are to be unveiled.

This is held to be a most favorable sway for all psychic investigation and for philosophical studies.

Education makes immense progress this year, it is said, and in the universities today are many super men and super women, it is declared.

Bankers and financiers of the United States are approaching a time when their dictum will be of international concern more serious than in previous times, astrologers prophesy.

This date should be an auspicious one for making investments, or for dealing with brokers.

All the occultists insist that many great fortunes will be made in America before the end of this year.

Europe is to patronize our manufacturers, if the stars are rightly read, and there will be many rush orders that may precipitate legislative discussion.

From this date on world events are to move with terrible inexorableness, and this country is to prosper while others turn to it for aid.

Persons whose birthdate it is should exercise tact and diplomacy in their affairs all through the coming year.

Children born on this day may struggle in their early years and reap tremendous rewards later. All should have unusual personalities.

Became So Weak Could Hardly Stand

Mrs. Wm. Palmer, Tomahawk, Alta., writes:—"Last spring I had a long spell of sickness and became so weak I could hardly stand. I could not sleep at night as the least little noise would wake me up. I tried blood tonics and other nerve pills, but they did me no good, and I was getting worse.

I wrote my mother about my condition, and she sent me three boxes of

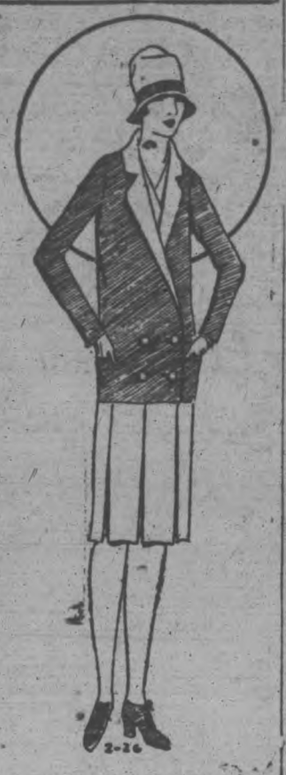
DRESS

By MARY MARSHALL



A pastel blue tailored jacket is here worn with a white flannel skirt, white silk overblouse and blue suede oxfords. The white felt hat is banded with blue ribbon.

For the first time in several seasons sports frocks and wraps have a distinct rival for the favor of well-dressed women. This appears in the guise of the new frocks and jackets of a tailored sort. At the Riviera this winter these tailored things—suits, coats, separate jackets and coat frocks—were distinctly popular and seemed to be gaining headway against the jumper frocks and wraps of a less formal nature. Among the most fashionable women at our own winter resorts there is to be found the same tendency in favor of the new tailored mode.

The hip-length tailored jacket could certainly not be considered an actual novelty, but it is several years since it has played an important role in smart fashions. Now it is wooing its way rapidly back into fashion and practically every dressmaker of note shows it in some way or other. Often it is part of a two-piece ensemble consisting of a simple one-piece frock made with straight line pleated or panneled skirt and a short jacket of contrasting color. Again there is a jacket, skirt and overblouse of some sort, but usually the jacket is made in contrast to the skirt. If the material is the same then the color differs, or if the color is the same then the material is different. A jumper frock of gray kasha had a short boyish coat of dark blue suede. The coat was lined with the gray kasha and had cuff links of gray pearl. A yellow kasha frock, stitched with black, with pleated skirt, has a little jacket of black duvetyn lined with yellow kasha. The hat worn with this frock is of yellow felt banded with black. A white serge skirt and white silk overblouse has a red velvet jacket and is worn with an all-red felt hat. A black silk frock with bandings of blue silk crepe has a jacket of blue. A navy reps jacket with silver link buttons is worn over a plaid taffeta frock with a deep hem.

It is quite possible to get a good-looking separate tailored jacket. Those of black or soft-colored velvet have been in demand for resort wear this winter. But when this is done, care should be taken to linkat up in some definite way with the costume, repeating the color of the jacket in the frock by means of colored stitching or other trimming, and, when possible, with a simple little felt hat to match. It is a distinct mistake to regard these little separate tailored jackets as useful little wraps to be slipped on when needed overy any frock, with any sort of hat.

CIRCLE OBSERVES 26TH ANNIVERSARY

Banquet Held By Queen Alexandra Branch of A. O. F.

A very pleasant social evening was held on Thursday last in the Knights of Pythias Hall, under the auspices of the Queen Alexandra Circle No. 136, when the celebration of their 26th anniversary took the form of a banquet. About seventy were present including many members who motored from Port Hope for the occasion. After a delightful repast had been partaken of by all, the following toast list was rendered under the leadership of Companion Mrs. Stevens. The King. Our City, proposed by Brother Hendry and responded to by Joseph Wearing. Our Guests, proposed by Mrs. Barnes and responded to by Companion Mrs. Staples of Port Hope. Charter Members, proposed by Miss Jean Thorne and responded to by Brothers Record and Hamilton. Court Stanley by Companion Bugg to which Bro. Ray responded. Court White Lily, by Brothers Fred Ward and Mason. Sunbeams by Miss Annie Shaw and Companion Mrs. Terrace. Our Circle, by Companion Mrs. Simmons and Chief Companion Miss Eliza Martin.

The absent members were very kindly mentioned. Companin Mrs. Adlam, a very faithful member, being unable to attend through ill-health and Companion Mrs. Head, who is one of the charter members, being out of the city.

The success of the eevning was due to the able management of the committee under the supervision of Companion Simmons.

At the conclusion of the banquet the evening was spent in dancing the music for the occasion being provided by Roque Gordon and and "His Entertainers."

Companion Mrs. Stevens made a very able chairwoman.

ORDER OF THE EASTERN STAR PERSONALLY CONDUCTED TOUR

A personally conducted tour from Montreal and Toronto to the Pacific Coast, to be operated next July and August for the members of the Order of the Eastern Star in the Provinces of Ontario and Quebec, together with their families and friends has been announced by the Worthy Grand Matrons of the Order in these two Provinces.

The tour will leave Montreal Wednesday, July 20th, and Toronto, Thursday July 21st, via Canadian National Railways, returning to both cities on Friday, August 12th. Stop-overs will be made at principal cities and points of interest in Western Canada, including Minaki (Lake of the Woods), Winnipeg, Little Lake Manitou at Watrous (a wonderful mineral lake), Saskatoon, Wainwright Buffalo Park, Edmonton, Jasper National Park, Prince Rupert, Vancouver and Victoria. The return journey will be via Canadian National Railways, through Calgary and Winnipeg to Port Arthur, with side trip via Canadian Pacific Railway from Calgary to Banff and Lake Louise, concluding the tour with the wonderful sail from Port Arthur to Sarnia through the Great Lakes, thence back to Toronto and Montreal.

Among the many outstanding features of this trip, the visit to Jasper National Park, Banff, and Lake Louise in the Canadian Rockies, together with the two steamer trips—the one from Prince Rupert to Vancouver through the calm and sheltered waters of the inside passage of the North Pacific Coast, the famous "Norway of America"; the other through the Great Lakes, will remain long in the memory of those fortunate enough to be members of the party. Sight-seeing drives will be arranged at all stop-over points.

The party will travel by special train, with the finest of equipment consisting of standard sleeping cars, compartment - observation - library-buffet car, and dining car, and will be under the leadership of representative members of the Order. This tour has been organized because it is felt but fitting that every possible opportunity should be provided by the members of the Order to become better acquainted with our wonderful country, its wealth of scenic beauty and natural resources, and no better occasion for such a tour could be desired than this year when the Dominion of Canada celebrates her Diamond Jubilee. The friendships and acquaintances formed in all parts of the Dominion on such a trip cannot fail to assist in forming a better mutual understanding between citizens spread so far apart and must eventually work to a better and more united Canada, which is the desire of every one of us.

The advantages of travelling with a tour such as this are manifest. All details as to time-tables, schedules, reservations, hotel accommodations, what to see and what to do are arranged for you, and the cost is also fixed. The total cost of the trip from Toronto for one passenger in a lower berth will be $320.00, with proportionate charges from other points and for other kinds of sleeping car accommodation. Descriptive booklet of the trip is now in course of preparation and will be available for distribution.

FIRE DESTROYS COUNTRY CLUB

Damage Of $100,000 To Plant of Fashionable Windsor Club.

STAFF DRIVEN OUT.

WINDSOR, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press)—The $100,000 building and plant of the fashionable Beach Grove Country Club at St. Clair beach was totally destroyed by fire this morning. Driven by a forty mile gale off the lake, the flames wiped out the building in less than an hour, frustrating all attempts at salvage. The permanent staff of the club, numbering twelve persons, were driven from their quarters by flames without time to save clothing and effects. Insurance of $60,000 on building and contents was carried by the club.

NICARAGUAN SAYS SHIP UNNECESSARY

Hardly a Dozen British Subjects on Coast, He Explains.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press)—Dr. T. S. Vaca, Nicaraguan Liberal faction representative here, last night described the dispatch of the British cruiser Colombo to Corinto as "quite a departure" from the Monroe doctrine and said it was unnecessary since "there are hardy a dozen English subjects on the Nicaraguan West Coast."

CANUCKS PRESENT MYSTERY DRAMA

Well Acted Play Given in Sacred Heart Church Hall.

A very interesting four-act mystery drama, entitled "Brennan on the Moor," was presented in the large basement hall of the Sacred Heart Church on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week, by the Canucks' Club of the parish, who excelled themselves in their production of the entertaining play. The boys taking part gave a splendid account of themselves and were accorded hearty appreciation by an enthusiastic audience. Joseph Collins, in particular, outdid himself in his portrayal of a difficult dual role, filled to perfection. The following was the cast:

Sherry Kilcoddy (played by Joseph Collins), Brian Healey (Jack Hallihan), Brennan on the Moor (John Cairns), Daniel O'Farrell (Joseph O'Connell), Michael O'Farrell (Roy Bacon), Gerald O'Farrell (Albert Guerin), Thomas O'Hanlon (Jerry Collins), Darby O'Flynn (Ted Drumm), Lord Lount (Gerald Murray), and Father Murphy (Herbert Masterson).

The boys were assisted by the pupils of the Sacred Heart School, presenting several small and entertaining playlets. "The Stupid Maid" was enacted by Yvette Delorme, Annie McGarety, Kathleen Jones, and Pauline Gilbert; and in "Lulu's Picture," the following took part: Madeline Curtin, R. J. Hallihan, and Marguerite Noble.

There was also a chorus that included Marjorie Hallihan, Agnes Masterson, Marguerite Noble, Marguerite Coursey, Mary Ryan, Kathleen Jones, and Florida Bishop, a dance by Grace Allen and Madeline Curtin, a violin solo by Clarence Collins, recitations by Alma Goselin, Katherine Ryder, and Yvette Delorme, songs by Margaret McCarthy and Mildred Anglesey, a novelty solo on the "sobbing kazoo" by James Moloney, and orchestral selections by Roque Gordon's Famous Entertainers. Accompanists for the evening were Harold Armstrong and Ann Moloney.

At the conclusion of the programme last evening, the performers were entertained by their mothers at an enjoyable supper.

TUESDAY IS THE DAY

First Chance to Get New Dictionary Offered to Readers.

As announced in yesterday's issue, the publishers have abandoned their old printing plates, and now have ready for distribution an entirely new dictionary with enlarged vocabulary.

This new volume will be offered only to readers of daily newspapers throughout the country, previous campaigns of this nature having proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that the daily press is by far the best medium for such an offer.

The dictionary coupon is printed elsewhere in this issue. It sets forth the details of this great educational offer, and it is hoped that all readers will see the advantage of discarding their old dictionaries and coming into immediate possession of this new and useful volume.

INSURANCE LAW IS EXPLAINED

Joseph Wearing Tells Prudential Agents About Regulations.

Joseph Wearing, city solicitor, delivered an interesting talk on the various laws pertaining to insurance policies at a staff meeting of the Prudential Insurance Company held in the company's office this morning. John I. Allen, district superintendent of the company, presided at the gathering and introduced the speaker to the meeting.

Insurance, declared Mr. Wearing, is a comparatively modern growth. It is one of the most wonderful developments of modern times, and being a modern growth is taken care of by statutes.

Insurance, he said, belongs to the great body of contract law. The Dominion has certain powers, as has each Province.

In the first place, declared Mr. Wearing, "I can't cover the whole field; it is quite possible I may make some error. However, I will endeavor to indicate in a sketchy way what you as insurance men ought to know."

The first thing to remember, he said, was except wherever the statutes make slight interference insurance is cared for by the ordinary contract laws. It has been ruled that these laws are to be construed liberally in favor of the beneficiary. One of the conditions invariably inserted in policies is that, unless there is an agreement to the contrary, the person is not insured and the company is not bound until the medical examination has been made, the premium paid, and the policy delivered. Sometimes there is provision made that the person is insured the moment the medical examination has been made, provided the premium has been paid.

With regard to the payment of premium, he said, the very essence of the contract was that the premium be paid promptly. Without this no insurance company could stay in business any length of time. In former times, so strict was the rule, that even if the premium was one day over, the company was not liable. This was a hardship so the law stepped in and gave policy holders thirty days after the due date in which to make their payments. This, however, does not apply to the first payment. If the note or cheque is not paid upon presentation the policy is automatically dead 31 days after the time it was due.

Payment on a policy is made, he said, when the amount is handed into an office of the company, or paid to an agent who has the right to receive it, or when a certified cheque or post office order is mailed by registered mail to the office on or before the thirtieth day.

The statues say that no man can be an insurance agent unless he is licensed. This is a great protection, he said. One important thing to remember, he said, "is that you can only do what you are authorized by your company, consequently you ought to have a complete knowledge of your policies—you can't alter, waive, change, or interfere with the regulations contained in policie as they are set out."

Speaking of beneficiaries, he said, the beneficiary under a policy is in peculiar relationship with a company. There is a contract there, but it is more in the nature of a trustee. There are two classes of beneficiaries, he said, one of which was the preferred. These included the husband, wife, children, mother, and grandchildren. Step-children, step-mother, or adopted children did not come under this class. The law rules that no change can be made in the name of a preferred beneficiary without consent except the change be from one preferred beneficiary to another.

Ordinary beneficiaries included everyone else and they could be cut out at any time. There were also beneficiaries for value and the thing to remember concerning this class is "You can't make a beneficiary for value unless it is stated right in the policy."

Once named, he cannot be let out, as even by will it is only possible in the preferred class to change from one preferred beneficiary to another.

The speaker spent some time in describing the contestibility of policies, explaining the different grounds on which they could be contested.

Succession duties, he said, were payable on insurance money just like any other money. When probate was applied for the amount of insurance money must be shown. In the case of preferred beneficiaries there are no sucession duties until the estate including insurance has passed $25,000. In all other cases the succession duties are payable on estates of $5,000 and upwards.

R. F. Sedgwick, assistant superintendent, conveyed the thanks of the staff to Mr. Wearing.

RHEUMATIC VICTIMS

Can Find Relief Through Building Up the Blood.

Pain is the symptom of rheumatism that every victim resocgnizes, and he generally attributes the trouble to cold, damp or changeable weather. But doctors know that thin blood is a marked characteristic of the trouble. Trying to cure rheumatism while the blood remains thin and poor, is an impossible task because there is nothing to build on. A tonic like Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that enriches the blood and frees it from poisonous impurities soon banishes rheumatism from the system. So long as the blood is maintained in a healthy condition the trouble will not return. This is not theory. It has been proved in hundreds of cases; here is one:—Mr. J. W. Rose, R.R. 2, Albany, P.E.I., says:—"For some years I was a great sufferer from rheumatism and although I tried a great many remedies, I did not get any permanent relief until after I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The trouble was located mostly in my shoulders, and at times was so bad that my right arm was almost useless. Of course I suffered much pain and great inconvenience. My attention was directed to Dr. William' Pink Pills through an advertisement in our newspaper, and I decided to try them. I took the pills according to direction with the result that the rheumatism has left me, and I have never had a twinge of it since. If this meets the eye of any rheumatic sufferer my advice is to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

INDIGESTION

Gas on Stomach Caused Severe Pains

Mrs. C. P. Wheeler, R.R. No. 1, Glen Ewen, Sask., writes:—"For years my eldest son suffered from severe pains and agony from imperfect digestion. He dieted and used artificial digestants, but all to no avail. At last I got him a bottle of and he had not taken the whole bottle before he was greatly relieved. The severe stomach attacks ceased, there was no more gas on the stomach, and he could eat anything he wished."

BURDOCK BLOOD BITTERS

Premier Takes Chances On Having Writer's Cramp

TORONTO, Feb. 26—Premier Ferguson must have suffered from writer's cramp after the father-and-son banquet at St. Barnabas's Church last evening. In signing his name at least 100 times in autograph albums, birthday books and on banquet programmes he emptied three fountain pens and wore down two lead pencils.

It all started by one bright-eyed lad in Scout uniform coming forward with his autograph album and requesting the Premier's signature. John H. G. Lindsay, toastmaster, followed up with an appeal for an entry in his birthday book, and for the next half-hour there was a constant stream of boys lining up around Premier Ferguson to get his signature. Not once did the Premier reveal the slightest trace of impatience. Instead, he said he rather enjoyed his new and happy innovation. Every boy who advanced to the Premier's place at the head table went away very happy.

THE MINISTER'S BRIDE.

Members of the choir of St. James' United Church excelled themselves last evening in their presentation in Mark Street Church of a four act comedy entitled "The Minister's Bride," presented under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society of Mark Street Church. The building was packed for the occasion, and the clever acting of the cast, combined with the comic nature of the dialogue and atmosphere of the entertaining play, brought the performers much enthusiastic applause.

"The Minister's Bride" deals with the efforts of a number of ladies in a small village to greet their pastor and his bride with proper ceremonial. The first act shows a deputation from the congregation, arranging the parlor of the parsonage for the home-coming of the newly-married minister and his wife, the ladies engaging in critical or charitable comment, according to their various temperaments, and arranging the interior in tasteful fashion, collecting a number of odds and ends for the event, and draping the portraits of deceased ministers with funereal black crepe.

In the second act, a reception is held, and in the third, the minister extends a helping hand to several of the black sheep of the congregation. The last act, after the bride has arranged the furnishings to suit herself, shows a party with an impromptu concert, at the parsonage, the ladies and the escorts again outdoing themselves in their efforts to shine, and presenting the newly-weds with a gift in the form of a pickle cruet.

The honors of the piece are evenly distributed amongst an excellent cast, but Mrs. Elmer Frost, as a "giggling" lady, was the hit of the evening. Miss May Ritchie takes the part of the bride very cleverly, and Henry Turner is the bridegroom. The attractive setting, in an old-fashioned interior, with the performers in old-time costumes, makes "The Minister's Bride" a very entertaining affair from beginning to end.

The cast is as follows: Rev. John West (Henry Turner); the bride (Miss May Ritchie); Joe Crabbe (J. Monks); Mrs. Crabbe (Miss Jean Hamilton); Mrs. Betterdays (Mrs. McKinstry); Mrs. Sharpe (Miss Verna Fell); Mrs. Charity (Mrs. H. Turner); Mrs. Seegood (Miss M. Collins); Amos Right (George Cuffe); Miss Molly Charity (Mrs. E. Kitney); Jim Curtis (J. Worrall); Miranda Meeks (Mrs. E. Frost); Miss Jones (Miss Eileen Rose); Robert Spence (Allan Stephens); Ephraim Snelgrove (Gerald Cuffe).

Mr. A. Pitchford acted as director of "The Minister's Bride," which will be given again in St. James' Church on next Thursday evening.

At the conclusion of the performance last night, the cast was entertained at lunch in the parsonage, by the Ladies' Aid Society.

TRUNKS DWINDLING, TOO.

CHICAGO, Feb. 26. — The National Luggage Dealers' Convention here displayed an array of trunks and bags that looked like toys. "Women don't wear anything nowadays, and we can't sell the old line," they said. "Formerly women's clothes took up considerable space; now they are a matter of a few ounces."

Take One Home To-Morrow—Money Back If Not Satisfied

A DICTIONARY ABSOLUTELY NEW

DID YOU EVER WRITE A WANT AD?

You have heard, of course, of the newly married couple and the telegram. She wrote to her hubby, a commercial traveller, telling him of a chance to get fruit cheap for canning. He dashed off this telegram: "Take flyer home to-day honey love." She, judging by the hysterical note of the yellow form, leaped on the fast train and went to her home, expecting to find her people dead or dying. What he meant was "Take a chance in fruit when it's cheap. I will be home to-day, honey. With love."

And, do you know, the choice of words is just as important in a classified ad. as in a telegram. It is great fun to take some article you have no need of and try to put particulars of it into as few words as you can, still describing it clearly and attractively. Try it.

EMPLOYMENT

There are, of course, some points that should be specifically covered in special ads. For instance, if you seek employment or an employee, what occupation, and if it is a domestic position, how many in family?
What wages and hours?
What experience?
What are the opportunities?

FOR SALE

If you have an article for sale, tell:
What is for sale?
What is condition?
State size, color.
Give maker's name (as of piano).
Has it any special use?
Give price and terms.

RENTALS

When advertising houses or apartments for rent tell:
Where is it?
Give name (of apartments).
How many rooms?
How about closet room?
Upper or lower (flat)?
How about neighborhood, schools, shops, cars?
Is there a garage?
Does rent include water, gas?
How about sun? Heat? Use of phone?

BUSINESS FOR SALE

If you have a business for sale, explain:
Kind of business?
Give location and its good points.
How long established?
What is income?
What is rent?
How long is lease?
What is stock value?
Are there living-rooms?
Give price and terms.

REAL ESTATE

In advertising real estate for sale:
Where is the property?
How many rooms?
How large is lot?
How many acres?
Is it under crops? What kind?
What about water, stock, improvements?
How near railroad?
Is it bungalow, house or cottage?
Has it a high basement?
Has it garage or drive?
Is it near cars, trains, schools, churches?
What of the view? The neighbors?
Mention built-in features, sleeping porch, furnace, finish.
Give price and terms.

AUTOMOBILES

If you desire to sell your car, cover the following points:
Make and year?
Model?
Roadster?
Coupe?
Touring?
Chummy Roadster?
Mileage?
Extra equipment?
Tires?
Mirrors?
Safety lock?
Side windshields?
Motometer?
Clock?
Wire wheels?
Cash or terms?

LIVESTOCK

Your livestock ad should tell:
What animals or fowls?
What is the breed, age, color, condition, training?
Give price.

HOUSES FOR SALE

If you have a house to sell, your inquiries will be more satisfactory if you cover most of the following points in your description:
1.—Street No., avenue No., section.
2.—Size.
3.—Kind of floors.
4.—Exterior construction.
5.—Architecture.
6.—Exposure.
7.—Heating.
8.—Lighting.
9.—Finish and decoration.
10.—Plumbing.
11.—Basement.
12.—Roof.
13.—Extras included.
14.—Grounds.
15.—Garage.
16.—Other buildings.
17.—Advantages of location.
18.—Transportation facilities.
19.—Reasons for being on market.
20.—Sale price.
21.—Assessed value.
22.—Prices at which nearby properties sold.
23.—Rising values.
24.—Terms of sales.
25.—Date of possession.
26.—How and when to inspect property.
27.—Advertiser.
28.—Address.
29.—Telephone.

YOU wouldn't feel inclined to answer the following ad, would you? "Bungalow, $8,500. Brown, George street."

ALMOST HUNDRED THOUSAND NEEDED TO PAY CITY OFFICIALS

Services of 68 Men and 7 Women Utilized By City.

VARIED DUTIES.

Fire and Police Departments Employ Largest Staffs.

If the average citizen were asked to name the amount that is paid out annually to officials and employees of the city of Peterborough, he would probably hazard a guess far wide of the mark.

The cost to the city of officials and employees, including amounts paid for garbage collection and snow ploughing, is approximately $99,597 per annum.

The services of 68 men and 7 women are utilized in order that the affairs of the city may be kept running smoothly. Some of these men receive only small honorariums for their services rendered to various commissions which meet at intervals during the year and are thereto, included in the total list of officials.

Dr. W. T. Holloway, the mayor of the city, is termed Chief Magistrate. On his shoulders lies the responsibility of representing the citizens at important functions; presiding over meetings of the city council; and appeasing the wrath of any citizens who think they have cause for complaint.

S. R. Armstrong, as city clerk, is responsible for the efficient working of the administrative offices. He is what might be termed the "King Pin" of the system as practically all that pertains to Peterborough's welfare or growth passes through his hands at some stage. It is a well-known axiom in Peterborough that if one wants information regarding any of the activities of city bodies for any period of time, all one has to do is to walk into his office, and ask the question. Never yet has he been known to fail to supply the answer in reply to the query of some interested citizen.

C. E. Curtis, assistant city clerk, Miss Johnston, and Miss Hennessey, comprise the members of his staff.

Frank Adams, city treasurer, handles every cent that enters or emits from the city's coffers. His assistants are Miss Thompson and Miss Long.

W. J. Green, tax collector, fulfills a position that makes him known personally to almost every citizen in the city. He has one regular assistant, Miss Scott, but at rush periods, when taxes are due, his staff is supplemented to cope with the crowd.

W. J. Henry, city assessor, is responsible that every piece of property and all buildings are assessed at their proper valuation in order that the city may derive a fair amount in taxes. He is assisted in his work by A. Ringer and Miss Archambault.

All work pertaining to engineering in connection with the city is in the hands of R. H. Parsons, city engineer. He oversees the sewage disposal plant, and sees that all forms of construction comply with city by-laws. His office assistant is Miss Jackson.

H. Evans, street commissioner, attends to all complaints in connection with the streets. In the spring, particularly, is his task an arduous one. Once the snow begins to melt and water finds its way into cellars or floods portions of the sidewalk, his services are in constant demand. One problem he was confronted with last spring was when a lady called up and complained that her child had gone out to play, and had got its feet wet!

J. Thirnbeck, street foreman, is in charge of the workmen and overseeing their work.

Dr. T. W. H. Young, Medical Officer of Health, takes care of the general health of the citizens. He is responsible that quarantines are invoked when necessary in order that anything in the nature of an epidemic may be rendered as improbable as possible by proper care and sanitation.

C. Stapleton, sanitary inspector, assists the Medical Health Officer by conducting regular inspections in places that supply milk and other necessities to the populace.

A. Metheral occupies the positions of plumbing inspector and relief officer. His duties comprise looking after all plumbing installed and seeing that it complies with city by-laws. As relief officer he is responsible for seeing that any citizen who may be thrown into destitute circumstances shall be provided with the necessaries of life.

In order that the city may keep out of trouble and to ensure that all contracts relating to city activities are in order, the services of Joseph Wearing as city solicitor, are retained.

Sheriff F. J. A. Hall conducts an annual audit of the books of the city and compiles the annual report which informs all citizens of the cost in detail of operating the city.

A Court of Revision for the hearing of details against taxation is maintained. W. J. Johnston is secretary; James Finnie and W. F. Morrow are the members.

Business in connection with the police department is transacted by the Police Commissioners, of which His Honor Judge Huycke is chairman. Magistrate O. A. Langley, who although not appointed by the city, is paid by it, presides over all police courts. The police department is supervised by Chief of Police Samuel Newhall. The other members of the force are Inspector J. F. Reid, Sergeants J. Deannard, A. Thomas and F. Wigg; Detective Sergeant W. E. Meagher, Detective W. Carey, Constables J. Thompson, L. Matthews, J. Wheeler, G. Puffer, J. Naples and W. Piercy. Adjutant Amy Wood of the Salvation Army, is police matron.

The fire department comprises comprises Chief George Gimblett, Assistant Chief V. Carr, Captain W. Jones, Lieutenants R. Wilson and A. McBride; Electrician J. Astels; Engineer J. Master; Master Mechanic George Smith; and Firemen E. Degen, A. McDonald, George Crouter, T. Hatley, J. Weir, A. Rose, R. Carr, O. Wilson, A. Mason, H. Cooney, J. MacFarlane, J. Finnie and D. Miller.

The garbage collection is in charge of Messrs. Anglesey and Withers.

Those responsible for the snow-ploughing are W. J. Stinson, George Meharry, R. Manley, W. J. Collins, H. Moncrief and R. Mitchell.

At the incinerator, where the city's garbage is disposed of, are two employees, J. Murphy and L. Brown. The steadiness of their job can be appreciated when it is realized that from one year's end to the other, no matter how high the temperature may get, their fires are never allowed to go out. The fires are kept going with the garbage received at the dump.

The sewage disposal plant operated by the city employs three men: J. Crowe, J. Gates and T. Nolan.

THE MARKETS

Wheat Prices Go Up When Relief Bill Fails

CHICAGO, Feb. 26. — Canadian Press. — Despite liberal selling to realize profits wheat averaged higher to-day in the early transactions.

Wheat strength was attributed to buying based on the McNary-Haugh-en veto and on an official announcemetn of a change in the government rules about the raporting of trades. Opening unchanged to 1-2 to 5-8c higher; wheat reacted somewhat and then hardened again. Corn was easier, oats steady, and provisions firm with corn standing unchanged to 3-8 up and then showing declines.

Few Changes In Price In Standard Mine Market

TORONTO, Feb. 26.— (Canadian Press.) — Changes in price were negligible on the Standard Mining Exchange this morning, but there was a definite upward tendency and very few recessionary issues were in the list. Amulet advanced three at 134 and its companion, Area, firmed a half at 38. Argonaut, Chaput-Hughes, Consolidated West Dome Lake, and Grover Daly all advanced about half a point. Laval-Quebec advanced 3-4 of a point at 39 3-4. Duprat advanced 1 1-4 at 18 1-2. Teck Hughes firmed four at 674 and Nipissing was seven higher at 962. Barry Holinger in heavy trading was sold down 4 1-4 points at 48 1-4.

Upward Trend Maintained In Spite Of Profit-Taking

NEW YORK, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press).—Although called upon to absorb rather a large volume of profit taking and short selling, to-day's stock market gave a good account of itself, maintaining the upward trend which has been predominant for the last month or more. More than a dozen issues attained record high prices, the list including Wabash Common, Frisco Common, and Dupont. General Asphalt issues with gains of about five points each, led the upward movement in the oil group, which appears to be discounting increased dividend disbursements and reports of record breaking earnings. United States Steel Common held fairly steady, despite the further weakness of some commodity prices. Active buying of General Motors was supported by a brisk demand for Mack Trucks. Rubbers were under heavy accumulation on the prospect of increased earnings this year, United States rubber and Ajax being prominent in the advance. Sugars moved upward under the leadership of South Porto Rican. The closing was strong. Total sales approximated 1,100,000 shares.

Massey-Harris Features Exchange With Big Gain

TORONTO, Feb. 26 (Canadian Press)—Massey-Harris' sensational rise of more than ten points was the outstanding feature of to-day's session of the Toronto Stock Exchange. The announcement of an impending sub-division of the stock, four for one share, created a demand which resulted in a turnover of practically five thousand shares in the brief closing session. The high mark of 110 was maintained at the close and was 10 1-8 points higher than yesterday's close.

The rest of the list was quietly firm, allowing for City Diary's remarkable advance of six and a half points at 104. Canners Common gained two at 34 1-2 and Arnold Bros. was up one at 23. Seagram firmed only an eighth at 25 7-8, and Goodderham and Worts firmed quarter at 58, but Walker eased to 39.

YOUNG GANGSTERS CONDEMNED TO DIE

Will Be First To Be Electrocuted in District of Columbia.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26.—(Canadian Press.)—Three gangsters, all under 21 years of age, will be the first to go to their deaths in the new electric chair of the District of Columbia, unless a reprieve is obtained for them. Nicholes Eagles, Samuel Moreno, and John Proctor were found guilty to-day of murder in the first degree for the killing of a policeman in a pistol battle.

CITY PAYS OFFICER FOR SEVEN MONTHS

Policeman Not Required in Summer Hired By Chief.

In order that there should be no misapprehension caused by Ald. Stocker's statements about the Police Department, as reported in The Examiner, City Treasurer Frank Adams was asked about the hiring of an extra man. This constable was paid by city for seven winter months, and in June, July, August, September and October, when he had to be dispensed with, was given employment by the Chief at his own home and paid for by Chief Newhall.

The appropriation for the Police Department last year was $25,000, and there was not sufficient money to take care of the constable the year round.

STRONG CANADIAN BANKING HOUSE OFFERS BONDS OF CANADIAN DEPARTMENT STORES MERGER

Issue Secured by Consolidation of Twenty-one Stores Located in Ontario and Quebec — Earnings Three Times Bond Interest Requirements

TORONTO, Feb. 26.—Following the formation of Canadian Department Stores, Limited, which is a consolidation of 21 department stores located in the principal cities of the Province of Ontario and one store in Montreal, Municipal Bankers Bond and Sales Corporation of Toronto is making an offering of $4,250,000 7 per cent. First and Refunding Mortgage Income Gold Bonds of this company at 100. There will be delivered with each $1,000 bond of this issue five shares of the no par value common stock of the company. Of the above issue, approximately $2,700,000 have been purchased by former owners of the constituent companies, and are being taken in payment for their properties.

Incorporated in 1926, Canadian Department Stores, Limited, took over old established firms which have been in successful operation for a period averaging more than 44 years, and in many cases are the leading merchandising institutions in their respective cities. The Province of Ontario, which comprises about one-third of the population of Canada, absorbs more than 46 per cent. of the merchandise distributed in the Dominion, and contains over 36 per cent. of the total homes of the country. The territory served by the stores embraces more than 50 per cent. of the population of the Province.

The above issue is secured by a direct mortgage on the fixed assets of the company now owned or hereafter acquired, subject only to $2,500,000 first mortgage 6½ per cent. bonds to be presently outstanding. After giving effect to the consolidation and the financing in connection therewith, net tangible assets, including fixed assets, amount to approximately $8,672,000. As a further security, no dividends will be paid on the common stock, if such payments reduce net current assets below $2,000,000.

Net earnings, after deducting all operating expenses and annual interest requirements of the first mortgage bonds, but before depreciation, have averaged $538,551 annually during the past ten years, or nearly twice the annual interest requirements of this issue. It is estimated that the very substantial economies resulting from the consolidation, through centralization, will result in an increase in net earnings to at least $1,000,000 available for these 7 per cent. bonds, or more than three times the interest requirements.

After 1930 an annual sinking fund will be provided for the bonds of 2 per cent. In addition to the 6½ per cent. and 7 per cent. bonds referred to, the company will have outstanding $1,500,000 7 per cent. preferred stock and 250,000 common shares of no par value. The management of the company will be under the direct supervision of G. H. Rennie, President and General Manager, who previous to his appointment was for several years Assistant General Manager of the Robert Simpson Company, Toronto.

MISTRESS AND HIRED MAN FACE MURDER CHARGE

Arrested in Connection With Death of Woburn Hotel Man.

SUBMIT QUIETLY.

Appear To-day in County Police Court at Toronto.

TORONTO, Feb. 26. —Charged with the murder of Albert Fisher at Woburn on Feb. 7, Mrs. Myra Fisher, the dead man's widow, and John Albert Vaughan, the "hired man" at the Woburn Hotel, were taken into custody yesterday afternoon in the Woburn Hotel and lodged in the Toronto Jail. Each prisoner was warned and questioned, and made a general denial to the charge. They will appear before Magistrate Brunton in county Police Court this morning, when the Crown will ask for a remand.

The arrests were made by Provincial Police Inspectors Hammond and Stringer and Chief Smith of the Scarboro' police, who have been working on the case since the finding of the Coroner's jury that Fisher had died from injuries to his head delivered with some blunt instrument, and was not burned to death in the driving-shed of his Woburn Hotel. According to doctors, three separate and distinct blows caused death.

Make No Comment.

Mrs. Fisher and Vaughan were first taken to Scarboro' Police Station, where an examiantion was made, but, according to Chief Smith, neither had any document to make.

Fisher, although he owned the Woburn Hotel, was employed in Toronto, and, according to the evidence submitted at the inquest. Vaughan on the morning of the seventh had gone to the garage to start the motor car for Fisher's trip to the city. He is said to have returned to the house, while Fisher left to get the car; but a few moments later Vaughan was told by Mrs. Fisher that the car was on fire.

Vaughan claimed that he had pulled the burning car out of the shed and had telephoned for both the fire brigade and a doctor, although he said that he had not seen Fisher.

Fisher's charred body was found later in the shed, some feet from where the car had been.

Medical evidence at the inquest stated definitely that death had been due to head injuries, and not to burns, while in their verdict the jury found that the injuries had been inflicted by "some person or persons unknown."

Born In England.

Mrs. Fisher was born in England, and married her husband there. They came to Toronto some sixteen years ago, and after conducting a business in the city they purchased the hotel at Woburn two years ago.

The son of a farmer at Bruce Mines, John Vaughan, who is 28 years old, came to Toronto about one year ago, residing for a time on Seaton street, where Fisher and his son lived. Last June he was engaged by Fisher at $44 per month to work around the Woburn Hotel.

WELL-TRAINED HUBBY.

PANA, Ill., Feb. 26. — Rising from his bed in the middle of the night, Frank Umpleby, local business man, went to his garage in pajamas, drove his automobile twelve blocks to the home of a friend. Entering without warning, he announced to John Atkinson, "I've got to fix that furnace." Atkinson, amazed, discovered Umpleby

OBITUARY.

MISS BESSIE WALTON

There passed peacefully to rest at her late residence, 228 McDonnel Street, on Friday morning, February 25, Miss Bessie Walton, youngest daughter of the late John and Jane Walton.

Miss Walton was born on the old Walton homestead in the Township of Smith, where she spent the early years of her life. Later, she along with the family, moved to Peterborough and resided for many years at 289 Hunter Street West, where the greater part of her life was spent. A few years ago she moved to her late home, where she resided until her death.

For the last seven years she has been confined to her home through illness, but has always showed a thoughtful and patient Christian spirit. She was a faithful and active member of the Murray Street Baptist Church, and all through her illness remained deeply interested in the activity of her church. In her departure, from this life she will be greatly missed by her immediate relatives and many close friends.

The funeral will be held on Monday, February 28 from her late residence, 228 McDonnel Street, at 2.00 o'clock with the Rev. Dr. Rose, pastor of Murray Street Baptist Church, officiating. Interment will be in Little Lake Cemetery.

MR. JUSTICE HAGGART.

Winnipeg papers of recent date contain extended references to the death and funeral of the late Hon. Mr. Justice Alexander Haggart, formerly of the Bench of the Manitoba Court of Appeal, who died at his home in Conway Court, Winnipeg, on the morning of February 19th. The late Judge Haggart was a grand-uncle of Mrs. Douglas Carlisle, of 585 George Street, his sister, the late Mrs. J. Moffat, of this city, being her grandmother.

Judge Haggart had celebrated his 79th birthday in January of this year, but for four years past had been in steadily declining health. "His death," remarks the Winnipeg Evening Tribune, "marks the passing of one more of the veteran citizens who came to the West when Winnipeg was in its youth. Born in Peterborough on January 29th, 1848, he was of the sturdy pioneering stock which furnished so many outstanding figures in western development."

After being educated in the public schools of Peterborough and in Victoria University, where he took the degree of Bachelor of Arts, afterwards adding the degree of Bachelor of Laws, he pursued legal studies in Peterborough and then in Toronto, in the office of Hon. Hector Cameron.

In 1880 he arrived in Winnipeg, soon after his arrival entering the law firm of Ross, Killam and Haggart. From the first he took his place in the front rank of the legal profession. He was elected a bencher of the Law Society, and later made its president. He was made a King's Counsel and given every honor within the bestowal of his colleagues in the profession. He also served on the City Council and the Public Health Board. In later years he was a member of the law firm of MacDonald, Haggart, Sullivan and Tarr, retiring from this firm in 1912 on his appointment to the bench. In 1908, he was a Conservative candidate for Winnipeg in the Dominion Parliament, and was elected over his opponent, the late Sir Douglas C. Cameron, afterwards Lieutenant-Governor.

In 1911, he ran again and was re-elected by over 4,000 of a majority. Less than one month later, he resigned to give Hon. Robert Rogers a seat.

He was appointed to the Manitoba Court of Appeal in 1912 and in 1920 was retired on pension.

His wife, formerly Miss Elizabeth Littlehales, of Winnipeg, died some years ago. They had no children.

The funeral, which was largely attended, and marked by many beautiful floral tributes, also by the lowering of the City Hall flag to half-mast, took place on February 22nd. The honorary pall-bearers were: Hon. W. E. Perdue, Chief Justice of Manitoba; Hon. T. G. Mathers, Chief Justice of King's Bench; Hon. Sir Hugh J. Macdonald, K.C.; Hon. Mr. Justice Fullerton, Hon. Mr. Justice Prendergast, and Hon. Mr. Justice Trueman. The pall-bearers were: Hon. R. W. Craig, K.C., the Attorney-General; Mr. Edward Anderson, K.C., President of the Law Society of Manitoba; Mr. A. C. Ferguson, President of the Manitoba Bar Association; Mr. A. L. McLean, an old friend; H. W. Lethbridge, manager of the John W. Peck Company, Limited, and Mr. Edgar J. Tarr, K.C., LL.D.

HAS TO BATTLE FOR TITLE BOUT

Promoter Says the Former Champ Can't Meet Tunney Without Qualifying.

ENTER ELIMINATION.

NEW YORK, Feb. 26. — An ultimatum by Tex Rickard to Jack Dempsey startles the status of the former heavyweight champion in the promoter's matchmaking plans.

Dempsey must defeat the winner of the elimination tournament now being staged at the Madison Square Garden in order to gain a return match with Gene Tunney. Otherwise Dempsey will be retired from consideration as a challenger.

"Dempsey will not meet Tunney unless he proves he is the best man among the contenders for the heavy weight title," the promoter said in answer to reports that Jack would meet the champion or no one. "By that I mean he must whip the winner of the present series.

"When I started this tournament I signed contracts with all the men entered. I agreed to give them Tunney if they fought their way to the front. They all signed under those conditions—Berlenbach, Delaney, Maloney Sharkey, Paulino, Hanson, Munn. They are fighting honestly with that goal in mind.

"I couldn't sidetrack any of them and shove Dempsey in with Tunney, for the simple reason that each man could hold me to contract and sue me for breach of it. I wouldn't turn them down for Dempsey in justice to them either."

Rickard said he expected to learn Dempsey's plans from the former champion within a few days. "But he won't get anywhere with me if he insists on getting into the ring with Tunney next September without openers," he added.

The last foreign entry, Paulino Uzcudun of Spain is slated for a preliminary test Friday night against Knute Hansen, western heavyweight. The only remaining contest already arranged in the series brings to the tourney Jack Sharkey of Boston, against Mike McTigue, who eliminated Paul Berlenbach. This bout is scheduled for March 3.

JESS HAINES READY TO DON UNIFORM

Cardinal Holdout Near Terms on Contract at Avon Park.

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 26 (Associated Press).—Jess Haines, who only a few weeks ago was looked on as decidedly on the outs with the Cardinals as to contract, was ready to don his uniform yesterday at the Avon Park, Fla., camp.

The veteran right-hander came in with seven excess pounds that he said he would work off in a week. With him came Bill Sherdel and a young right-hander, named Ray Shelberg, property of the Houston Club. This leaves only Flint Rhem, Jimmy Ring, Eddie Dyer and Frank Snyder of the battery men who haven't answered the roll. Rhem is a holdout, Ring has an illness in his family, and the other two are said to be en route.

The Browns at Tarpon Springs, Fla., staged a prodigal son drama when William Killifer "came home" Wednesday. Killifer joined the Browns in 1909 as a recruit catcher, winding up last year with the Cardinal champions. He was back yesterday with the Browns as coach after 18 years' absence.

M'DOUGALL GOOD WHEN GREYS WIN

Peterborough Boy Scores Two and Gives Pass For Third.

JUNIOR PLAY-OFFS.

OWEN SOUND, Feb. 26.—Playing under conditions which was not conducive to good hockey, Owen Sound grabbed a four-goal lead here last night in the first game of the semi-finals in the O.H.A. Junior hockey series against Kitchener, the score being 4 to 0. While there was not water on the ice, it was very sticky making combination almost impossible, and individual play was the order of the night. The locals were much the better team on the night's play, and on hard ice would have had no trouble in running up a score. They play the return game at Kitchener on Monday night.

Markle scored the first goal of the game after eight minutes of play, when he and McDougall worked a pretty combination, the former taking the puck right in front of Berner, who had no chance to save. Good defensive work on the part of McKay and Schneider kept Owen Sound from scoring again in this period.

In the second period, McDougall hit the net with a shot from the blue line after four minute, and repeated the trick 13 minutes later. Both were clean-cut goals and well deserved. Lauder got the final counter just before the end of the second period, following a rush by Padden. It was nice combipation work and brought the fans to their feet.

McDougall Stars

"Shrimp" McDougall, the local's diminutive centre player, was easily the best man on the ice. His stick work was uncanny, and he was fast even on the sticky ice. He was given great support on the wings by Lauder and Markle, the former's backchecking being one of the features of the game. Padden and Moore, on the defence, were better than they have been all season, and were practically impregnable.

NEWMARKET 1; ST. MICHAELS 0.

TORONTO, Feb. 26. Newmarket juniors demonstrated conclusively at the Arena Gardens last night that a good checking team, with each player sticking to his position can shatter the effectiveness of a fast skating bunch of puck chasers, who attemp a passing game. St. Michael's College lads looked mediocre against the well coached Newmarket youngsters last night in the first game of the O.H.A. junior semi-finals, and the students went down to defeat by the score of 1 to 0. The return game will be played here on Monday night

The game was a fine exhibition of hockey from first to last. On the play St. Michael's should have had a two or three goal margin. Where the students fell down was their work around the nets. The Newmarket defense proved a mystery to the St. Michael's forward line. One of the cleverest goal tenders seen here in junior hockey this season guarded the Newmarket goal, and he made a fine job of it. Corbett started in where the two defense players in front of him left off, and what they did not stop he did. St. Michael's shooting was away off color at times but when they did manage to send in a drive that looked tagged for a counter. Corbett earned the plaudits of the big crowd for his cabale work.

Not knowing anything about the thing, we may be pardoned for presuming that an ice carnival is where everybody goes to get stiff.

BY BILLY EVANS

MIKE BRADY of the Winged Foot Golf Club at Mamaroneck, N.Y., is known as the hoodoo man of golf. No pro has nearly won so many golf title as Brady, only to be denied the honor at the last minute.

Not until 1922, after trying for 25 years, did Brady succeed in winning a major championship. He annexed the Western Open that year. Since then he has won the Metropolitan Open, but those two accomplishments are his only outstanding wins.

Despite his bad luck, Brady is conceded to be one of the greatest stylists in the game, a golfer with every shot in his kit, the master of every club.

Fifteen years back things began to break badly for Brady. That season he made his first real bid for big honors. In the National Open staged at Wheaton, he finished in a triple tie with J. J. McDermott and MacDonald Smith. In the playoff he finished second to McDermott by two strokes.

Two years later, 1913, in the Western Open, it was again McDermott who frustrated Brady's championship ambitions. Mike was a good second.

In 1919, I watched Walter Hagen and Brady, after finishing in a tie for the National Open title at Braeburn, play 18 holes to decide the championship. Brady lost at least four strokes by tough breaks while Dame Fortune constantly smiled on "Walter the Great."

Brady shot a 78, Hagen a 77. Mike had lost another titular battle.

In 1921, Brady finished second in the Canadian Open after looking like a certain winner in the first three rounds. The following year came his first major triumph in the Western.

No professional golfer in the world has threatened so often and succeeded so seldom as Mike Brady. He sure is the hoodoo man of golf, the original hard luck guy.

FIGHT MANAGERS DISPUTING BOUT

Goldman and Muller Battle Over Contract For Bantam-weight Fight.

SCANDAL WHISPER.

By ED. FRAYNE.

Around the color of a typewriter ribbon a controversy is raging between the leading promoters of Chicago and New York for a world's bantamweight championship match.

Tex Rickard is contesting Jim Mullin of Chicago for the right to stake Bud Taylor and Tony Canzoneri in a contest that everyone agrees will decide the vacant title.

A hint of scandal has crept into the situation when Sam Goldman, manager of Tony Canzoneri, said that he would demand that the contract he signed with Mullin be submitted to handwriting experts, or to be more exact, to some person qualified to judge the delicate distinction between the colors of typewriter ribbons.

Matter of Weight.

Goldman told officials of the Garden that he was positive he had signed with Mullin at 121 pounds. The contract held by Mullin specifies 118 pounds. This is important in a legal sense, as Goldman believes the Mullin document is valueless unless it provides for the title weight, 118 pounds.

Goldman told Garden officials that the weight clause in the Mullins contract is written in different colored ribbon, and he wants this explained.

Both Goldman and Eddie Long, who manages Taylor, are anxious to box for Rickard. They feel the match would draw twice the gate here.

The Taylor-Canzoneri match is the only unfinished bit of business on Rickard's March programme. He hopes to close the bout for the night of March 23. The question will be settled one way or the other.

Roberts' Match Off.

All thoughts of a Joe Dundee-Eddie Roberts match on March 14 was abandoned Thursday. Dundee took his injured ankle out of a cast for the first time Thursday and he cannot possibly be ready to box before another six weeks.

In place of Dundee, Roberts will meet Sergeant Sammy Baker in one event of a triple main event on the night of March 14. Mushy Callahan of Los Angeles and Andy Di Vodi of New York will meet in the final bout for the junior welterweight championship. In another ten-rounder, Leo Lomski, Seattle middleweight, will box Phil "Kao" Kaplan. Lomski is the boxer who recently defeated Tiger Flowers at Los Angeles.

Rickard declares that he will use Paolino Uzcudun again against Jimmy Maloney in March if the Spaniard defeats Knute Hansen at the Garden.

Mr. Ty Cobb is quoted as saying he will try his level best to win the batting title again next summer, and we wonder what he means by level best.

We are surprised to hear that Harry Wills has started a comeback .....We would like to know how a man can come back who was not there to begin with.

Inside Sporting Dope

By A Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mack, the big serious is all over, and so far as Peterborough is concerned they ain't nothing to do but sit back and wait to see if Mister Shiner Johnston can trot out a ball team what'll make it worth while to cross the ½ million dollar white elephant every week-end to see them do their stuff.

The Petes died with their boots on. They weren't conceded as much chance as a snowball in an oven to make it even close for the Grads, but they made it so darn close that even yet Mister Connie Smythe turns pale when he thinks about it. In fact, it took a brainstorm on the part of some of the Petes and a helping hand on the part of the goddess of luck to keep Mister Smythe's colleagues in the running. They was lucky in the 1st game to get a tie out of it as she was played, and a change of tactics at the right moment in that battle mighta seen them with a deficit that they couldn't pull up. And in the 2nd game, if Mister Dwyer hadn't picked the worst possible time to take a nap at Mister Trottier and Mister Ranger hadn't tried to perform a series of major surgical operations on 3 or 4 of the Grads, the wonder team mighta been still wondering how it happened. I been looking at hockey games a long while, Mac, but I ain't never yet seen a goalkeeper stop a shot in the penalty box, and they ain't no record of any forwards ever scoring a goal from that part of the rink neither.

Mister Dwyer's boot give the Grads 1 goal and Mister Hodson booted in the 2nd, so that Varsity took the serious by a pair of boots, whereas they was expected to be a mile in front when the totals was all in.

The Petes anyway, Mac, has give us a lotta good hockey to look at this season, and their last stand against the Grads has left most of the local fans firmly convinced that the super-team from the Queen's Park education foundry ain't got a darn thing on the home talent.

The Grads now clash with the Kitchener Dutchmen in the sr. finals, and I for 1 tell them to put the green shirts away. The Dutchmen has a lotta hockey lore and stickhandling, but they ain't fast enough afoot to outscore Mister Smythe's lads in a 2-game serious the way I see it.

I always maintained, Mac, that there was a awful kick in this here Niagara wine, and everybody in Oshawa is willing to say I'm right. The same night our lads was going down before the Grads, the Farrell family and a few of the neighbor's boys from Jordan, where the luscious grapes is made into bottled headaches and furry tongues, was turning Motorville into a town of gloom and mourning. The victory shows that hockey has a educational side, for a lotta folks was asking the next morning, "Where in heck is this Jordan?"

Well, Mister Sporting Editor, seeing that the Petes is like Aunt Bella, on the outside looking in, and anyway, it's darn discouraging trying to think up some bright, happy gems for the customers this week when I was all set for seeing our lads tangle with Kitchener, I'm going to call it a day right now.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

"BABE" RUTH IS NOT WRANGLING

Says Not Engaged in Salary Dispute With Col. Rupert.

BAD WITH FANS.

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 26 (United Press).—"Babe" Ruth and his business manager, Christy Walsh, denied emphatically yesterday the report that the star slugger had given the owners of the New York Yankees an ultimatum that unless they disclosed the contents of a letter concerning his salary, he would do it.

"I never said such a thing and these stories get me in bad with the fans and my bosses. I'm not engaged in any fight with Col. Ruppert and am not expecting one" the Babe said.

"I know that Ruth never has threatened the Yanks and had not issued any ultimatums to anyone," Walsh said.

Whippet Power, Speed, Stamina and Economy Proved in Dramatic Demonstrations

No hill is too high for a Whippet. No road too rough. In countless gruelling tests . . . from Canada to Mexico . . . from the lowest point in Death Valley to the snow-capped peak of White Mountain . . . up Pike's Peak without boiling . . . the Whippet has broken world's records in the most impressive way.

This car has stamina. It has engine smoothness and flexibility formerly found only in the highest priced cars. 55 miles an hour—5 to 30 miles in 13 seconds—with all the reserve power that this implies.

Now add to this the outstanding Whippet advantages of "35 miles on a gallon," 4-wheel brakes and low gravity center, abundant roominess, and you have the reason why scores of thousands of people are today driving this famous car. See it before you buy.

IN MEMORIAM.

WIGGINS.—In loving memory of our dear son, Cyril Aubrey Wiggins, who died February 26, 1924: "Gone but not forgotten."

As we loved him, so we miss him.
In our memory he is dear,
Loved, remembered, long for always,
Bringing many a silent tear.

Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break, but all in vain.
To have, to love, and then to part
The greatest sorrow of the heart.

Days of sadness still come o'er us
Tears in silence often flow,
For memory keeps you ever near us
Though you died three years ago.
—Sadly Missed My Mother and Father.

IN MEMORIAM

It was decided at the meeting to donate the sum of $50 towards the National War Memorial Fund, and it was also decided to divide the membership of the Chapter into four divisions, according to birthdays, one for each three months of the year, each group to provide in turn some form of entertainment during their period, to augment the funds of the Chapter.

IN MEMORIAM

DAVIS—In ever loving memory of our dear Mark, who passed away on Feb. 27th, 1926.

"Gone but not forgotten."
Deep in our heart lies a picture,
Of a loved one laid to rest,
In memory's frame we will keep it,
Because he was one of the best.
Friends may think we have forgotten,
When at times they see us smile,
But they little know the heartache
That the smile hides all the while.
—Ever remembered by parents, sisters and brother.

I AM HERE AND SHANGHAI IS SAFE ANNOUNCES SHANTUNG GENERAL; CLAIMS SUPPORT OF MILLION MEN

Chang Has 250,000 Soldiers Ready For Action, He Says.

INSPECTS LINES.

Defence Armies Prepare Gun Positions For Strong Stand.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28.—(United News.)—Ready to take over the entire defense of Shanghai, China, General Chang Chun-Chang returned from Sun Kiang last night with the declaration that he can muster a million men and "drive the Cantonese into the sea."

"I am here and Shanghai is safe," Chang announced after taking up a temporary residence in the International settlement. "I have a quarter of a million men ready for immediate action and with Chang Tso-Lin can muster a full million soldiers."

Chang reported that the defences of Sun Kiang were adequate and said the world could "be assured that the Cantonese advance to-ward Shanghai would be stopped."

Prepare For Defence.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28. —(Canadian Press.) — Confidence having been restored to the shaken forces of Marshal Sun Chuang Fang by the arrival of extensive reinforcements from Shantung province, defence preparations to prevent Shanghai, richest military prize of the Orient, from falling into Nationalist hands progressed on a large scale to-day.

The principal activities centred at Sung Kiang, twenty-eight miles south of here. The preparations included the construction of battery positions, indicating that the Northerners, once reported on the verge of losing Sun Kiang, had the situation in hand there and were prepared to make a definite stand against the Nationalist advance.

Sun and Gen. Chang Tsung Chang, commander of the northern reinforcements, returned to-day from the battle front. While there Sun addressed four thousand of his troops, telling them that they were now united with the Shantungese to fight Bolshevism. A thousand more British marines arrived here to-day. The general labor union called a one hour strike as a protest against tthe landing of the forces, but the walkout failed to materialize.

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28. United Pess.—Flapper propagandists spread fanwise from Shanghai to-day as pretty Chinese maidens, sympathetic with the cause of northern China, began a campaign of speeches and leaflets against the Cantonese Nationalists from the south.

The first flapper propaganda unit has reached Soochow, about fifty miles west of Shanghai. Their efforts principally will be directed toward influencing the civilian population against the doctrines of the south.

In seeking to capitalize the universal appeal of pretty faces, the Boy Aged 12, Borrows $2 From Bank To Build Kennel

WEST ORANGE, N.J., Feb. 28 (Canadian Press) — Otto Szant, twelve, had $2.29 in his savings bank, but wanted two dollars more to build a house for the "best dog in the world," which his parents would not allow him to keep in the house. He consulted Walter Van Ripser, president of a local bank.

"I want to borrow two dollars from the bank, sign a note, and pay six per cent interest," said the boy.

"But how about security."

"Well, I'm going to get a job working after school and I can pay it back all right."

Mr. Van Ripser decided to make out a three months' note for $2 at 6 per cent. "Security is in confidence and personality," the bank president said.

Speaker Quotes From Works of Many Authors and Poets.

The annual dinner of the Peterborough Teachers' Institute was held at the Empress Hotel on Saturday evening, when one hundred and fifteen people enjoyed an excellent entertainment. Teachers of the city, from the Public Schools, the Normal School, and the Collegiate Institute, with their guests, were present at a very enjoyable evening.

At the head table were seated Miss M. Ross, President of the Peterborough Teachers' Institute, and chairman of the evening; Professor Alfred T. DeLury, Dean of the Staff of the University of Toronto, and head of its mathematics department, speaker of the evening; Mayor and Mrs. W. T. Holloway, the former representing the City Fathers for the occasion; H. R. H. Kenner, principal of the Collegiate Institute, and Mrs. Kenner; Duncan Walker, principal of the Normal School; Dr. and Mrs. H. G. Park; Miss E. MacVannell; Rev. J. W. Gordon, president of the Ministerial Association, and Mrs. Gordon; Inspector A. Mowat and Mrs. Mowat, and Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Fowler, the former representing the Board of Education, as its chairman. Dr. G. Ray Scott represented the medical profession.

At the conclusion of the dinner, Miss Ross proposed the toast to "Our King and Country," and the toast to "Our Profession," was skilfully worded in humorous style by Miss Verna Burgess.

G. S. Mattice proposed the toast to "Our Guests," which was responded to by Mayor Holloway, Mr. Fowler, and Rev. Mr. Gordon.

Mr. Walker introduced the speaker of the evening, Professor DeLury, who gave a very fine address on "The Irish Literary Movement."

Speaking as a native-born Irishman, Professor DeLury was enabled to give to his discourse a manifest appreciation and love of his subject which made it exceptionally interest-

Bottle Floats From U. S. To Philippines In 8 Years

MILTOON JUNCTION, Wis., Feb. 28 (A.P.). — A bottle thrown into a creek in Southern Illinois eight years ago has been found on the coast of the Philippine Islands, according to information received by A. A. Whitford. The bottle contained the name of Miss Leona Smith with her address and was thrown into the creek at Farina, Ill., Mr. Whitford said. He has learned that Miss Smith received word from Maurice Evans, a soldier in the Pacific Islands, that he picked up the bottle on the seashore there Dec. 29, 1926.

PAPERS BELIEVE REPLY USELESS

Russian Answer To British Note Denounced as Insolvent.

EVADES ISSUE.

LONDON, Feb. 28 (Canadian Press). — "What can you do with people like those" is the tone with which most of the London newspapers comment on the Russian reply to the British note warning against the continuance of Bolshevist propaganda against Great Britain. Papers of all shades of opinion except Labor and Socialist believe the note is worthless and evades the real issue, while the most extreme anti-Bolshevist press denounces it as "insolent and mendacious."

STRIKE LEADERS BEING ARRESTED

Mexican Government Charges Men With Seditious Activities.

REBELS EXECUTED.

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 28. Canadian Press. — Leaders of the general railway strike, called ten days ago, are being arrested and charged with seditious activities among the workers. It is alleged they intended to bring about considerable destruction to tracks and railway stocks and that they were inciting to an open ly rebellious attitude.

Thirty-four rebels and eleven Federal soldiers were killed and numerous rebels were wounded or captured.

Several leaders who were captured were summarily executed.

HEAVY RAINFALL.

LONDON, Feb. 28. Canadian Press —The Thames is out of its banks and the inhabitants in numerous places for miles along the valley have been forced to use boats to reach dry land. Bungalows in Old Windsor and Sunbury are surrounded by water. The river is at the top of its banks at the famous Hampton Court, near the palace originally built for Cardinal Wolsey.

A meteorological expert estimates that twenty-seven million tons of rain fell in London over the week-end.

London and San Francisco Talk By Radio 'Phone Setting a New 7,278-Mile Long Distance Record

LONDON, Feb. 28—All records for long distance telephony were broken Saturday when the fifth and final American zone in the transatlantic radio telephone service was opened to traffic from here. A San Francisco business man talked for six minutes with the head of a London commercial house. The conversation, the latter said, was perfectly clear and carried on without any difficulty.

The distance over which Saturday's conversation was conducted was over 7,278 miles. Still greater distances may be bridged by the human voice if the proposals to extend the service to important continental cities are realized. It is said that a conference will be held soon to discuss the project.

Calls from London to New York and other American cities have been quite frequent lately and the British Postmaster General is now satisfied that the service has bcome a permanent commercial proposition.

One woman rings up her daughter in New York every week, it is reported, and the twelve-minute calls cost here $300 each. She is an invalid and unable to travel to New York.

Amazing Rise of the New China Told from the Inside

Expert Observer Who Saw Sweep of Nationalist Forces Tells How and Why It Hap pened—Explains in Simple Language the Meaning of Chinese Disturbances.

"WHITE MAN'S DAY OF RECKONING HAS COME," SAYS CHINA-LED ASIA

In the last four months the world has been amazed by the rise of a new China and has been asking how it happened so suddenly and what it means. One of the keenest observers of Oriental affairs was on the ground when it happened. In this and following articles Upton Close (Prof. Josef Washington Hall) gives an intimate picture of this new China and of the vast revolt against white supremacy throughout Asia. Mr. Close was for seven years an editor in China, was once Chief of Foreign Affairs for Marshal Wu Pei-fu, and is the author of "The New Outline History of China," "In the Land of the Laughing Buddha" and other books which have attracted wide attention.

By UPTON CLOSE

In the last eight months I have travelled 20,000 miles in Asia, visiting all countries from Siberia to Turkey and investigating the growing revolt of the eastern hemisphere against the white man's domination. I made this study after ten years of intimate contact with developments in China, Japan and Asiatic Russia.

All through Asia I hear it said, "The white man's day of reckoning has come." Beneath my eyes I have seen in China the rise of a new nation, a China which has the making of the mightiest nation of the world. This China in the last four months has assumed the leadership of Asia against white domination, mobilising her vast natural resources, industry, high intelligence and huge population for this end.

I arrived in China early in September. By radio we had learned of the seizure of two British ships at Wanhsien on the Upper Yangtse. The British captain said, "If we don't take the most drastic means of retribution over this, it means the end of the British Empire has begun." I was heading for the Yangtse valley when that drastic action was taken. Wanhsien was bombarded and some hundreds of Chinese citizens were killed.

This was intended to put "the Chinese back in their place" as the British expressed it, and was expected to restore British prestige. Instead it united all the warring factions in China against the British and in a campaign to end foreign domination in China.

The Tinder Box at Wanhsien

The ships had been seized by soldiers of Wu Pei-fu, who was backed by the British themselves and it was against Wu's subordinates that the punishment was directed. Wu's rivals in Peking immediately backed his troops by demanding an indemnity and an apology from Great Britain. The Cantonese forces, who were driving against Wu, offered to join him in fighting against any further British aggression. I arrived in Hankow in time to observe what an enormous effect this incident had.

For three years there had been a standing joke in the Yangtse Valley. It was Sun Yat-sen's "punitive expedition" from Canton against Wu Pei-fu in the Central Provinces. It had got under way many times and always evaporated far away from Hankow. An expedition was under way at the time of the Wanhsein incident, but it was struggling in the mountain passes leading to the Yangtse valley from the south. No one expected it to get any further than previous attempts and no active measures had been taken to stop it.

Wu's hands were tied so far as supporting his subordinate went because he was mainly reliant on British friendship for his supplies. He did nothing to support his commander at Wanhsien. So when the wave of Chinese resentment swept the country he was in a false position. Nationalist propagandists took full advantage of this situation. His army was already weakened by lack of pay and rivalries among his commanders and was ready to listen to the Nationalist cry for unity against the foreigner and accept Nationalist pay.

Wu's Generals "Not at Home."

One night as Wu was painting a picture at his Hankow headquarters shells began to fall around the building. He went on painting but his staff sent out wildly to learn of the Nationalist army had suddenly appeared. They found the shells were coming from a division under General Lu, Wu's own officer. Wu sent word to two supposedly loyal commanders to seize the mutineer but they replied they were not at home to Marshal Wu that night. Wu started to withdraw in his private car, but it was derailed outside Hankow and he had to walk forty miles, accompanied by his wife and three faithful staff officers before he found loyal troops. Two days later the vanguard of the Cantonese army was welcomed into Hankow and the world was startled with the information that the Nationalists had at last really come into control of the Upper Yangtse valley.

THIRTEENTH BILL FROM HYDRO UP NEARLY $5,000

Adjustment Account For Local Utilities For 1926 is $20,441.17.

FINANCIAL REPORTS.

Electrical and Water Departments Show Surpluses For Year.

The thirteenth electric bill which the Utilities Commission receives every year from the Hydro-Electric Power Commission of Ontario amounts to 20,441.17 for 1926, which is a considerable increase over 1925 when it was $15,789.39. A bill for $359.01 interest charges also came up for discussion at the Utilities Commission meeting on Saturday. The Commissioners were unable to explain these interest charges and the secretary was instructed to write the Hydro Commission, asking for fuller particulars and also for an itemized account of the thirteenth bill.

It was decided to go ahead with the George and Charlotte streets lighting programme that was accepted by the City Council. In the matter of the lighting the public skating rings, the Commission decided they would charge the Parks Committee of the City Council for the installing of the lighting system in the various rinks.

Electrical Department

The financial statement for 1925 was received, showing the affairs to be in a very satisfactory state. The electrical department showed a gross surplus at the end of the year of $15,714.57 and $3,619.57 after two per cent depreciation on the plant value, plus four per cent held on reserve. This surplus is double that of 1925. The total revenue for the year was $225,941.48, an increase of about $6,000 over 1925. The cost of power was $110,901.15, an increase of $5,059.00 over the previous year. The total expenses were -210,226.91, while for 1925 they were $206,973.20. During the year debentures totalling $59,620 were issued.

There was an increase of $315,462 kilowatt hours sold to the domestic

THE WEATHER

The temperature this morning was 16 degrees above zero. The month now drawing to a close has been a moderate and pleasant February, as compared with many other years. On only three nights was the temperature below zero. The lowest point was only 6 below. The month, however, does not set a record. February of 1919 had not a day below zero. The same month of 1921 had but one day below zero. The snowfall this winter, to date, totals 74 inches. This is 25 per cent. under the usual amount, but March is yet to come.—W. P.

MONTE CARLO, Feb. 26. — In ten minutes at the Casino here, Jules Regnier won 255,000 francs (about $10,000). A thousand dollars a minute for ten minutes is said to be a record.

Her String Of Pearls Is Eaten By Chickens

GOLDSBORO, N.C., Feb. 28 —A brand new item was added to the list of chicken feeds, when the chickens of Mrs. H. I. McClenny, of Bellview, inconsiderately swallowed a string of her pearls.

Mrs. McClenny was helping her small son, Archie Lee, to catch a fat hen intended for the family table, and just as she got a safe hold on the victim, a string of pearls which she was wearing broke and scattered over the ground among the chickens. Returning to the house, Mrs. McClenny sent Archie to pick up the pearls. The chickens had eaten them.

FARMER SUES FOR FIRE LOSS

Three Children Accused of Setting Fire in Murray Township.

NEW TRIAL ORDERED.

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—J. V. Locklin, farmer of the Township of Murray, sued William West, cheese maker, now of the Village of Stirling, Hastings county, to recover $1,700 for the loss occasioned by the burning of Locklin's barn. It was alleged that three children of West's deliberately set fire to a stoke of corn which ran up against the barn, and the allegation was that West, knowing the tendency of his children to set out fires, was negligent in not correcting them. The case came up for trial at Cobourg and was taken from the jury by Mr. Justice Logie, who dismissed the action. The Appellate Division to-day gave judgment, setting aside the judgment at the trial and directing a new trial, costs of the first trial and of the appeal to be costs in the cause.

CITIZENS' MEETING TO-NIGHT IN CANADIAN LEGION (G.W.V.A. HALL)

Meeting To Arrange For Diamond Jubilee Celebration July 1st.

Citizens are reminded of the public meeting to be held to-night in the Canadian Legion (Great War Veterans') Hall at eight o'clock, for the purpose of considering the celebration in Peterborough of Canada's Diamond Jubilee on July first.

Through a mistake of The Examiner on Saturday, the place of meeting was given as the Council Chamber, but this was changed to the Great War Veterans' Hall, and all those who are interested are specially invited to meet there.

The successful observation of the occasion demands co-operation, good leadership and organization, and the committee that is selected to take care of the arrangements should be thoroughly representative.

Do not fail to attend the meeting in the Canadian Legion Hall to-night at eight o'clock.

There are now 25 women aviators in Europe.

SOVIET WOULD CONTINUE POLICY OF GOODWILL TOWARDS BRITAIN WELCOME STEP FOR AGREEMENT

Keynote of Russia's Reply to Britain's Threat Over Relations.

DESIRE PEACE

Firmness Permeates Note Which Has a Tone of Conciliation.

MOSCOW, Feb. 28 (Canadian Press).—"Fulfilling the desire for peace of the laboring masses of the Soviet Union, and in full co-ordination with the wishes of the British masses, the Soviet Government will continue its policy of peace, excluding any aggressive spirit toward any other countries, and will sincerely welcome any mutual step toward peace on the part of Great Britain."

This is the keynote of Russia's reply to Great Britain's threat to break off diplomatic relations with the Soviet unless anti-British propaganda was discontinued.

The Russian note was prepared by M. Litvinoff, acting Foreign Minister, and handed to William Peters, acting Chief of the British Trade Mission at 9.30 Saturday night, just an hour before it was given to the Russian newspapers. The foreign officers withheld the note from the foreign correspondents ostensibly so that the British government might receive the text before it was published by the foreign newspapers.

Moderation Tone

A tone of conciliation and moderation, but firmness, permeates the note, which declares:

"The Soviet Government confirms M. Krassin's assurances to Great Britain of the desirability of removing all existing difficulties and causes of mutual complaint, and the necessity of restoring normal relations between the two countries."

M. Litvinoff matches almost line for line the anti-British epithets used by Soviet commissars and newspapers, as quoted by Sir Austen Chamberlain's note, with similar uncomplimentary expressions against the Soviet by Winston Churchill, Lord Birkenhead, L. C. M. Amery, and other British ministers.

Complaint is made that the British government has failed to adduce any concrete evidence of the violation of existing agreements by the Soviet, contenting itself "with a single accusation based on the false Zinovieff letter, the authors of which went unpunished."

Declaring that no agreement exists limiting the liberty of the press or speech within the boundaries of either country, M. Litvinoff argues the impossibility of regarding as anti-British propaganda either the Soviet analysis of the British policy in the Soviet Union and foreign countries or Soviet discussion respecting the certainty of a world revolution.

Frightens Nobody

The note alludes to Sir Austen Chamberlain's threat to annul the trade agreement or sever diplomatic relations if Great Britain's latest demands are not complied with, and declares that this will frighten nobody in Sovietia, and concludes:

"If the British Government thinks that such abrogation is demanded by the interests of the British people and general peace, the British Government must assume full responsibility for the ensuing consequences."

Britain Not Surprised

LONDON, Feb. 28. (Canadian Press).—Official quarters in London evince no surprise at the argumentative tenor of the Russian reply to the British note of protest with its quotations from speeches by the British Ministers. For instance, Lord Birkenhead is quoted as characterizing the Soviet government as "a gang of assassins and robbers," and Winston Churchill similarly described the government as "a band of cosmopolitan conspirators gathered from the underworld from the great cities of Europe and America."

The question is now being asked as to what will be the next step—whether the wordy warfare will be continued, or whether the extremists, who are generally believed to have forced the British Foreign Secretary reluctantly to dispatch the note, will be powerful enough now to impel him to the next step—renunciation of the trade agreement, but continuance of diplomatic relations.

Sir Austen Chamberlain is expected to make a statement on the situation in the House of Commons early today.

The chief points in the Russian reply have to do with the "peace-loving policy" of the Soviet, "excluding all aggressiveness toward other countries," the promise to "welcome the British Government sincerely if it comes to meet the Soviet in this path, "and an expression of regret by the Soviet government at the unsatisfactory conditions of Anglo-Soviet relations.

Natives Of India Seek To "Outshine" Each Other

CALCUTTA, India, Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Shoe polish by the ton is coming here from England to meet the demand of Indian natives in cities and towns to "outshine" their neighbors in the matter of footwear.

Until a few years ago comparatively few Indians wore shoes.

At first the natives never thought of shining their shoes, but now it has become a fetish, and every native takes the greatest pride in keeping his shoes glistening to the highest degree.

The more perfect the shine, the greater the envy of all his fellow beings.

CHIEF NEWHALL SUES EXAMINER CHARGING LIBEL

Bases Suit Upon Report of Statements Made By Alderman Stocker.

AT COUNCIL MEETING.

Notice of Action Is Served Through Gordon and O'Brien.

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall has notified The Examiner, through his lawyers, that action will be taken for libel, based upon the report of a Council meeting published on Friday last. In this report The Examiner included statements made by Alderman Walter Stocker in the course of the debate on the police estimates on Thursday night, and it is upon these statements that the libel suit is founded.

The Examiner has been served with the following notice:

NOTICE OF ACTION

To The Peterborough Examiner, Limited.

TAKE NOTICE, that I complain of a statement contained in The Examiner Newspaper, printed and published by The Peterborough Examiner, Limited, on Friday, the 25th day of February, 1927, which statement is libelous of me, and that I intend to bring damages for libel, by reason of the printing and publication of such statement.

SAMUEL NEWHALL,
By his solicitors,
GORDON & O'BRIEN.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—Crime costs the United States at least sixteen billion dollars a year, it is estimated by Mark O. Prentiss in the Manufacturers' Record. The estimate includes commercial frauds, loss of property, cost of law enforcement, and economic waste, without an attempt at graft and gambling figures.

Engineer Of Cold Storage Plant Has Thrilling Struggle; Overpowers One Burglar. But Is Defeated By Second

HAMILTON, Ont., Feb. 28 (Canadian Press).—Found lying unconscious in the office of the Niagara Growers' cold storage plant, Grimsby, George Brignal, night engineer, told a thrilling story to the police today.

Brignal was making the rounds of the plant about four o'clock today when, on entering the main building, he was confronted by a masked man, who pointed a revolver at him and ordered him to throw up his hands. The engineer kicked the revolver from the man's grasp and after a violent struggle gained possession of the weapon and subdued the intruder. Brignal then marched him to the plant office and, covering him with the revolver, telephoned Central to get the police. He had hardly uttered the words when a second bandit hidden in the office, leaped upon him. Brignal pulled the trigger of the gun, but it did not go off. A struggle followed, but the pair overpowered the engineer. He was found by police, lying in the office unconscious, suffering from severe head injuries. The bandits made a clean get-away.

DEBT PROBLEM DISCUSSION RENEWED IN FRENCH CAPITAL PLACE HOPE IN POINCARE OFFER

Four Solutions Of Paying America and Britain Are Advocated.

HEATED ARGUMENTS.

Acceptance of $10,000,000 Extra By Washington Would Aid Premier.

PARIS, Feb. 28.—Premier Poincare's payment of £6,000,000 to England and the negotiations with the United States Treasury for payment of an additional $10,000,000 this year has started an entirely new discussion of the debt problem in this country which may prove eventually extremely useful. Four separate courses are being more or less advocated—that France ratify and pay, or pay without ratifying, or ratify without paying, or neither ratify nor pay.

Each of these solutions has its advocates and the heat of the argument has so developed that it is only as a side issue that all parties think about them at all. Vincent Auriol, for instance, by insisting that this year's payments to England and the United States be debated in the Chamber, is not directly interested in either the English or American angle of the question. He is trying to pin the Government down in a manner which may be useful to his political interests later.

Serve Purpose.

It will certainly serve his purpose well if any difficulties arise with the Treasury Department on the formula under which the extra $10,000,000 offered this year are accepted, and equally it will strengthen the Government, and incidentally the prospects of further payments, if the offer is accepted in the same spirit of fairness and good-will as it has been made.

Across the Atlantic the argument is being continued in an exchange of letters between President Nicholas Murray Butler and Deputy Adrien Dariac, former President of the Sub-Commission on Debts. In a letter President Butler sent M. Dariac last month he urged acceptance by France of the Mellon-Berenger agreement as a preliminary and necessary step to an ultimate movement of American public opinion in favor of revision. Until that is done, he wrote, American psychology is such that it will continue to insist on the acceptance of a definite arrangement registered in accord.

To that M. Dariac, in an interview Saturday, replied that just as President Butler and his friends were unable to secure any alteration in the American settlement though they consider it "unjust and inacceptable," so the advocates of ratification on this side of the Atlantic cannot secure acceptance of an accord by the present Chamber. In this year's French budget 4,226,000,000 francs, or more than one-tenth of the whole, is appropriated for repayment of the service of foreign debts, and for the moment the French think that is enough.

Same as Germany.

Here, where four opinions of what should be done have each followers, it is remembered that only a few years ago Germany was in exactly the same situation with regard to her reparations payments. Discussion there was carried to the point of assassination of Drs. Erzberger and Rathenau, partisans of the policy of execution. That, at least, has so far been spared in France. Even the stoutest Nationalist opponents of ratification are not going so far as that. But they do point out that Germany obtained by continued opposition modified terms of payment of the Dawes plan and has now hopes even that they will be further reduced.

With this conception of the situation fairly prevalent, it is evident here that if M. Poincare's offer is accepted without too long and tedious discussion of terms and formulae, but quickly and with even perhaps a word of praise to the debtor, who is trying to do what he can, the impression made will be enormously beneficial to all future discussion and to the whole relationship of the two republics.

Edison Pals Around With Indian At Fair

FORT MYERS, Fla., Feb. 28 (A.P.).—Thomas A. Edison hobnobbed with Charlie Cypress, an Indian chieftain, and they found much in common.

They met at the Lee County fair and on a tour of exhibits together they found that they were much interested in the same booths. The chief, unable to speak English, and Mr. Edison, not knowing the Indian tongue, the pair was forced to use the sign language.

SHANGHAI FEAR NAVAL ATTACK

Defenders Believe to be Next Move of Victorious Cantonese Forces.

CLOSE APPROACH

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28.— (Canadian Press.)—Shelling of Shanghai from the sea and river approaches to this gateway city of China is the next move feared from the victorious Cantonese forces.

In order to fend off an attack from Cantonese naval craft under cover of night, the Chinese defence commissioner of Shanghai last night issued a proclamation declaring the Woodsung approach to the Whangpoo river closed to all ships from sunset to sunrise.

The move was considered a drastic one and although intended to aid in the ultimate defense of foreign settlements as well as the native sections of Shanghai, the order was immediately protested by the consular body.

Proponents of the order closing the Woosung entrance, which is the only approach from the Shangtse river generally recognize that the Chinese commander responsible for the defence of Shanghai must be permitted to have a free hand in the making of regulations concerning the movements of ships. However, it was pointed out that Shanghai's immense shipping movements are at the dictates of the tides and cannot be interfered with an absolute order prohibiting the movement of ships at night.

It is expected that the matter of night vessel movements will be settled by an amicable compromise but meanwhile all vessels violating the order will be subjected to the most thorough search by Chinese authorities.

Fear of an offshire naval attack from any Chinese force was unheard of in recent years. The first show of Cantonese naval strength proved a "dud" a few days ago when a gunboat flying the Cantonese colors started shelling the Woosung arsenal, located at the outer anchorage to Shanghai. The missiles went wild, however, and landed in the French settlement. The gunboat beat a hasty retreat without checking on the efficiency of its marksmen.

As a result the French minister at Peking has filed a protest against the shelling of the concession, reserving the right to collect damages at a later date.

OBITUARY.

J. A. WORRELL, K.C.

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—John Austin Worrell, K.C., D.C.L., Chancellor of the Diocese of Toronto and of University of Trinity College, passed away at his residence, 39 Prince Arthur Avenue, Toronto, on Sunday morning, February 27th, after a short illness.

The body will lie in Holy Trinity Church from 12 noon on Tuesday, March 1st, to 2 o'clock. The funeral will be conducted by the Lord Bishop of Toronto at half past two. After the service the body will be taken to Oakville to be interred there in St. Jude's Cemetery.

EVENING COAT.

An unusually lovely evening coat is made of periwinkle blue velvet lined with apricot satin and bound with gold braid. Instead of a fur colar it has a wide scarf effect of the velvet.

OLD MASTERS

I loafe and invite my soul;
I lean and loafe at my ease, observing a spear of summer grass.

A child said, What is the grass? fetching it to me with full hands;
How could I answer the child? I do not know what it is, any more than he.

I guess it must be the flag of my disposition, out of hopeful green stuff woven.

Or I guess it is the handkerchief of the Lord,
A scented gift and remembrancer, designedly dropt,
Bearing the owner's name someway in the corners, that we may see and remark, and say, "Whose?"
—Walt Whitman: From "Song of Myself."

THE AMAZING RISE OF THE NEW CHINA

tances I then came into close contact with the Cantonese. I was captured by troops of Sun Chuan-fang, who had left Wu in the lurch and planned to make himself master of the Yangtse valley by cutting the precarious line of communications of the Cantonese and enveloping their forces. I was taken to Shanghai by Sun's officers, who boasted of what was going to happen. Immediately on my release I went to Canton to see what sort of men the Cantonese leaders were and in talks with them I told of the boastings of Sun's officers. Canton immediately sent out a counter-force which cut the lines of Sun's army and made it fall back on Shanghai.

I was thus brought into contact with the capable young leaders of the nationalist movement and saw some of its remarkable developments.

I found the present Nationalist movement to be the result of a combination of two movements which have slowly gained growth for some years. The first factor is the old Nationalist Party, founded by Dr. Sun Yat Sen in 1904 for the overthrow of the Manchu Dynasty. After the success of this Revolution in 1912, Dr. Sun's Party fel into disrepute through its lack of ability to organize politics, and for a decade it was the football of military adventures.

New Factors in Nationalism.

The second element is the Student Movement which swept the country in 1919 as a reaction to President Wilson's "betrayal" of China in acquiescing in the Japanese retention of Shantung Province. The Students of the middle and higher schools, men and women, were organized so well they were able to prevent the signing of the Versailles Treaty by China and went on to overthrow their own Government which was obviously selling out to Japan.

Following this victory the Students went to excess which brought them into disrepute, but they have manifested their ability in concerted action several times since. The most notable was the flare-up against the shooting of demonstrating Chinese Students by British police in Shanghai in May, 1925.

The Canton Movement, which was then in the throes of reorganization following the death of Dr. Sun, immediately took up the cause of the Students, and a parade of protest brought on a clash between Chinese and foreigners (mostly British) in Canton, and another so-called massacre of defenseless Chinese by foreign machine guns took place. The result was the drastic measures taken to kill the trade in Hongkong by the Cantonese, and the coming together for a unified purpose of the Student Movement of the North and the Nationalist Group of the South.

Masonic Bodies Take a Hand.

About this time organization ability, brought to the Nationalist Party by Michael Borodin, a Russian who had been lent as advisor to Dr. Sun by Abraham Joffe, began to be evident. Local committees (or Soviets) began to appear and dominate local affairs in every country and province in China, although more openly in the South. The movement spread like wildfire. The ancient Chinese secret societies, such as the Triads and the White Lilies, in many cases transformed themselves bodily into Soviets.

These societes are often called the Masonic bodies of China. They sprang up at least 2,000 years ago, and exist in every town and city and are strongest in the South. It was their support which made the Tai-ping rebellion such a menace in the middle of the nineteenth century. They financed Sun Yat-sen in his long campaign against the Manchu dynasty. Disgusted with political disruption since the overthrow of the Manchu dynasty, they had withdrawn largely from political activity until the new Nationalist propaganda recaptured their imaginations.

Young China's New Leaders.

The cry of the new movement is "China for the Chinese"— "abolition of properties which tend to make the white man regard himself as a superior being in Asia"—'unification of China," and economic development of China with Chinese capital.

Last October the reorganization of the new Nationalist Party took place in Canton. Delegates appeared from the locals in every province of China. A commission of twenty-two members was elected to be the supreme authority in China. This, in turn, operates through an inner "committee," consisting now, for practical purposes, of three outstanding personalities: T. V. Soong, financial genius; General Chang Kai-shek, military organizer, and the trusted Russian, Michael Borodin, a super-propagandist. Of the part played by Russia at large in building up this movement, supplying military trainers and protecting it from attacks on the part of Northern China factions and foreign foes, I will tell fully in another article.

Because money speaks louder in China than in any other country in the world, the contribution of the American-educated young financial genius, Mr. Soong, requires first mention.

He is the son of one of Dr. Sun's associates in his early revolt against the Manchus. His father was killed and young Soong, who was born in Shanghai, was left the protage of Dr. Sun. Eventually Sun married Rosamond, elder sister of Soong, who is a very decided personage herself, as shown by one proposal to elect her president of the new united China. Soong was sent to Harvard and after graduation from the School of Business (1917), he had training in an international banking corporation in New York.

Rifles Back Tax Collector

Upon his return to China Dr. Sun put him on the problem of the tangled currency in Canton Province. At that time Canton money was worth something like forty cents of the dollar. Soong at once concentrated the entire finances of the Province in one state bank, of which he, a lad of thirty-two years, became president. Later the cabicents on the dollar. Soong at once net position of Minister of Finance was bestowed upon him. His financial abilities are sufficiently shown by the fact that when I was in Canton, the currency of the bank was worth $1.10 silver for a dollar note.

We spent one night going through his books and they showed amazing figures. Whereas the total collections in 1925 were 6,000,000 ounces of silver an ounce, or tael, being 75c. United States), he had collected 60,000,000 ounces by October, 1926, and was confident the same territory would yield 120,000,000 in another year. A veritable Alexander Hamilton of a new nation, he has induced and coerced the Chinese people into regularly paying taxes for probably the first time in their history.

This great work could, of course, only have been accomplished by the faithful assistance of his two companions, General Chiang and Michael Borodin. The latter supplied the propaganda which made Chinese merchants and peasants willing to pay taxes. General Chiang supplied the quiet little firing squads for recalcitrant persons not willing to give up their squeeze on the reevnues, and the necessary urge for the populace in districts which felt that Nationalism was costing them too dear.

Real Democracy, Chinese Style

The young man, who has done this is now thirty-six years old—a splendid upstanding, unexcitable man, over six feet in his stockings, unmarried, whose only diversions are riding a great black charger through the avenues of Canton in the hours of dawn, and an occasional card game with a friend. He is never hurried, always has time to talk and has abolished the Chinese system of a retinue of guards and clerks about his desk. His is the first desk in his office at the Ministry of Finance and the door is open. Anyone may go in and address him directly, but if he has nothing to say he is likely to find himself very quickly out of the door.

Soong is a careful student of political development of other countries, and I found him giving especially keen attention to a criticism of the career of Premier Stanley Baldwin of Great Britain. He had underlined one phrase which is an index to his practical mind. "Public men," it read, "must have ideals, but they must remember that the public will give them credit only for their accomplishments."

He cannot be stampeded. When I asked him what he intended to do about the protests of the American and other governments against his new customs taxes he said smilingly, "I keep a wide-open waste-basket here."

Soong has now gone with most of the Nationalist Headquarters from Canton 1,200 miles across country to Hankow on the River Yangtsee, and he is organizing for the Nationalist goernment of the Yangtse valley the same work which he did in Canton.

Chang Kai-shek, Another Cromwell

General Chang Kai-shek, the military hero of the new movement, who has announced he will take Shanghai within the next few weeks, is better known. He is the son of another one of Doctor Sun Yat-sen's early backers, thirty-eight, vigorous, and as stern as Cromwell. His life up to three years ago was spent in frivolity and dissipation. Just before he died, Doctor Sun turned him from this life by making him head of his new Canton Military Academy. There use was made of the thorough military education he had received in Japan. Here he commanded a faculty of sixty Russian officers three years and he has turned out six hundred officers every six months.

Michael Borodin, the third of the trio, sees to the propaganda education of the cadets, and to the spread of the Nationalist creed over China. His contribution is as important as Soong's or Chang's. Together, the trio of money, military force and propaganda has so far proved irresistible, and if any one of these is more important than the other, it is the last.

Borodin is a few years older than his associates, an earnest man of apparent great good will toward everybody, and a hearty entertainer who apparently is more concerned with putting the Chinese on their feet, than with prosecuting any ulterior design of the Bolsheviks, although what is under his mop of hair, it is difficult to divine.

Spokesman is Half British

Eugene Chen, spokesman for the "Inner Committee," and therefore more frequently in the papers than the three controlling personalities, is as romantic a character as Trotsky. He is of more than half British blood, and was considered a British authorities when he fled to Vancouver from Yuan-Shi-kai, the first Chinese President, whose attempt to establish a new dynasty in China was exposed by Chen in his Peking Gazette, oldest newspaper in the world.

Chen took refuge in the United States, carrying with him an intense hatred of his father's people. When he was made Minister of Foreign Affairs for the Nationalist Government the British at first refused to deal with him on the ground that he was "persona non grata," but the growth of the movement soon compelled them to forget this nicety.

Chen's Ministry of Foreign Affairs was the first department of the Nationalist government to move from Canton to Hankow, whither the others now have followed. He is older than the controlling group, and considered by them almost as a foreigner, since he does not write Chinese and speaks it none too well. His proclamations have the flavor of being translated from English into Chinese. But he is considered a very useful servant of the Nationalist movement, and faithful in obeying the mind of its controllers.

In the next article Mr. Close tells how diplomacy has so far failed to touch the real issues of the Chinese situation and how China intends to carry the fight to the finish.

ASTRID RECEIVES NATION'S PRESENT

Jeweled Diadem Is Gift of Belgian People To Princess.

BRUSSELS, Feb. 28.—(Canadian Press.)—With simple ceremony, Princess Astrid, wife of Crown Prince Leopold, was presented with a jeweled diadem, the nation's wedding gift, last night. For months past, Belgium's most skillful craftsmen had been engaged in making the crown, which is ornamented with gems from Belgium's colonies, and consists of a bandeau of brilliants set in platinum, surmounted by eleven magnificent large Congo diamonds.

The diadem is so made that it can be taken apart without difficulty and made into bracelets, rings, necklaces or brooches, should the fashion change or its shape cease to please.

Princess Astrid of Sweden, and Crown Prince Leopold were married last November.

Prominent in society news recently were Mrs. W. H. Price, wife of Hon. W. H. Price, attorney-general of Ontario (left) and at the right is Lady Boulton, formerly Miss Margaret Lyons Moodie, well-known Canadian singer, and now wife of Sir Harold Boulton, who is on a visit to the dominion.

Raymond Perdue Sustains Broken Leg and Few Scratches.

KING'S WHARF, Feb. 28.—Raymond, the six year old son of Mr and Mrs. Patrick Perdue, met with a serious accident the other day and his escape from death was miraculous. The little fellow was in the woods where the men were chopping wood, and a tree fell on him, breaking his leg above the knee. He also had a few scratches on his face but they are not deep. Medical aid was at once summoned and the wound dressed, and the little fellow is now resting as well as could be expected.

Italian Academy Of Youth To Curb Bohemians; It Will Rule Culture; Mussolini May Preside

ROME, Feb. 28 (AP)—Padlocking all of Italy's "Greenwich Villages" is the first item on the program of the new Italian Academy, the names of whose members will soon be announced. But before the death-knell tolls for the Bohemian haunts the academicians will try to convert their artist populations into 100 per cent. citizens, willing to cooperate with the Government in enriching the national cultural life.

In the belief that this and other tasks awaiting the new academy require youthful vigor, the Government, in naming its members, intends to break with the tradition of venerableness set by France's "immortals." The Italian academicians, say the Fascist leaders, who are putting the finishing touches on the rules of the new organization, will be comparatively young men, and instead of somnolently guarding the cultural treasure of the past will be expected to guide actively the present and prepare for the future.

The academy will act as a "ministry of national culture" and will have supreme power in the cultural field as "the Grand Fascist Council" has in the political. It is even asserted that Premier Mussolini may preside at the academy, as he does at the council, although his intimates suggest that he would prefer indirect influence.

PLEADS GUILTY TO ALL CHARGES

Stanley Fisher, Accused of Burglary, Chooses Trial By Judge.

AT JUNE COURT.

MILLBROOK, Feb. 28. — Stanley Fisher was given a preliminary trial before Magistrate Floyd of Cobourg, here on Saturday, on charges of breaking into the local C.N.R. station and stealing cash amounting to over $40 and three bottles of liquor.

Crown Attorney W. H. Kerr, of Cobourg, was the prosecuting lawyer, and Colonel F. D. Boggs, K.C., represented the accused. Fisher pleaded guilty to all charges, and the case was remanded until the June assizes, the prisoner electing to be tried by a judge without a jury.

Judge McGlade of Cobourg, will try the case when it comes up again.

Fisher was out on suspended sentence from a similar accusation, the offence having been committed just a few months previous to the one for which he was tried on Saturday.

MOURN DEATH OF U. S. FLYERS

Killed in Air Tragedy While on Pan-American Good-Will Flight.

AT BUENOS AIRES

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 28.—(Canadian Press.) —Buenos Aires was yesterday a city of mourning while the bodies of two members of the Pan-American Goodwill Flyers lay in state and were accorded military and governmental honors.

The tragedy which brought to culmination the long list of perils and hardships undergone bw the crew of the five United States' army planes which were making complimetnary visits to South American countries, came yesterday afternoon. Four of the planes, the fifth having been delayed, were flying over Palomar field, watched by thousands of citizens when the order to break formation and land was given.

The Detroit, piloted by Captain Clinton F. Woolzy and Lieut. John W. Benton, slipped down upon the New York, in which were Major Herbert A. Dargue and Lieutenant Ennis C. Whitehead. A thousand feet above the ground the planes locked together and they began to spin and slip downward.

Spectators saw Dargue and Whitehead leap clear with their parachutes and flutter to safety, but the other two aviators were caught and fell with their plane, Benton being thrown clear a few feet from the ground. As Major Dargue, commandant of the flight, and Whitehead reached the ground they tore off their parachutes and rushed toward the blazing planes. Others who had reached the fatal scene held the officers by force as they struggled to go to the rescue of their comrades.

Authority to continue the South American flight has been received by Major Dargue from Washington. On Tuesday the planes remaining in shape for flying will be off again.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE MAKES ADVANCE

Movement Gains Widespread Support Throughout Whole of France.

CONVERT SENATOR.

PARIS, Feb. 28, — (Canadian Press.)—The steady advance the cause of woman suffrage is making in France was shown strikingly at a crowded meeting here on Saturday, organized by the union for the women's vote. It was presided over by Maurice Hervey, one of the leaders of the ultra-Conservative section of the French senate, who was supported by an imposing array of deputies and senators.

A feature of the proceedings was a speech by Senator Francis Saint Maur, announcing his conversion to the cause. After what women had done during the war, he said, no one could pretend they did not have the qallities necessary to take an active interest in the welfare of the nation.

DREAM SAVES LIFE OF CHILD

Runs Down Looking For Toy Wagon—House on Fire.

FOUR LIVES LOST.

DETROIT. Feb. 28.— Dreaming tha tsome one had stolen his toy wagon from the front yard of his home, Morris Couzens, 8 years old, woke up early yesterday and ran downstairs to find the house in flames. Before help arirved the boy's mother, Rose Couzens, and his three brothers were burned to death. The fire is believed to have been caused by an overheated stove.

Thefather, Morris Couzens, is a milkman. Shortly before 4 o'clock yesterday morning he left home after kindling a fire in the furnace. An hour later a neighbor across the road saw the house in flames from top to bottom and sent in a telephone alarm, which brought apparatus fom both Ferndale and Royal Oak, but frozen hydrants hampered the work of the firemen.

Mrs. Couzens, her youngest child in her arms, attempted to dash through the flames to safety, but fell almost on the threshold. She was picked up and hurried to Highland Park Hospital with her babe, but both succumbed to terrible burns. The sons James and John were charred in their beds.

CHURCH PORTER ADMITS THEFTS

Says He Stole $10,000 From Poor Boxes of New York Church.

MONEY IN ITALY.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(Canadian Press).—Arrested today charged with theft, Quintin Prospero, a porter of the Paulist Fathers' Church, confessed that he had stolen more than ten thousand dollars from the poor boxes in the church during the past fourteen months, using keys he made to open the boxes. He said he had sent the money to Italy and intended to return there later to live in luxury. Marked bills in his possession proved his guilt, according to the police, who set the trap.

UNITED STATES TO PARTICIPATE AT ARMS PARLEY

Are To Attend Preliminary Meeting on Private Arms Manufacture.

GENEVA PLEASED.

Draft Serve as Basis of Discussion For International Conference.

GENEVA, Feb. 28.—Widespread satisfaction was expressed in League of the Nations circles Saturday at the decision of the United States to participate in the special meeting in Geneva on March 14 to consider a draft convention on the private manufacture of arms, munitions and implements of war to serve as a basis of discussion for an international conference.

The policy laid down by Theodore Burton during the conference on the traffic in arms is stressed by the State Department in its letter of acceptance which was addressed Saturday to Sir Eric Drummond, Secretary of the League, by Charge Marriner.

The communicatonn presents no visible points of conflict with the policy already formulated by League commissions, which for five years have been trying to pave the way toward this difficult conference.

The note expresses the willingness of the United States to enter into an international agreement providing for the publication of statistics by Governments on the production of arms and ammunition but insists that the agreement, to be effective, should cover arms manufactures in both private and Government factories.

The problem appeared nearer a solution when a resolution was inserted in the final act of the arms traffic convention asking that the national aspect of the manufacture of arms be considered by the various Governments.

To speed up action, however, the League Assembly was forced to pass aresolution to link the question of manufacture to the general disarmament conference if action was not taken on the former before the disarmament conference.

Hugh S. Gibson, recently appointed Ambasador to Belgium, will sit with the arms manufacture commission. While Minister to Switzerland he represented America in disarmament discussions here.

CANON TROOP BEEN MINISTER FOR FIFTY YEARS

Venerable Clergyman Was Ordained in Halifax Feb. 25, 1877.

WELL KNOWN HERE.

Tells of Many Changes in Ecclesiastical Life in That Time.

TORONTO, Feb. 28.—Fifty years a minister of the Gospel. Half a century, and more than two-thirds of the allotted span of man's years here on earth, spent proclaiming the "unsearchable riches of Christ." Such is the attainment, not often met with in the Christian ministry, of Rev. Canon G. Osborne Troop, M.A., rector emeritus of St. Martin's Church, Montreal, who yesterday celebrated the jubilee of his ordination into the ministry of the Anglican Church, of which he has been a life-long member. Canon Troop is well known, not only throughout Canada, but in the Old Land as well, where his evangelical ministry in the South of England was a benediction and blessing to many souls. In an interview Canon Troop told something of the story of his life and the changes he had seen in these last eventful fifty years.

Early Years.

It was in the beautiful Annapolis Valley, in Nova Scotia, in the year 1854, that he first opened his eyes on the world. His father died at an early age, leaving his upbringing to the care of his mother, who was the greatest factor and moulding force in his life. "It was her wish that I should enter the ministry, but when she propounded it to me at the age of fourteen, I said: 'I had rather be anything else in the world than a clergyman.' She wisely ceased to press the subject, but I have no doubt she laid it before God."

It was at the age of 17 when engaged in the study of law that he says his heart was awakened to the call of the ministry, and he decided to exchange the Law for the Gospel. "From that day to this I have never for one moment regretted my decision, and I am fully persuaded that there is no greater privilege in the world than the joy of proclaiming the Everlasting Gospel of the Grace of God in the Spirit and power of our Lord Jesus Christ."

Ordained at Halifax.

Entering King's College, Windsor, Nova Scotia, he graduated in due course, and was ordained a deacon at St. Paul's Church, Halifax, on Feb. 25, 1877, just fifty years ago to-day. One of his outstanding reminiscences of those early days is his ministry as curate under the late Rev. George W. Hill, with whom he served four years. To the singular power and charm of Dr. Hill's preaching Canon Troop paid eloquent tribute: 'To him and his gifted wife," he said, "I owe under God that light on the sacred Scriptures which brought into my life the sure and certain hope of the Second Coming of our Lord for His own, before the establishment of His Kingdom. This hope has been the joy and strength of all my ministry."

It was in 1886 that he received a call to the rectorship of St. Martin's, Montreal, which led to twenty-seven years of eventful ministry in that church. "Amazing changes came about in those twenty-seven years, not only in Montreal, but in Canada and throughout the world. At the time of my arrival in Montreal the Canadian Pacific Railway was just beginning its eventful history, and the vast wheat fields of Western Canada began to reveal their almost unimagined possibilities of wealth. So proud was the C.P.R. of its new Windsor Station at Montreal that it even shouted through large letters on the hoardings: 'Now hide your heads, ye diminished stations'."

During these years, Canon Troop went on to say, remarkable changes had also taken place in the ecclesiastical sphere. "Since the time when I entered college the theological world has been in a state of constant ferment. The Holy Scriptures have been cast into a furnace heated, like that of Nebuchadnezzar, "seven times more than it was wont to be heated.' They are yet in that furnace. The flames of rationalism and of superstition are blazing furiously, and yet—miracle of miracles—the Scriptures are not consumed, but seem more full of life than ever."

Barriers Broken Down.

One by one, Canon Troop went on to say, the ecclesiastical barriers that had at one time seemed so insurmountable, and separated him from his brethren of other communions, had been slowly but surely broken down, leaving him with his greatest ambition to be every man's servant and no man's master.

Resigning from St. Martin's toward the close of 1913, he had gone to England, and, following the outbreak of the war, had accepted the Vicarage of Felbridge, a small village in Sussex. In 1918 he returned to Canada, and has rendered yeoman service as missioner in various parts of the Dominion. Canon Troop still retains his connection with St. Martin's as minister emeritus.

One of the greatest of Scriptural truths to which he clings most tenaciously, Canon Troop stated, was his conviction of the Second Coming of Christ. That has been to him, he said, a "blessed hope" throughout his long ministry. To-day that hope burns brighter than ever in his life.

"We are all agreed as to the spirit of unrest everywhere prevalent throughout the world to-day," he said. "The humble and reverent student of the prophetical Scriptures is fully prepared for this 'distress of nations, with perplexity.' He is led to expect that at this very period, everything that can be shaken, and ought to be shaken, will be shaken to its very foundation, in order that the Kingdom of God that 'cannot be shaken' may come to light and stand for ever. We are prone to forget that when our Lord Jesus Christ, the Prince of Peace and King of Righteousness, was rejected and crucified, peace and righteousness were banished from the world, never to return until the rejected King comes back. All authority is given unto Him both in Heaven and on earth, and until this is universally acknowledged there can never be anything else on earth but ceaseless unrest. How true are the oft-quoted words of Augustine: 'Thou, O Lord, hast made us for Thyself, and our hearts are restless till they rest in Thee!' "

Problems of To-Day.

Speaking of some of the modern problems in the ecclesiastical world, Canon Troop deplored the tendency of much of the modern criticism of the Bible. As he had seen it in his long Christian experience he had not found it conducive to the strengthening of faith or the building of Christian character and life. Rather the reverse. What impressed and saddened him to-day was the appalling ignorance on the part of many of the Word of God. When he was a boy he had an ambition to read through the Scriptures. He had done so, and since that day had repeatedly read the Bible from end to end. "Much of the trouble that we are meeting with to-day arises out of the sheer ignorance of the Scriptures, and from a lack of understanding of the Bible. Men and women seem to be content to argue for or against the inspiration of the Scriptures, to be the friend or the foe of the Bible, to stand up for it or to tear it down; in fact, to do anything but read it. If people would only argue a little less and read the Book itself and study its sacred contents a little more, most of their difficulties and troubles with the Bible would fly away. To-day after a long lifetime spent in the study of the Word of God, that Word is sweeter to me now than it ever has been, sweeter than honey and the honeycomb. In the Scriptures I find Christ; from the beginning to the end He is there; until now the living Christ, my Lord and my Saviour is inseparable from this living Word."

Convictions Modified.

Through the half century of his Christian ministry Canon Troop says convictions regarding some things he held tenaciously in his early ministry have gone. When he came to Montreal first he received an invitation from the Bible Society to deliver an address before them, which he refused. "I often wonder what they thought of me," he said, smiling at the reminiscence. "I was then a callow youth, and believed by so doing I was performing a service to my Church." A short time ago Canon Troop published in the form of a small pamphlet his mature convictions regarding the Christian Church under the title of "No Monopoly of the Christian Heritage." In this he has endeavored to show from appeal to the Holy Scriptures that neither the Roman Catholic Church nor any other part of Christendom possesses a monopoly of the Christian heritage.

Fifty years in the ministry of his Church has not diminished the ardor of this faithful steward of God for the Christian Gospel. In the evening of his days the greatest passion of his life is the spreading of the evangel of the Lord Jesus Christ. He delights to minister wherever he is called without regard to ecclesiastical or denominational distinctions. His great motto to-day, as the shadows of evening begin to lie long upon his path, is that of the Apostle Paul, "Owe no men anything, but to love one another."

Mr. M. Dudar Now Recommends Dodd's Kidney Pills

"Dodd's Kidney Pills are good for all kidney troubles," writes Mr. M. Dudar, who resides at Garland, Man. "I had a severe pain in my back and suffered with terrible headaches. I read in Dodd's Almanac that Dodd's Kidney Pills are helpful for pains in the back, headaches, sleeplessness, etc., so I got a few boxes. They have made me very healthy."

The reason Dodd's Kidney Pills are so popular all over Canada is that people have tried them and benefitted. Dodd's Kidney Pills have been in use in Canada for more than a third of a century.

"See Me Later—"

PERHAPS the invitation is sincere . . . perhaps you really intend to go into the matter of Life Insurance protection at some later date.

Whatever your reasons . . . and you alone can judge them . . . when you turn the Life Insurance representative away from your home, you turn away opportunity . . . you turn away the protection which your wife and children will some day need.

The "later" of which you speak may prove "too late."

The next visit of the Life Insurance representative may find your health impaired, and the protection you seek unavailable. It may even find your home stricken . . . your wife a widow . . . your children fatherless and unprotected.

Life Insurance is literally a matter of "life and death." It cannot be lightly regarded . . . it cannot, with safety, be postponed.

TONIGHT'S MEETING.

It is of much importance that the public meeting called by Mayor Holloway tonight to discuss the local celebration of Canada's sixtieth birthday should be largely attended.

The successful observance of such an occasion will demand general co-operation and good leadership, and the committee that is selected to take charge of the arrangements should be a thoroughly representative one.

The celebration of Canada's jubilee is being entered in with zest and enthusiasm in all parts of the Dominion, a National Committee is drafting a programme and Parliament is providing a vote of $250,000 to cover the expenses involved in the scheme.

Under such circumstances Peterborough must not allow her part in the proceedings to fail through lack of enthusiasm and interest.

Such organizations as the Chamber of Commerce, the Canadian Legion, the Rotarians, the Kiwanis Club and various fraternal societies should see to it that representatives of their bodies are among those in attendance at tonight's meeting.

OLD AGE PENSIONS.

Although the old age pensions bill has been reintroduced into the House of Commons and will be passed by that body, the Provincial attitude toward the plan indicates that unless public opinion in the various Provinces is aroused sufficiently to make the various Legislatures change their views, it will be a long time before the pension system is actually in operation.

The majority of the Provincial Governments believe that old age pensions should be altogether a Federal responsibility, and the present plan by which one-half of the expense is to be borne by the Provinces arouses no enthusiasm in Provincial circles.

The Alberta Legislature a day or two ago passed a resolution expressing its belief that the cost of old age pensions should be met altogether by the Federal Government, and that view is undoubtedly shared by the Governments of most of the other Canadian Provinces.

The Provincial legislators will continue to take that stand unless there is enough pressure from the people they represent in favour of the present scheme to cause them to change front—and at present there is no sign of much pressure along that line developing.

THE STAR IS WORRYING.

Grave concern is expressed by The Toronto Star as to what penalties should be provided under the new Government Control Act for persons who are unfortunate enough to get drunk—or rather, unfortunate enough to get caught while they're drunk.

That some people will become intoxicated under the control system, as they do now under the O.T.A. and as they used to do under the License Act or the Scott Act or the Drunken Act, or whatever other piece of legislation happened to be in force, is certain, and the Toronto organ of Mr. Raney shows its great love for humanity in giving vent to its worries about what is going to happen to those who fall by the wayside.

At the same time, however, there is natural wonder as to how The Star has been able to control its emotions during the regime of the Ontario Temperance Act, under which the penalties involved in being found drunk being such as might have been expected to arouse The Star's always ready sympathies.

Whatever the punishment for drunkenness under the new system may be, it will surely not approach in harshness the penalties laid down under the Ontario Temperance Act, which were severe enough to partially at least account for the revulsion of feeling against the measure that was shown on December 1 last.

THE IRONY OF IT.

On Thursday night at a meeting of the city's Finance Committee Ald. Stocker expressed certain criticisms in regard to Chief Constable Newhall, and at the same time declared that Peterborough needed an "unmuzzled press."

The Examiner published a summary of what he had said, including his attack on this paper, as part of the report of the proceedings of the Finance Committee.

Within 48 hours of the time Ald. Stocker charged us with being muzzled The Examiner was served with a notice of the intention of Chief Constable Newhall to issue a writ against this paper for alleged libel arising out of the publication of the Alderman's remarks concerning him.

It's a splendid example of being caught going and coming—a rather unique record of a paper being attacked for suppressing information and threatened with a libel suit for publishing information, both arising out of the same set of circumstances.

A RADIO "MAGNA CHARTA."

The United States Congress has passed, and the President is expected to approve, a bill to establish a Federal Radio Commission which will have control of broadcasting in that country. The bill is hailed as the "Magna Charta" of radio, and is designed to mark the beginning of the end of "chaos in the ether."

The bill revokes automatically the license of every broadcasting station in the United States, and all transmitters—about 18,000 altogether—must apply for licenses under the new law. Whatever chaos now exists is the result of the operation of 725 programme-broadcasting stations, operating within a wave band which, experts say, can accommodate only 89 stations. The Commission will have power to refuse applications for licenses, to assign power outputs, wavelengths, call letters and time on the air, and it is the expectation that a good many of the existing programme stations will be obliged to suspend. There are 2,035 licensed ship transmitters, and 14,885 amateur transmitters, and their licenses are not in danger.

For the purposes of the bill the country is to be divided into five great zones, from each of which a Commissioner will be appointed by the Government at an annual salary of $10,000. The first Commissioners will be appointed for varying terms of from one to six years, so that the whole body never will retire at one time, and later appointments all will be for six-year terms. It is provided that no more than three Commissioners shall be members of the same political party. The Commission is to be independent of all other Government departments, and to be supreme in the radio field. All paid advertising matter broadcast must be announced as "paid for" or "furnished by," and stations are not permitted to show partiality as among candidates for public office. If one candidate for a position is permitted to voice his opinions over a transmitting station, all other candidates for that post must be accorded an equal privilege.

A hundred and eighty-one new stations have been established in the United States in the past six months. In Chicago alone 56 new transmitters have been placed in operation since July and there are 52 more stations now being built in that city; in fact, Chicago alone has sufficient stations to use all the available channels in the broadcast band.

Canadian listeners are vitally interested in the proper regulation of the United States stations. In the first place our listeners desire to hear the splendid programmes which are transmitted from the larger cities, and in the second place the waves reserved for Canada will be protected, and the Canadian listener will once more be able to hear Canada on the air as it is not to be anticipated that the United States authorities will challenge the right of Canada to a share of the ether.

There are in the United States some 700 stations and there are 95 channels to accommodate them, and it will be appreciated that the Commission set up under the new regulations have no small task in deciding how to allocate the waves. They might with advantage give consideration to the way the matter is being handled in this Dominion, where, on the equivalent of 17 channels, 79 stations are working without interference. It will mean no doubt the cancellation of many licenses, and there is little question but that many licenses should be cancelled.

There is no space in the ether for direct advertising, nor for the transmission of acute propaganda. If a business man desires to advertise there are other ways for him to do so, and if someone desires to make speeches on highly contentious religious or other questions he should hire a hall and do it there.

The Canadian scheme is effective and simple. Each channel is shared by not more than three stations, and in cities the size of Ottawa only one wave length is issued and only one station is allowed on the air at a time. To accommodate the smaller towns which have not the programme talent of a large centre their stations are given the use of a wave length for one night per week, or they are placed on low power so that the wave length may be used simultaneously at ten different points about 200 miles apart without fear of interference.

It is not suggested that a station of the calibre of WJZ should be made to share time; such outstanding stations should be accorded every privilege, but there are many stations turning out second-class programmes whose activities could well be curtailed to the benefit of the listener.—Ottawa Journal.

Alderman Stocker in his reference before the Finance Committee, to the item of $300 as salary for the chairman of the Police Commission, stated that this sum was at the rate of $30 per meeting for ten short meetings each year. He should have known that the salary not only covered the attendance at meetings, but that its payment was a recognition of the fact that the chairman was also at the call of the Police Department at any and all times during the year.

Sterling demand $4.85 7-16.
Sterling cables $4.85 15-16.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO, Feb. 28 (Canadian Press).—Selling pressure which developed on price bulges led to a sag in wheat values on Saturday at the last. Slowness of demand for cash wheat and cash corn was a bear factor especially as No. 2 red wheat in Kansas City was shown to be at full shipping difference under Chicago May delivery.

Closing quotations for wheat were unsettled at the same as Friday's finish to 1-2 and 5-8c lower, corn 5-8 to 1c down; oats 3-8c off to 1-8 up, and provisions varying from a shade decline to a rise of 20 cents.

Corn prices reflected knowledge that shipping sales of corn here were smaller to a material extent than during the two previous days. Good buying, however, developed in oats.

For the most part provisions were steady in line with the hog market.

MONTREAL GRAIN AND PRODUCE

MONTREAL, Feb. 28 (Canadian Press).—The demand for grain from the United Kingdom and the Continent on the Montreal market Saturday was again of a very limited character and no new business of importance was reported.

The trade in cash grain in the domestic market was also quiet, but the undertone was firm. Prices for all grades of Spring and Winter wheat flour were well maintained under a slow demand.

An active business was again done in all lines of millfeed and prices were unchanged. The trade in standard grades of rolled oats was quiet, but prices were steady.

The egg market was slightly more active Saturday and values ruled firm. The receipts were 943 cases.

The demand for all grades of butter was fair and the undertone to the market was steady. The receipts were 48 packages.

The trade in cheese was extremely quiet and values were unchanged. The receipts were 162 boxes.

FLAPPERS AND MOTHERS

By Dr. Frank Crane.

Mr. Bruce Findlay, assistant superintendent of Los Angeles schools, in an address the other day asked:

"Why should we assume that the flapper of 1927 will make a poorer mother than the 'flapper' of yesterday, who has been her mother?"

There is just as much to the modern girl as there ever was to her ancestor. The fact that she wears short skirts and bobs her hair is not against her. She wears less clothing than her ancestors and is consequently healthier.

She is more addicted to outdoor sports with beneficial results.

Altogether the modern flapper of today is just as well prepared for motherhood as was her mother, and better than she.

There is no more danger to a girl from taking an automobile ride than there was from taking a buggy ride.

Of course dissipation and late hours are bad for anyone and in proportion as a woman indulges in this she is endangering her health and endangering posterity.

But take it all in all the girl of today is quite as sensible as her mother was yesterday and we may look forward with confidence to the future of the race.

It never was in better hands. Those of today are just as serious-minded as their mothers were the day before.

Virtue is not to be founded upon ignorance, but upon knowledge, and if the girls of today knows more than her mother did it helps her and does not hinder her.

She is prepared to be a man's partner and equal and not his slave and plaything, and in this respect she has the advantage over former years.

As far as I am concerned, the girls of today are healthier, better-looking and more desirable as companions than were the girls of yesterday.

This old world is bumping merrily along and some things about it some people don't like, but on the whole it is improving.

SNOW FALL PASSES HUNDRED INCH MARK

Worst Storm of Season Sweeps Down on Ottawa

OTTAWA, Feb. 28 (Canadian Press).—The century mark in inches of snowfall was surpassed in the capital Saturday when worst storm of the season broke, sending down almost a foot of snow in a period of nine hours. All manner of traffic was impeded in the face of a stiff north-west gate which carried large damp flakes of snow in swirling blizzards. Climaxing two days of spring-like weather that left large pools of water on the city streets, the storm commenced at two, and while by eleven o'clock it had moderated, there was no sign of a let-up. Automobiles were stranded by the sticky fall, and railroad and trolley lines had to call their entire storm-fighting apparatus into operation to maintain a service that was slightly delayed. As measured at the Dominion Experimental Farm, the total snowfall of Ottawa so far this year now stands at 100⅝ inches.

HOW DO YOU SAY IT?

Common Errors in English and How To Avoid Them.

(By the McClure Syndicate, Inc.)

"ELECTED" NOT "DELEGATED"

"Lieutenant Quackenbos' father was graduated from Columbia with both the law and doctor of medicine degrees, although he delegated to devote his life to teaching," says a newspaper article.

It is difficult to understand how the writer could have used the word "delegated" in this sense—unless, indeed, he was the victim of what is known as a "typographical error."

What he meant to say was that Dr. Quackenbos preferred, or decided, or elected to devote his life to teaching.

To "delegate" means to send as one's representative, to commission, to depute, to authorize. It means also to entrust to the care or management of another.

The noun, "delegate," is used frequently, but the use of the word as a verb is not so common.

A Thought For To-day

THE ONLY THING THAT WILL PUT YOU THERE

The write, the weaver, the maker, the user—all must work. The only men who are actually able to live without work are almost always the greatest workers. The loafer, the tramp, cannot afford to be without the income from work, but he does not work, and here you have a practical demonstration.

Very few men have ever overworked between the morning hours of starting time and the evening hours of quitting time. The hours that kill are from after dinner to dawn.

The harder you work, the harder you will sleep. The more you work, the more you can eat, and when a man sleeps well and eats well, he can find more fun in one holiday than a loafer finds in one week.

The hardest work in the world is to be constantly trying to get out of work.

Works keeps you out of mischief, puts cash in your purse, gains the respect of your family, and the confidence of your banker. By intelligently and persistently working eventually you can hire others to work for you, but never get the idea in your head that you will ever be in a position where you will not have to work.

Plenty of big business men often see the time when they would like to trade the responsibility of meeting the losses and facing the worry for an interest in a regular weekly wage.

The boss got there by work and work is the only thing that will put you there.

CANADAS APPLE ORCHARDS.

Q.—What is the value of apple orchards in Canada?

A.—The value of apple orchards in Canada is $120,000,000; and production has increased in the past fifteen years from $13,000,000 to $27,000,000 annually, according to G. E. McIntosh, Canadian Government Fruit Commissioner. For the past few years Canadian apples have won the highest awards at the Imperial Fruit Show held in England. The "MacIntosh Red" variety, originated in Dundas county, Ontario, has been declared the best dessert apple in the British Empire.

Here is the way to glistening teeth that dentists now advise

It removes that DINGY FILM from your teeth. It clears cloudy teeth and Firms the Gums. Start today—why wait?

MODERN science now tells us how to brighten dingy teeth and give toneless gums a healthy coral tint. A new way widely urged by leading dentists of the world. Different in formula, action and effect, it does what no other method has yet attained—removes and combats, without harsh grit, the dangerous film that covers teeth and which old-type dentifrices do not fight successfully.

Run your tongue across your teeth. You will feel that film. Under it are the prettier, whiter teeth you envy in others. If you combat that film, your teeth will quickly glisten delightfully. Ask your druggist for a tube of Pepsodent. Results will amaze you.

The enemy of teeth and gums

Film is the great enemy of teeth and gums; a chief cause, according to world's dental authorities, of pyorrhea and most tooth and gum troubles. It clings to teeth, gets into crevices and stays. Germs by the millions breed in it. It holds food in contact with teeth, inviting the acid that causes decay.

You can't have prettier, whiter teeth; you can't have healthier teeth unless you combat that film.

HOW ELECTRICITY CURES

The physician of to-day who does not use electrotherapy is guilty of gross negligence. There is no method of treatment which can be applied to the ailing body which can be used with more scientific accuracy.

You all know how much I preach the philosophy of self-cure; and believe the patient should learn to cure himself and not depend upon others for help, except to learn from intelligent physicians how to change his bad habits of living to good ones.

Yet there are times when one is unable to get good advice regarding diet, exercise, etc., and feels the necessity of relying upon some treatment to assist in bringing about a satisfactory change for the better. A short outline of the treatment of the different ailments by electrotherapy may be of some help in encouraging you to consult a modern physician who has the proper electrical equipment to give such treatments.

It is first essential that you understand how this force can bring about a change in the body. The different forms of electricity can be used to produce either a mechanical or a chemical action on the bodily structure, and many times these two actions are combined in one treatment.

The sinusoidal current will affect a muscle so as to contract it. By turning the current on and off the muscle contracts and relaxes in much the same manner as if exercise were taken. By the use of suitable appliances this current can be applied to any of the voluntary or involuntary muscles and thus the muscle is strengthened in a very definite way.

This treatment is especially helpful in developing a better tone to the abdominal muscles and those of the large intestine, which muscles are weaker than normal with the majority of people. This current can even be used strongly enough to make the bowels move involuntarily.

You can readily see to what number of uses this contracting electrical force may be applied with benefit, which cannot be obtained through a gallon of medicine. Prolapsed organs of the abdomen can be raised to their normal position with the resultant good effects which can be maintained then by substituting systematic physical culture exercises for the electrical treatment.

The High-Frequency current acts both mechanically by increasing circulation and chemically through assisting metabolism, and is used advantageously in all heart trouble, hardening of the arteries and in nutritional disorders.

The Galvanic current has also a mechanical and chemical effect, but the chemical change from its use is so definite that this form of electricity stands alone in this respect. Two electrodes must be used on the body in different places and the nature of the current is such that one of the applicators will produce an acid condition of the adjoining tissue, while the other will have the opposite, or alkaline reaction upon the tissues surrounding it. One will have a softening effect and the other a hardening action. You can readily see how this current could do a great damage in the hands of an incompetent physician.

I have barely touched upon the uses for electricity in the treatment of bodily ills, but I trust that if you are not well, you will not overlook this science of electrotherapy to help while you are learning how to live so as to stay well.

THIRD AND FOURTH PETERBOROUGH TROOPS

Well, for once in their lives the fellows in the Third Troop got enough to eat. Say boys, you should have seen them clean up the food. You would think some of them had been fasting for the last week or so to prepare for this blowout. Anyway, the food was there to be eaten and it certainly disappeared in great style. Did we have a good time? Well I guess we did. What did we do?

Everyone was at the headquarters of the Fourth before 7.30 on Friday night. Promptly at 7.30, S. M. Corbett of the Fourth formed the two Troops in a semi-circle and broke the flag. The Fourth gave the Scout yell in snappy style. Games became the order of the evening.

A game that was new to the Third was played, each Troop sending two competitors at a time until everyone had had a turn. Honors were about even in this.

A tug-of-war followed, in which the Fourth pulled the Third all over. There were just eight from each Troop present, and the Fourth had much the heavier end of the rope. They even dropped a man and pulled seven to eight and won.

In the tub-tilting which followed everyone had a chance to take a crack at the other fellow. Some took that crack at him and some got said crack.

Mr. Fred Roy came in in the midst of the fun. We wish to put on record the fact that Mr. Roy is a real Scout. At five o'clock he was telephoned and asked if he could come down to the Troop room and show some moving pictures, and in spite of this short notice, Mr. Roy was on hand at 8 o'clock with several reels of "home-made movies." These were taken on the cine-kodak, mostly in and around Peterborough. They were a really entertaining lot of pictures. Mr. Roy also showed us scenes taken on a motor tour through the Timagimi district in Northern Ontario. The pictures were wonderfully clear and every Scout enjoyed the entertainment so provided.

After the movies, the floor was cleared and games were again played. Boxing aused much fun, and everyone had a fine time. There was some complaint among the members of the Third that the Fourth had a fine idea of how to treat guests, especially when they had boxing gloves on. The Third apparently got the worst of it.

By now everybody was beginning to feel hungry and to wonder when the feed was going to start, but at last their "patience" was rewarded and they were told to "fall in" at table. Everything went swimmingly, and a real meal was provided. Mashed potatoes, beans, weiners, cake and cocoa gave each Scout something to do for awhile.

Dishes were all washed up and Scouts went home, all happy.

The Third thank the members of the Fourth Troop for the sportsmanlike way in which they played hockey and then provided a real feed.

The United States armies have been decorated for their part in the war by the order of the French staff, which has changed the name of Belleau Wood to Bois de la Brigade de Marines.

People who seek to adopt children always seem to favor girl babies; boys are not nearly so popular.

THE LADIE FAIRE

By C. M. C.

"For of the soule the bodie forme doth take;
For soule is forme, and doth the bodie make."

Deep down in her heart every woman wishes to be beautiful, and it is a natural desire for we live in a world of many beautiful things. Every person, no matter how stolid and apparently unappreciative, has at some time had the heart strings set vibrating by beauty of sound or appearance.

Mother Nature daily teaches the lesson of beauty. All we have to do is to look about us at the green grass, the exquisite dainty colourings of flowers, the intoxicating magnificence of autumn leaves, a sunset sky, a laughing brook; even the very rocks have many beautiful colours and the dullest of them frequently wear a cloak of strangely beautiful moss. So it would seem that human beings are meant to enjoy beauty and to learn to appreciate it. Not every one can have a beautiful face, but every one can have a beautiful character, and much can be done for even the plainest faces.
